HOLD 4 AS BANK ROBBERS

Montreal Men Charged With Frankford Theft

Four Montreal men are in custody here charged jointly with armed robbery in connection with Wednesday's holdup of the Bank of Montreal at Frankford.

Charges were laid by Frankford Police Chief William Hockley, in co-operation with Belleville O.P.P.

Charged are Maurice Langis, 31; Armand Bisson, 29; Victor Tessier, 42; and Gilles Gaudette, 27, all of Montreal.

The men were intercepted by O.P.P. yesterday afternoon on Highway 401 near Grafton.

Three members of the Cobourg O.P.P. Detachment were in the cruiser that apprehended the four suspects in Wednesday's bank robbery at Frankford.

The car containing the four men was first spotted proceeding westward on Highway 401 near Grafton shortly after 1 p.m. Constable John Martin of the Brighton O.P.P. Detachment had the car under surveillance until it was stopped by the Cobourg O.P.P.

The four men offered no resistance.

The most intensive manhunt in the Quinte area in many years began Wednesday afternoon, shortly after four men robbed Frankford's Bank of Montreal of $15,000 one-half hour before closing time.

The get-away car, which had been stolen earlier from Kingston, was recovered in the bank

Burglar Alarm Failed Reason Is Not Known

...thing went wrong with ... burglar alarm system ... the holdup in the Bank ... Montreal Wednesday at Frankford.

Bank Manager J. C. MacDonald said today that four alarms were tripped, but nothing happened.

"The accountant, the chief clerk, one of the tellers and I all tripped the alarm," Mr. MacDonald said, "but for some reason it didn't work.

"We tried it again the next morning and it was in perfect working order.

"They are in order today too and we haven't been able to establish why they didn't work during the robbery."

Mr. MacDonald said representatives from the alarm company are beginning their investigations into the incident.

The alarm is connected to the Ontario Hydro office at Frankford. A Hydro spokesman said, "The bank was given permission to put an extension of their alarm with a bell on it in our office.

"It didn't ring on the day of the robbery."

Meanwhile, Mr. MacDonald, commenting on the actions of his staff during the robbery said, "Under the circumstances, they handled themselves very commendably.

"I don't think we weren't all shaking because we were, but the staff didn't panic.

Act, Think-Canadian Guidelines For Foreign Companies Outlined

...ON (CP)—Robust Canadian ... for foreign corporations who ... solely advised ... Act-Canadian, ... guidelines for ... Trade Minister.

... a letter to presidents or ... other chief executives of foreign-owned subsidiaries in Canada, Trade Minister Winters outlined his expectations for their conduct in marketing, pricing, procurement, investment and corporate citizenship.

The keynote was a appeal for subsidiaries to develop export business, to use Canadian materials and processes, and with all the energy of homegrown companies.

Mr. Winters said he knows many companies follow these principles in spirit and in deed. But the fact of foreign control ... es the subsidiaries open ... internal influences which may not always be consistent with their own best interests and those of the Canadian community ... letter said.

The guidelines were interpreted as a reaction to U.S. guidelines announced last January at curbing investment by foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies.

The letter said the U.S. policy as it applies to Canada is not a request for U.S. corporations to induce their Canadian subsidiaries to change business practices in any way harmful to Canada.

But under the circumstances, the Canadian principles would be "timely and useful," the letter said.

Mr. Winters added in an interview after tabling the letter in the House of Commons the ... guidelines would serve to "clear the air."

The letter states these "desirable objectives":

—Sound growth to realize full productive potential.

— Maximum competitiveness and increasing specialization.

—Maximum development of export markets.

—Fair pricing in all sales.

—Development of sources of supply in Canada.

—Development of research and design capabilities.

—Retention of enough earnings to support growth and afford a fair return to shareholders.

—A Canadian outlook, through promotion of qualified Canadians and election of Canadians among company directors.

—Opportunity for equity participation by the Canadian public.

—Publishing of information on company finances and operations.

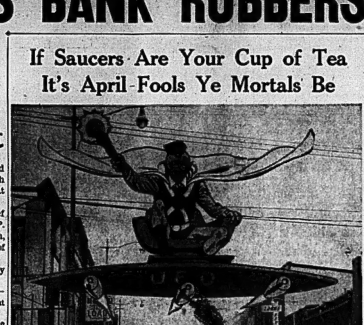
—Support for national measures designed to advance Canada economically, intellectually, socially and culturally.

Mr. Winters also wrote that he intends to ask large and medium - sized companies for confidential reports about their operations and financing.

All four opposition parties endorsed Mr. Winters' step. Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said of the trade minister:

"With the stand he has taken, he has placed Canada first."

New Democrat Leader Douglas said the trade minister should "spell out a lot more specifically" the proposal that subsidiaries would develop export markets as fully as possible.



Three milling companies, subsidiaries of U.S. firms, refused to mill wheat because it was being sold to Russia for transshipment to Cuba, he said.

Another point to be made was that subsidiaries were subject to the laws and policies of Canada.

Creditiste spokesman Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe) said more processing should be done in Canada.

Both he and Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said there should be no restriction of foreign trade of subsidiaries.

Viet Cong Guerrillas Kill 6 In Raid on Hotel in Saigon

SAIGON (CP)—The Viet Cong brought the Viet Nam war into the heart of Saigon today when a guerrilla assault team killed six men—including three Americans—and wounded 143 in a lightning raid on a U.S. officers' billet.

The Americans died in gun battles with the small band of raiders during and after the attack on the 10-storey Victoria Hotel. The injured included 113 Americans, 18 of them hurt seriously.

The powerful blast also wounded a number of South Vietnamese women and children in nearby homes. It was one of the most devastating terrorist attacks of the war.

Police said two men speeding from the scene on a motorbike were arrested after their vehicle overturned. Police sources said one admitted taking part in the attack.

The explosion ripped the hotel's three lower floors apart, smashed windows throughout the building, shattered outside walls as high as the seventh floor, unleased a torrent of water from a 12,000-gallon roof-top tank and left a huge crater out front. The water probably prevented a brief electrical fire from turning the building into an inferno.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge denounced the attack as "typical Communist violence of the criminal kind" as he inspected the wreckage and conferred with officials at the scene. The building housed 200 officers.

U.S. military authorities said a panel truck pulled up in front of the billet and several men jumped out and opened fire on the American and the South Vietnamese military police at the entrance.

Another terrorist was spotted planting an explosive device across the road. The guards fired at the terrorist and knocked him down but he got up and ran off as the small charge exploded. Then the major charge in the truck went off.

The men who had parked the vehicles were spotted running a block away by a U.S. military jeep patrol, and a furious exchange of fire erupted. The two Americans in the jeep were killed as had been the American and South Vietnamese guards at the hotel.

A Russian-made automatic rifle and two Russian-made grenades were found near the hotel.

Higher Taxes Now In Effect

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario ushers in a new fiscal year today, marked by the formal beginning of the province's own medical care plan and by increases in taxes that will add a little to the cost of almost everything.

Coverage under OMSIP, the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan, starts for about 200,000 residents receiving assistance under one or another of the province's various welfare programs.

While the government has estimated that the cost of OMSIP could go as high as $70,000,000 in a full year of operation, this is not the only reason for Ontario's tax increases.

More to blame are the high

Wilson Converts 17-Month Record Into Wide Lead

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson, returning in triumph to 10 Downing Street after his Labor party's crushing defeat of the Conservatives in Britain's general election Thursday, pledged new initiatives for disarmament and an end to the Viet Nam war.

"This decisive mandate will give Britain greater authority in the world and above all in the search for international disarmament and international peace," Wilson said from the steps of his official London residence.

With results tallied from 623 of the 630 constituencies, the count was: Labor 362, Conservatives 250, Liberals 9, Irish Republican 1, Speaker 1.

Although today's results from outlying areas showed increased strength for the Conservatives, as expected, Wilson's Labor party was certain of a over-all majority of close to 111 seats, experts said.

Looking fresh and vigorous despite less than four hours' sleep, the 50-year-old Wilson said he will give priority to measures to maintain the pound sterling as a strong international currency.

He indicated action to stabilize wages and prices and said: "We really mean business in keeping the pound strong."

Conservative Leader Edward Heath conceded defeat 24 hours after the polls closed, long after the Labor victory was clearly indicated by early results.

Wilson, who for 17 months worked with a razor-thin majority in the House of Commons, said one of the major tasks ahead was finding a cure—perhaps stern and unpopular—for Britain's economic financial ills.

Railway Firemen Defiant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad firemen, defying a federal Judge and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz, today continued their strike which has crippled eight major railways in 38 states.

The strike appeared to be a showdown in the seven-year battle between the railway industry and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (AFL-CIO) over the elimination of some 18,000 firemen's jobs.

"I have not given an affirmative answer," said union president H. E. Gilbert after a three-hour meeting in which Wirtz asked him to order 8,000 strikers back to work. Gilbert is the only union official with authority to call off the strike.

Both Wirtz and Gilbert said the prospect was for the strike to continue.

Wirtz declined to speculate on whether President Johnson might step into the dispute.

UNION WILL APPEAL

Gilbert said union lawyers will go to the U.S. Court of Appeals today to fight the temporary restraining order issued Thursday by U.S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff to end all strike and picketing activity.

"We have a war, and also the entire public is affected entirely aside from the war," Holtzoff said of the strike that stranded passengers and stalled freight from Boston to Savannah, Ga., to San Francisco.

Will Cost Dow Brewery Million To Dump Beer at Quebec City

QUEBEC (CP) — As Dow Brewery Ltd. beer in the hundreds of gallons gurgled down the drain here Thursday, the federal health department in Ottawa considered asking two provinces to do the same and in Toronto a decision was taken to lift the lids of vats in Ontario breweries.

The decision to dump 1,000,000 gallons of Dow beer into Quebec City sewers followed the deaths in the area of 18 middle-aged men in the last two months.

The federal health department was informed March 19 by a Quebec doctor about a possible relationship between beer drinking and a new form of heart failure, "an entirely new syndrome."

None of the victims drank less than eight quarts of beer a day. There were about 40 suspected cases of which the 18 died.

A federal-provincial investigation of the deaths has produced no evidence that the deaths were caused by beer, authorities said, but Dow said in a statement that it was destroying the beer "to contribute further to the official investigation and in order to reassure the consumers in the area served by our Quebec City plant."

The statement also said:

"The first reports indicated that there might be a link between these cases and an excessive consumption of beer produced in our Quebec City plant."

The company said it will supply agents and licensees in the area with beer produced in its Montreal plant.

An official spokesman for the company said Thursday it is too early to calculate the financial loss from the destruction of the beer, but another company official who asked not to be identified said it will cost the company $1,000,000.

Federal and provincial government officers are overseeing the destruction of the beer, a company spokesman said.

He said production will not be resumed at the Quebec City plant until the investigation into the deaths of the 18 men has been completed.

Meanwhile, Ontario is the only province to have decided to check its beer supply.

A Canadian Press survey revealed all other provinces, except Prince Edward Island—which has no breweries—have decided not to investigate their brewery products.

In Ottawa, Health Minister MacEachen said that while the federal government considered asking manufacturers of two other brands sold in the Quebec City area to destroy their stocks, it decided it lacks the authority.

He said tests have been run on two other brands of beer produced by Dow but that it could not ask that these stocks be destroyed because no relationship has been found between the beer and the deaths.

Mr. MacEachen said in a prepared statement that a test by the Quebec health department for a "number of metals" in the beer had proved negative. He did not name Dow in his statement nor indicated who produces the other brands.

Cancer Society Is Seeking $16,000 in City, District

With the arrival of April, the Canadian Cancer Society will launch its annual appeal for funds. This year's objective is almost four and a half million dollars — $4,466,985 to be precise. Of this total, the Belleville unit, of which E. E. Fedorwell is president, has a responsibility for $16,000. The area from which it hopes to obtain this sum stretches north to No. 7 Highway, there being branches of the Belleville unit at Tweed, Madoc and Marmora, as well as at Deseronto and at Stirling, Trenton and Picton hold their own campaigns.

Besides sharing in the cost of the national work of the Society including its support of cancer research, the Belleville unit is also active locally, through its "service to patients" committee. This committee endeavors to give all the help it can to sufferers from cancer, supplying drugs, dressings, home visits, nursing service, lodge accommodation, housekeeping service, therapy and transportation of patients.

In Belleville dressings are made for the entire unit and workers meet Monday afternoons from 2 to 4 at the workshop at 36 Bridge St. E. There are 26 organizations in the city which rotate in sending six members; thus they are called only once in six months. There are also people who do certain dressings in their own homes. Last year 34,428 dressings were made and 32,262 distributed. Dressings and colostomy bags are given free when requested either by a doctor or nurse. There are seven pain killing drugs given to the cancer patient only upon request from the doctor.

This year there was a dire need for pyjamas for Princess Margaret Hospital and the Belleville Branch was able to send 33 pairs, donated by friends of the society, and 5 pairs of underwear.

Mrs. Ed Logan is convener and on her committee she has two assistants, Mrs. Tom Lynch and Mrs. W. B. Vandervoort. Mrs. J. Belanger delivers the dressings to the patients once a month but is always willing to make extra trips when she gets an emergency call. Miss Don LaFrance says that there is a group working on Mondays.

The "serving to patients" committee is known as the heart of the Cancer Society and is always on call to help the cancer patient.

MRS. MARY ISABEL SHEPPARD

PICTON — Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Mary Isabel Sheppard died Thursday evening at the Rose Haven Nursing Home in Picton. She was in her 84th year.

Born in Ottawa, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Whissel, Mrs. Sheppard had lived in this part of the province all her life. A former resident of Point Anne, she had been at the nursing home since 1961. Mrs. Sheppard was an adherent of the Anglican Church.

Survived by her husband, Stephen Henry Sheppard, Mrs. Sheppard also leaves a son, Chester, of Point Anne, and four daughters, Mrs. Maurice Waterbury of Marysville, Mrs. John Gardner of Toronto, Mrs. Roy (Ethel) Hoard of Belleville and Miss Grace Winnifred Sheppard of Hamilton. She had 12 grandchildren.

Mrs. Sheppard will be resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from Saturday until the service in the chapel Monday afternoon. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. LEITRA MYRTLE GOODFELLOW

The funeral of Mrs. Leitra Myrtle Goodfellow was held Thursday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Chapel, Belleville to St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin. Rev. Virgil Earle conducted the service during which Mrs. Arnold Dilts sang "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." Interment was in the parish cemetery and the bearers were Arthur Bates, Ward White, William Gilmore, Whit Slingerland, Arnold Dilts and Ted Wilson. .

On Wednesday evening, Chapter No. 148, Order of the Eastern Star, Tweed held a service for Mrs. Goodfellow in the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

150 Years Ago

Monday 1st April — Employed lotting out the North end of the Town Plot.

Note: The original Town Plan had too few cross streets, which caused great inconvenience as the town grew, Five additional east - west streets were opened — Bridge St., McAnnany St., Campbell St. and Lattimer St. One short north-south street was also laid out added since 1816—Turnbull St.

Until recently, the public must made use of various private lanes as auxiliary streets between Front and Pinnacle streets, for example the lane beside the Cash and Carry Dairy and that between Percival's and Moira Furniture Stores. We cannot blame the town planner of 1816 for neglecting to set aside reserve lots for one distinctly modern use—parking lots.

Although outside the original town plot, another north-south street has been growing since the past 25 years — the "Riverside Drive" along the east bank of the Moira River.

Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, New Designation of Air Station

By ELMER BONTER

TRENTON — The name RCAF Station Trenton is headed for the scrap heap after almost 37 years of use.

And so from today the up-or-terminology of the big government air force installation will be "Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

It was on the same day in 1924 the Royal Canadian Air Force was born as Canada's youngest and most exciting armed service.

Contrary to what you may be thinking now this is not an All Fool's Day prank. As a matter of fact, in this instance, the Department of National Defence was never more serious.

The change, confusing in particular to career airmen, is considered another phasing out step in the defence department's undertaking to integrate the armed forces. However, many sentimental air force veterans have already expressed contempt for the powers responsible for implicating this policy. An unknown quantity is how the station's loss of identity will set with the thousands of "Commonwealth airmen, who learned to remember it as their home away from home while training here in Canada for World War II roles.

As yet unconfirmed there is much serious talk going on in Trenton about holding a fitting function to commemorate the base's illustrious air force history. Tentatively being entertained — a reunion dinner with all former station commanding officers, called for Saturday, in attendance as guests of honor.

FIRST C.O. KILLED

RCAF Station Trenton celebrated its silver anniversary in 1941. Group Captain A. H. Millward was then C.O.

The station's first commanding officer, Lt. W. Hesseldon was killed in an air accident over the Bay Quinte in 1932. He was followed by Group Captain L. S. Breadner, who rose to become Chief of Air Marshall during the Second World War.

A leader with a great understanding of men, he served as C.O. of the then Station Trenton became a government relief camp during the Depression "a camp" under the government of R. B. Bennett.

Other distinguished officers, who have commanded Trenton include Air Vice Marshal G. O. Johnson, Air Vice Marshal A. E. Godfrey, 36-38; Air Vice Marshal A. A. L. Cuffe, 38-40; Air Commodore McEwen, 38-40; Air Vice Marshal Sully, Feb. 40-Nov. 40; Air Commodore Manuel, Nov. 40-42; Air Vice Marshal McGill, 42-43; Air Vice Marshal, R. E. Gilchrist June 43 - Nov. 43; Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, 43-45; Air Commodore H. G. Rutledge, O.B.E., 46-47; Air Commodore D. A. R. Bradshaw, D.F.C., 47-48; Group Captain A. A. Lewis, A.F.C., Dec. 48-June 48; Group Captain G. R. Dundas, 48-52; Group Captain Millward, 52-54; Air Commodore G. J. Diamond, 54-57; Air Commodore R. M. Cox, 57-59; Group Captain D. J. Williams, 59-63; Wing Commander J. O. Kissing, May 63 - Group Captain E. M. Butcher 63 - ?

Of course no mention of RCAF Station Trenton would be complete without reference to the late General William A. Bishop. The complex stands today as the symbol of his greatest achievement. As a Trentonian, who did more for his hometown than any other resident he worked tirelessly for two years before the Federal government decided to establish a RCAF base at Trenton.

WORLD AIR TERMINAL

Known as a world air terminal now RCAF Station Trenton's expansion and growth as an important air force establishment was shaped first as a training base and in late years as headquarters for transport command. In the latter role it has provided the armed services with regular passenger and freight flights as dependable as most efficiently operated civilian airline. All Canadians are proud of its record in this field.

"He name may have been changed but to me the base will always remain RCAF Station Trenton," observed a flying officer sought for his comment. "The official campaign to abolish the term 401 hasn't succeeded so I feel there's still reason to hope."

Trade Show by Local Firm Attracts Outside Customers

Over 250 buyers plus numerous suppliers attended the Electric Motors Sales and Service Product Show last night at Club Canara.

Twenty - five major suppliers had booths at the show, displaying such things as fastening devices, motors, air tools, cutting tools, abrasives, woodworking equipment, rubber products, drills, saws, switches and numerous other industrial products.

One display showed a motor working away normally while completely submerged in water. Beside it, another motor was running at a temperature of 340 degrees Fahrenheit.

There were machines on display at the show from as far away as Japan and Germany, plus many English and United States products and of course, Canadian products.

Mr. Belanger, owner of Electric Motor Sales and Service Belleville Limited, credited his three sons, Karl, Roland and Terry, with the organization of the show.

Mr. Belanger said, "We had a good turnout from Kingston's three major industries, the Canadian Locomotive Company and CIL, plus representation from many smaller Kingston industries.

FEATHER IN CAP

"I don't mind saying that I think it's a feather in our cap to attract the major industries of a city twice our size to buy things in Belleville. It's unalloy the other way around."

K. H. Zinsmaster, president, ARO of Canada Limited, said "I think this is one of the most enthusiastic local shows I've ever attended.

"We've had as great a response here as I've ever seen at an area show. We're most enthused about the show."

Stan Reenor, District Sales, Canada Sand Papers Limited, said, "Even our own reaction, it's been an excellent show. To be perfectly frank, we weren't too sure about it when we decided to come.

"Mainly we got some orders here, and you can't beat that."

Vic Gordon, Sales Representative, Gray Tools Company, said "It's been a good show, it's the first time in Belleville anything like this show has ever happened.

"I think Karl Belanger deserves a lot of credit for his great organization work."

13 Building Permits Have $67,582 Total

TRENTON — In March, 13 building permits were issued from the office of building inspector William Anderson. Total estimated value was $67,582.

In a breakdown today, Mr. Anderson said one permit for new home construction was issued; value $11,000. Dwelling additions, two permits; value $7,000; eight for repairs to dwellings; value $13,825; one for a garage, value $34,857.

This compares with six permits issued in February of this year, value $130,338.00 and with a total value of building in March, 1965, of $258,918.

Mr. Anderson forecast the April picture would be better, with spring building opening up.

News in Brief

TRENTON — The Trenton High School Key Club raised $50 in last Saturday's car wash on the market square. The club uses monies raised to donate gym equipment to the school and for other benevolent purposes.

FIREMEN CALLED TWICE

The Trenton fire department was called out twice overnight, once to 36 Queen Street where an electric motor, attached to the furnace had become overheated and once to a grass fire near the east side Glenaton plant.

SEALS MAILED OUT

The Rotary Club of Trenton last week mailed out 5,000 envelopes, containing Easter Seals to Trenton residents.

The club plans to use the monies collected to help with its program of assistance to crippled children. While some of the funds are devoted to research, the club also keeps a watchful eye on the needs of crippled children in this immediate area.

DANES MEAN BUSINESS

Denmark exported more than $48,000,000 worth of furniture in 1965.

General Electric Will Open Plant in Town

TRENTON — The General Electric Company of Peterborough has taken up, the option on the former OMC Boats plant on West Street and will open a fractional motor manufacturing plant here.

The plant, which should swing into operation by fall, will employ 100 men and women initially. Equipment will be moved into the plant between now and then.

The back part of the former boat manufacturing plant will be used as a storehouse to house manufacturing parts.

Roy Rogers of Peterborough will be first plant manager.

The option taken out by GE several months ago, has been followed up by personal contact by Cornwallis Paul Tripp, chairman of the economic and industrial development committee of council and Mayor James MacDonald.

Town Budget Nearly Ready For Approval

TRENTON — Trenton's 1966 budget should be approved within the next ten days, Mayor James MacDonald said today.

Meanwhile, the town's five-year capital spending estimates, approved by the three million eight hundred thousand dollars, exclusive of grants, has been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board, although each item must gain further approval as the work schedule progresses.

One item the board has approved in the clearing of land in Murray Township where the utility commission means to build a water storage pond. The $137,000 job already been started by the winning contractor, Mel Willis of Listowell.

An exhibition by Wellington taxidermist Jacob De Vries is one of the most striking attractions at the Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show.

Exhibits for Rotary Science Fair, Hobby Show in Place For Opening at Armouries

"Rotary Circles the World" is the legend which greets visitors to the second annual Science Fair and Hobby Show at Belleville Armouries.

With a world map for background, and markers indicating major centres of the service club organization on the five continents, it is an appropriate introduction to a display which in large part reflects our shrinking world.

In such a world communications are vital, so that it is not surprising to find among the scientific exhibits examples of the latest equipment contributing to the improvement and speeding up of links between peoples and nations.

An excellent example of the latest in communications devices is the Bell Telephone's picturephone — a telephone equipped with two-way television enabling the parties to see each other while conversing.

The company is also exhibiting its "telephone beats" which operates in the same way as an automatic dial switchboard, accepting information, retaining it and then acting upon it.

These are among the Science in Industry exhibits which are a major attraction of the display opening this afternoon and continuing through tomorrow.

Others include Ontario Hydro's model of a nuclear power station, Northern Electric's electronic devices, CJBQ Radio's remote broadcasting studio, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's weapons display and the RCAF's Tutor jet flight simulator.

BACKBONE OF SHOW

But if these are examples of Canada's business and industrial pride, the backbone of the show at the Armouries is once again the magnificent young men with their flying (and either) machines from Belleville and Quinte area schools. And there is a group of fine young girl exhibitors, who come into this category too.

If model aircraft are old hat, Trenton High's Barry Askell, whose father is a sergeant at the latter base, has such a measure of his subject that one wonders if a computer could store half as much knowledge as he has at his command.

His models of British, American and German aircraft are finished to the very last detail and he rattles off facts and figures on their performance, names of pilots who flew them and so on, with the ease of one who knows what he is talking about.

To ensure the complete authenticity of his planes Barry had to send to a firm in Bolivia for the decals (wing markings and insignia).

If big business has its mechanical brains so do the young people at school. Only theirs are the home-made variety. Still, they work — like the one Doug DiFruscio and William Raney of Quinte Secondary School have on display.

Moira Secondary's Bob Beecher has an exhibit illustrating the generation and transmission of electric power, and going back in time somewhat there is Lee Scrimshaw's working model of an early thrasher. From Lee's accompanying text we learn that a Sioé, Michael Mecsics made the first mechanical thrasher in 1732, supplanting the traditional method of separating grain by hand flailing or treading.

Lee is a student at Quinte.

EXCELLENT HOBBY SHOW

Also on hand is Bruce Devine, son of CJBQ's sports editor Jack Devine with his turntable units and other paraphenalia of the modern broadcasting unit.

From things mechanical to something more basic, more eloquent of the life force itself — barred rock hybrid chicks. Little black blobs of two-day old energy they comprise the poultry incubation exhibit of Brian Williamson and Ted Fort of Belleville Collegiate and are bound to have a ready audience among small fry as wel las the older folk.

The exhibit even includes some unborn chicks which are expected to hatch during tomorrow.

An attractive young lady is Mee Kin Seto, a Grade 11 student at Belleville Collegiate. Mee Kin has put a lot of time and effort into her study of Acrylic, a plastic substance she has used to fashion several attractive articles like a fruit or flower bowl and an ash tray to name a few.

Also creating a lot of interest this year is the Hobby Show which once again reflects the many-sided genius of Belleville and area citizens.

VARIETY OF EXHIBITS

On display are such varied attractions as coins, leather work, gems, minerals, model aircraft, handwriting, dolls' fashions and the work of local artists.

Hastings County poet Charles Tupper is there with his Centennial display, exhibit, and a familiar face among Rotarian exhibitors is Don MacKinnon who paints people at trains. There are fine examples of handweaving, dolls' fashions and the work of local artists.

Three Elementary School Units For Hastings Are Suggested Sparkling Hot Council Debate

Elementary and secondary school educational problems, related to larger areas of schools administration, were the topic of heated discussion in Hastings county council yesterday.

After hearing the report of the public school consultative committee, which recommended larger public school areas and suggested high schools at Stirling, Marmora and Tweed should be closed, members took up the remainder of the afternoon in sometimes hot debate.

Then, with tempers of several councillors continuing to boil, the whole matter was laid over until the June session.

Stirling Reeve Ewen Rodgers, chairman of the public schools consultative committee, told council that a directive from Hon. William Davis, minister of education, entrusted his committee to study all aspects of education within the county, particularly in regard to geographic factors, pupil-ways, location of secondary schools, and existing public schools, distributions and trends, and future shifts of school population.

LIST GOALS

Briefly, he said, the goals were:

(a) Public schools located so that each will have at least 300 pupils.

(b) Areas so formed as to be large enough to support a composite secondary school.

(c) Establishment of boards of education, to administer both elementary and secondary school education.

Mr. Rodgers said that a school area with an average daily attendance of 2,000 would permanent supervision and supervising staff to take care of instructional program and the administrative staff to carry out board policy.

Also an area of this size could afford specialist teachers for many subjects bringing them on a par with city schools.

Such a program has been carried out for some time in city elementary schools and the hope of the department is that it can be extended to pupils all across the province instead of for just a chosen few.

Pupils advancing from such a system to a composite secondary school, in the opinion of the committee, should have a real advantage, especially in the all important early secondary school years.

SEE THREE UNITS

In the opinion of the committee Hastings county was too large for one elementary schools county unit but should lend itself to the development of three areas of administration.

These might be the three existing municipalities of Thurlow and Tyendinaga with about 3,000 pupils as one unit; the central de Cloreinda with about 2,800 elementary pupils and North Hastings, with about 2,000 pupils.

In North Hastings many of the existing school facilities have been constructed in recent years and it was felt that most of these buildings would remain in use until their usefulness is no longer justified.

While facilities in the north were generally good, instruction is hampered by teacher supply. Pupils in some instances are transported long distances.

"We feel that one unit of administration could collect economies in transportation and could attract better qualified staff personnel," the report read.

North Hastings already has a composite secondary school at Bancroft.

Mr. Rodgers said it was expected that at least two or three years would elapse before many of the committee recommendation could be carried out. But teacher as north Hastings was concerned larger school areas are being forced this year by the department.

The public schools act states that township areas with an average daily attendance of less than 100, must, before July 1st, be attached to an adjoining area. The townships of Huntingdon, Tudor and Cashel, Limerick and Mayo now fall into this category.

In Centre Hastings there has been a move toward a central school serving an entire township.

Several years ago Madoc built a new eight-room school, and despite the fact enrolment is now only about 230 pupils Reeve Allen Ketchenson said the school was operating satisfactorily, although not possibly at top efficiency, which could be reached only with 300 pupils.

Huntingdon and Rawdon Townships are now thinking in central school terms.

In the case of Huntingdon however, township school enrolment is only 225, and with declining rural population this figure could be even lower within a five-year period.

URGE CAUTION

The public schools consultative committee is urging a "go slow" approach to the central school idea for townships where school enrolment is now low 300.

They feel there is little point in building a central township school which could have vacant rooms before five years' time.

In all of Centre Hastings there is an elementary school enrolment of approximately 2,800 , which the committee feels is enough for one composite school — and an opportunity to develop at minimum cost one of the finest elementary school systems in the county.

However, in an area only large enough for one composite secondary school there are no less than four such seats of learning — at Madoc, Tweed, Marmora and Stirling.

Mrs. Rodgers said the committee had explored the possibilities from all angles and only one proposal seemed realistic. This was for secondary school education in Stirling, Marmora and Tweed to be terminated and a more ideal composite school education offered in Madoc.

In rural South Hastings there are sufficient elementary school pupils to support a composite secondary school, but these children are already attending a fully developed composite schools in Belleville.

SOUTH HASTINGS OUTLOOK

Mr. Rodgers said it would be realistic to expect a new secondary school in the south Hastings area when present schools at Belleville become overcrowded.

In the south area, Tyendinaga township has approval for a new central school, while both Thurlow and Sidney are also in a building program.

Here it was recommended that consideration be given to a larger type school unit as the population was constantly growing.

While 300 pupils is the suggested minimum for an elementary school, 600 would offer a better school program and with proper planning could be achieved.

Several councillors suggested that there be no action taken with regard to the recommended larger school until there was some definite direction as to how existing debenture problems were to be handled.

Tudor Reeve Wes McMurray said his township had experienced an instance of the difficulty which could be got into. Some years ago his township wanted out of a union school set-up with Wollaston and was still paying debentures although no children from the township had attended classes at Coe Hill in years.

OPPOSE CLOSING

But it was the consultative committee reference to the possible closing of high schools at Stirling, Tweed and Marmora which prompted the heated discussion in council.

Tweed Reeve Guy Hughes and Hungerford Township representatives, R. C. Graham and William McCrea, said they wanted nothing more than their high school at Tweed to be left alone.

Originally Rawdon Township belonged to the Centre Hastings High School Area, as also did Tweed Village and the Township of Hungerford.

Reeve Beckett said that five years ago the department urged the building of a new high school addition at Stirling.

"Now it appears they are advising us to close the school. What is the next thing that is on next?" he asked.

Then, some years ago Rawdon was allowed to withdraw from the Centre Hastings Area and join with Stirling, and about three years ago Tweed and Hungerford were also allowed to withdraw to form the Tweed-Hungerford Area.

SAYS SOMETHING WRONG

Reeve Wilkes went so far as to say that "there was something wrong" with the Centre Hastings High School Area.

To this, committee member Reeve Tom Burnside of Madoc said that it has been known for years what was wrong with the Centre Hastings High School Area.

"What's wrong with it is that only half of the area is supporting it," he said.

Carlow-Mayo township Reeve Gerald Caldwell said he didn't oppose large school areas "where they are workable."

"But I am surprised that educated people can come up with such unworkable proposals," he said.

He said that in his own township's case the department of education had apparently adopted a double standard for schools.

A few years ago they had been complimented on having a well-equipped school and now were being told the same school was costing too much money.

"If this isn't leading up to the block to chop our heads off I don't know what it is," he said.

NEED ANSWERS

Mr. Caldwell said the department should answer a few more questions before it tried to force people into something.

None of the council speakers had any criticism for the three members of the consultative committee who, they said, had done a fine job.

Reeve Rodgers told council that for some necessary suggestions regarding Centre Hastings high schools, were only suggestions. He said the committee actually had no jurisdiction in the area of high schools.

Mr. W. A. Dunsmore, South Hastings public school inspector and secretary of the consultative committee, did say however that the department looked for committee approval before permission was given for school building programs.

Govt. Answers Lee Grills

OTTAWA (CP)—Only 25 per cent of municipal taxes paid on farm homes is deductible federally, Lee Grills (PC—Haliburton-Victoria) was told in the Commons Thursday night.

"Disgraceful," remarked Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton) as James E. Walker (York Centre), parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Benson, provided the information.

Mr. Grills said in an adjournment debate that a federal assessor had told a farmer in his county 75 per cent of the municipal taxes he claimed as a deduction couldn't be claimed.

They Stood Firm

To borrow from an old saying, old politicians never die they just fade away. Yet often it takes only a few well-chosen and well-timed words to dispel any notion that a politician is on the way out.

Look at Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker whose career many thought was finished following the schism in Conservative ranks over defence policy a few years ago. But the crusty old lawyer from the prairies kept his own counsel, a grip on the party leadership and finally, in the last election, left the nation in no doubt that he was more than ever boss in his own house.

Having risen from the ashes of party dissension Mr. Diefenbaker at 70 has become something of a legend in his own lifetime.

Now it is Prime Minister Lester Pearson's turn to show there is still plenty of life in the Liberal leadership. Mr. Pearson took a lot of abuse during the recent session in the Commons on national security, and when the smoke had cleared there were murmurings that after a decent interval had elapsed he would retire from politics.

The prime minister has just dispelled this notion. He has told a banquet meeting of Quebec Liberals that he has no intention of resigning as party leader.

"I am resolved to continue my work; to carry on for as long as I have strength and vigor and that my party wants me.

"I have no fondness for the pomp or power or the privileges of office, but I do have — as you have — a deep feeling of loyalty to my country and of obligation to serve it."

There is an object lesson here for all Canadians. When the history of this period in Canadian politics comes to be written it will be said of both Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker that they were men of strength and character.

It will be said that when the bitter winds of circumstance and political intrigue blew across the wintry land they did not flinch, and ultimately emerged stronger in spirit and stature.

Certainly there are other men capable of leading the two major parties and rising to the highest political office in the land. But none at this time has the experience or stature of Mr. Pearson or Mr. Diefenbaker.

They have made mistakes and will likely make more, but that after all is a matter of human frailty and the story of mankind. The important thing is that in the midst of many difficulties it was their courage which ultimately prevailed.

Hardy Scots

Dr. Mary Kay Lane is professor of psychology at Waterloo Lutheran University. She is also a pretty blonde who introduced a pleasant aura of femininity as speaker at a recent Kitchener-Waterloo service club meeting.

The professor's talk afforded some interesting comparisons between social attitudes on this continent and those in the British Isles. They were gleaned from her experience while serving part-time last year for a British advertising agency and studying the rest of the day for her doctorate at the University of London.

The British are parsimonious, she found, where typically frugal, and at the same time practical. And it is clear they believe a spartan existence makes for a hardier breed than is produced by the modern conveniences of this continent.

Dr. Lane's milk is delivered daily, milk is sold in pint sizes only. We wanted to find out if it would be bought if available in larger packages. But they don't have fridges so they don't want milk in large packages.

"Not only do they not have fridges, but they don't want them. They keep their food on a cold stone in the kitchen which is really cold because they don't have central heating.

"And they don't want central heating because they like the 'drafts. They believe they are healthy. They believe that North Americans are pale and pasty because they live with heating and air conditioning."

There you have it — from the traditionalist Scots. If you ever visit Scotland, or any other part of the wide open spaces of the British Isles, in England, Ireland or Wales, you will see girls with fair complexions and rosy cheeks. And while this is due in part to Nordic ancestry, much of it also stems from the wind and the rain and the fact that central heating is not in universal use.

Suffocating

Having our lungs subjected to the concentration of auto exhaust fumes in downtown Belleville is bad enough, but we are fortunate not to have to live in Tokyo.

The traffic in the teeming streets of the largest city in the world makes places like London, Rome and Montreal seem like the wide open spaces.

So much so that oxygen cylinders and masks have been issued to policemen on duty at busy Tokyo crossroads because they periodically become faint from exhaust fumes!

Exercise May Help In Wearing High Heels

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I can't wear shoes in comfort with more than 1" heels. Lower heels are also uncomfortable. With heels, my feet slide into the toes of the shoes and all my weight seems to concentrate there. Can exercise strengthen the arches so that I can wear dress shoes on occasion? — M. S.

I hope you have consulted an orthopedist or a podiatrist. Your problem may be such that you will have to forego high heels, but there are exercises to strengthen foot muscles.

One exercise is rising on your toes. Another is rocking back and forth from heel to toe. Curling your toes over the edge of a telephone book is another. Massage the soles of the feet regularly.

Hot foot baths ease the discomfort. A whirlpool device that you can use at home is also soothing. With a problem such as yours, however, you should have professional advice.

Dear Dr. Molner: How long is bottle of iodine or mercurochrome effective? — C. G. S., J.R.

It depends on how tightly it is corked. I recall some people who put away miniature bottles of brandy to be opened 20-odd years later. When the time came the bottles were about half full. The alcohol had gradually evaporated, inspite of the corkers.

Iodine isn't a liquid, but a solid. Its crystals are dissolved in alcohol to make the familiar tincture of iodine. As the alcohol evaporates the proportion of iodine in the tincture increases. Too strong a solution can be irritating.

Mercurochrome is a water solution. It doesn't evaporate as readily as iodine and is not as irritating as iodine in a strong solution.

This evaporation, if the bottle is kept tightly corked, isn't very rapid, and it would doubtless take a very long time to make any great difference. Since these materials aren't expensive, if you have had a bottle of iodine and mercurochrome long enough to notice that some has evaporated, buy a new one. It amounts only to a matter of a few cents a year.

In any event, thorough washing with soap and water is a very effective germchaser.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a person be born operated on for a cataract on one eye to correct lens and get good vision? Good enough to drive a car and do general work. — P. A.

Probably, yes. I say probably only because in some cases of cataract there may be an additional visual defect, or there may be some aspect of a particular case that hasn't been mentioned.

With ordinary cataracts, it is to be expected that glasses (contact or conventional) restore vision that not only permits driving and general work, but even that requires fairly close use of the eyes.

You mention surgery as one eye. If vision remains good in the other, there usually is no problem. But if the other also has a cataract, surgical correction of it would be advisable. The loss of both eyes is needless for depth perception, to tell how far away things are, which of course is important in driving.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently read in a book that masturbation causes impotency. Another book said that it does not. Which is true? — Scared

The second is correct.

Kerosene in The Old Days

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

In Camp Hill Cemetery, Halifax, there may be seen a monument, marking the grave of Dr. Abraham Gesner, who died at Halifax on April 29, 1864.

Born in Cornwallis, the son of a Loyalist, he is remembered as the inventor of the process which gave the world kerosene oil. As such, he merits wider recognition than is likely to be accorded to him in this electricity ridden age.

For the advent of kerosene oil introduced an entirely new way of life into the homes of the continent. It brought about a transformation which, while it may seem small to our generation, was of untold importance to our grandparents.

Anyone who is older and whose youth was spent in rural Nova Scotia will recall the place which the kerosene oil lamp occupied.

Lamps in the house and lanterns in the barn were fed through wicks from repositories of the oil. One of the chores which regularly confronted the girls of the household was cleaning and filling the lamps. The wicks had to be carefully trimmed and adjusted in order to prevent "smoking".

With minor variations, the scene was the same in every farm house. The lamps stood in a neat row on a shelf in the kitchen. The lanterns hung in the porch and, in a corner of the cellar way, a niche belonged to the metal oil can.

The most ornate lamp of all was the one that stood on the table in the parlor. Sometimes it had a shade. Often, the bowl was shaped in a fancy manner by hand painting.

They required special care, of course, and, if neglected, could — and sometimes did — cause fires. Occasionally, a thoughtless move led to burned fingers or singed hair. The better event occurred all too often when one of the girls curling her hair, used a lamp to heat the scissor-shaped curling iron which was a "must" for every fashion-conscious miss.

The oil lamps have come and gone. One reminder of them, however, exists in the inscription on an obelisk in a Halifax cemetery.

Montreal Star

Judicious as his language was, Mr. Louis Rasminsky is plainly worried. The governor of the Bank of Canada does not like what he sees in the Canadian economy. Virtually all the slack, he points out, has been taken up. Shortages of skilled labor have become more numerous; labor industries are working at capacity or close to it; prices are increasing at a significantly high rate; the current deficit in our balance of payments is widening.

These are the classic signs of inflation. In more scary language the economy is boiling up. It's no longer, as Mr. Joseph Kraft suggested recently about the United States, a question here of whether we have inflation. The only interesting question now is what weapons will be used to fight it. Mr. Rasminsky used the chief weapon available to him — an increase in the bank rate. The nation's governments, for their part, have made a few tentative passes at the situation by delaying a limited number of public projects.

The bank rate is a club which works broadly across the whole economy. It is not discriminatory. Yet the inflationary situation here as in the United States is not general across the country, or across the economy. If there is pressure in the central provinces, there is little or no pressure on the east coast, because the problem is not, generally speaking, present there. Selective action is what we need.

Strictly Personal

A Study in Redundancy

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I should like to read or hear, just once, about an apology that is not abject, a vote that is not aching, a lie that is not acid, and a swoop that isn't fell.

And, just once, about beauty coming before age, the line of greatest resistance, the worse half, better safe than sorry, the episode of industry, and unchecked careers.

And, just once, about leaps without bounds, all without sundry, bags without baggage, ways without means, or forms, redouble minimums, and a fast that was also least.

And, just once, about unconsidered opinions, indiscreet silences, unblanketed snow, unzipped buds, unbiished lenses, unreconsideration, and a few ill-chosen words.

And, just once, about commonsense, clean hurry, a healthy number, a pink-eyed monster, the benign reaper, a cool argument, a reparable loss, and a labor of hate.

And, just once, an impeachable authority, clear out of order, other things being entirely unequal, an unpronounced success, the seamless side of life, an indiscriminate few, a subhuman effort, a tale that doesn't hang, time memorial, and idyllic pleasure.

And just once, a view without alarm, a point without pride, a smile without wrasthes, an indictment without insult, and a good time that was had only by some.

Highway Service Centres

Windsor Star

Mr. Bernard Newman, the Windsor Liberal who is his party's highways critic in the Ontario Legislature, has urged the Ontario Government to review its policy on expressway service centres.

From the remarks he made recently, Mr. Newman appears to have taken United States policy (such as in Michigan) where facilities on expressways have no service centres at all, as his example. More particularly, he has complained that the service centres are bunching up, inconveniencing men who operate highway restaurants and service stations.

Mr. Newman seems to be here labouring under a misapprehension. The motorist always should be in the business of looking for a service centre. He should not be taking advantage of the almost monopoly locations. Rather he should be looking for the performing well, providing dependably acceptable food in pleasant surroundings, equipped with fast take-out service, washrooms for all travellers, not just customers or patrons, and adjoining picnic areas.

Mr. Newman, from comments he has made in the legislature, appears to believe the United States can set an example for Ontario. But this continent-wide system of interchanges and service centres is one area where this province can set the example for much of the U.S.

For every dollar's worth of medicine we should buy, if we can, a dollar's worth of cure. This means joint government action, and Lord knows how, in this country, we are ever going to get that.

Sex Education and the Schools

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Should sex education be given in schools? This question is aired in Quest, the official publication of The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation. The magazine contains the views of an unmarried girl, a teacher, an Anglican minister, a psychologist and a marriage counsellor.

An article in Quest examines the question of responsibility for teaching youngsters about sex in the light of evidence that we are failing our young people. Venereal disease among teenagers is soaring, and people modern ambitionless. Teenage marriages are also on the rise — a cause for concern only because more of these marriages fail than those contracted when the parties are over twenty, in many of these early marriages the children are already on the way on the wedding day. The many divorces that follow immature marriages mean not only unhappy adults, but children deprived of the warmth and love of normal home life.

"Sex has leaped into the living room from the television set," says a Quest writer, "with long, lovely limbs and low cut dresses, with jungle mists in the air and with social mores of maimed in blinks. No wonder Grandpa keeps two pair of spectacles handy. The way a boy, an ankle was a revelation. Now the merchandise is in almost every magazine and book. Probably. Sex activity does not rise and fall as does the barometer or our fondness on the subject. In terms of mental health, surely we are far better off to have a sane, sex-wise, fruitful and ever-present force than in clapping it into secret corners, making it a subject for comment — and enjoying it only in the dark.

"Yet frank display of sex, while preferable to covert sex, is not proven to be the complete answer in our culture. Through a variety of channels our society is telling young people more and more about sex — but in terms of well-advertised wholesale, we are not telling them enough. Nor can this be, when no other society on earth so constantly portrays sex as a potent and pervasive force?

"Before we answer that question in the movies or TV, we need objective. Why teach sex at all? Is it because sex is nasty before marriage, but glorious afterwards? Is it to avoid unwanted pregnancies? Or are we trying to teach young people to cope adequately with a powerful creative urge that can enrich their lives in the highest sense?

The article goes on to look at some of the prudery, hypocrisy, ignorance and fear that have prevent parents from guiding their children in sexual knowledge.

It concludes:

"So if we are really going to teach the facts of life and love we need to involve the primary teachers, for art, music, mathematics and even physical education. And the primary teachers of precious ares of human relationships we leave it to the amateur — or shy away from it altogether."

Mental Health Association Plans to Hold Seminars, Workshops in This Area

"This year our educational committee will concentrate on providing seminars and workshops for groups who work with people", stated Rev. Norman Hotchkiss, at the regular board meeting of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association. "We have begun discussion and planning for workshops with clergy and police. Arrangements have been made to have Miss Elinor Gullette, a general consultant with the Toronto school system, address a primary teacher's workshop on April 4th. The scientific advisory committee has been authorized to investigate the possibility of a seminar for doctors and nurses."

Mr. Lundy, treasurer of the branch, reported that "Every Penny Thaw" was a financial success and the branch was now assured of meeting its obligation for the rental of the Mental Health Clinic at 156 Dundas street. However if the branch is to carry out the rest of its expanding program more money will be needed. It is hoped that this will be provided by the membership campaign which will take place in June.

Mrs. Jo Reddick, Mental Health Week chairman, reported that plans were now completed for a varied and interesting program for the week of May 1 to 7. On May 4, Mr. Dick Shoesler, psychologist from St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto will speak in turn to the students of Moira Secondary School. The student nurses at Belleville General Hospital, a meeting of the community agencies association, and a public meeting in the evening at Education Hall.

On May 5, there will be an open house at Ontario Hospital, Kingston. It is hoped that a number of local high school students will be taken on a tour of the hospital along with any interested citizens. On May 7, at 7 p.m., an evening of films and discussion will be held at the public library.

Volunteer services in connection with very active programs. Mrs. Louise Hurst noted that the White Cross group for ex-patients meets regularly and more members are always welcome. Mrs. Wanda Sine reported that visits are being made regularly to discharged patients now living in district nursing homes. The board authorized her to investigate the possibility of providing a similar service to nursing homes in the Picton area that are outside the Home for Special Care at Mrs. Mary Fletcher spoke of the work being done by the volunteer visitors to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston. The board approved the chartering of a special bus which will offer transportation to relatives and friends of patients and any member of the general public who wish to travel to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston on Saturday, May 7, to attend one meeting. This is the wind up activity for the hospital during Mental Health Week. The regular bus runs to the hospital continues on the third Thursday of each month.

Rev. Hutchinson announced that the annual meeting and conference of the Ontario division of CMHA would be held in Hamilton from April 28 to 30. He hoped that a number of board members would make an effort to attend.

Minister Cuts Ribbon to Open New Highway

Hastings county road No. 1 running between Foxboro and Madoc is scheduled to come to an end today.

Shortly before the noon hour Highways Minister Charles McNaughton cut a ribbon at Foxboro, officially ending the road's association with the county and turning it over to the province as part of Highway 62.

Assisting in the ceremonies were Hastings county MLA's Elmer Sandercock and Clarke T. Rollins, and county warden Clayton Hall.

At noon the highways minister addressed Hastings county council members and other dignitaries at a luncheon at Tops Motor Hotel.

the socialists' victory calmly despite Wilson's commitment to nationalities steel production.

The prime minister discounted any suggestion that the nationalization might frighten off foreign holders of sterling, the currency in which half the non-Communist world's trade is conducted.

CONCEDES DEFEAT

Conservative Opposition Leader Edward Heath, after keeping silent all night, finally conceded defeat for Prime Minister Labor captured its 316th seat.

In a formal statement, he said:

"The British people have given their verdict. It now is clear the Labor party will form the next government."

The big Labor win, with its promise of still greater excitement, gave a boost to the pound, which opened strongly against the dollar in the money market after recent weakness.

Reginald Maudling, a prominent Conservative party figure, said he thinks the electorate decided in 1964 it wanted a change and now has determined to give Wilson a full-scale majority.

An interviewer asked Maudling if he thinks Labor has shown itself capable of "moderate" rule.

"Moderate!" he replied. "They were forced to be. Things may be different now."

FORECASTS PRICE HIKES

Maudling, a former chancellor of the exchequer, also contained his seat for Barnet rid-ing, forecast that the coming budget will be extremely severe. He predicted more price increases to match those announced for steel, aluminum and newsprint during the last week.

As the morning's returns came in, the oldest member of the outgoing House, Emanuel Shinwell, 81, chairman of Labor's parliamentary caucus, easily retained his seat for the Durham mining district of Easington. Shinwell has fought every election since the First World War and he held various cabinet posts in Clement Attlee's Labor government after the Second World War.

Sir Alec Douglas-Home, last Conservative prime minister and Heath's predecessor as party leader, held his constituency of Konross and West Perthshire.

The popular vote was running 48.9 per cent for Labor, 41 per cent Conservative, 7.5 per cent Liberal and 1.5 per cent for other groups.

"This has been a great victory . . . a mandate from the people of this country," Wilson said.

TO PUSH REFORMS

The vote of confidence gives Wilson, 50, an opportunity to proceed with economic and social reforms he began 18 months ago with a barely workable majority that had fluctuated between four votes and one.

At the same time, the big majority promises Labor's restless left wing—at least 30 MPs—more elbow room in any effort to tug Wilson leftward from his middle-of-the-road posture. The left had been subdued for fear of toppling the last government.

It is the first time that a British Labor government has improved its position in a general election.

Standing after the general election of Oct. 31, 1964, which ended 13 years of Tory rule, was: Labor 317, Conservatives 303, Liberals 9, Speaker 1, vacancies 2.

The Labor victory in Thursday's election was largely due to party since the 100-seat Conservative triumph of 1959. That government was rocked by the John Profumo sex-and-security scandal in 1963 and lost to Labor in 1964.

STRENGTHENS POSITION

Edward Heath, 49, who took over as Conservative chief eight months ago, was still rebuilding Tory unity when Wilson called the election. Heath failed to convince the electorate that Labor had forfeited its right to work on Britain's shaky economy, but most observers judged that Heath enhanced his position as Opposition leader.

A swing to Labor that averaged about three per cent across the country—slightly less than pre-election polls had forecast—toppled Tories left and right and returned Labor MPs with increased majorities in almost every case.

The rout unseated right-wing and progressive Conservatives without discrimination. Most re-elected Tories—including Heath —were returned on reduced majorities.

Among leading Tories ousted: Julian Amery, 48, former aviation minister and prominent right winger; Henry Brooke, 63, former home secretary; Christopher Chataway, 35, former junior minister and a charter member of the progressive Tory group; Peter Emery, 40, Junior front-bench spokesman on economic affairs; Dame Patricia Hornsby-Smith, 52, junior minister in several Conservative governments; Sir William Anstruther-Gray, 60, chairman of the Conservative back-benchers committee; Executive Humphry Berkeley, 40, and Lady Tweedsmuir, 51, daughter-in-law of the former Canadian governor-general who had been a member of Parliament for 20 years and Junior Tory spokesman on foreign affairs.

CABINET BACK

Wilson's cabinet has returned unscathed. The prime minister said Thursday night his front-bench lineup would be changed "after we have had a chance to relax a little."

The new Parliament assembles April 21.

Among newly - elected Labor MPs expected to get high government posts is Patrick Gordon Walker, 59, twice defeated in attempts to win a Commons seat as foreign secretary.

Gordon Walker, who won at Leyton, northeast London, may be slated for a new post as minister for Europe. His task would be to probe Britain's prospects for joining the European Common Market.

Heath, to the dismay of some Conservatives especially in the farm bolts, made unconditional entry to the market a basic point of his platform.

Wilson says he will go in but on his own terms, which include safeguards for British agriculture and for Britain's trading partners in the Commonwealth and the European Free Trade Association. He believes much of British industry's present trouble results from uncertainty over the future during the previous abortive Common Market negotiations of 1962-63.

Results indicated that issues of race and immigration policy had little impact on the vote. Socialists who opposed the Wilson government's restrictions on colored immigration were elected handily. Eight independents who campaigned on racist platforms picked up only a handful of votes.

The Liberal party, which received an electoral boost in 1964 when its 365 candidates collected

C.A.R.S. Aux. Hears Talk by Physiotherapist

The Belleville Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. C. A. Campbell, Hastings Drive with Miss Gladys H. MacDonald in charge.

The possibility of craft classes being arranged for arthritic patients, through the co-operation of the City Recreation Committee, was discussed; also how the Auxiliary members could help as to transportation, and the classes. This would be a worthwhile project if this could be organized, and become a reality, but to date it is still in the planning stage.

TALK BY PHYSIOTHERAPIST

A guest at this meeting was Mrs Kathryn Brown, physiotherapist, who is in charge of the treatment centre, sponsored by the local branch of the Society, which is held Tuesday and Thursday evenings each week at Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Brown told of how the arthritic patient was becoming more aware, that something could be done to relieve pain and suffering and through early diagnosis and prompt treatment, serious disability can be prevented.

She said that some three years ago when the treatment centre was opened, five to eight patients were receiving treatment, but at the present she had a maximum case load of from 16 to 20 patients.

TEN NEW CASES

Ten new cases were opened in the last month. She was convinced from these figures, that the arthritis sufferer was consulting his family physician during the early stages of the disease, rather than resort to the many quack cures, when valuable time can be lost.

Mrs. Brown expressed appreciation to the members of the Auxiliary for the volunteer help they provide at the treatment centre, where they assist by doing the routine duties and supplying drivers for patients who require transportation to and from the treatment centre.

Miss MacDonald announced that a date had been set for the coffee party to be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Zimmerle. This would be the group's money making project for the season, more detailed plans will be completed at the next meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses for the evening, Mrs. C. A. Campbell, Mrs. Baker, Arnott and Miss Gladys H. MacDonald.

Hold Buffet Dinner for Octogenarian

A happy event took place at the Queen's Hotel, Colborne last Sunday when Mrs. Estella Adams, formerly of Sidney Township (Centenary) celebrated her 90th birthday at a buffet dinner.

Eighty-two family relatives from New Brunswick, Watkerton, Toronto, Belleville, Oshawa, Welland, Fort Erie and many other points in Ontario joined in the festivities.

On the Monday she was "at home" to her friends in Colborne and elsewhere including a group of Centenary associates who presented her with gifts and reminisced a span of 80 years.

Fancy Pants Show Sportswear Flair

Fancy pants — slacks carrying bold plaids, checks and stripes — are attracting interest from both college men and mature resorters.

It all started a couple of summers ago when Canadians started appearing in India Madras slacks on the golf links and at country clubs. The next step is silhouette to the popularity of blazers and unpatterned sport jackets. They lends perfect foils for the big plaids, checks and stripes.

Last fall, boldly patterned wool slacks were a tremendous hit with wool blazers and hopsack sport coats.

Those same glen plaids, plus tattersal and gingham checks, plus madras-type ticking stripes are set to score further gains in lightweight blends of dacrons with man-made fibres as well as in all-cotton cloths. Fancy pants go with knits, too.

TRUDY

"Funny, I still have the dollar I was going to leave for a tip—but where's my twenty-dollar bill to pay our check?"

Successful Living

This Marriage Will Be Catastrophic

DEAR DORIS — Our daughter is engaged to a minister. What we would like to explain is:

1. What she may expect as a minister's wife.
2. What roll she is expected to have with the church.

She comes out with such statements as: "I'm working in the church, I don't like it but I don't need to work in the church or attend just because he's a minister." DOUBTFUL DAD.

DEAR DAD — Doubtful is right.

1. She'll be a complete flop if she carries a minister under false colors. She must at least share his faith, be a model wife and mother, and a good hostess at home. And deliberately fooling any fiance can only result in fooling oneself.

DORIS CLARK

2. She is not expected to marry the church. But she is homemaker for a public man and may be called upon to serve as his good right hand on many church occasions.

People will look up to her as to her husband — and she'd better come through, if his work is to mean anything at all.

DEAR DORIS — Where can I get the book "Canadian Mother and Child?"

Several years ago our family doctor would hand them out on request. Now, no one seems to know anything about the book — LOST BOOK.

DEAR, LOST — "The Canadian Mother and Child", an illustrated, soft-covered book of 144 pages, was produced Maternal Health Division, Department of National Health and Welfare. It had its eighth printing in 1958.

It prepares a mother for childbirth and the care of her baby during its first year, and has been a boon to Canadian mothers for a long time. It should be available through any local or provincial department of health. Or you may get it from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, for 75 cents.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THRILLS — Believe it or not, the time will come all too soon when physical sensations will leave you, not thrilled, but hating yourself.

Too many intimacies with boys will make them whisper behind their hands about you to other boys; and you will also lose all respect for yourself. There's more to life, even teens life, than the thrill of a moment.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Corn Chowder; Creamed Hard-Cooked Eggs on Fluffy Boiled Rice (see Wednesday); Buttered Pepper Squash; Shredded Green Beans; Scotch Apple Crumble with Caramel Sauce; Tea.

ANSWER:

I have received several other requests for quantity cooking. Since cooked-season banquets abound right now I shall devote both today's and tomorrow's columns to large quantity recipes which have been requested.

CHICKEN A LA KING (serves 75):

3 lbs. butter or margarine, 6 cups flour, 3 tablespoons salt, 2¼ teaspoons pepper, 16 cups chicken stock, 8 cups milk, 8 cups cream (10% will do), 12 cups diced cooked chicken, 4 cups mushrooms sauteed in butter or margarine, 2 cups cut-up pimientos, 18 hard-cooked eggs, diced.

Melt butter or margarine, remove from heat. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Slowly stir in chicken stock, milk and cream which have been preheated together. Return to heat and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir in chicken and mushrooms. Continue cooking until heated through. Just before serving, carefully add pimientos and hard-cooked eggs. Serve in patty shells or on tea biscuits.

HOT ROLLS (approximately 150):

4 qt. granular yeast (8 packages), 1 quart lukewarm water, 1 quart lukewarm milk, 1½ lbs. fat, 1½ lbs. sugar, 1½ oz. salt, 2 cups (approximately 10) eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla (optional), 8½ lbs. bread flour.

Dissolve the yeast in 1 pint of the lukewarm water (not at 80 deg. Fahr.) with 2 oz. of the listed sugar. Let stand 10 or 12 minutes. Scald milk then cool to lukewarm. Cream fat and add to it the remaining sugar and salt and cream well. Add eggs gradually and beat well. Add flavoring if used. Add remaining water and scalded milk. Add 5 lbs. flour and mix well. Add risen yeast liquid, then remaining 3½ lbs. flour. Knead until perfectly smooth. Place dough in lightly greased large container. Grease top. Let rise in a warm place (78 to 82 deg. Fahr.) free from draughts. Allow to stand 2 to 2½ hours, covered with a clean dry cloth, until fully risen. (Dough is light when an impression remains, if pressed lightly with the finger). Punch down dough and let rise again. Cut off pieces of dough approximately 1½ oz. in weight. Shape into smooth, round rolls. Place on greased baking pans 2" apart. Cover with clean dry cloth and set in warm place to rise until doubled. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven and brush with melted butters, if desired.

See tomorrow for more quantity recipes.

High Heels Once Led To Annulment

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I laughed when I read the letter from the girl who was mad because her friend wore false eyelashes, a hair-piece, contact lenses and falsies, and seemed to have great success with the men while she (who never misrepresented anything) did poorly by comparison. Then I remembered something I had read when I was a law student at Columbia and I looked it up.

"If Miss Loose Farts" had lived in England during the 18th century she would have been in serious trouble. Here is a law that was passed by the British Parliament in 1770:

"All women, of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, that shall impose upon, seduce or betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects, by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial teeth, false hair, iron stays, hoops, high-heeled shoes, bolstered hips or padded bosoms shall incur the penalty of the law enforced against witchcraft, and like misdemeanants, and, upon conviction, that marriage shall stand null and void." — THE OLD RESEARCHER.

DEAR RESEARCHER: It's interesting to learn that in 1770 a man could be seduced by high-heeled shoes. God save the king — and all other males who lived during those hazardous times.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband underwent exploratory surgery a few days ago. The surgeon discovered a tumor that was malignant. He said he removed it and my husband has a good chance of making a complete recovery.

Will you tell me, please, why people keep inquiring, "Did the doctor find anything serious?" Almost everyone I know has put this question to me.

I feel it is nobody's business what the doctor found and I'm telling everyone, "No, it was nothing serious." If I said, "He says the king — and all other males who lived during those hazardous times.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can tell it's been a long time since you were in college, dearie. When the student from Illinois wrote that all the professors favored the sexy girls, you missed the joy of being a redhead. I go to school in Phoenix and the same thing happens here.

I got an "A" papers all through the term but the prof gave me a "C" for the course. I ought to tell you that I am a male and the prof is a phony intellectual who gives me a pain in the sacroiliac. Is this your idea of fair? — THE HERETIC.

DEAR H: Who said life was fair? If the prof gives you a pain in the sacroiliac you probably give him a pain in the same area. You have a lot to learn that isn't in the books, Bub.

Children's Fashions Take Their Cue From Grown-ups

The flowers that bloom in the spring tra la, will be sniffed and admired by the most stylish little boys and girls in many a season, judging by the new crop of children's fashions.

Little girls will be putting their best foot forward for spring in lady - like dresses, prettily ruffled and trimmed.

Voiles, cotton batistes and cotton broadcloths in pretty combinations of pink - and - white, blue-and-white, yellow-and-white set a light-hearted mood, while little touches such as smocking, double collars embroidered flowers and flowing ribbons complete the pretty picture.

As for the lads, they will look dapper in knickers, brought up to-date with matching zip-front jackets in heavy cotton poplins, or the perennial shorts, topped with either a double-breasted overshirt or a plaid tuck - in shirt, "and there's good news for mothers here, in the new durable press fabrics that are a feature of many boys' wear items this season.

The toddler set is well represented in spring fashions with charming little creations designed to melt a mother's heart when one is caught picking the tulips.

Girls' styles range from the simple A-line with matching bloomers to the simply elegant pleated A-line, featuring exquisite floral embroidery.

On the casual side are the new knicker styles for toddler girls, with matching capes, and little Miss Muffet dresses complete with matching "mob" cap.

In the meantime, the "fillies" are ready for any fashion occasion in one-piece double knit cotton suits. After all, in the spring a young man's fancy, period.

The Mod look is seen less in children's spring. Courreges has greater staying power as the line continues to be the shape. Timid Knickerbocker tummies already look best hidden behind concealing A-line. Natural-waistliners are still few and far between, but experts predict a stretching.

Susanna's Family Fare

NO ONE IS FORGOTTEN

Dear Susanna: May I please have the pattern for the knitted chicken Easter egg cup cover?

Also, do you know anything about making a flower cage from eight (long) plastic tomato baskets. I saw them at a church bazaar and they were most attractive.

Hope you will find the following hints useful:

The men in our family dislike baked potatoes; so, rather than cook special ones for them I peel and wash their potatoes, add a little salt and butter, wrap in foil and bake at the same time as ours. This makes everybody happy.

The first of every month we make out the birthday and anniversary cards for the month.

We add whatever notation is appropriate, sign and seal them, but put the date when the stamp goes until it is time to mail them.

This saves a great deal of running around, and we don't forget anybody. — F. F.

(A) Do wee chick pattern is in the mail to you; (b) I'll enquire about the flower cage (any ideas gals?) (c) I do appreciate your hints (d) please have my get well card handy—I feel a headache coming on next Thursday! — SUSANNA

THE POURING OF CONCRETE on the first floor level of the new addition to Belleville General Hospital indicates the progress being made on the multi-million dollar project.

Construction Roundup

Work on New Hospital Wing Is Proceeding at Rapid Pace

Despite setbacks, imposed by last week's severe weather conditions, work is proceeding at a fast pace on the new wing of Belleville General Hospital.

Clerk of Works M. J. MacLennan reports that concrete has been poured for the remaining columns extending to the first floor of the main building, as well as for 11 column footings in the adjacent block "B" of the new structure.

Concrete has also been poured for walls and columns to the second floor at the main building's east end. Wednesday the last of the first floor concrete slab was poured.

The electrical and mechanical sub-contractors are continuing the roughing-in of electrical conduit and plumbing systems in the basement and first floor sections of the building.

Cohoon and reinforcing steel has been erected to the second floor in the east half of the main block by the steel sub-contractor.

Work on the east side of the existing hospital, including the preparation of parking areas and the driveway to the future loading dock, is continuing with approximately half of the ourbing installed to date.

Several new homes will shortly be started in Don Keller's Ponton Park subdivision in the city. The 68-lot site has five dwellings completed and two more in advanced stages of construction.

Ambassadors on Mission

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

As these words are being written, diplomats are scurrying in and out of foreign capitals on an important mission. They are on a mission of peace, seeking some peaceful solution to the conflict in Viet Nam. Time will tell whether their mission is successful, but no one can belie the importance of their mission.

The Christian church is also on a mission. It is on a mission of reconciliation, seeking to reconcile men to God and to each other, (II Cor. 5:18-19) In fact, the Bible speaks of Christians as "ambassadors for Christ" through whom God is making His appeal to men today. (II Cor. 5:20)

This mission is world-wide. The same Master who first said "Come to me . . . and I will give you rest," (Matthew 11:28) also said, "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations." (Matt. 28:19) This is the church's commission — to witness to its faith in all lands.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 3: "The Mission of the Church, Matthew 28:18-20; II Corinthians 3:7-12; 6:10-20; Revelations 2 and 3.

Someone has said the church exists by mission as fire exists by burning. Take its mission away from it and you take away its very reason for existing. "Why do you stand looking into heaven?" the disciples were asked after Jesus had left them. (Acts 1:11 RSV) There was a work to be done, a mission to accomplish. Jesus had just stated that mission, "You shall be my witnesses." He said, "in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and to the end of the earth." (Acts 1:8 RSV)

BECOMES SOCIAL GATHERING

When churches forget their mission, they become little more than social clubs, groups meeting for their own benefit, rather than for inspiration and instruction that can send them out as witness to their faith. Of course, congregations need to meet for worship. In this sense, Christians are like individuals who need a home to which to turn for love and understanding. But most individuals go out into the world to do their work. And having met for prayer, Christians, like the disciples after Pentecost, need to go out into the world to translate their experience into the life and language of the people (Acts 2:7-8)

The Christian mission begins at home. The disciples were told to begin their witness in Jerusalem where they were. It is not enough to send missionaries overseas. Churches must face up to needs on their own doorstep. It is not enough to express concern for Negroes in Africa, and to ignore the plight of Negroes in the city where Christians meet to worship. Poverty exists at home as well as in India. Churches need to begin their ministry in the block where they live.

But they cannot stop there. If the Christian message is important for any person, it is important for every person. No nation or individual lies outside Christian concern. If one Christian has experienced hope and joy through his faith, he wants all persons to experience that same hope and joy through the Christian faith.

It is this sense of mission that gives churches their power and incentive. During the depression years, the foreign mission board of a large denomination found itself greatly in debt due to a theft of mission funds by a corrupt official. Bank officials suggested a moratorium on all missionary giving until the debt was paid. The denominational leaders explained that such a step would not only close down mission schools and hospitals, it would deprive the church of one of their primary incentives. Without such a mission, churches would lag, and would have greater difficulty raising money to pay off the debt. This advice proved sound. By meeting their mission as a challenge, the churches maintained spiritual power and concern, and were able to pay off the debt in record time.

CALLED TO RISKY MISSION

Increasingly the cry is being raised that in order to fulfill their mission, church members need to get out of the four walls of church buildings, and become involved in the struggle for greater justice and peace in our day. Many church leaders felt they were bearing an important Christian witness when they marched through the streets of Selma, Alabama. To remain silent on the great moral issues of our time is to weaken the church's witness to the love of God in Christ for all men.

To speak out, of course, is risky business. The mission of the church has always involved risk. The cross is ample evidence that men do not always welcome a ministry of reconciliation with open arms. As Paul put it, the Christian life is an invitation to do battle with the forces of evil for which the Christian must be properly equipped. (Ephesians 6:10-20) mandatory life sentence for the death penalty must come up for vote by Tuesday evening. Votes on any amendments must be held at the latest at 8 p.m. Monday and 5:45 p.m. Tuesday.

MPs, promised a free vote on the issue by Prime Minister Pearson, spoke free from party lines during the first three days, with 84 opposed to the private members' resolution, 22 in favor and two undecided.

EXPECT CLOSE VOTE

The final vote is expected to be close. Defeat of the resolution would pose a problem for the Pearson government which has committed to life imprisonment 20 death sentences to persons convicted of capital murder since taking office in April 1963.

Capital murder, defined as planned and deliberate murder, treason and piracy at present carry the death sentence. All other kinds of murder are non-capital and carry a life sentence.

The resolution—sponsored by four MPs from the Liberal, Conservative and New Democratic parties—would require the cabinet to approve any parole of a lifer.

A Creditiste amendment now before the Commons would keep the death penalty for persons serving a life sentence who commit capital murder.

In other business the Commons:

—Approved amendments to the Aeronautics Act to make owners or operators of aircraft pay for the "availability" of transport department airport services, despite strong objections by Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon).

—Agreed after three hours' debate to keep the title of a Conservative act—the Agriculture Rehabilitation and Development Act—with the same definitive initials it used to have.

ACCEPT AMENDMENTS

The government had proposed it be called the rural development act. But it agreed to amendments after several Opposition spokesmen said it was a political manoeuvre to do away with the initials ARDA which identify the program.

Forestry Minister Sauve at first agreed to include the old initials in the new title, but finally agreed to amend the bill to the Agricultural and Rural Development Act.

Main purpose of the bill was to remove wording which Mr. Sauve said the justice department had advised would limit application of the act strictly to agricultural areas.

Mr. Nielsen argued with some support from New Democrat and Social Credit spokesmen, that transport department services should be paid for by the public treasury instead of by aircraft owners and operators alone.

John Turner, minister without portfolio, said international airlines flying through Canada would pay most of the money.

FATHER DIGS GRAVE

CAR LIES IN DITCH after collision with CNR ore train at crossing in Picton. Driver of the car, Carl Simpson, was killed in the accident.

Father of Four Is Killed By Ore Train Near Picton

PICTON (STAFF) — A father of four was killed instantly shortly after one o'clock Thursday afternoon when the late model car he was driving crashed head-on into the lead engine of the CNR ore train which was leaving Picton.

Dead is Carl Simpson, age, 42, of R.R. 2, Picton, an employee of McFarland Construction Co. in Picton.

The accident occurred at a level crossing on Johnson Street just north of the outskirts of Picton. There are no signals at this crossing, which is located on the side of a hill. The visibility either way on the tracks is limited until one is a hundred or so feet from the crossing. It is thought that Simpson never saw the train.

According to railwaymen at the scene of the accident, the car struck the centre portion of the lead engine and the vehicle was flung into a deep ditch on the south side of the tracks. The body of Simpson had been flung out from the car and was lying some few feet away from the wrecked vehicle.

Simpson was the father of four sons, two of whom are high school students, he and his wife Norma had just recently moved from Picton into a new home he built on R.R. 2, just north of Picton.

Simpson normally did not go home for lunch but was called by his wife, while he was at work to come out to the house, as she was having trouble with a water pump. He was on his way back to Picton to work when the accident occurred.

Crew of train were all of Belleville, John Forrester conductor, Robert Muir engineer and William Henry Smith brakeman.

Two Parked Cars Hit

PICTON — At approximately 10 p.m. a car driven by Ronald Hubbs of R.R.1 Bloomfield with his wife, Eva Hubbs, a passenger in the front seat, struck a parked car on the west end of Picton's Main Street. Hubbs suffered bruises and shock while his wife, who was six months pregnant was rushed to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Hubbs received face and head injuries and possible internal injuries as a result of the crash.

At 10 p.m. a car driven by Earl Markland of 1 Elm Street, Picton collided with a parked car only a few blocks away on the Main Street. A car owned by Arnold Graves of Camp Picton was parked in front of the Pentecostal Church where Graves was attending a service. Markland, who was alone when he struck the parked car, has been charged by Picton police with impaired driving. Damage was estimated at $500. The parked auto was struck with such his impact it drove the car some 23 feet along the pavement.

costs of education and the government's reluctance to put off tax increases until next year, when a provincial election would be drawing near.

During the 1966-67 fiscal year Ontario has budgeted for education expenditures of $816,000,000, about $200,000,000 more than in the fiscal year which ended Thursday.

The treasury expects to realize an extra $195,000,000 from the tax increases announced Feb. 8—more than the federal government will receive from increases in income taxes announced March 29.

About the only thing that won't cost more is a 15-cent per-cent sales tax, up from three per cent, which goes into effect today does not apply to keg beer.

Increasing the sales tax by two per cent will bring the province an estimated $153,000,000 this year, and other major revenue increases will come from increases in gasoline, liquor and cigarette taxes.

Gasoline costs a cent more a gallon today and cigarettes a cent more for a pack of 20. Liquor price increases range from 30 to 40 cents a bottle. For users of diesel fuel costs are up 1½ cents a gallon. Telegrams and telephone calls are taxed for the first time at the rate of five per cent.

Trinidad Excels in Calypso, Satires Sung to Jumpy Beat

Calypso music is a popular type of song in Trinidad and Tobago and the rhythmic ballads usually are on topical themes, often with a spice of political satire. A Canadian Press reporter describes some of the Calypso songs he heard on a visit there.

By CY FOX

PORT OF SPAIN (CP)—Watch out, world. "The Mighty Sparrow" is singing at you, and so are Lords Cypher, Kitchener and Crisis.

They are all practitioners of the art of calypso, belting out political and other forms of satire to the strains of a lively, jumpy beat and often heard in music-happy Trinidad and Tobago.

Calypso is a rhythmic ballad on a topical theme, and it should be improvised to be authentic. It's something to make even the most phlegmatic visitor "jump up" like everyone else.

The satire is present in abundance, punning the pretenses of solemn clichés, ribbing marriage-happy women and waxing indignant over the behavior of certain politicians.

Take Ian Smith, the breakaway premier of Rhodesia.

Lord Cypher doesn't like Premier Smith at all. So the bearded go jumping to this refrain aimed at the premier:

He declare Rhodesia Independent
Without the Queen's consent
He fired the present governor
And declare his own government . . .
They should put him in jail
Drag out he fingernail
And burst a lash in he tail.

FAVORITE NUMBER

As for The Mighty Sparrow (his real name is Francisco Slinger), he is remembered because his Obeah Wedding proved a top favorite among the rip-roaring brass players and steel-band performers who paraded in their hundreds at the colorful pre-Lenten carnival in Port of Spain this year.

"Obeah" is a term suggesting the idea of black magic. The song holds up to ridicule the women seeking through the wiles of near-witchcraft to trap into legal matrimony her partner in unformalized wedlock—a not uncommon condition here.

Sparrow sings rhythmically at the conspiring lady, in this case named Maria.

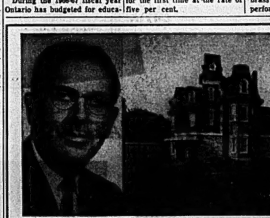
Look how many nights we big up tight tight tight
All we ever know was love and peace
Now every minute is only fight fight fight.

And Sparrow launches into this solemn advice:

If you really want a wedding ring, Meida,
There are many other ways and means
Like scrubbing your teeth and bathing regular . . .

Lord Kitchener is a name apparently chosen to conjure up, incongruously, the stern glories of a Britannia militant. Kitchener, in a carnival song, asks a typical risque question: "How does a family start, who knows this wonderful art?"

His explanation — which drove the carnival crowd wild—begins:



They kiss they twiss
they rums and play
Who time you look
Big family dey.

Basically, the calypso beat reflects joy—about being alive and being in Trinidad instead of in other places. Hence the Lord Crisis refrain:

Alabama Alabama,
Am so glad I was born here
And not in Alabama
Alabama.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE FEATURES IN THE FIRST ISSUE

Immigration Explosion

Canada's immigration policy threatens to escalate into a new crisis. Ottawa is determined to take immigration out of the area of ethnic politics and into that of hard, economic fact. Sponsored immigration is slated to give way to selective immigration. Weekend Magazine's Robert McKeown discusses the new policy and the results that will follow in its wake.

A Thousand Days

John F. Kennedy affected more people in the world than practically any one man before him. Weekend Magazine has obtained exclusive Canadian serialization rights for his best selling biography, "A Thousand Days" written by close friend and Pulitzer-prize historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. First installment of this four-part feature tells how Kennedy entered the White House and takes a look at the New Frontiersmen he brought with him.

Hockey's Durable Breed

The NHL goalkeepers hold hockey's most select jobs. And they hold them for a long time. Andy O'Brien examined some of the great goalies and their careers for this week's Weekend Magazine. He says that goalkeeping is a dying art and tells what must be done to preserve this very special skill that "keeps hockey from being a form of basketball on ice".

Hello, Ginger!

After an absence of 35 years Ginger Rogers is back on Broadway. Now starring in the hit musical "Hello, Dolly!" Ginger proves that at 54 she has not lost her particular magic. She can still stir it up, bake it and have it come out right. How right it is, stays Staff Writer Stephen Franklin this week in Weekend Magazine.

Easter Menu

In springtime everything seems to want to burst with newness. To keep up with Mother Nature, Food Editor Margo Oliver offers refreshing ideas for your Easter dinner. Cornish Game Hens and Easter Cake Surprise are two of Margo's favorites. You can select your own from her springtime-new recipes in Weekend Magazine this week!

Get Ahead With a Hat

The new hats are highly varied but they all have one thing in common — they are guaranteed attention-getters! You can have an Easter parade preview of hattery finery this week in Weekend Magazine's fashion feature.

According to Doyle

It's a plesoviture! No, it's a thrignelli! No, it's a gizmo. Actually it's anybody's guess as to what this photo really is. Doyle Klyn says if you name it, you can have it. This Korean curio is just one of the varied and unusual topics Doyle features this week in Weekend Magazine.

Detroit Finishes 4th ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Third Undecided

Bruins Jolt Leafs; Wings Hit Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alex Delvecchio is the fifth National Hockey League player to score 30 goals or better this season.

The chunky centre scored a pair of goals Thursday night to boost his season total to 31—his best scoring year in 15 with Detroit—as the Red Wings defeated New York Rangers 5-3 in the season's second-last game.

Boston Bruins continued their late-season bid to escape the cellar for the first time in six years by defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 in the other game.

Toronto, with 77 points and two games remaining, will finish in third place in the standings and Detroit, with 73 points and one game left, will come in fourth.

Chicago Black Hawks still have a mathematical chance of tying the league-leading Montreal Canadiens. With two games left for both clubs, Montreal has 86 points and Chicago 82.

HAWKS SCORE MORE

Should this happen, the title would be determined on the basis of goals scored. The Hawks now have 235 to 227 for the Canadiens.

Delvecchio's previous season high was in 1960-61 when he scored 27 goals. Since then, he has never scored more than 25 in any one season.

Chicago's Bobby Hull has 53 goals today, while Toronto's Frank Mahovlich has 32, Montreal's Bobby Rousseau and Detroit's Norm Ullman both have 30.

Gordie Howe, playing in his 20th season with Detroit, celebrated his 38th birthday Thursday night with a pair of assists; Ullman reached the 30 - goal plateau for the second season in a row and Bill Gadsby coached the Red Wings from behind the bench.

Ab McDonald, with his sixth goal of the year, and Bruce MacGregor with his 19th of the campaign completed the Detroit scoring.

Billy Hicke, Phil Goyette and Bob Nevin scored for New York. Hicke's goal was his eighth of the season while Goyette's was his 20th and Nevin's his 24th.

TAKES OVER COACHING

Gadsby, also completing his 20th season in the NHL, ran the team from behind the bench while manager-coach Sid Abel watched from club-owner Bruce Norris's box seat.

Substitute netminder Hank Bassen, filling in for regular Roger Crozier who was given a rest prior to the Stanley Cup playoffs next week, turned back 28 Ranger shots, a half-dozen of them from point-blank range. Cesare Maniago, in the New York nets, was the victim of all five Detroit goals as the Red Wings fired 33 shots at him.

The Wings were without five regulars for the game, including Gadsby and Crozier, and used two hometown products—Doug Roberts and Jimmy Peters Jr. Neither figured in the scoring.

Boston's victory over Toronto, coupled with New York's loss, boosted the Bruins into a fifth-place tie with the Rangers. Boston has one game remaining this season while New York has two.

Murray Oliver, Tommy Williams and Ron Stewart, a former Leaf, scored for the Bruins. Oliver's goal was his 18th of the season while Williams netted his 18th and Stewart his 19th.

Kent Douglas scored the lone Toronto goal, his sixth of the campaign.

The teams traded power-play goals in the second after battling to a scoreless tie in the first period.

CLINCHES VICTORY

Williams broke a 1-1 tie early in the third period, also on a power - play, and Stewart clinched the Boston victory with just over two minutes remaining in the game.

Rookie netminder Bernie Parent held the Leafs in check throughout the game as Toronto fired 37 shots at him.

The Maple Leafs alternated veteran goalies Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk, who combined for 32 saves. Sawchuk was the victim of two of the three Boston goals.

OASA Convention

Discuss National League

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TORONTO — Another record turnout is all but assured as enthusiasts from across the province file in to the Canadiana Motor Hotel here today for the 44th annual Ontario Softball Association convention.

Joining the delegates and guests from Ontario this year are others from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The visiting delegates are here to meet Ontario officials with the possibility of forming a national Canadian Amateur Softball Association taking in eight of ten provinces.

As was stated in a story released by OASA Secretary Leroy Picard, of St. Catharines, earlier this week, one group has already accepted the title and is in operation, but includes only the four western provinces. There is a similar group from the Maritimes. It is hoped they can be amalgamated, together with Ontario, to form the CASA.

Numerous Belleville men are among those in attendance, including Clifford Belch Jr., who is once again bidding for election to the OASA executive committee.

Belch, an ardent softball worker in the Belleville area, has been appointed to the executive body at the past several conventions after failing to be elected. Needless to say, Belch and his backers here are hoping for better results.

Jim Tebworth, also of Belleville has been nominated for the executive committee but will likely decline and throw his support behind Belch. Asco Sikis and several other Belleville area enthusiasts are expected to arrive here tonight or Saturday morning.

Among 30 amendments before the convention is one that would eliminate the junior "D" and intermediate "D" series. Last year the Belleville area was represented by Wallbridge, Wartworth, Eldorado and Crookston in the intermediate series while Point Anne, Demorestville and Westwood were in Junior "D".

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

From row scuttlebutt mainly from American columnists, at ringside prior to the fight the other night, was that all that bullshakes over Clay's mouthing regarding the army, draft boards, politics and religion, has not perturbed the "Louisville Lip" enough to dislodge an emaciated mosquito.

I did not hear Clay's post-fight radio commentary but I'm told the ole blabber was there in all his mouthy glory and any resemblance between Muhammad Ali and a shrieking violet is purely a figment of the imagination.

Prior to the fight Ali told a New York sports reporter, "I am a jet. Nobody can reach me with no bezzer. I'm in a class by myself. Nobody asks me how many miles I run this morning, people don't come up to me on the street and ask if my left double-hook is sharp. They talk to me like a congressman."

"And the people are saying" said Clay, "Who is this man so many powers are against? Who is this man they hold meetings about? I want to see the man the politicians are talking about."

Clay claimed it didn't look right to the free world the way he is being treated. "Other countries are begging for peace, so I'm not on the spot, the United States is on the spot. This all makes me bigger. I always knew I was meant for something, it's taking shape, a destiny. To be great you must suffer, you have to pay the price."

He said he was not disturbed or nervous over the situation. "Why should I be? In a few hours I could fly to another country in the east, in Africa where the people love me."

"Millions over the world want to see me" the great one said. "Why should I worry about losing a few dollars, about a few people who use the mails at me? I'm not going to sell my manhood for a few dollars, or a smile. I'd rather be poor and free than rich and a slave."

It is doubtful if a Stanley Cup-winning goal scored by Eddie Shack would evoke the thunderous roar of applause that greeted Chuvalo when he entered the ring. As a matter of fact it maintained a constant tempo throughout the fight.

The Canadian champion never looked up. He walked to his corner and sat on his stool encased in a heavy robe, his head hooded with a large towel. He got up once or twice before the fight but for the most of the time sat with his head lowered in his hands as if in prayer.

Twenty-thousand-plus tonsils shifted lightning-like into reverse gear when Muhammad Ali approached the ring. Maple Leaf Gardens resounded with stentorian "boos" that drowned out any human sound for Clay.

In a snow-white terrycloth gown, Clay marched slowly to his corner. He was surrounded with his officials and bodyguards while a dozen of Toronto's finest formed a protective guard of honour.

However there were no shots fired with the exception, perhaps, of a party high in the gods who drew from the hip and had their gat help 'em drink it.

Clay shook himself loose and went into his warm-up dance as graceful as a gazelle and a picture of grace and flowing motion. Occasionally he tossed a look that smacked of derision at his opponent. He swayed slightly from side to side his feet tapping out a quiet rhythm.

I don't know if the Black Muslims recognize ballet-dancing but if they do they have a starry prima-maestro at the head of their boxing class.

While much has attached to the fact Chuvalo stayed with the champion for fifteen rounds the first in Clay's pro history, the fight also proved that Clay can stand the limit pace and not never worry effects. He is lithe, graceful and to veteran fight fans a reminder of Sugar Ray Robinson.

He is a magnificent boxer, perhaps one of the best pugilists has produced. He has a machine-gun jab and beautiful right cross. He has yet to prove he has a knockout punch (and that includes the Liston schmeeder) among the ranks of boxing's top heel — if such a thing exists.

If he had been born with a permanent laryngitis he would have been the greatest heavyweight ever to pull on a glove — and the darling of the boxing world.

Willie Told To "Slow Down"

Coming Too Fast

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two weeks ago manager Herman Franks of San Francisco Giants ordered Willie Mays to stay away from the ball park.

"I've just gotta slow him down," Franks said. "He's coming along too fast."

Mays took another day off today, his third since the exhibition schedule started March 12, in between those days of rest the 34-year-old wiz has slowed down about as much as he does during the regular season.

In the Giants' 7-4 victory over California Angels Thursday, Mays increased his spring average to .382 by lashing two doubles and a single and drove in two runs for a total of 13.

Mays has accumulated most of his 21 hits and 13 RBI while playing only five and six and sometimes seven innings in a game. His nine-inning performance against the Angels was his first complete game of the spring.

"He just gets better and better," California manager Bill Rigney said of Mays, who gained the National League's Most Valuable Player award for the second time last season.

SENATORS BLANKED

In another exhibition of power Thursday, Tony Conigliaro hit his seventh homer of the spring and drove in four runs as Boston Red Sox walloped Washington Senators 10-0. Jim Gentile's three-run homer capped a seven-run sixth inning that powered Houston Astros past Philadelphia Phillies 12-9.

Cincinnati Reds edged Baltimore Orioles 3-2 on Art Shamsky's two - run homer in the ninth, and Mike Shannon and Lou Brock homered as St. Louis Cardinals downed Chicago White Sox 7-5.

Successive doubles by pinch-hitter Sandy Valdespino and Jimmie Hall in the 10th inning opened the way for a three-run rally that gave Minnesota Twins a 4-3 victory over New York Yankees.

Detroit Tigers scored two runs in the ninth on Mickey Stanley's single and Jim Fagiarondi's passed ball for an 8-7 decision over Pittsburgh Pirates.

New York Mets erupted for four runs in the seventh and handed Kansas City Athletics their sixth straight defeat 7-3. Ed Kranepool triggered the rally with a triple and scored as Ron Hunt flied out.

Boston pitched seven strong innings as Cleveland Indians added a six-game losing streak by downing Chicago Cubs 4-1.

The major periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The minor periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

College Officials Unanimous

No Athletic Scholarships

TORONTO (CP)—Athletic directors from 81 universities and colleges in Canada Thursday voted unanimously against awarding athletic scholarships.

Seventy - two delegates voted in principle against the idea at the conference on physical education, recreation and athletics in Canadian universities.

Dalt Wible, assistant physical education director at the University of Toronto, led a heavy opposition vote by eastern delegates.

A Quebec brewery has offered $10,000 in athletic scholarships for students at the University of British Columbia and the University of Manitoba. Other breweries are reported considering similar scholarships for other schools.

The Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Union also supported the idea of athletic scholarships and is trying to get the rest of the country to approve.

White said he feels athletic scholarships are wrong regardless of their source. "It doesn't matter who does it," he said. "It's equally wrong in principle. However, it's here. We can't control it, but it's wrong."

OPPOSITION SOLID

Dr. Maury Van Vliet, athletic director at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, and chairman of the conference, said the meeting was solidly opposed to athletic scholarships.

The athletic directors went a step further Thursday and voted solidly in favor of a move restricting all head coaches to be members of physical education faculties at their schools.

They favored having the physical education department control school teams, athletes and athletic programs.

"In some cases the competitive sport is controlled by persons who are not responsible to the athletic director," Van Vliet said. "The revenue is often controlled separately and not given to the general fund of the school.

"We feel such competition should be a separate part of the physical education family and subject to the control of the athletic director. This would definitely rule out pro coaches without a university background."

Series Tied 3-3

Marlies Whip Rangers

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final series between Toronto Marlboros and Kitchener Rangers became a best-of-eight affair Thursday night when Toronto defeated Kitchener 4-2.

The series is tied 3-3 with one game a draw.

The eighth game will be played in Kitchener Saturday afternoon with a ninth if necessary in Toronto Sunday afternoon. If the ninth is tied, the teams will go into sudden-death overtime.

The winner meets Oshawa Generals in the best-of-seven final.

Bill Hway, John Beechey, Jack McCreary and Rob Jones scored for Kitchener. Mike Byers accounted for both Toronto goals.

Hway opened the scoring at 1:32 of the first period. The teams then fought until 1:31 of the third period without scoring.

Beechey made it 2-0, but one minute and eight seconds later Byers put the Marlies back in the game. McCreary scored at 9:30, then Byers scored at 13:39, while Rob Cook was serving a minor penalty for interference, to leave Toronto trailing 3-2.

Coach Gus Bodnar yanked goalie Al Smith from the Marlboros' net with one minute left in the game, but Rangers' Walt Tkaczuk grabbed a sloppy Marlies' pass and put the puck into Jones, who casually skated across centre ice and flipped it into the empty net.

Mathematical Chance

Toronto Could Finish Second, If

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League Thursday announced the dates for the two best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final playoff series.

In series A the first- and third-place teams meet, in series B the teams finishing second and fourth oppose each other.

The following schedule will apply if Montreal Canadiens finish first, Chicago Black Hawks second, Toronto Maple Leafs third and Detroit Red Wings fourth. (All times eastern standard):

SERIES A

Thursday, April 7, Toronto at Montreal, 8 p.m.

Saturday, April 9, Toronto at Montreal, 8 p.m.

Tuesday, April 12, Montreal at Toronto, 8 p.m.

Thursday, April 14, Montreal at Toronto, 8 p.m.

Saturday, April 16, Toronto at Montreal, 8 p.m. (if necessary)

Tuesday, April 19, Montreal at Toronto, 8 p.m. (if necessary)

Thursday, April 21, Montreal at Toronto, 8 p.m. (if necessary)

Saturday, April 23, Toronto at Montreal, 8 p.m. (if necessary)

SERIES B

Thursday, April 7, Detroit at Chicago, 8:30 p.m.

Sunday, April 10, Detroit at Chicago, 3:30 p.m.

Tuesday, April 12, Chicago at Detroit, 8 p.m.

Thursday, April 14, Chicago at Detroit, 8 p.m.

Sunday, April 17, Detroit at Chicago, 2:30 p.m. (if necessary)

Tuesday, April 19, Chicago at Detroit, 8 p.m. (if necessary)

Thursday, April 21, Detroit at Chicago, 8 p.m. (if necessary)

DATES MAY CHANGE

If Chicago finishes first, Montreal second, Toronto third and Detroit fourth, the Leafs will start at Chicago against the Hawks April 7 instead of Detroit and the Wings will move to Montreal on the same night instead of Toronto. The rest of the dates remain constant no matter how the teams finish.

Montreal is in first place with 86 points, four more than Chicago.

The Canadiens need one point to assure themselves the championship and the Prince of Wales Trophy. Montreal and Chicago each has two games left to play.

Toronto could finish second if its wins its three remaining games and Chicago loses two.

Should this happen, a new schedule will be issued.

Daubers Defeat SACO 4-2

Ter-Hiaar Daubers broke the ice in the Quinte Hockey League's "battle of ties" last night by tripping SACO 4-2.

The victory gives Ter-Hiaar a 2-0 lead over SACO and in the best-of-seven se', it will continue, at 8.00, next Thursday.

SACO held the lead twice in the first period but the winners pulled ahead 3-2 after two and added the clincher in the third.

Jack Calnan was the Ter-Hiaar scoring hero, potting the only two goals of the middle heat to erase a 2-1 deficit. His first came at 3.17, with Al Rutian helping, and his second at 11.47, unassisted.

Jim Muir tied it 2-1 for the Daubers' in the first, assisted by Rutian, and Calnan's Hero scored the clincher, with Robert Brown helping, at 12.00 of the third.

Ray Allen shoved SACO ahead on a play with Jack Lucas early in the first. Lucas' goal at 15.47 of the same heat, with Art Dobbs assisting, created the 2-1 situation.

In the penalty department, each team was amassed four minors while SACO's Jack Gilby had a major added in the third for intent to injure.

The 1:35 mark of the 10-minute overtime when he flipped the puck over Guelph goalie Harold (Boat) Hurley from just outside the crease.

Kingston Wins In Overtime

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Aces staved off elimination in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals Thursday night with a 4-3 overtime win over Guelph Regals.

Guelph leads the best-of-seven series 3-1. The fifth-game will be played in Guelph tonight.

Tom Carty, Bob Rasson, Dick Charry and Ron Earl scored for Kingston. Playing coach Butch Martin scored twice for Guelph and Joe Malo added a single goal.

Carty scored the winner at the 1:35 mark of the 10-minute overtime when he flipped the puck over Guelph goalie Harold (Boat) Hurley from just outside the crease.

Letter To The Sports Editor

MINOR OFFICIATING

Will you please allow me a small space in your paper to express my views on the officiating of the Pee-Wee Tournament held in the arena last Saturday.

First I feel that the report submitted by G. Alexander, though possibly true, could very well have been toned down.

I feel that nothing what so ever has been gained but a great deal of harm has been done.

To my knowledge both the officials mentioned are still attending school and if they have not felt the barbs of many jokes and jests then I am greatly surprised.

Secondly, I have no doubt they knew their time to the B.M.H.A. simply because they enjoy the sport but the kind of publicity afforded here will only tend to make any future assignments that much more difficult.

Few referees ever call a perfect game (re. the installation of close circuit T.V. in the N.H.L.) but we in the B.M.H.A. give our very best at all times and at this point I would like to refer to "Interested Father". Messers Udvari, Ashley and Morrison all started in the minors and I know that they must have erred many, many times on their way to the top, but there is a distinct difference between error and bias. The inference of the author is that certain officials exhibit favoritism, in my opinion this is utter nonsense for I have worked with these referees and nothing is further from the truth.

I would suggest the author put his talent as a spectator to better use next year and volunteer his services as a referee.

As for developing minor hockey in Belleville, is this not the aim of every person who gives his time to minor hockey?

Regarding the coaches being disgusted at the officials I would say that some of these gentlemen learn something to be desired of themselves. I am referring to the habit of padding their teams, contrary to B.M.H.A. rules.

As a last note I would add: We officials are trying to approach and criticism but I do urge that the critics be fair.

D. and W.

(Editor's Note: — Both sides of the question of the minor hockey officiating incident have been published. This ends the matter as far as letters to the editor is concerned. No more will be accepted on the matter).

Coach Suspension Started It

Minor Hockey Pot Boils

The suspension of a peewee hockey coach and the rejection of his appeal is what is getting the pot gets sufficient evidence to prove that he had not used proper politics."

Hurst and one of the Canadiens' player's mother said this morning that 11 players from the team walked out of the arena last night after learning that Hurst's appeal had been rejected.

He claims that a peewee convener, Ron Smith, was put in charge of his team earlier in the day and called them to say that a replay of the protested game had been ordered for 6.30 last night.

Canadiens had won the protested game 4-3 and the series over the Rangers 2-1.

"After Rangers' scored one goal last night against the seven Canadiens players who stayed to play, our goalie quit and the rest of the boys left," says Hurst.

He said that at first the game and series was given to the Rangers but after some discussion, BMHA executive Dryn Denyes requested that the game be replayed on Saturday morning with Don Bronson of the Canadiens' team serving as coach.

"We accepted this proposal for the kids' sake," said Hurst.

Hurst says that Bronson and Ted Sprackett are assistant coaches and should have been put in charge of the team when he (Hurst) was suspended.

"They are not officially assistant coaches, only self or coach-appointed," says Adamson of Bronson and Sprackett.

Ted Sprackett claimed this morning that the suspension of Hurst is completely uncalled for. "At the start of the series, the Rangers used one of their players well out of rotation and we pointed it out to the group convener. He warned the Rangers and that was all there was to it.

"Then too, they are using the sub goalie from the city's peewee all-star team, rather than their own goalie.

"But apparently those matters are alright, yet when Hurst was forced to play one player every third line instead of every fourth because he did not have an even number of players, he is suspended," Sprackett said.

Adamson at first did not wish to discuss the matter. He said "We are not looking for publicity and if Hurst and his cohorts want to make a big thing of this, let them do so and our complete executive will then have to make a reply."

Adamson also questioned about other cases of improper rotating that "it is becoming more prevalent as the year goes and we have had to take action before".

Sprackett says that the executive had promised the game would not start until after the appeal had been turned down but that this was not the case.

Adamson says that "Hurst and some of the parents are causing the trouble and even tried to talk the Canadiens' goalie from starting the game last night." He said that Ron Smith had told him 13 of the Canadiens' players were willing to play the game when contacted by phone.

"Our lines is clean," says Adamson.

WANT TOLLS ENDED

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dominion Marine Association, spokesman for Canada's inland and coastal shipping industry, Thursday renewed its plea for abolition of tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway system. In a brief to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, which plans public hearings this spring on new toll proposals, the DMA said the charges wipe out much of the advantage of the greatest natural low-cost shipping route in the world.

TV Cameramen Lectured For Pictures of Hecklers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) —Prime Minister Wilson, in the final days of campaigning for Thursday's British general election, lectured foreign TV reporters for filming hecklers at a meeting instead of concentrating on the speakers and issues. NBC, in its early news show Wednesday night, carried parts of the lecture—and the hecklers' enviles.

Television reporters, said Wilson, were not invited "to encourage people to kick up a row for the sake of exhibitionism."

But the truth is that people are bams wherever they are and TV cameramen, like all reporters, will report on the action.

On a recent news show, a correspondent was describing serious disturbances and troop action in a political upheaval in Indonesia. Tanks and trucks with uniformed men rumbled past the cameras — but the Musical Showcase (11)

Some changes also are brewing in Peyton Place. Mia Farrow, who plays Allison MacKenzie, is negotiating for her release. Explanation: She has reasons she has brought the series reams of publicity and undoubtedly aggravated some executive ulcers.

If Mia departs for a motion picture career, what will happen to Allison? Will they just write her out of the role? Will she go on a long trip? Or will they write in a fatal accident illness?

Students Visit Toronto Restaurants

YVONNE ARMSTRONG Q8S

Forty students from both QS8 and MS8 travelled to Toronto on March 22. These students from the occupational course took the trip to familiarize themselves with the operations of restaurants and stores in Toronto.

The Town and Country Restaurant, famous for its excellent smorgasbord, was the first place we visited. On a guided tour of the kitchens, we were shown the large refrigerators. One contains the meat which is carefully weighed on large scales when brought in. The guide showed how a roast of beef is cut into individual sections. The second refrigerator contained the vegetables, which must be kept fresh at all times. The third refrigerator, which no one wanted to leave, contained the cakes and pastries which are made the day before serving. The finishing touches are added when they are ready to be served.

After numerous questions had been asked, the students realized that there is much careful preparation involved in getting together a meal for over 500 people. We learned that the chef must know exactly what he has left in order to prepare his menu for the next day.

We also discovered that restaurants are run on the efficiency of its staff, from head chef to dishwasher.

After we saw the Town and Country, we left for a tour of South Yonge where we visited Ryerson Institute and the old site of the city hall. Then we travelled to the site of the new city hall which seemed to spread out like a large castle against the sky. It looked as if it just amazing, especially as it was the first time most of us had ever seen the building.

After we left the city hall, we returned to the Town and Country for lunch, which was laid out on a long table. The food consisted of different meats and vegetables and salads and was every bit as delicious as it looked.

When we finished lunch, we went on to the Restaurant Convention at the C.N.E. Where we added us to see new machines and have samples of both a new and old products used in restaurants to suit the convenience and the taste of the customer.

A special thank you goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Brydsen who accompanied us on the trip.

Student Says Sky-diving No Place for Showoffs

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Sky-diving is "really it," says Don Carson, 19, of Lambeth, Ont. Don Wilson, also 19 and also from Lambeth, agrees.

They are the youngest members of St. Thomas Parachute Club and between them have logged more than 190 jumps, most of them free-falls or sky-dives.

A sky-diver jumps from an airplane and free falls for up to 2,500 feet before opening his parachute. The two teen-agers have been a part in this fast-growing sport of thrills for the last 18 months.

"Too many think of sky-diving as a sport where a bunch of hooks are simply wasting their time and money and risking their lives to jump out of airplanes for kicks," says Carson.

"If people could just realize what an experience it is not only to jump, but to execute manoeuvres of all kinds in the air, they'd appreciate it more."

He says a few reckless sky-divers have distorted the image of the sport with dangerous, foolhardy stunts.

"There are some showoffs in this sport—but not very many," he says.

"Some of these showoffs," says Wilson.

Elaborating on the sport, Carson says: "You jump anywhere from 1,200 to 3,500 feet up and target the size of an ashtray. But that's just one part of it—there are all kinds of manoeuvres alone or with a buddy jumper—like a tandem backloop where you and your buddy joined with your buddy's and you ferris wheel through the air in a 180 degree turn."

Wilson was asked how fast the ground appears to be approaching as he jumps.

"It doesn't really seem to be coming at you at all until you get down around 2,200 feet and then it really moves up."

The two jumpers said parachutists were recruited to keep their chutes open by the 2,200-foot level and wear a combination helmet-goggle which instrument panel on their emergency chute attached to their stomachs for this purpose.

Club membership costs $50 and a jumper must be at least 18 years old and present a doctor's certificate of fitness. The club will provide a parachute and teach the member how to use it during his training period.

Turn Church Crypt Into Coffee House

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—What's in a church crypt? Nothing much usually—a few broken school chairs, perhaps, and a lot of cobwebs.

They're still got the chairs but the cobwebs have gone at St. George's Anglican Church in downtown Ottawa where "a loose conglomeration of friends" has organized a coffee house.

The group, high school and university students, got the project started when they sponsored a "participating party" —25 cents for a can of paint and then you're on your own.

When it was over, the drab walls were covered with futuristic landscapes, handprints and fresh-sprigs as "Mary Poppins is a fink" and "Hubert Humphrey lives."

Tables have materialized out of wire drums, and a stage out of an "agreement" with a lumber company.

"We got $100 from the church," says Rod Menchee, 18, a qualifying-year arts student at Carleton University. "And we've put in about $50 of our own."

He and the rest of the group hope the house will attract students and the young working people who live in the centre of town.

"We hope to have plays, poetry readings, some folk singing, and sometimes a forum, like Hyde Park. The main thing we want to have is free expression."

MINISTER'S IDEA

The place was the idea of the minister, Rev. Patrick Playfair.

"We've been trying to encourage something like this for three years," he said. "We've had groups with vision and zeal. This is the first one with both."

Rod and friends Louise Casselman, 19, Oliver Kent, 15, and Duncan Kent, 17, organized work parties during their Christmas holidays to paint, fireproof burlap for the stage and walls and install about 300 feet of electric wiring cable.

"We painted the ceiling black and the floor got sort of red at the participating," Rod explains.

The group are members of Young World Mobilization, war veterans of a Parliament Hill hunger strike last Thanksgiving.

Profits from the house, to be called Two Worlds — Deux Mondes, will go to the Young World Tractor Fund, to buy a tractor for a South American community.

One corner of the crypt is stacked with soft drink bottles from a recent Young World Bottle Drive.

"We want to get away from the church idea," Rod says. "We just want to have a place where people can come to meet each other and talk. We want them to get the idea there are other people in the world."

Tale of Sorrowed Man

By BARRY GRILLS (MSS)

He hath walked in sorrow upon the road to the city. His feet have been dragged onward and a tear hath fallen on his cheek. His eyes have been swollen and his lips have trembled.

He hath heard nothing. He hath seen nothing. He hath been nothing until the wise man hath come.

The wise man hath come from the temple of the wicked. The wise man hath come from the temple of the hypocrites. The wise man hath come from the temple of the unfree.

The wise man hath seen the sorrowed man. He hath stopped and said, "What hast thou done, O sorrowed man?"

"I have done nothing," saith the sorrowed man. "I have done nothing and yet withal I wandered on the road my friends did mock me and hurl stones at me."

"Cry not, O sorrowed man. I shall aid thee." The wise man taketh the sorrowed man by the arm and leadeth him to a nearby rock.

"Tell me why thou hast done nothing," saith the wise man. "If thou speakest, thou art not a fool."

"I prithee, I am not a fool," saith the sorrowed man. "I have done nothing to my friends. I have wandered with them. I have rejoiced at their words."

"Thou hast no friends. Thou art no man. Thou believest nothing and thou knowest not what to believe. Thou hast rejoiced at all words and thus thou rejoicest at no words. Thou art a fool. Go and speak thus with your friends. Tell them where is what thou dost want and speak such unto your friends. Go!"

The sorrowed man hath risen and gone now to his friends. The wise man hath returned to the temple of the hypocrites.

Two Leaves

(By GAIL NICHOLS, Q.S.S.)

Two leaves: one red, one gold.
Both are beautiful.
Though they may differ in size and shape . . .
Each has survived the bitter frost
And the cruel insect gnawings.
Each has the gift of Life.
Which is better? Who is to say?
They are both leaves, basically equal.
Two leaves: one red, one gold.
Two men: one black, one white.

Science Fair Opens Tonight

By GAIL NICHOLS Q8S

The annual Belleville Science Fair and Hobby Show is being held in the Armouries tonight and tomorrow, April 1st and 2nd. Q.S.S. has always had quite a few entries in the Science Fair but this year only four students are submitting projects. These people are Les Schrims h w, Doug DeSmit, Dwayne Ellis and Gail Nichols.

Three of these projects include an exposition on the DNA molecule, the principle of chemilluminescence and the thyroid gland with hyperthyroidism in the rat.

The responsibility for working out and researching the projects belongs solely to the exhibitor. he must do all the work necessary to prepare his entry, gaining assistance from others only in the form of suggestions or basic materials.

The prizes are $5, $10, and $15 for 3rd, 2nd and 1st place respectively in each division. The Grand Champion receives an additional $15 and an expenses-paid trip to the Canada-wide Science Fair in Windsor, May 12-14. The three runners-up each receive $10 more and the trip.

The Fair is usually very exciting and interesting, not only for the students but for the general public also. Admission is only 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults, to come and see a stimulating exhibition.

Four Students Attend Symphony at Cedarbrae

By AUSTIN BARTLETT QSS

We arrived at Albert College at 4:45 p.m. Mr. Wilson, a teacher from Albert College, was not in sight. Was he coming? Had I got the instructions right? Were we late? All these questions raced through my mind as I anxiously searched for him. He was nowhere to be found. Depressed, we waited. At last he arrived, and after a few delays, we were off to hear the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. Disappointed at first, we quickly became comfortable in the Volkswagen bus. We were soon playing cards, telling jokes and in general having fun.

Arriving at Cedarbrae Collegiate where the concert was being held, we obtained our tickets and went to the balcony. Very few of the musicians were on stage. We talked about the various selections on the program. Mr. Wilson gave me a brief background of Berg's opera Lulu.

Silence came over the audience. All was in readiness. Out walked Mr. Seiji Ozawa, the conductor. He stepped up to the podium. A flourish of the baton and the familiar strains of "the Queen" filled the auditorium. Silence and then Hayden's Symphony in G Major number 88 encompassed the audience. It was composed of four movements. The stately, yet lively woodwinds leading, started the introduction. The soft, sweet flowing violins followed until the third movement. Here the syncopated horns and, leaving one hanging in mid air. This is typical of Haydn. The whole composition was conducted by a lively and spirited ending. Applause reverberated in the hall.

After a few moments of silence, Excerpts from Berg's dramatic emotional opera Lulu filled the air. The first section started quietly, racing to ever increasing heights. The audience became tense, electrified. This atmosphere continued, magnified in the variation, Tempo Increased! Crescendo! Silence! An ear piercing scream! The audience was shocked. The orchestra raced to the end. This whole composition portrays Lulu's murdering of Dr. Schoen, her arrest, trial, imprisonment, release and death by Jack the Ripper.

Then came intermission — time to give us time to calm down. I learned that the other three —Dwayne, Harry and Hughes thought the same as I. that some lady in the front row had flipped her lid.

After ten minute break, Beethoven's Seventh Symphony in A Major, op 92 began it was composed of 4 movements. The whole composition perfectly revealed wave battered rocks, pounding surf and calm. The first movement introduces the sea and the waves striking the rocks. The second movement increases in tempo revealing the approaching storm. The tempo reaches its greatest speed in the third movement thus showing the fury and strength of the storm-tossed sea as the surf strike the rocks. The fourth movement again depicts the calm sea.

Applause filled the hall for a period of minutes. Thus ended the last symphony in Cedarbrae for this season.

Excited and thrilled we returned to the bus. We discussed the concert for about an hour, then Mr. Wilson let us leave something. Then the fun began and continued until we got home.

N. Hermiston Of Warkworth Is Qualifier

A student will represent this area in the finals of the Ontario public speaking contest, to be held in Toronto on April 16.

Fifteen-year-old Nancy Hermiston of Warkworth, has qualified for the secondary school sections of the competition.

First prize winners will repeat their speeches at a banquet April 22. All finalists are invited to spend a day at Niagara Falls as guests of Hydro, one of the co-sponsors of the contest.

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

It's a bird, it's a plane, no it's only me. From one April fool to another hello . . . Being a somewhat average ? ? ? person, this bit about flying saucers has me wondering. It's funny how your imagination can let you see things that don't exist. Some people live in a world filled with flying saucers all the time, and fantasy is part of their life. Believing is seeing, I say.

To those who have seen U.F.O.'s, I think your observations have been doubted by many. Something still remains outstanding about all of this mystery and that is the hush hush in the newspapers and communications. Many sightings have been made by reliable people. This fact remains. So what ? ? ? At no time have flying saucers landed on earth and at no time have they contacted us. So until such times as something other than sightings occur I remain a disbeliever among Mod music makers.

I am happy to see many new bands in the Quinte district. I have not been able to see these bands play because of doing other dances of my own. Many Mods have indicated that these bands are really something worth supporting. There is just one drawback for the many new bands in the area and that is places to play. You see, guys, most of the halls are union and you must be union to play there. So once your group has reached the stage where you are in demand: do yourself a favor; join the union.

"Adults are listening to ago-go music more and more." A quote from a noted magazine. Why this trend ? ? ? Adults would rather watch than fight. Welcome to the fold. You are in with the in crowd and all that jazz. Listen . . . it's no crime to swing with the times, after all you're parents! Parents thought the "Big Apple" was wild or how about the "Charleston." The Mod dances are lots of fun and good exercise. Many of the surrounding adult night clubs feature exclusive Go Go music, and entertainment. So come alive, you are in the Mod generation . . .

Now that Mom and Dad swing we can be one happy family.

Easter holidays are just around the corner and so again we have something special planned for your holiday entertainment. April 13th, at the debut of the fab "Sparrows" into Belleville will feature another Armories spectacular. This great band has won acclaim and fame from coast to coast, both an TV and records. The admission is only one buck so let's kick up our heels "at the hop." All money will be going to the "Older Boys' Parliament" and the Belleville Jaycees, two worthy causes. So let's go go on April 13th to the Belleville Armories to see another camp Canadian show. I'll be there in that slightly soiled orange suit.

Tonight B.O.T.C.H. is sponsoring another great show for the whole family, a hockey spectacular featuring none other than the good old "Belleville Educational Crew" and the Island Black Stars from Brand X radio station in Kingston. Another feature of this show is the between-period broom ball game between the two rival coffee houses. The Grapevine takes on members of B.O.T.C.H. and you'll be the winner of many laughs. So come from people over twelve and under twelve it is free. I would like to see a full house for this event. Remember, all, yes all, the money goes toward furthering teen activities in our city and to keep Mod music makers off the streets. This is family entertainment so let's get out and have a ball.

Teen Club 106 are having the "Spartons" this week from Toronto. "Sound Incorp." will be appearing at the Trenton Community Gardens with the "Fab King Bees." This local Trenton group have great potential for making it big . . . We'll be on stage at 8:30 p.m.

Tuesday's group called, the Manxs will be appearing at the Grapevine coffee house tonight for another Canadian first. This first coffee house to our city seems to be a giant success, let's hope it continues.

Into the Bat Cave for a visit . . . Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass have a delightful arrangement of "What Now My Love." Leslie Gore is just in time for spring with "Young Love" . . . Fontella Bass is inbound with "I Surrender." A great sound for the Kinks is a Rocket record called "Till the End of the Day." Getting their musical kicks are Paul Revere and the Raiders. Eddie Rambeau has a potential winner with "I Am the Shy." A fine sound for the Beach Boys is another million seller with the "John B Sail."

Lou Christie should be all wet after "Lighting Strikes."

When you pick up your copy of the Double 008 Pile please note that out of the top twenty 4 are Canadian. Group sure such as the Guess Who, Shays and the Big Town Boys have gigs in the Quinte area very soon.

Hope you are thinking about the suggested centennial for Mods.

The season of Easter fast approaches us again. Many good times are planned and a good time is assured those who participate. Spring fever is starting to spread and I would like you to use some control for your own good. Don't be too concerned about the Flying Saucers in space. The only space you should worry about is the one between your ears.

From one earth creature to another . . . Shangri-La.

Toronto is World Crossroads

CPA Links Ontario To Five Continents

By John G. Carrothers
World-traveller, writer, lecturer

How big is an airline? What makes an airline outstanding? Difficult questions, open to many interpretations. But Canadian Pacific Airlines qualifies on both counts: It's big and it's outstanding, and Toronto is the principal traffic center for CPA's world wide route patterns.

Canadian Pacific Airlines' domestic and international routes extend over 50,000 miles from Toronto. It links Ontario with Canada's major cities —east to west and north to south. It links Canada with five continents on some of the world's longest air routes, crossing the Equator, the Arctic Circle and the International Date Line. Yes, Canadian Pacific is a big airline.

And what makes Canadian Pacific Airlines outstanding? Ask CPA patrons. They're sold on CPA standards of service. A reputation built on the vision, integrity and leadership of men who loved flying. Men who transformed a flock of single-engined bush aircraft into a jet age airline and will soon propel Canada into the supersonic era and beyond. All this in a quarter of a century. Wherever airline people meet, you'll find agreement—the CPA story is one of the great sagas of flying. The fulfillment of a bush pilot's dream —a great international airline.

Before 1940, commercial aviation in Canada was an exciting story of small outfits operating on a shoestring. Despite innumerable difficulties, primitive aircraft, virtually no navigational aids and inadequate airport facilities, they not only survived but they pushed back Canada's frontiers in the west and north.

Ironically, the only ones who seemed unable to profit from their endeavours were the pilots themselves. It took the guidance and financial backing of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the vision of a youthful veteran of bushflying to bring order out of confusion.

The young flyer was Grant McConachie—destined to become a legend in the annals of Canadian aviation. As President of Canadian Pacific Airlines he drew together a group of ten small independent airlines and built them into the proud organization which today carries Canada's flag to the four corners of the globe.

Canadian Pacific first established its transcontinental and domestic services, then reached out over the horizon for new routes to conquer. To Hawaii and the South Seas. To the exotic Fiji Islands and on to New Zealand and Australia. South to Mexico and later to Peru, Chile and Argentina. Then came the long awaited "airbridge" to Asia, to Japan and the market places of Hong Kong and Southeast Asia.

Eastward the expansion was equally rapid and dramatic. First CPA pioneered the now popular Polar route to Europe from the West Coast. Then the mid-Atlantic route from Toronto and Montreal to the Azores, to Lisbon, Madrid and Rome. In 1965 another new link with the old world was added—the speedy Toronto-Montreal/Amsterdam service linked directly with Canadian Pacific's transcontinental flights from Toronto and the West.

Whether pioneering new routes or putting the latest types or aircraft into service, Canadian Pacific has put passenger comfort and convenience above all else.

And as the romantic era of Canadian aviation fades and pioneers like McConachie take their places in history, a new breed of leader, skilled in the administrative and financial intricacies of international transportation, moves into the executive cockpit. Such a man is J. C. Gilmer, Canadian Pacific Airlines' recently elected President. Gilmer and his associates will pilot the airline into the supersonic era, coordinating activity in a world-wide network of over 400 offices and scores of cargo, airport and operational bases. Canadian Pacific Airlines makes a substantial contribution to Canada's economy. As the operator of a world-wide air passenger and cargo transportation system, the Company produces millions of import dollars for Canada every year in addition to the expenditures made for equipment and supplies, for wages and salaries of thousands of Canadians.

Wherever they wish to go, CPA passengers enjoy the international standards of service and cuisine which have won acclaim for Canadian Pacific Airlines among the world's most sophisticated travellers.

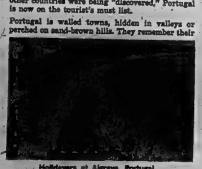
But what, you may ask, can CPA do for me now? Well, if you've a dream to buy in Hawaii, or a suntan you want in Mexico or even a second honeymoon to enjoy in Europe, Canadian Pacific will jet you there in style. You'll be introduced to new faces, sights, sounds, fun, and excitement wherever in the world you want to go. In fact, you'll meet CPA in the air to everywhere . . . ferrying businessmen to the Orient, gold from the Yukon, furs to South America, farmers to Australia and New Zealand, sun seekers to Southern Europe, sons to mothers and husbands to wives.

CPA can be justly proud of its part in bringing Canada to the world and the world to Canada.

CPA's Super DC-8 Jetliner

On The Road to ROME

Three great cities, capitals of the three great nations of Southern Europe, nations which have done a great deal down the centuries to shape the thoughts, literature, art, sculpture, morals and manners of the western world.



And today ,more than at any other time in a thousand years, Portugal, Spain and Italy are waiting for the traveller, and offering him more, offering all the outpourings of that treasure chest of learning and spectacle and gaiety and history.

Today, Southern Europe is on the Canadian traveller's doorstep, an eight hour flight on Canadian Pacific Airlines' DC-8 jetliner. Rome, the Eternal City, is non-stop from Toronto, and other flights from Eastern Canada stop at Lisbon and Madrid en route to Rome.

How much to get there, you winter-weary traveler? Using CPA's ten per cent down payment plan, you can jet Toronto-Lisbon return for as little as $85. Madrid for only $87 and Rome for only $46 down, and pay the balance over a number of months, the easy way.

Portugal, more than most countries in Europe, is wide open for the tourist. Long neglected while other countries were being "discovered," Portugal is now on the tourist's must list.

Portugal is walled towns, hidden in valleys or perched on sand-brown hills. They remember their hard past, and they are proud of it—battling the Arabs for more than five centuries, turning back the Spanish invaders, and forging ahead to become great explorers, warriors and colonizers.

Holidayers at Algrave, Portugal

Lisbon is cosmopolitan, charming, and, so far, has escaped the hectic pace that has clutched many of the countries to the north. The narrow streets retain their picturesque air, and their markets are busy and bolstrous, their best hotels are excellent and their first class restaurants as good as any in Europe. Gorgh yourself on sea food; it's excellent!

Spain! Ole! Spain means gay and colorful festivals, a rich cultural heritage and the exuberant good nature of its people.

Madrid is unique, and the largest of her busy and vital cities which have been thriving for centuries, and yet they all have a grace and style and essence that is completely Spanish.

Spain means palaces, and castles, and museums filled with some of the world's great works of art, and delicious food in simple inns, and the excitement of the fiesta, and massive cathedrals towering over small towns, and gypsy castenets cracking in smoky nightclubs, and the beauty of Alcazar Castle, and the matadors working the bulls in the colorful arenas on sunny afternoons.

In Italy, or the world for that matter, all roads lead to Rome.

Rome is the city in which all Italians find expression, and you'll understand why when you step from your CPA jetliner. Here is the Vatican. St. Peter's. Here, 2,000 years of history are gathered in some of the world's best preserved architecture. Here are some of the world's great museums, palaces.

And, when your day is done, you can relax in famous restaurants, surrounded by famous people, enjoying La Dolce Vita for Rome is a major crossroads of the world. Just listen to the chatter in the sidewalk cafes if you're not convinced.

And Rome is only the beginning of Italy. North or south, the fine roads take you to her great cities, her monumental ruins.

The Antiquity That Is Rome

Sea-girt on three sides, she has an astonishing number of fine beaches, small ports, busy harbors, all waiting for the enterprising visitor to discover.

Rome is also the jumping-off point—the gateway — for a great many countries — Yugoslavia, Greece, some Iron Curtain lands, North Africa, Egypt, Turkey, the Middle East, Israel, and India and the Far East.

Your nearest Canadian Pacific Airlines' office or your travel agent will bring you up to date on flights, costs, accommodations, tours, everything to ensure that your Southern European jaunt will be memorable and enjoyable in every way.

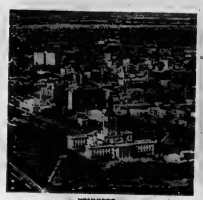
NEXT TIME CROSS CANADA ON A CPA JET

More and more the experienced traveller is using CPA's daily Jet Empress flight between our major cities Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

There are several reasons of importance, convenience, quality and economy.

Suppose you are a businessman from Toronto on route West. You board at 9 a.m. and your CPA plane lands in Winnipeg at 11 a.m. in time for a business lunch and an afternoon of solid work. If you're heading for Vancouver, same thing. Your stewardess serves you a delicious lunch after Winnipeg and you land in the West Coast city just after noon — in plenty of time to take part in conferences and other business during the afternoon.

That's what we mean by convenience.



Quality of course is built in to CPA's service.

Remember that CPA is an integral part of the vast Canadian Pacific transportation system.

CPA's cross-Canada passengers enjoy exactly the same high standard of service and cuisine as do passengers on its intercontinental flights embracing more than 50,000 route miles and 5 continents. From our 2400 mile cross Canada flight to Vancouver from Toronto you carry on to Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia, to Tokyo and Hong Kong or if you're going South to Mexico City, Lima, Santiago and Buenos Aires. CPA's flight to Montreal connects with DC-8 service into Amsterdam, Lisbon, Madrid and Rome. And CPA is the only airline on which you can make these connections through Canada and overseas.

There is an attractive economy factor to flying across Canada with CPA. For example, father, mother and one child between 12-22 years old, can save up to $109 by using CPA's round trip economy family fare plan between Toronto and Vancouver. The head of the family pays regular fare, mother and child pay 2/3 fare and baby travels free. There are similar savings when you are bound for Winnipeg or Montreal.

Part of CPA's Canadian route pattern includes many B.C. Interior towns, the Yukon and points North. Connections are made in Vancouver.

What's so wonderful about the ORIENT?

Everything!

So, you consider yourself a world traveller? You've been to Europe, seen the great cities, Spain's ruined castles, Rome, always-young London, the sense of antiquity, the feeling of constant change. Or Mexico, senoritas, bull fights, the majestic peaks of Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, the exciting night life, And Hawaii, a paradise where you're safe from the arctic frosts that seem to be hitting Ontario every week in the winter. You've maybe been down South America way, Lima, Santiago, Buenos Aires.

But you've not really a world traveller unless you've been to the Orient.

All we can do is try and tell you something of what you'll see there. And by the way, if you're just starting out as a WT, there's no better place to start than Japan and Hong Kong.

You'll fly Canadian Pacific Airlines, of course, from Toronto into Vancouver, and then a luxury flight, just 10 hours at 35,000 feet, into Tokyo.

Right off, we'll say that Japan is a great industrial nation, and growing greater. Her post-war recovery is astonishing, and you'll see it on every hand, the new construction, the new autos, horns blaring, the hustle and bustle, the sense of purpose everywhere. Here is a nation on the move.

And yet, everywhere, is the solid evidence of an important and definable culture that goes back 2,000 years.

Consider these words: exotic, fascinating, colorful, lovely, ancient, dignified, progressive, ultra modern, bustling, distinctive, intriguing, cosmopolitan, booming, rustic, confusing. They all apply to Japan, striking every visitor differently.

We hope you get the idea—Japan is all things to all people.

Tokyo. Eleven million people, the world's largest city, sprawled over 800 square miles. The Imperial Palace and its gardens, manicured to perfection. The Ginza, outdoing Broadway in every way. The National Museum, caretaker of Japan's heritage. Dozens of luxury restaurants, dozens more in the first class category, catering to every taste and whim. Lovely Ueno Park, the treasury of Japanese culture. The famous Kabuki and Noh Theatres. The hundreds of night clubs, some gaudy and blaring, others dark and intimate. Great glassy-steel buildings, but nearby, sacred shrines and women minding by clad in exquisite kimonos.

Then there is Kyoto, lovely, its thousands of temples and shrines untouched by war. It is called the classic Japanese city, custodian of the best of Japanese art, architecture and painting and where the famous Japanese garden style reaches its apex.

Don't worry about accommodation. The hotels are good to excellent, and reasonably priced. And more and more visitors are spending a night (or four) in the Japanese inns which dot the heat-as-a-pin countryside of this nation of islands. There were 50,000 inns at last count, so take your pick. Get on a train, get off at a station that catches your fancy, and there will be a delightful inn nearby.

There are really few travel experiences quite as unique as a visit to a Japanese inn.

Mama-san, the woman who runs it, will greet you at the door and one of her tiny smiling maids will take off your shoes and show you to your room.

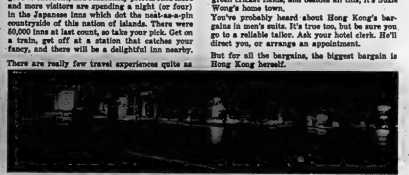
Japanese food is served in your room by your personal maid who also brings your tea and makes your bed.

Your bed is on the floor, but the double layer of futons (feather mattresses a foot thick) make it heavenly soft.

One night is guaranteed to refresh you, and two nights turns you into a ryokan-lover for life.

Japanese food is fun. Try it, and also observe the ceremony so important to the Japanese in serving an artistically-prepared meal. But dine early, for few restaurants, even in Tokyo, stay open after 9 p.m. You can climb Mount Fuji—thousands do every summer—or cruise on the Inland Sea. And what about local transportation? The Japanese have developed an excellent network of railways and buses, and the Tokyo subway is world-famous. Just stay out of it at rush hours.

Now, what about Hong Kong? Once a poor fishing village, it is now a great port, a cosmopolitan city.



The 32 square miles of Hong Kong (it's on an island) offers amazing variety—the views from the craggy peak reached by cable car, luxurious villas, thousands of squatters huts and sampans, fishing villages, beaches, narrow streets jammed with outdoor shops. Thousands of refugees. Piccadilly double-decker buses, some of the Orient's newest and finest hotels and hundreds of inn-type places. Restaurants, where the preparation of Chinese food has reached its finest art, bright green cricket fields, and besides all this, its Suzie Wong's home town.

You've probably heard about Hong Kong's bargains in men's suits. It's true too, but be sure you go to a reliable tailor. Ask your hotel clerk. He'll direct you, or arrange an appointment.

But for all the bargains, the biggest bargain is Hong Kong herself.

WORLD-WIDE SHOPPING

Souvenirs, Sure, And Bargains, Too!

Looking for souvenirs? Hunting for bargains? A gift for Aunt Kate? Something to decorate the mantel place?

Wherever Canadian Pacific Airlines flies, there is shopping for the world.

But a suggestion if we may. While you are in a country, scout around. Decide what you want to buy, but wait until the last day, and then you won't have to carry around your purchases. Then buy on the last day. You'll have a better idea of how much money you can spend, and a better idea of the bargains.

Another suggestion: Investigate the duty free shops found in most of the world's international airports; they contain many bargains.

Now for some bargains, country by country:

Argentina—leather goods, sportswear, footwear.

Australia—wallets, belts made of kangaroo skin; koala toys; mulga wood bowls; handwoven and sheepskin rugs; aboriginal bark paintings, boomerangs (the souvenir kind actually work) and woomeras (spear throwers); jewellery of every sort made from opals and polished stones.

China—hand-wrought copper ornaments; jewellery; fine glassware; rugs made by the Armenian Indians; some leather goods.

Hawaii—lei wood and monkey pod tableware; aloha shirts; Oriental slippers, pottery, brocades; saree cloths; flower perfumes; muumuus.

Hong Kong—a free port, so bargains everywhere —binoculars; cameras; translator products; jade, camphorwood and ivory carvings; silks and brocades; silver and enamel jewellery; Chinese lanterns; watches; porcelain products; cashmere sweaters; embroidered coats, dresses, evening gowns; copper, silver and pewter bowls; and other articles too numerous to recount

Italy—fine glass wear; silk articles; antiques, but make very sure they can be taken out of the country; leather handbags; wallets; shoes of every kind and they'll make them to your own design if you can draw a reasonable picture; leather coats; hand-made gloves; beautifully designed personal jewellery; ceramics; wrought-iron work; alabaster carving; ceramics; and lace wear.

Japan—translator products; cameras; binoculars; precision instruments; cultured pearl jewellery; lacquerware; woodcut prints; exquisite toys; kimonos; Ainuwear; furs.

Mexico—famous for its silver carving; pottery; basketware; lacquerware; serapes of every possible design and color; hand-tooled leather goods of every description; glass wear; jade products (but be careful of roadside hawkers); woolen and silken shows; and pay a visit to the National Pawn Shop in Mexico City's Zocalo.

Netherlands—leather goods; porcelain; uncut diamonds; antiques; pottery; pewter; chocolates; toffees; cheese; gin; a pair of clogs.

New Zealand—semi-precious greenstones; pauashell jewellery; woolen goods, blankets; paintings by Maoris; Maori walking sticks and carved bowls, ornaments, dolls.

Peru—gold and silver wear in abundance, carved by the Indians; alpaca rugs; handwoven blankets; Indian dolls; Indian pottery; tooled leather wallets.

Portugal—lovely hand-embroidery; crochet work; handwoven shirts and stoles; wines; cork goods of every description; wickerwork; basketa; filigree jewellery; pottery; silks and laces.

Spain—gaucho jackets; hand-sewn gloves; hand-embroidered blouses and lingerie; mantillas made of finest lace; Talavera pottery; sherry; leather handbags, wallets, belts.

Take This Tip Before Your Trip! See A Travel Agent

The travel agent is a vital part of today's multi-billion dollar world-wide travel industry. He is a specialist whose years of training and experience can help you to travel wisely, quickly, safely, within your budget and with more enjoyment.

Most travel agents are appointed by airlines and other transportation companies so, in effect, they are their representatives. The travel agent, to secure these appointments, must show financial responsibility, and a thorough knowledge of the travel field, a field which is becoming increasingly more complicated.

Your agent or one of his staff, has probably been to most of the countries and cities on your travel plan, so their knowledge is of inestimable value to you. Take their advice.

The agent will choose the hotels most suited to your needs and finances. If you wish it, he'll arrange tours and cruises through the country you'll visit, and a car-hire, or even a car-purchase.

More and more, travellers are asking for personal itineraries. They are becoming more sophisticated, and want to get off the usual tourist track. Those tours are generally based on hobbies or special interests—an alpine tour of New Zealand's Alps, a golf tour of Ireland, a tour of France's great vineyards. You name it, the agent will do his level best to produce.

Using an agent, you're sure before you board the aircraft that everything will go right. What a load off your mind!

And how can you make the most of the travel agent's services?

At the very beginning, be as detailed and sure as possible of just what you want to do, where you want to go, what your requirements are, and what your budget is.

Switzerland: A Triumph of Man's Engineering Genius

It's Only a Few Hours to Amsterdam

EUROPEAN HOLIDAYS START HERE

Europe has so many good things to offer one doesn't know where to start enjoying them. But getting there is the most important thing, and the best way is on the DC-8 Empress jetliners of Canadian Pacific Airlines direct from Toronto.

You've quickly flown the night away and while you're still thinking about the marvels of jet travel and eating a superb breakfast, your veteran pilot is beginning the long descent into Amsterdam's dyke-protected Schipol Airport.

And, suddenly, you're in a new world, the Old World, and all those goodies are just waiting to be grabbed.

First, get oriented in your hotel. You're probably still thinking North American time so take it easy. Put on a stout pair of shoes and walk around. Amsterdam is a fine city to go walking in. But, mind! Watch those cyclists. There are 600,000 bicycles in this ancient and honorable city of a million, so naturally they're everywhere. Have lunch in a small cafe. They're everywhere, too. Look at the canals, and ponder that there are more here than in Venice, or anywhere.

You're probably sick to death of all that snow you saw all winter back home. Well, spring time is tulip time in Holland and if you're there in April and May you'll see a country literally smothered in color, acres of color from tulips, daffodils and hyacinths.

You can spend a few days in Holland without duplicating one experience, and Amsterdam is the starting point for many tours—flower tours, industrial ones, artistic jaunts, farm tours, fishing tours, diamond plant trips, the costume towns of Bunschoten and Spakenburg, the picturesque Vecht district, Zandvoort by the seaside.

And remember, Amsterdam is the city of Rembrandt, and his breathtaking Night Watch hangs in the Rijksmuseum, Holland's National Gallery. Don't miss it. You'll then understand genius.

When you've seen Amsterdam and visited the quiet peaceful Hague and Rotterdam, a great port, you're ready to move on.

Now you'll appreciate the value of using Amsterdam as your home base. Look at a map of Europe. No major city—British, Scandinavian, German, French, Italian, or behind the Iron Curtain, is more than a short hop away.

Hop across the channel to London. Enjoy that vibrant city, so lovely in the spring, so vital at all times. You won't see it all in a few days, nobody could, but you'll see a great deal if you organize your time. Parliament, Big Ben. A trip on the winding Thames. Westminster Abbey. Soho. The great department stores. The night clubs. The pubs that have been famous for centuries and the restaurants that have world-wide reputations. See the latest hit in a West End theatre. Who's at the Palladium? Stay an extra day and hire a car and drive slowly through the lovely English countryside, stopping at an ivy-draped inn for lunch. Then back in London, a bit of shopping, and you're off again, destination The Continent.

Scandinavia. You've wanted to eat yourself silly at a real smorgasbord. They'll let you try. Or just watch those hundreds of blonde beauties cycling home from work in the Stockholm dusk. Or just drive through the Danish countryside and see the incredible dairy herds. Or match drinks, aquavit for aquavit, with a Norwegian seaman in a dockside inn. Ooooh!

In Paris, you can go on a gourmet tour of Michelin-approved restaurants. Or you can eat in those little working-men's cafes catering to a small neighborhood clientele and eat like a king.

The thing about travelling in Europe is this: do what you want to do. They've been catering to tourists for a long time, centuries really, and nothing surprises them.

In France, if you want, try out your high school French. It might not get you by, but they'll appreciate it.

In most places in Europe, don't worry about the language. English is a second language in Holland and Scandinavia. Many Germans speak English, or French. English is spoken in all Europe's major cities by hotel employees, waiters, cabbies, guides, the people you will deal with.

Carnival Fun in Germany

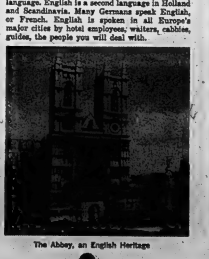
Unless you're on a ski tour, you'll probably be travelling in late spring, summer or early autumn. And remember, hundreds—thousands of other Canadians and Americans will be travelling too, plus millions of Europeans. That all adds up to a lot of people looking for hotel rooms, so it might be the wisest thing to see what your travel agent can do for you. Give him plenty of time.

However, some people like to take a chance. Good luck, but remember Europe isn't like Canada with a cluster of motels on the edge of each city and large town. There may be motel-style some day, but we hope not. We like the way they do things now.

And don't forget the trains and buses when you carry on to other cities of Europe. Few countries can surpass European countries for the efficiency and high frequency of surface travel, and the fares are low.

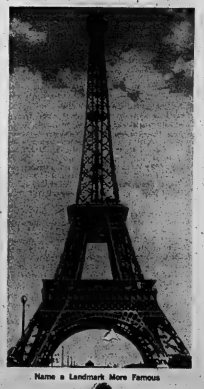
And, speaking of trips, why don't you take a cruise down the Rhine, that magnificent historic waterway of all Europe.

You've heard about tours. They've been around for a long time, and they have many advantages, especially for the first time traveller, or for the person or couple on a small budget. You can stretch your dollars on a tour, and the worry is taken out of travel. Nothing is left to chance.

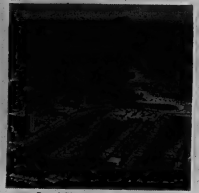


With a package tour, air fare, hotels, ground transportation, most meals, tips are usually included. And when you fly CPA, you can pay 10 per cent down and the rest on the installment plan. Very convenient. Why wait? Do it now.

The tour operators with their years of experience have put together dozens of tours from seven countries in six day to six month affairs. You choose what you want. Ask your travel agent. He's had years of experience assessing them, and he can probably come up quickly with one just for you. There's one there somewhere.



No one has ever found Europe dull, and you won't either. Try her now; she's at her best.



Turning Slowly, Useful Still

The Abbey, an English Heritage

Name a Landmark More Famous

Famed Diamond Head, Honolulu

Try a Change of Place -- HAWAII

Think of Hawaii and what comes to mind, after palm trees and hulas and sunshine?

Aloha? That's right. It's the Hawaiian's word for love, for friendship, and you'll hear it spoken from the moment you arrive on your Canadian Pacific Airlines' DC-8 jetliner.

Thousands of Canadians every year have found that Aloha has a special meaning, for Canadians are genuinely liked in the Hawaiian Islands and there's no doubt that Canadians like the islands! Five and a half hours flying west of Vancouver —your continuing point from CPA's jet service from Eastern Canada—is these warm, ever-green islands, waiting for carefree vacationers.

There is so much to see, and something for everyone.

Many prefer to stay close to downtown Honolulu and Waikiki with its crescent beaches and ultra-modest hotels and the nightclubs and famous restaurants close by, spending the long days sunning, perhaps a bit of surfing, or just watching the big white clouds drift along the horizon, letting the world go by.

Or you can move further out, where it is quieter,

The Warm, Soft Surf of Waikiki

or over to the Windward side of the island—remember, there are about 150 hotels on the Island of Oahu—and seek a slower pace.

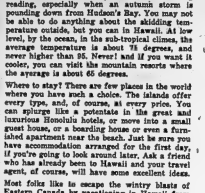
But the Hawaiians have an expression: "Aole oe i noho a ike ia Hawaii" which means "You've never lived until you've seen all of Hawaii." So?

Well, after best-known Oahu, there is the Island of Hawaii, the largest, and everybody calls it The Big Island. It is coming up fast in the vacation race, and has many fine resorts and a way of life, slow and easy, which is like the Honolulu of 30 years ago. You'll like this island.

Maui is called the Garden Isle, and it too is quiet and restful, another place to get away from it all, but while you're there, be sure to visit Haleakala, the world's largest (but dormant) volcano. Kauai is called the Garden Isle, and for excellent reasons as it is a lush tropical wonderland, streaked by magnificently rugged canyons and large ranches on the uplands. And, finally, Molokai, quiet, native and tropical, and another stay-away-and-forget-your-cares island which has hardly been touched by tourism.

Hawaii, Where the Living is Easy

Hawaii's weather statistics make fascinating reading, especially when an autumn storm is pounding down from Hudson's Bay. You may not be able to do anything about the skidding temperature outside, but you can in Hawaii. At low level, by the ocean, in the sub-tropical climes, the average temperature is about 75 degrees, and never higher than 85. Never! and if you want it cooler, you can visit the mountain resorts where the average is about 65 degrees.



Where to stay? There are few places in the world where you have such a choice. The islands offer every type, and, of course, at every price. You can splurge like a potentate in the great and luxurious Honolulu hotels, or move into a small guest house, or a boarding house or even a furnished apartment near the beach. Just be sure you have accommodation arranged for the first day, if you're going to look around later, Ask a friend who has already been to Hawaii and your travel agent, of course, will have some excellent ideas.

Most folks like to escape the wintry blasts of Eastern Canada by vacationing in Hawaii from October to March, but more and more are going in the summer months now. In Hawaii there's plenty of year round recreation. Surfing, yes, but be sure you're a good swimmer. Plenty of places to spear fish, and good deep sea fishing for the big battlers, and sailing, of course. Golf courses aplenty, and trails for hiking and horseback riding. Tennis. Bowling. Golf, of course.

There's plenty of free entertainment. For instance an outstanding offering is at the International Market Center, in the heart of Waikiki, where every night at 7 you'll see authentic dancing, music, drumming and South Seas costumes.

If you're at a hotel that gives free hula lessons, sign up. Once you get into the swing of it, the rest is pure fun.

The thing to remember, above all, is that Hawaii is for your enjoyment.

And Mexico, Ole!

Mexico introduces herself to the traveller in many ways.

Great boulevards, towering modern hotels, blocks of the smartest shops and restaurants, the gleaming bustle of traffic, a cosmopolitan atmosphere that few of the world's cities can approach—can this really be Mexico City?

It is, one of the great cities of the world, nearly six million people, and with everything to offer the visitor.

And what Mexico City does not have, the rugged beautiful and fascinating countryside offers — from its growing resorts on the thousands of miles of seacoast to its tropical cities of Yucatan to its centuries-old cities tucked away among the multiplicity of mountain ranges.

This is the Mexico waiting the tourist, and it is only about five hours by Canadian Pacific Airlines' jetliners from Eastern Canada.

Here, five of the ancient civilizations of the Americas once flourished—Olmec, Mayan, Zapotec, Toltec and Aztec. Thousands of archeological sites are within a few kilometers of her cities and towns. The glorious antiquity at every hand is astonishing.

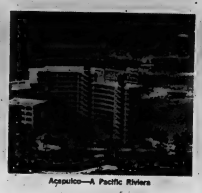
Take the great Aztec city of Teotihuacan, dating back at least 2,500 years. It is only a 46 minute drive from downtown Mexico City, but here before you are towering, terraced pyramids, carved temples and broad avenues, overwhelming evidence of a highly-developed race.

Language? Yes, it is a Spanish-speaking land, but, of course, employees in hotels and restaurants in the cities and big towns speak English.

If you hire a car and go off down the bumpy gravel roads away from the main highways into Old Mexico, ancient Mexico, sign language and smiles and your phrase book will probably get you by. But usually a priest or a school teacher or government official will show up and put you straight.

Transportation by bus is excellent, but always travel first class. It is fast and inexpensive. If you want an adventure, go second or third class. Train travel is as good as anywhere in North America. U-drives are obtainable in the major cities, and it is the best way to see the country.

Real Mexican food is hot, and hotter. If you don't like spicy food, eat in an Americanized restaurant or hotel dining room. Try a tortilla with chili peppers, beans, onions and rice. Or an enchilada with thick spicy tomato-chili sauce, grated cheese and onions.



You've heard of Acapulco? Well, that's the best known resort on the Pacific, but there are dozens more, on both coasts. Many are ridiculously inexpensive. There are also many lakes with resort hotels and mountain resorts, and spas, or you can rough it in some small city or big town, using the local hotel as a base to explore the country. Small fishing villages, where you can go native for two weeks at $5 a day for everything, are everywhere.

Why not visit the Yucatan peninsula, only being opened up for tourists now, but with fine hotels and resort services, at Merida?

Or drive up the long winding mountain highways, probably first built for silver mule trains by the Spanish conquerors in the sixteenth century. Turn off and stop at the old market towns of the valleys of central Mexico where life hasn't changed in decades, except for a juke box in the taverns and electric lights in the dusty plaza.

By all means, go see a bullfight. For no other reason than the Plaza de Mexico on a warm sunny Sunday afternoon in spring with 55,000 highly-knowledgable Mexicans judging the matador's work with the bull is a sight you'll never forget.

The CPA jetliner which carried you to Mexico flies further south on Canadian Pacific Airlines' South American schedule, completing a huge lop-sided square by visiting Lima, Peru, on south to Santiago, Chili, then across to cosmopolitan Buenos Aires before returning to Toronto.

To Canadians, South America is virtually unknown. Here is a chance to see part of it, using a Canadian flag carrier. Everything will be strange—language, foods, customs—but so they were in Mexico and the visitor has little difficulty there.

In Mexico, while its June-in-January for the Eastern Canadian visitor, it is more so in South America. The vast continent is also on the brink of great thing, and the visitor gets that feeling as he walks through the bustling cities.

The sportsman should remember that Peru has some of the world's finest deep sea fishing, and he can catch huge trout in Lake Titicaca, the highest lake in the world. Santiago in Chili has famous restaurants, and has more of a European atmosphere due to large numbers of English and German-speaking residents than other South American cities. Buenos Aires is attractive, colorful, modern, cosmopolitan and the starting point for many tours into the pampas, where quaint villages cling to their historic charm. In contrast, is the Mar del Plata, the long beach country, where about 1,500 hotels cater to South American sunlovers.

Every traveller returns from South America raving about Machu Picchu and acting as though he had discovered it. Well, not exactly, but it is probably that continent's Number One attractic, this ancient and mountainous fortress city of the Incan Empire.

Three hours by rail from the old Inca capital of Cuzco, this archeological wonder is perched high on a great rock between two high peaks and overlooks the Sacred Valley of the Urubamba River, 2,000 feet below.

The ruins, only discovered in 1911, contain magnificent temples, homes, sacrificial altars, one vast monument to the Incan builders' art.

In South America, a whole new set of experiences are waiting for you.

Vamos! Let's Go! What are we waiting for?

Been Down Under, Mate?

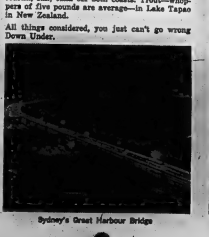
They've been Down Under a long time, off the main tourist track, but the tremendous varieties offered by Australia and New Zealand are only now being discovered by travellers.

These two Commonwealth nations are now less than a day away from North America.

The first thing you'll notice—you can't miss it—is the friendliness of Australians and New Zealanders. He not as much that you're a Canadian, or from a Commonwealth nation. It's because they are just glad to meet visitors, happy that you're touring their countries and enjoying yourself. They really go out of their way to make your stay a better one. Don't be hardly known. So what else can you expect as a first-time visitor flying from Toronto on Canadian Pacific Airlines, via Vancouver, Honolulu and Fiji?

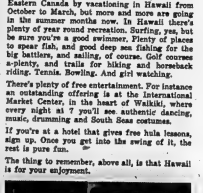
Let's take Australia first. Here is a vast land, a continent almost as large as the mainland United States. It has large and progressive cities, literally hundreds of miles of beaches, snowy mountain ranges if you're an alpinist or hiker or skier, and those vast, empty areas hardly known lands of the Interior, sheep stations of thousands of square miles, the Great Barrier Reef for hundreds of miles along the south shore, the lushly tropical lands of the north around Darwin.

All these natural splendors, and the cities are wedded together by a first-class system of highways ,railroads and internal air routes, although the traveller with sufficient time should hire a car, and visit the off-the-track wonders. For instance, on the west coast north of the city of Perth is Fifty-Mile Beach. Yes, it is about 50 miles of perfect beach, and virtually untouched, a paradise for fishing, boating, surfing, exploring. Think of camping for a week there!



Australia's cities are varied. Sydney has 2,700,000 inhabitants, and it has a swinging hustle and an amazing depth of cultural life, plus the cosmopolitan, bustling, ethnic Kings Cross area, like Soho or Greenwich Village. Melbourne, 2,000,000 people, is lovely, quiet, a city of parks and churches and, of course, the annual world-renowned Melbourne Cup horse race. Perth is free and-easy, western-style. Adelaide is quiet. Brisbane is free-and-easy, too.

Australia's major cities have an average of 5.5 hours of sunshine a day, and that's better than anywhere. Is the snow and ice getting you down? Well, remember, when it's winter in Canada it's summer in Australia and New Zealand.



New Zealand is considered by world travellers to have everything all in a mile-and-you-feel-good age—clean and quiet cities, miles of sandy beaches which they take for granted but which would be a priceless attraction anywhere else, rolling uplands dotted with sheep beyond count, tracts of man-planted forests of Douglas Fir, mountains sharp and clean and snow-capped, blue-green glaciers, lakes tucked among mountains, fiords, and a gentle people living an easy pace in an atmosphere not unlike England, with the same style and manner and graces.

If you're a fisherman or hunter, both countries have sport in abundance. Water buffalo crocodile, kangaroo, wild pig in Australia. Himalayan thar, chamois, deer in abundance in New Zealand. Marlin, sail, tuna off both coasts. Trout—whopers of five pounds are average—in Lake Tapao in New Zealand.

All things considered, you just can't go wrong Down Under.

The Complete Traveller

Every traveller must have a valid passport.

Canadian Pacific Airlines has a new service and any travel documents necessary to your trip can be obtained for you through any CPA office in Canada.

To ensure success of this service, CPA has based a Facilitation Representative in Ottawa who provides the company's offices with first-hand information on passports, visas and other travel documents.

Be sure and ask your CPA representative about this service.

If you are doing it yourself, passport applications can be obtained from any post office in Canada. Cost is $5, payable when you submit your application. Allow about two weeks for processing and return from Ottawa.

Important: your passport is valid for only five years, so make sure to renew yours if it has expired, or has nearly run out.

Some countries require visas; others don't, or waive them for short stopovers. Always arrange the necessary visas well in advance.

Every traveller needs a vaccination certificate (the yellow card) for overseas travelling. Phone your local health unit for information on free inoculation, or your family doctor.

Identification! You have your passport, which is sufficient for all situations. Also, keep your passport with you wherever you go. Don't leave it in your hand luggage or suitcase, or in your room.

Use traveller's cheques. The cost is small, and the advantages great. Convert to American dollars, for it is the one currency accepted everywhere. However, sterling naturally is best in Great Britain and just as good in Europe and Australia and New Zealand and Africa. If you lose a book of cheques, report it immediately to the nearest agent. As a precaution, diversify. If you're carrying $1,000, get one book of $250 in $10 cheques; another $250 in $20 cheques; and the rest in $5, $10 and $20 cheques. You might lose one book, but it is unlikely you'd lose three. Also carry about 30 American one dollar bills for tipping, cab fares, etc., at airports where you might not be able to convert to the currency of the country you've just reached.

There are three prevailing rates for hotels:

(1) EP means European Plan, giving you a room but no meals.

(2) AP means American Plan giving you a room and three meals a day.

(3) MAP means Modified American Plan giving you a room and breakfast each day, plus your choice of lunch or dinner.

The traveller wants brief, unadorned factual information about each country he is to visit, and Canadian Pacific Airlines' Mini-Guides are just the thing!

Mini-Guides are tiny, fact-filled 32-page booklets, only 3½ inches by 4 inches, and they cover most of CPA's overseas destinations in Amsterdam, Rome, Madrid, Lisbon, Mexico City, Tokyo and Hong Kong.

And they're free! Just ask your CPA agent, or travel agent. Using Mini-Guides, the traveller can find diagrams of airport terminals, information on the weather, climate; temperature, time zones, language, and what to wear, currency details, exchange rates, plus the worst on tipping, equivalent clothing and shoe sizes for adults, teenagers and children and conversion tables for metric measurement.

You'll also find hotels and restaurants listed with rates and prices for all budgets, and a city map pinpoints major hotels, restaurants, scenic and historic points, museums, art galleries, churches, theatres and concert halls. There's also information on sports to be seen, taxis and tours, holidays, medical and hospital services, postage and cable rates, banks, car rental agencies and embassies—everything the traveller needs to know.

More and more parents are taking their children with them on CPA international flights.

Babies and their parents may be pre-boarded upon request, and flight cradles are available. The stewardess has a supply of diapers and other necessary baby wear which is available.

18-mile Stretch Of County Road Now Highway

Hastings county yesterday gained an 18-mile stretch of provincial highway and at the same time got rid of an equal mileage of county road which for years had been a bone of contention.

Before a shivering crowd of county councillors, highway officials, members of the public and pupils of Frankford public school, Ontario Highways minister, Hon. Charles C. McNaughton officially accepted the Foxboro Madoc county road as a provincial highway.

Fast falling snow almost obliterated the scene as county warden Clayton Hall teamed up with Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West and Clarke T. Rollins, Hastings East, cut the official ribbon.

Mr. McNaughton was scheduled to do the ribbon cutting but instead turned the tables and "held" the ribbon while the pair plated shears in other hands did the work.

"This is something like Indian giving," noted the highways minister.

"The highways department only a short time ago built the road back to the county after having completely rebuilt the highway under the development road program. Cost of the reconstruction, excluding the re-paved right of way was approximately $2,100,000."

"But we (the highways department) are just as happy to receive the road back as Hastings residents are to see it being turned over," he assured. After the official ceremony

Budget Takes Pasting

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp's budget took a predictable pasting Friday and became the vehicle for two votes of non-confidence the minority Liberal government will face after the Easter recess.

The Creditistes said as the budget debate opened they will support non-confidence motions by the Conservative and New Democratic parties.

This leaves the 131-member government again depending on the five Social Credit members in the 265-seat Commons.

The House is expected to recess Wednesday and return April 18. The budget debate continues sometime after that date.

Debate on a resolution to abolish capital punishment will resume Monday and is expected to end Tuesday with a free vote.

Mr. Sharp's budget, brought down Tuesday night, drew the fire of 11 ministers here come to expect.

DEAD END BUDGET

Conservative spokesman J. Waldo Monteith (Perth) termed it a "dead end budget" without goals or direction.

NDP critic Colin Cameron (Stanley—Cowichan — The Islands) said it was grey, cautious and lacked the "panache" Walter Gordon injected into his budget last year.

The Conservative motion said the government had failed to deal constructively and effectively with major national problems.

Policies were needed to "increase productivity, stimulate export trade, to meet the serious and increasing imbalance of international payments, to maintain full employment, to promote orderly and equitable development and expansion in all areas."

The NDP motion added the government had failed to meet the needs of taxpayers by providing for exemptions of $1,500 for the single, up from $1,000, and $3,000 for the married, up from $2,000, as well as a guaranteed annual income for those with incomes below the minimum tax level.

Two Adults and Seven Children Perish in Fire on Indian Reserve

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP)—Nine people died in a fire here early today.

Provincial police said the dead included two adults and seven children.

The fire broke out in the home of Joseph Judge on the Parry Sound Indian reserve.

Three other children were rescued by nurses, police said.

Other details were scanty.

Mrs. King, first name not known, believed to be grandmother to some of the children and Mrs. Judge were believed taken to hospital in Toronto suffering from burns.

Police said the children were from two families.

Pilots Get Big Hike In Pay

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases ranging from $300 to $3,000 a year for RCAF, RAF and army pilots, effective Feb. 1, were announced Friday by the defence department.

The largest increase will go to flight lieutenants or equivalent—navy lieutenant or army captain—with 16 years' service. Total monthly pay and allowances for a married flight lieutenant with 16 years' service now will be $1,200 instead of $833.

The increases will cost the department an estimated $3,650,000 annually.

At the same time, the department will save $8,000,000 annually by cancelling the so-called proficiency flying program under which pilots maintained their flying skills—and entitlements.

U.S. Will Next Month Free Two Sentenced as Red Spies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Biochemist Harry Gold and onetime foreign service officer Irvin C. Scarbeck, sentenced to long prison terms for passing U.S. secrets to Communist countries, have been ordered freed on parole next month.

The federal board of parole Friday granted them freedom—Scarbeck May 2, Gold May 18—from the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Gold, 55, a native of Switzerland, received a 30-year sentence Dec. 9, 1950, after he was convicted of conspiring with Klaus Fuchs and others to deliver U.S. defence secrets to Russia from 1943 to 1947. He will remain under parole until July, 1980.

Scarbeck, 45, a Brooklyn, N.Y., native, is serving three concurrent 10 - year terms for providing classified documents to the Polish security police while he was serving as second secretary to the U.S. embassy in Warsaw. He has been in prison for 4½ years and will remain under parole supervision until February, 1973.

Omemee's Police Chief Said Paid $1.50 for Each Conviction

TORONTO (CP)—R. P. Millgan, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, said Friday a report will be ready late next week on an investigation into the village of Omemee's chief of police paying his police chief $1.50 for each charge that brought a conviction.

Mr. Millgan said the investigation was ordered after he learned that Police Chief Roland Crandell was receiving $1.50 for convictions in addition to his annual salary of $7,000. Complaints of the arrangements were registered by several Lindsay, Ont., lawyers who called for immediate investigation by the attorney-general's department.

Max Free, reeve of Omemee, a village of 850 people midway between Peterborough and Lindsay, said the practice began in 1953 with the hiring of former Omemee police chief James Wheatham, who resigned last year after council refused to increase his $3,300-a-year salary.

The reeve said the payments are made quarterly out of regular village funds, and are not related directly to revenue from fines which are handled by Victoria County. He said Chief Crandell had not submitted a statement since assuming his duties last December "so I don't know the many convictions he has had."

Men Plucked From Lifeboats By Helicopters

HALIFAX (CP) — Fourteen men escaped Friday when fire ravaged the trawler Karen B. about 100 miles east of here.

The men were plucked from lifeboats by two navy helicopters. After a short stay in hospital at nearby Shearwater Naval Air Station, they left for their homes.

The burned-out hulk of the 331-ton vessel was taken in tow late Friday night by the tug Foundation Vigilant, expected to reach here today.

Red Parley Told of New Defences

MOSCOW (AP)—The text of a speech by the Soviet defence minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, published today, shows the Soviet armed forces have concentrated during the last six years on building intercontinental nuclear missiles and nuclear submarines.

But the completion of a new, mysterious "blue belt" defence system, disclosed in his speech Friday, remains unexplained in the text.

Malinovsky spoke to 6,000 delegates at the 23rd congress of the Soviet Communist party. Non - Communist correspondents have been barred from the congress and forced to rely on accounts by Soviet news media.

The brief reference to the "blue belt" came when Malinovsky told delegates:

"We quietly and confidently stand on guard over the peaceful labor of our people, all the more now that there has been the creation of the blue belt of defence of our state."

The remark came before a section which said Soviet rockets could destroy any aggressors. This implied that the blue belt system included a kind of rocket defence.

At another point Malinovsky said the Soviet system of air defence would "ensure the reliable defence of our cities, plants and many rockets of the adversary."

This indicated the anti-missile system under development still had a long way to go before it could ensure full protection against rocket attack.

In his discussion of strategic matters, Malinovsky stressed that "a great number of new and specially important missile launching installations" have been put into operation in "a short period of time."

These devices were known in the military parade through Red Square last Nov. 7.

Malinovsky also claimed the buildup of the Soviet nuclear submarine fleet and the recently completed round - the - world cruise of Soviet nuclear submarines underscore. The United States completed such a cruise with the Triton in 1960.

The defence minister said the Soviet Union had built new rocket ships and means of antisubmarine defence which could be used "against rocket submarines of the aggressors." This remark apparently referred to U.S. submarines carrying Polaris missiles.

Malinovsky's text quoted no figures on the strength of Soviet nuclear stockpiles or rocket forces.

Oppose Viet Nam Regime

SAIGON (Reuters) — Opponents of South Viet Nam's military government today staged a show of force in the northern city of Hue, parading some 8,000 troops, police and civil servants through the streets, reports reaching Saigon said.

The march was led by a government information service broadcasting van and the band of the South Vietnamese army's 1st Division, reliable sources said here.

Banners seen in the parade said: "We only fight against communism—not for Thieu and Ky" and "The directory can no longer command, so it must be abolished."

Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state, and Air Vice-Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, the prime minister, are the leading members of the ruling "directory," which consists of 10 generals in all.

Among the marchers in Hue, 600 miles north of Saigon, were about 3,000 army and regional militia troops, 1,000 police and 600 civil servants, the sources said.

Speakers told the marchers they would crush the government was dictatorial and the army and police would not blindly follow orders, the reports said.

The demonstration remained orderly and no incidents were reported.

U.S. Rail Strike Hits Trade

CHICAGO (AP)—The biggest and most damaging rail strike in 20 years markedly slowed the pulse of U.S. commerce today. It had made idle thousands of workers, delayed mail, halted food shipments and caused slowdowns in industrial production.

An Associated Press survey indicated that at least 200,000 workers were either out of work or had received layoff notices.

The automotive industry was hard hit. More than 100,000 workers were reported laid off as Ford, General Motors and Chrysler closed seven plants Friday and put 10 more on short shifts. A GM spokesman reported that 60,300 workers had been affected.

Ford cancelled planned overtime work Saturday at five assembly plants and a company spokesman said all assembly and stamping plants would have to be closed if the strike continued during the weekend.

The strike hit at lumbermills, grain handlers, the aluminum industry and chemical firms in Oregon and Washington, especially those served by the Union Pacific Railroad.

Even if Subpoenaed PCs May Not Testify in Munsinger Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Reliable sources say Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and other members of his cabinet will not testify before the Spence royal commission inquiry into Mrs. Munsinger affair if subpoenaed.

Mr. Diefenbaker has already said publicly the Conservatives do not accept the terms of reference of the inquiry, set up in the wake of sex-and-security charges in the Commons and at a press conference by Justice Minister Cardin.

Conservative sources say that as a former prime minister and former cabinet ministers, Mr. Diefenbaker and his colleagues intend to refuse to testify, partly on the ground of their oaths as privy councillors. The Privy Council comprises mainly cabinet ministers and former cabinet ministers.

The sources believes them to keep secret cabinet proceedings and their actions in government matters.

The argument is that only Parliament itself could release them from this oath and the inquiry was set up by the Liberal cabinet, not by Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons March 14:

"We in Her Majesty's loyal Opposition do not intend to accept the finality of the terms of reference, which in our opinion were not so framed as to place before the judge the allegations which were made in the House and in respect of which the judge is to make inquiries."

The inquiry is to be conducted by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

Mr. Justice Spence call on him to determine, as a result of his inquiry, whether "there were circumstances which may have constituted a risk to the security of Canada" and whether "the case was not properly handled."

One Conservative objection to the terms of reference is that Mr. Cardin's statement that there was a security risk came out in the terms of reference as "may have constituted" a security risk.

Prime Minister Pearson refused to agree to Opposition efforts to have the terms of reference modified to meet this and other objections.

Mr. Diefenbaker has suggested he is a particular target since Mr. Cardin said the former prime minister mishandled the case by failing to refer it for legal advice to the justice department's law officers.

Hellyer Said Staking Political Future on Recent Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP)—The big test of Defence Minister Hellyer's policies is expected this year.

On the outcome may hang the political future of the 43-year-old minister who has made it as plain as he can, without a formal announcement, that he intends to run for the Liberal leadership when Prime Minister Pearson retires.

Friday, the defence department announced increased pay for pilots. The longer a pilot's experience, the bigger the increase.

In effect, Mr. Hellyer characterized the old concept of equal pay for equal rank. A pilot with the rank of flight lieutenant now will make more money than an officer three ranks above him.

Mr. Hellyer has thus laid down the principle that armed forces pay will be based on skill, not rank. Previously, getting a promotion has long been the only means of obtaining a pay increase.

The effect of morale among navigators, radio officers and other members of aircrew is expected to be upsetting.

On the other hand, the effect may be helpful for technicians unable to get more pay because the promotion road was blocked by people in superior ranks being filled.

Few, if any, members of the armed forces appear opposed to the policy of integration, set in motion in mid-1964.

But there have been strong objections to some methods used. Mr. Hellyer himself concedes there were mistakes.

To what degree these mistakes have caused the exodus from the armed forces isn't known. But in the 18 months up to the end of January an average of 600 men left the armed forces every month.

The exodus was halved in February with the announcement of $200-a-year re-enlistment bonuses. But the drain may not be halted, informants say, until manpower strength is down to some 100,000 or 23,000 fewer than when Mr. Hellyer took over the defence portfolio. A reduction of 110,000 was intentional. The rest isn't.

Some officers fear the loss of trained men will result in a slump in high maintenance standards and, consequently in efficiency.

This question represents a big test of Mr. Hellyer's policies.

Another test is in the management of defence department

Wilson Expected To Reshuffle His Cabinet As First Major Move Next Week

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson, swept back into office on the biggest Labor party election victory in 20 years, today started a quiet weekend—with a reshuffle of his cabinet expected as his first major move next week.

With only one result from Thursday's election still outstanding, the over-all Labor majority in the 630-seat House of Commons stood at 98. That did not include the Labor Speaker, Horace King, or the lone Republican Labor member from Northern Ireland.

The remaining seat, in Scotland, was expected to go to the opposition Conservative party, leaving Labor's margin at 97. It had a margin of only three in the last Parliament.

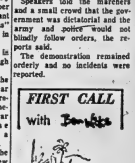
There was a speculation Wilson may retire some old Labor party warhorses to the House of Lords to make room for younger men. No names were mentioned.

Whatever changes Wilson decides on will have to be made Commons were: Labor 363 seats, quickly. Parliament opens April 21 and ministers must draw up a legislative program.

This is expected to contain some tough measures. James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, already is shaping an annual budget for presentation early in May.

It is expected to be the most rugged since the Second World War with prospects of high taxes and a variety of measures to galvanize industry and boost output.

With one result still to come, the party standings in the new 4 gain of 48; Conservatives 252, loss of 51; Liberals 12, gain of 2; Irish Republican Labor 1, up 1. The non-voting Speaker was re-elected.



The only outstanding result will be declared today from the Scottish district of Argyll, considered a certainty for the Conservatives.

One of the last results reported was re-election of Jo Grimond, Liberal party leader, from the remote Shetland and Orkney Islands.

The crushing Conservative defeat may bring on a struggle for the party leadership, now held by Edward Heath, but he is expected to hold off any challenge.

Heath said one of the reasons for his party's defeat was that Wilson's government had only 17 months in office and the electorate believed it should be given a longer trial.

Collectors Welcome Inflation

Inflation is a word that does not worry collectors. And Hugh Boody, of 37 Alexander Street, Belleville, is no exception.

Boody, who works at Corbys, has one of the largest collections of regimental insignia in the country. And the more badges he can accumulate the better.

As an exhibitor at the Science Fair and Hobby Show in the Armouries, he has a selection of his aggregate of some 2,500 badges. Since last year he has added about 500 badges and still averages about two new ones a day.

He has contacts all over the country and they exchange badges regularly.

At the same stand, and sharing the limelight with Boody, are Jerry Jenkinson, who has a display of firearms, and Cecil Rinner, whose specialty is medals.

Two Trenton Boys Capture Championship at Science Fair

Trenton High School students Brian Donnesy and Brian Phillips walked off with the grand championship prize at the Belleville Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show yesterday.

They won it with their exhibit on the raising of hamsters to illustrate the relationship between environment and the learning faculty.

The Trenton boys will represent this area at the national science fair in Windsor.

Three runners-up for the grand prize will also exhibit at Windsor. They are Bob Reid of Belleville Collegiate, Gail Nicholls of Quinte secondary school and Peter Brickwood of Belleville Collegiate.

Class winners in the Science Fair were:

Electronics and chemistry, 1. Carol Sweetnam and Anne Cronk, BCI; 2. Bruce Devine, Moira secondary school; 3. Mee Kin Seto, BCI.

Agriculture, botany and synthetic design: 1. Bob Reid, BCI; 2. Lee Scrimshaw, QSS; 3. Doug Williamson and Ted Fort, BCI.

Zoology and health: 1. Brian Donnesy and Brian Phillips, Trenton high school; 2. Gail Nichols, QSS; 3. Chris Stock, BCI.

Geography: 1. Jerry Blackwell, MSS; 2. Addie Bell, MSS; 3. Doug McEwen and Don Lomas, MSS.

General physics, nuclear science and mathematics: 1. Peter Brickwood, BCI; 2. Pat Finnegan, MSS; 3. Brian Young and Douggas Miles, BCI.

Novice prizes were awarded this year for the first time. They went to Robert Smith, BCI; John Hutchings, Brighton; Albert Workman, Trenton; Margaret Sinclair, BCI; Janice Blake, BCI; Douglas Wilson and David Nemirovsky.

Scale models of two early means of of transportation—a 65 h.p. Case steam engine and a coal-fired locomotive of the New York Central, exhibited by F. C. Gelsthorpe of Belleville at the Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show at the Armouries here.

THE NORTHERN ELECTRIC CO. exhibit at the Rotary Science Fair is attracting considerable attention. The advanced devices division of the company, in Ottawa, has shown, by means of large colored transparencies, various phases in the manufacture of solid state electronic components. To most visitors, the exhibit seems tied more to space age designs than to the ordinary telephone. However sample units designed and made at the local Northern plan can be examined. Literature is also available outlining the company's extensive facilities and the development made possible by its 18,000 employees in five Ontario and three Quebec plants. In the above picture, at extreme left, Mr. K. D. H. Wildrocks listens while Mr. T. Davidson, manager of the local plant, explains the manufacture of micro-miniature electronic components to Mr. J. Burnham, president of the Belleville Rotary Club. On the right Mr. F. Deacon, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. C. Daughary examine complicated telephone circuitry.

Bell Expects 'Picturephone' in Five Years

A Bell Telephone representative said yesterday he believed the company's new picturephone will be marketable in about five years' time.

"It is still in the experimental stage," said Paul O'Connell, "but who knows, with the speed things are moving these days we might have it on the market sooner than anticipated."

Mr. O'Connell suggested that the picturephone (which combines a telephone with television screening of the parties conversing) would be available one day at the cost of a monthly telephone rental of about $10.

While he spoke children queued up for their turn in the booths at the Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show at the Armouries.

"Some of them have been in and out about 30 times," quipped Mr. O'Connell. But the youngsters seemed reluctant to look at their own image on the screen, preferring to hug the phone, press the buttons and give an occasional shy glance at each other in the neighboring booths.

"It will be a boon to people who are deaf," said Mr. O'Connell. "They will be able to lip read."

IN MEMORIAM

KETCHESON, "Helen" — In loving memory of a dear friend who passed away April 2, 1965.
A page in the book of memory,
A place in the heart,
A friend we can't forget,
And make no outward show,
But what it meant to you,
No one will ever know.
—Sadly missed by friends Jim and Florence Lott and family, Dorreen, Joy, Guy Thompson and Dorreen.

POOTS — In loving memory of our beloved mother, Ruby Poots, who passed away April 2, 1962.
Mother left us to rest the load the one
Without the last goodbye,
A smile, a kind and lovely heart,
We keep on asking why.
—Sadly missed by her son Jack and daughter-in-law Jean and family.
In the path God has planned,
She walked and trust in Him.
And someday we'll understand
Dearest Mom, Joy Thompson and Ray, Kay and Sandy.

BENNETT — In loving memory of a dear wife, Clara, who passed away April 2, 1965.
Dear Mother left me one request,
How sweet their memory still.
To live and left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by husband Ray and family.

POOTS — In loving memory of Ruby Poots who passed away April 2, 1962.
Always smiling, happy and 'content,
Loved was my sister wherever she went.
To a beautiful life came a sudden end,
She died,
But she also lived, everyone's friend.
—Sadly missed by mother, Carrie, George and Kenneth Marshaw.

BIRTHS

MARACLE — Lloyd and Gloria are pleased to announce the arrival of a son, Douglas Evan, on Tuesday, March 29 [illegible] at Belleville General Hospital at 12 o'clock, weighing 6 lbs., 7 ozs.

Spring Session Concluded By Hastings County Council

Hastings county council wound up its annual spring session on Friday, the two and a half day session ending with a dinner meeting at the Tops Motor Hotel.

The morning session was taken up mainly with the third reading of by-laws setting the county tax rate.

Also during the morning session a by-law was passed setting up a secondary school administrative committee. Named to the committee were Reeves William Shannon of Marmora Village, Ernest Kells of Sidney township, and Gerald Caldwell of Cashel.

Prior to the session adjournment, Warden Clayton Hall welcomed Highways Minister Charles S. McNaughton to the council chambers.

Later council members proceeded to Foxboro . Madoc county road officials turned over to the highways department.

Pilots Get

ment to aircrew allowances while serving in ground jobs.

Aircrew allowances ranging from $75 to $150 a month will be cancelled for pilots but retained for navigators, radio officers and other members of aircrew.

HAVE 2,700 pilots

There are 2,735 pilots in the armed forces, including 837 in ground jobs. There are 2,264 RCAF pilots, 330 navy and 161 in the army.

The pay increases are designed to counter the "raids" for pilots on the RCAF and, to a much lesser extent, on the navy and army, being conducted by commercial airlines.

Recently, 110 flight lieutenants about to retire were offered two-year extensions.

Informed sources said the increases mean that in future armed forces pay will be based more on skills than on rank and be more closely aligned with pay scales on civvy street.

In other words, the principle of equal pay for equal work is being abandoned, although there had been some previous exceptions for medical officers, dentists and lawyers. A medical officer, for instance, can earn an extra $200 a month.

CHANGES PRACTICE

The defence department will change the long-time practice of pilots taking regular turns at ground jobs.

Pilots will keep flying instead of being posted to ground jobs duties for three- and four-year hitches. There will be some exceptions where pilot flying ability is essential in the ground job.

At some point in their careers, each pilot with ground duty will be given an opportunity to take ground jobs—at ground pay.

Increases for flight lieutenant rank, a graduated scale ranging—from $4,700 to $5,900, wing commanders $1,200.

The salary hike per increase, $300, is for flying officers newly qualified as pilots.

Highway Minister Has High Regard for the County System

Although he never actually served as a county councillor, Ontario Highways Minister Charles S. McNaughton has a high regard for the efficiency of the county council system.

Speaking at a luncheon reception at the Tops Motor Hotel attended Hastings county councillors and by area municipal officials Mr. McNaughton said yesterday that county councils had an important place in the over-all system of provincial government system.

"Those days we are hearing a great deal about regional government but still haven't discovered what it is — and some of its proponents haven't the foggiest idea either", he said.

He agreed that regional development had its place and said the province needed it, but said county council should remain as part of the over-all government set-up.

STANDS TO BENEFIT

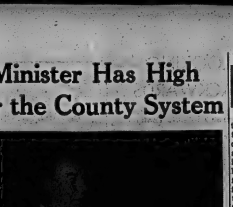
Mr. McNaughton said the province's highway improvement act had been virtually built around the county system.

The speaker referred to the county roads needs' study program recently carried out and said the province would to benefit considerably in having 115 roads brought up to standard.

He said it was only reasonable to review what had been done and then take a look into the future. This is the way to determine what the traffic requirements would be in five or ten years time.

The needs' study would help to determine as well as possible the equitable distribution of provincial funds, considering both the needs and the municipality's ability to pay.

LUNCHEON HELD



The luncheon was held following the ceremony at Foxboro, when the new $250,000 Quinte-Hastings county road officially taken into the Ontario highways system.

Attending the luncheon were members of Hastings county council, along with many of the area wardens.

Head table guests introduced were Treasurer Carl Beckman, included district MLA's and members of the county roads committee.

Two Ontario cabinet ministers Hon. Charles McNaughton and Hon. J. R. Simonett, minister of Industry and Resources, attended the luncheon with Hastings members Elmer Sandercock and Clarke T. Rollins, Russell Wilson, Belleville, Ross Berland and Keith Brown, Petersborough MLA. Aldern s.n Peter Deans represented Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis.

Warden Clayton Hall acted as chairman. Mr. McNaughton was introduced by Clarke Rollins and county appreciation was expressed by Reeve Chairman Clayton MacMurray.

Formal Approval Given Senior Citizens' Housing

OTTAWA — Approval of a $27-unit federal housing project for senior citizens, in the city of Belleville, Ontario has been announced today by Hon. John R. Nicholson, minister responsible to Parliament for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Hon. Stanley J. Randall, minister responsible to the Ontario Legislature for Ontario Housing Corporation.

The National Housing Act loan estimated at $302,500 will be for a period of 50 years at an interest rate of 5¾ per cent per annum and will cover 90 per cent of the cost of construction of the project. The Province of Ontario Housing Corporation Housing Corporation will provide the remaining 10 per cent of the cost.

One-half of any operating losses will be borne by CMHC 43½ per cent by OHC and the remaining 7½ per cent by the City of Belleville.

Ontario Housing Corporation will be responsible for construction of the project, which will consist of 27 units, some two-storey and some one-storey, both around a central courtyard and providing 22 bachelor and 15 one-bedroom units. The project will be located at the end of Turnbull Street.

Four Trumpet Students Win Festival Prizes

The bandmaster of Belleville's Salvation Army, Mr. Jack Green of Harriet St., was a proud teacher on Wednesday when four of his trumpet students entered in the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival and each won recognition for their talents.

Paul Scott, 12, of Belleville placed first in the competition for boys 13 and under with a score of 84 per cent, and then teamed with his cousin, 15-year-old Graham Brooks of Trenton, to win the trumpet duet for boys 15 and under. They were awarded a score of 80 per cent.

Martin Brown, 14, of Carrying Place captured two runner-up awards, one in the solo-trumpet competition open to all age groups (79 per cent), and the other in the 18 years and under trumpet or cornet solo (81 per cent). Fourteen-year-old Ricky Austin of Belleville came third in the 15 and younger solo trumpet class. A fifth pupil, Gary Chaplin of Belleville, was unable to accompany the others to the festival because of illness.

The four boys, all pupils of Mr. Green for several years, were accompanied on the piano by Mr. Alec Gordon of Belleville.

Behind the "Glass"

Tonight is "Award Night" at the Quinte Curling Club and after the festivities are over the doors will be closed and another successful curling season will go into the memory book. It has been an excellent year, some new talent discovered and a few surprises and upsets registered. There has been a lot of fun, good fellowship and camaraderie due to the passing of popular members and through it all the club has become closer knit and plans are already being laid for greater progress.

ANNOUNCES APPOINTMENT

MRS. MONA CHANDLER

W. J. McCormick, President of W. J. McCormick Realty Ltd. announced today the appointment of Mrs. Mona Chandler to their sales staff. Mrs. Chandler who lives at 10 Kingsway Court in the easterly section of Belleville, came here over a year ago from Toronto where she was transferred with Ontario Hydro.

Mrs. Chandler has qualified for her Real Estate License, and has completed the prescribed educational course mandatory for all members of the Ontario Real Estate Association. She welcomes your inquiries on all types of real estate and is eager to give you the same efficient and effective service for which the firm of W. J. McCormick Realty is noted.

Tonight is the annual meeting of the club when honors are passed out and the new executive elected for the 1966 season. Bob Bastable and his rink of Bangla I. Is in service at the Murray Mowat, "Huck" Ingram and Ken Buford won the Bill Gault trophy and the club championship, while another rink of Bill Downing-Neville Burroughs, Ken Hart and Al McCallam as skip won the Hugh Murray trophy as runners-up. The runners-up is the Caulfield trophy was a rink of Dan Pixley, Jim Durrant, Hal Emerson with Charlie Cox as skip, while Bill Henderson, Jack Robson, Jim Brentnell and Bill Gilmour as skip were runners-up in Murray cup competition.

In the mixed curling competition a rink of Mrs. Al Challand, Mrs. Wyn Maund with R. Bush as skip emerged as club champions, after they defeated a rink of Mrs. Dora Langlois, Mrs. Ken Hart and Miriam Graham with Dave Brown as skip. In all these competitions some splendid curling was witnessed and the best of comradeship prevailed.

In the women's section of the club the championship has also been decided and a rink of Mrs. Doris Pettitclerc, Mrs. Helen Henderson and Mrs. Flo Reaboe with Mrs. Anne Acton as skip are champions. They defeated a rink of Mrs. Betty Walmsley, Mrs. Theda Miller, Mrs. Connie Wallbridge and Mrs. Hazel Blair as skip for the high honors. The winner of the consolation event was Mrs. Ruby Cowley, Mrs. Marion Salisbury, Mrs. Leone Bateman with Mrs. Wyn Maund as skip and they defeated a rink of Mrs. Marion McGee, Mrs. Ilene Webster, Mrs. Jean Gerrard and Mrs. Gwen Sutton as skip for the honors.

A mixed curling bonspiel for the members was started early in the week and the finals will be held this evening with all the fun starts. Following closing of the rinks the trophies and awards for the year will be presented and a fine program of varied entertainment is planned and all this will be topped by a dance including a good old-fashioned country style supper. Before the guests depart a buffet luncheon will be served. Also of interest to curlers is the new TV set in the "if" room and then a new one will be purchased for next winter, as the crowd is expected for the closing of a most successful season.

Congratulations to a rink of Bill Shaknitz, Ed Lewis, Dave Brown and Murray Johnson in winning the Northern Electric bowling trophy. Other plants in Montreal recently, Toronto, Brantford and Montreal plants were represented in the spiel. Another rink from the local plant,

Fifty Patients Evacuated in $100,000 Fire

MARTAWA, Ont. (CP)—Firemen evacuated all 50 patients from the Matawa General Hospital here Friday night. A fire caused $100,000 damage to the top floor of the four-storey building.

Six patients said to be in serious condition were taken by ambulance to hospitals in Bay, 40 miles west. Another 32 were taken into nursing homes, the remainder were sent home.

(Entries from the diary of S. Wilson of the original survey of Belleville in 1816; notes by Tom Ransom O.L.S.)

Tuesday 2nd — Employed lotting out the North end of the Town Plot.

Wednesday 3rd. — Employed lotting out the North end of the Town Plot.

Note: The Town Lots being laid out in Belleville were to be granted first upon payment of certain fees, by those who had some claim of building or improvement on the land. The survey fee was 36 shillings per lot, and the "Land Granting Office's Fee" was 2 pounds, 12 shillings sterling.

The Council at York set the conditions of the grant. It ordered that "all persons receiving an Order-in-Council for a grant of a town lot in the Town of Mora shall build a stone, brick or frame house on the same within two years, not less than twenty-four feet long and eighteen feet wide, on failure of which the order to be null and void."

Margaret Simpson, Robert Smith and Simon McNabb received their Crown grants in 1816, a dozen others received their grants in 1817, and by 1820 over half the town lots had been granted.

By EULA GOELINE — 392-3928

TRENTON — Rev. David Mitton, the new pastor of Bethel Temple, will be officially inducted on Thursday evening, April 7.

Taking part in the induction ceremony will be Rev. R. A. Bombay, district superintendent for Pentecostal assemblies and Rev. James MacKnight, pastor of the Pentecostal in Belleville.

Rev. Mitton replaces Rev. Ronald Reid who recently was put in charge of founding a Pentecostal assembly at Ancaster.

PASS CIRCUIT VISIT

Rev. James Speerman of the Trenton United Church Pastoral Church accompanied Rev. C. Wesley Lovin, secretary of church extension and evangelism on a circuit visit of the Ottawa Valley churches and in Quebec, last week.

WILL PRESENT CANTATA

Junior, Intermediate and Senior choirs at King Street United Church will present a cantata, recalling the Resurrection, on Good Friday, starting at 8 p.m. The service theme is "Olivet to Calvary" and the music for the cantata was written by J. H. Maunder.

CAN GET DEDUCTION

The United Services Club Swimming Pool Committee has received confirmation from the Department of National Revenue that all donations towards the high school pool project will be considered as "charitable donations," for the purpose of income tax deductions. Receipts must be presented to the department at income tax time next year, if the donations are made after Jan. 1, this year.

BETTER PICTURE

The employment picture in Trenton is better than it was at this same time last year with 1,000 and 211 were registered for jobs on March 31, this year and 535 men and 344 women on the same date last year.

Unemployment for men has gone down since Feb. 28 of this year, when 588 men were looking for work, but the number of women registered was 309 on that date.

Member Named To 3 Committees

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

The role of the National Employment Service, in the well-being of the community is a close one, serving as it does, impartially and free of charge, both employers and those persons who are seeking employment. It is now recognized that its essential duty is to ensure, in co-operation with and liaison with other public and private bodies concerned, the best organization of the employment market as an integral part of the national program for the achievement of maximum employment and the development and use of productive resources.

Thus students, as prospective workers, come within the scope and interest of the National Employment Service. The local office is especially interested in passing along news of part-time and temporary jobs for students during the Easter examinations. In some cases students due to graduate polishing and finishing or applying drogging out of school.

The Public Employers of the Service, because of its up-to-date labor market information and its contacts with the business and industry, is very aware more so than any other agency of the occupational nature of vacated, trained and skilled workers in the Canada "at today and in the years ahead. A common theme heard throughout industry is that such and such a man or woman should be promoted to a supervisory position or to that highly skilled job but due to lack of education or training move is impossible.

"In knowledge slow - downs, employers make every effort to keep on their skilled and educated workers, at all times available workers will be on the payroll when business picks up. Thus the best way for young people to protect themselves against periodic lay-offs and job insecurity is to remain in school in order to obtain the maximum education or trade training within their capacities. Where further education they have, the better their chances, the wider the choice of good opportunities, and the more easily they can learn new things and improve their skills. Therefore, the local NES Office advises those attending school to obtain the maximum education within your capability — "do not under sell your potential".

JOBS OPEN

The following job opportunities represent a few of those now available at your local NES Office.

In the female division locally there are available employment opportunities for experienced typists having shorthand ability and possessing a grade 12 education. Married women are required for telephoning work. Applicants will be required to work on day and night shifts. A number of vacancies are still open for married women to work part-time as cashiers. A receptionist preferably between the age of 25 and 35 is required for a hairdressing establishment. Here some evening hours of work will be involved.

For out-of-town employment there are attractive vacancies for production plant workers, secretaries, air hostesses, a commercial artist and draftsmen.

In the male division locally, many local farmers are asking for farm help as the coming growing season is not too distant. Decidedly better wages and working conditions are being offered this year. Experienced farm hands are in short supply in the community.

Banking is an excellent career for the young man who, for some good reason, cannot continue to university for a formal degree in one of the professions. In addition to gaining invaluable experience in business methods, accounting and knowledge of human nature, a young man who has served several years with one of the chartered banks can achieve a status in the community that puts him on a level with business executives and the professional group. Most important, banking today offers attractive remuneration.

A manufacturer has an interesting opening in the office staff for a cost clerk. Young men interested in cost accounting, or obtaining a recognized course are invited to contact the NES office for more details.

There is a constant demand for experienced machinists for regular employment with industrial plants.

A fourth class stationary engineer is urgently needed by a Hastings County industry.

Out-of-town labor demands cover factory production work, and mechanical and electrical work, as well as many other attractive opportunities for the employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, contact the Belleville Employment Service Office at 324 Church St. Belleville, Ont., or telephone 962-9681.

Labor Wins in U.K.

To the surprise of nobody Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government has won a resounding victory in the British general election.

This decisive mandate,' said Mr. Wilson in a post-election statement, 'will give Britain greater authority in the world and above all in the search for international disarmament and an end to the Viet Nam war."

Both the mandate and Mr. Wilson's statement are most encouraging at this time of extreme difficulty in the affairs of the world.

The war in Viet Nam is one of the most perplexing conflicts of our time. It poses great dangers for the entire world, and even though Britain has been supporting the American position conservatively, it is hoped that they will enable Britain to exert its old influence in independent moves to bring both sides to the bargaining table.

All other considerations in the election have been subservient to this one overwhelming theme. While Britain faces many problems on the economic front it is satisfying to note that Labor intends to pursue its efforts toward achieving a greater international understanding.

In this task, the hostile attitude of Communist China is the big stumbling block. However, if anyone can make the Peking government come to terms with what it regards as American "imperialism" (conveniently ignoring its own imperialist tendencies) it is a Labor administration speaking from a position of strength in Britain.

Britain has long since recognized the Peking government, so that it is in a much better position than the world position it enjoyed with Peking than is the United States government which still recognizes only the Chinese nationalists in Formosa.

Much now will depend on Labor's performance. The Conservatives meanwhile have reached their lowest ebb in many years. Their leader, Edward Heath, has not measured up to Wilson in the manner anticipated and the party of the so-called Establishment must now look forward to years in the political wilderness.

The Conservatives nevertheless won 250 seats out of 630 and their voice has not been erased completely. This is just as well, for a government without at least this measure of opposition very quickly tends to veer toward arrogance and virtual dictatorship.

Britain's Trading Position

Now that the general election in Britain is over, the improvement of the country's trading position will be one of the main considerations of government policy.

British business has often been blamed for being slow off the mark, both with regard to salesmanship ,promotion and delivery. A letter to the Globe and Mail, however, points out how firms in this country may be partly to blame for Britain's poor trading position.

In this letter, Basford Beddish, of Rugby, England, says: "Will someone please tell me, an Englishman with many friends and many contacts in Canada, why it is that the majority of leading Canadian companies do not print their telephone and cable address and number, and (if they have one) their international telex number, on their notepaper? It would be a great help to their correspondents."

Meanwhile, a report from the Aims of Industry organization in Australia points out that British exports for January were $1,106 million, compared with imports of $1,402 million. This gave a trade deficit of $109.2 million, compared with a surplus of $4 million in December.

However, the report points out that Britain has received a number of important orders in recent weeks which should help redress the unfavorable balance. They include orders for a de-salting plant for Ecuador, three-masted cars for Holland, building bridges in Chile and communications equipment in the Middle East, and will swell Britain's coffers by several million dollars.

Voice of Authority

One thing that was badly lacking in the recent Commons debate on foreign policy issues in Canada was a sense of proportion and dignity. Members on both sides of the House got completely carried away.

There was no one with the solemnity and command of occasion and oratory to put the whole thing in perspective.

Just as Sir Winston Churchill did some years ago in the British Commons.

Reginald Bibby, commenting about the utterances of Dr. Hewlett Johnson, "The Red Dean" (of Canterbury), Sir Winston said: "I think we might easily get into depths beyond that we might wish to dabble in today by going further in this matter. Free speech carries with it the evil of all foolish, unpleasant and venomous things that are said, but on the whole we would rather lump them than do away with it."

How appropriate the above statement would have been if it had been made by an authoritative voice during the recent debate in Ottawa.

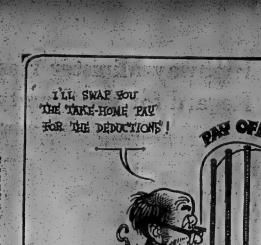
An Ottawa Personality

Montreal Gazette

Gratian O'Leary has accompanied his retirement as president of the Ottawa Valley Line, will retain the honorary post of Irish Ambassador.



But Gratian O'Leary is someone who can never really retire.

He tells of the days when a boy in Cague, when he read the Bible he was reading Matthew Arnold's poem "Sleepy Chapel," and Shakespeare's sonnets, Emily Bronte, Longfellow and H. R. Haggard.

But many people have read such books and never spoken with Gratian O'Leary. It is the O'Leary's eloquence. He brought to what he read the Irish skill with language, carrying how much truth lies in the saying: "Only the Irish can speak good English."

Gratian O'Leary once said that the tragedy of our times is that there seems to be all know-how and no know-why; all signposts and no destination. For the aim of life has been lost by men between the know-why, the know-the-wisdom and the destination.

"We need leaders," he has said, "trained in the humanities, trained in those moral and spiritual things that have been our stay in the past and which, inescapably, must be our stay in the future. Civilization is immeasurably more than superior plumbing."

Dear Dr. Molner: All my life I've had a morbid fear of choking to death. It has become such an obsession that I can't eat solid foods.

I am a young woman, but can't dine out with friends. I had a nervous breakdown over this and must take sedatives, but even swallowing them is agony. I also have severe attacks in which I can't catch my breath and my throat constricts terribly. Is there anything I can do to conquer this? — Miss D.

The power of mind over matter can be a terrible thing, and in some instances can do what it is doing to you.

I'm not one to say, "See a psychiatrist" at the drop of a hat.

However, in a situation like yours, Miss D., I most heartily hope that you are under such a specialist's care — and if you aren't, I strongly urge that you consult one.

There may be a serious question of whether your fear of choking caused your nervous breakdown. Rather, the fear is a symptom of some underlying emotional turmoil, which evidently started in childhood, but altogether likely that you do not consciously remember what started that emotional tension.

Medication alone isn't going to solve the problem. Rather, it is precisely the sort of condition for which we need psychiatrists: They dig out the deep and very likely unreasoning events or attitudes which now are making your life miserable.

This also appears to be the type of problem in which hypnosis may be effective. I cannot too you yet to let this be undertaken by someone with only a smattering of hypnotic skill.

This is not a matter of using hypnotism as an easy means of trying to change your mind so as to not be afraid of swallowing.

It is an attack on the problem all too often overlooked in converting the morbid fear into a different kind, and perhaps a worse one.

Rather, a psychiatrist may, (depending on his judgment of the case) use hypnosis as a tool to find out what is really bothering you, buried so deep in your subconscious mind that you are unable to recognize it without help.

Get the best help that is available. There is no point in a young woman's going through life burdened as you are. Finding the root of your fears may not be easy, but in the end it can transform your whole life.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 2-year-old daughter has had a sweet disposition until the other day when she was a baby, sort of a cough medicine smell. Could this account for the change in her?

A sweet, fruity odor is not unusual when a child has a fever, or may be somewhat dyspeptic. It may be due to acetone in the system, and can be corrected, in that case, by giving fluids and sugar (fruit juice would be an example).

Obstruction of the air passages, as nasal congestion, or large adenoids or tonsils, also may be a cause of this odor. Let your doctor check it out.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that a diabetic loses all appetite for sweets? — Mrs. Dissent O. I am in my 60's. — V. Y.

Not necessarily. Loss of polenta frequently occurs in diabetics of long standing, but not in all. At your age, the complaint is not unusual even in people who don't have diabetes.

Pravda Gets With It

Manchester Guardian Weekly

A great truth has dawned on Pravda — clothes interest women. For the first time, that reluctant newspaper published a woman's fashion story. And eight pictures of clothes. It must have been a triumphant moment for the Russians. Their revolution will soon be 50 years old and so far, apparently, their clothes have been beneath discussion. They must obviously have been wearing something since 1917, but they didn't care to talk about it. Not much anyway.

And when they did they spoke slightingly, on the whole, about the things they were being advised to wear. The more so because the notion seems to have been gaining ground that a Soviet citizen has a duty to look smarter or even (in the opinion of N. Lvov, writing last year in Soviet Moldavia) beautiful. The outward appearance of the builder of communism must correspond to his inner beauty and essence. Let our tailors and shoemakers keep that in mind." Mr. Lvov had been badly disappointed in the work of the Soroka Clothing Factory No. 4, the Dnigen Consumer Service Combine and a shoe factory called Benderi No. 3.

Krokodil joined in with a pointed inquiry as to why a provincial clothing store — the Belgorod Gorpromtorg — had ordered 150,000 rubles worth of black plush jackets. Nobody in their senses, said Krodil reasonably enough, would wear a black plush jacket. There is no accounting for the taste, though, in Russia or anywhere else. Last year, apparently, Russian men took to wearing massive evening suits.

British Exports

Ottawa Citizen

This country's business is run on North American lines. People have always had a high opinion of sentiment. British exporters have often been criticized for failing to take this into account. Too frequently have they appeared to take the attitude of expecting customers to take what is offered, instead of trying to tailor their products to what Canadians want to buy. For Britain, higher sales to this country have become a matter of priority. In 1963, the deficit with Canada amounted to two-thirds of the total British trade deficit, and despite prospective increases, the outlook for this year is no better.

"Tropical" Canada!

Quebec Chronicle - Telegraph

Physicists already have a general idea of the atmosphere on the sun warms the earth's surface. Carbon dioxide, water vapour and other atmospheric constituents let short-wave solar rays through but absorb and retain but they block the rise of longer wave-reflected heat. In this process carbon dioxide is especially efficient.

According to the weatherman, the earth's surface temperature has risen perceptibly during the 20th century. This they attribute to the increasing amount of carbon dioxide, generated by such man-made activities as fires. Some scientists believe this may eventually turn the earth into a tropical planet.

Twilight of The Gaels

Christian Science Monitor

The famous Celtic twilight grows dimmer. Latest word from those western outposts of the British Isles where Celtic is still spoken tells us that the tongues of Brian Boru, Robert the Bruce, and Owen Glendower are not holding their own against the speech of Hengist and Horsa. In short, the native languages of Ireland, Scotland and Wales are still being outclowned in the vast sea of English like Celtic-speaking King Arthur's brand Excalibur in the misty mere.

Much is heard of this slow but steady retreat of the Gaelic in Ireland and the Welsh in Wales. Notwithstanding struggles as doughty as any fought by Cuchulain of the Hundred battles, the Irish Government has not succeeded in stemming the gradual sobbing of the Gaelic-speaking portion of the population. This is due not only to the demands of modern life, wherein English plays so vital a role, but also to the economically unattractive conditions of the Gaeltacht, the Irish-speaking areas of Donegal, Galway, and Mayo.

Although Welsh is still more strongly clung to among its kin than is Irish, its supporters are deeply concerned. The 1961 census showed that hardly more than one out of every four Welshmen spoke his mother-tongue. This was a sharp decline over the 1951 figure.

But far worse off than either Irish or Welsh is the Gaelic of Scotland. This same 1961 census showed that only 81,000 persons could speak the tongue which a century or so ago rang the length and breadth of the Highlands. Furthermore, between 1951 and 1961 the number of such speakers dropped by 14,000 — a sharp decline over the one preceding. This was a sharp decline over the 1951 figure.

Re-all three lands the number of persons who speak the home tongue alone is small (in Scotland less than a thousand of the Gaelic-speakers did not also know English).

We know that there is much to be said for linguistic oneness. It is one of the avenues of better understanding among peoples and lands. But there is also something touching about the slow drowning of a language so intimately bound to the history of many a valiant and often tragic nations. Surely, it is no disgrace to mighty England to sympathize with the efforts of Irishman, Scot, and Welshman to preserve their ancient tongues.

An Untidy Arrangement Gives Way To Efficiency

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — When piano-spoken Agriculture Minister J. Alfred Gregoire looks around these days, it must make his head swim just a bit to realize what a difference four months and a title on the door makes.

There he was, just before the turn of the New Year, a Beckbench Liberal MP, sharing a single small office and his antiquated equipment with one secretary.

When he had a visitor whose business might be confidential, his secretary had to step out into the hall to take still another in an almost unending daily succession of coffee breaks.

And presumably, if and when her boy-friend called, the gallant Gregoire, with courteous cooperation took his turn patrolling the hall while they traded sweet nothings over the phone.

Joe-Joe, as the whole House knew him, thought it a bit of an untidy arrangement, not to mention nonessentially inefficient, and so, characteristically, said so.

At the going rate of an annual $18,000, as MP, said Joe - Joe, was supposed to be an executive in the public service. Or so said Prime Minister Pearson who a re-be pumped the boys that extra $6.00 three years ago and tossed in the fabulous fringe benefits like that weekly Air Canada pass anywhere and back and those free cabin calls.

GURGLING GIRLS

Executives indeed, laughed Joe-Joe, what self-respecting executive in private industry it would dream of having to lug his own dictatape to work. And what executive at Bieler, Inco, GM or the Government's own CBC would share an office with a clubfooted with a secretary who had to dash out to the coffee-room and down the hall to the cafeteria every time her boss wanted a private moment on the phone or with a visitor.

Just to make sure that everybody got the message, Joe-Joe observed that the Government stenos had to kill so much gurgling-time over coffee that offices over coffee in the cafeterias that they gurgled when they walked by them.

And because the Hon. J. J. Greene, Minister of Agriculture, was

And there was the Irish-accented "Boy from the Ottawa Valley," as he calls himself, entirely of a two-man line office to himself, sporting a mid Ministerial splendor.

Gone was the beaten-up old typewriter and the secretary has been salvaged from Sir John A. Macdonald's day for his office. In its place, a busy bank of electrics.

And the secretary now has an office all to herself, a male secretary, a messenger and an office boy to run interference for her.

Offices for the Hon. J. J. now come en suite, one in the Confederation Building with three rooms, a staff of six, three rubdown showers, a windowful of African violets. The other in the Centre Block with two rooms, a secretary, a male confidential messenger, the office boy and ad information and public relations staff.

ALL THE COMFORTS

And inside, Weill Home was seldom like this.

There is a broadloom, and watch your step or you'll be over your depth.

Floor to ceiling drapes along two whole walls, one of them alternatively displayed and tastefully shown off by indirect lighting behind the Hon. J. J.'s huge, hand-polished mahogany desk.

Leather chairs deeply comfortable enough to snooze in, and maybe somebody does.

Colored phones, of course.

This is the "Boy from the Ottawa Valley?"

Pooh!

Sure.

But that's the way the rule rolls around here.

Even some of the Backbench MPs have Parliamentary Secretaryships that look more like the drawing rooms of the haute monde straight off the style pages of Town and Country than the political business offices they are supposed to be in.

Rugs on rugs in some. No kidding.

Wall to wall carpets artistically offset with scatter rugs.

Like Doris Works Minister George McIlraith and the other day!

"We're finding it is only good economy to carpet the floor wall to wall."

But for messengers and office boys?

They'll be hearing from Mackenzie King, if the old Pro is still being lured in by the believing few who sit on the benches

Computer Nails Suspects

German Features

For a mere four hours Charly N. from Munich (West Germany) was able to admire his loot, then two well-built strangers appeared to his flat and took away the jewellery collection Charly had just removed by dint of delicate skill and an oxy-acetylene burner from the safe of a jeweller's shop. Charly had also left his visiting card at the scene of the crime: a few bits of chewing-gum without which the old lag just cannot pull off a break-in .In spot he will however have to manage without his beloved "chuddy."

Charly is the fifth criminal Munich's Super - Detective has found confounding for speedily and reliably to prison this month. All five owed their fate to some characteristic or a hobby exercised at the wrong moment. In Charly's case it was his chewing-gum — another a love for striped shirts. The need to take body-building exercises regularly between meals betrayed a car-thief. And feminine vanity let down a couple of female tricksters when new contact lenses instead of the glasses she really needed.

All these characteristics are important factors for the Super-Detective in the search for the criminal. For the 7 West German Master Crime-Spotter, responsible for more than 100 arrests in 1959, has at his disposal the most modern data-processing machine in all Germany. Its list of criminal records offers there are, alongside the usual personal details — age, height, name, last previous convictions, specialities — all leanings of the slightest interest, hobbies and characteristics of the person in question. In the search for Charly there were only two variables to feed into the "thinking-tobacco" among the 1700 investigated in the category "male-violence-theft." And since Charly's fellow-thieves in stir at the moment the choice was not difficult.

The last Indian raid in Canada took place 50 years ago today—in 1857—at Frog Lake, Sask., when Cree Indians massacred nine men of Louis Riel's second rebellion, raided the tiny trading post, and took away a seven - man Northwest Mounted Police troop there, but they were pursued to the belief that this would appease the native Indians. The settlement was captured on Easter Sunday and eight of them killed. The Indians, members of Big Bear's band (although he was not absent at the Frog Lake massacre) were pursued by soldiers, fought at Frenchman's Butte, and later surrendered.

Mr. Ernest Gurnett, local violin maker

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

A HOBBY OF HEAD, HEART AND HAND

"'Tis God gives skill,
But not without man's hands: He could not make Antonio Stradivari's violins Without Antonio."

— George Eliot (1819-1880).

"Violin making? It's a perfect hobby. It allows one to work leisurely for hours on end or pick up at odd moments. It is always ready, waiting. The worries of the world slip away like magic . . . "

So Mr. Ernest Gurnett warmly declares as he modestly points out some 20 beautiful violins quietly fastened by him in his hobby-and-work room of his home, 17 Northwood Drive. A room full of evidence of its owner's enthusiasm and zest for many interests over the years: radio, stereo-photography, gardening, golf, ceramics, rock-collecting and cutting.

Rarely is one privileged to see a hobby of such skill and as we look, marvel and touch these lovingly hand-crafted instruments we learn interesting facts concerning Belleville's renowned violin-maker and note acrobatically, the following for Violin Maker:-

V — "Violins have always fascinated me. My grand-father and father both were violinists, but while I never was much of a player as a small boy, the shape and tone held my attention, as did all the nursery rhymes which referred to it. — 'Old King Cole, . and his fiddlers three', 'Hey diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle.' "

I — "Interest became a reality when later in life I noted a 'Make your own Stradivarius' in an issue of "Popular Mechanics". I wrote and obtained a 50-page book with full size plans and a brief description of the methods of procedure."

O — "Only one who has followed the art, can imagine the fascination of violin - making. One's soul goes into the work, which the player will never be aware of, in trying to bring about the solution of the problem: 'Given: a log of wood; — Make: a fiddle.' "

I — "Literature on the subject of violins was lacking. A list of books fortunately obtained from a Pasadena (Cal.) florists enabled me to send for a book entitled: "Violin Making As Was and Is" by Ed Heron — Allen published in 1884. I found it most informative. Apparently little has been written on the subject since that time."

I — "Instruments such as the violin, it seems, did not exist as such prior to the 16th century. It appeared in fact, rather suddenly in the present form around the year 1500."

M — "Numerous stringed instruments were played through the centuries, but they were in the form of the lyre or harp. The strings were plucked by the finger and the instrument held on the lap or on the floor, the thing that makes a violin a violin is the fact that its shape is such that it can be held under the chin and the strings are vibrated by means of a bow."

M — "Makers who are the most famous in perfecting violin making which was achieved in Cremona, Italy, between the years 1530-1759 are: Andrew Amati (1530-1580); Anthony and Jerome Amati (1570-1635); Nicholas Amati (1596-1684); Andrea Guarnerius (1626-1695) Jacob Stetzer (German) (1620-?); Anthony Stradivari (1644-1737); Joseph Guarnerius (1680-1750); Joseph Anthony Guarerius (1683-1745); Lawrence Storioni (1700-1780). The greatest of these old masters is Anthony Stradivari."

A — "Art of violin making is to make it as an exact a copy as possible of the violins made in Italy at that time."

K — "King of instruments, the violin is the only human contrivance which may be pronounced perfect."

E — "Each violin however, differs in tone. No two instruments are alike is this respect."

R — "Reference to the price of models of Stradivaris are often valued as high as $50,000 to $75,000 whereas a really good modern violin by a recognized maker may be had within the rangeof $5,000.

These facts seem to affirm Santayana's belief that great interests are a gift which history makes to the heart.

Tours Available Now Geared To Your Special Interests

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

(Q) "Like many other travellers, we've done the cathedral-museum-restaurant circuit in several parts of the world and we would like to cater more to our particular interests in life on future trips. We've golf nuts and have thought of trying out courses in different parts of the world. Friends of ours are garden, photography, and even archaeology buffs. We've heard there are tours geared to all kinds of special interests. Are there? Who runs them and how do we find out about them?" — J. J., Columbus, Ohio

(A) There are. For years they have been run by various tour operators and promoted individually — and a bit haphazardly so far as the public was concerned. But now some of the leading ones have banded together in a joint promotional effort under the banner of Special Interest Tours.

For 1966, SIT lists more than 300 trips in more than 50 special subjects running the gamut from bird watchers to wine tasters, and including bridge, bureaucracy, music, skiing, stenography, stamp collecting and safaris.

Further information is available from Special Interest Tours at 48 East 43rd Street, New York City.

TIPPING WOES

(Q) "I'm sure we've read more articles on how much to tip at sea than there are ships. No two experts seem to agree. Well, what's your opinion?" — F. O., East Longmeadow, Mass.

(A) We suspect the reason no two experts seem to agree on this subject is that there are no two cruises, in spite of hopeful guidelines suggested by cruise directors and pursers, tipping on an ocean liner remains highly subjective.

As always, how much tip depends on how much service. And on a ship — though you won't read much about this — it depends on the nationality of the line. Some countries simply have higher standards of living — and tipping. And the United States is the highest of all.

Some non-experts say 10 per cent of the fare to each the cabin steward and dining steward (waiter). We think that's too much. Others say $3 a day per person. That's pretty close to it for the dining steward if the service was adequate, but perhaps a bit much for the room steward, unless you took many of your meals in your room.

If you did, you were probably served by another hundred-a-day common on most ships — the stewardess. She should get about half that amount.

Bar and lounge stewards are tipped as you go along, the usual 15 per cent. Don't forget a nominal amount for the chief steward if you had a party in your room, the maitre d' if you did any special ordering, and the wine steward if ditto.

Summing up, good sense and intuition can tell you more about how much to tip than any expert.

WHAT FLAVOR, PLEASE?

(Q) "With all the cruise ships of many nations operating out of American ports, we were wondering if you really get the flavor of their native countries on these ships, or have they become pretty Americanized to cater to the American taste?" — J. W., Montreal

(A) Even if they wanted to, they'd have a hard time shifting gears overnight from a Continental trans-Atlantic operation to a floating Fontainebleau.

About the only concessions made to the fact that nearly all cruise passengers are North Americans, are a social staff and program geared to American tastes, and menus and other ship's literature in English.

(Q) "My husband and I plan to travel to Europe this summer. We don't want a planned tour. But would we be reasonably sure of finding hotel accommodations if we did not make reservations ahead of time? Also, what means of transportation do you consider best in Europe — plane, train, or rented car? Will such matters have to be arranged before we leave? How?" — Mrs. A. C., Scottville, Mich.

(A) Experienced travelers know that you can always find some kind of hotel accommodations, even in season. But it may take a lot of trouble, and you may well wind up in an unsatisfactory place.

If you must do it that way, you'll find a city or regional government tourist office in just about every town and city, and often a convenient branch in the railroad station. If there's a room, they'll find it for you.

The best means of transportation in Europe depends largely on what you want to see. Remote areas may be accessible only by car. And you'll go your own people that way. But road conditions and language barriers — especially in event of emergency — may be formidable problems.

RAILWAYS GOOD

For sheer convenience, reliability, and comfort, you can't beat Europe's railway systems, especially between larger centres. Intercity buses, however, are generally local, slow and not comfortable.

Unlike North America, Europe's airlines generally serve only large cities. Belgium and Holland each have only one commercial airport, Switzerland only three). But if you are flying to Europe, remember that your ticket to your final point allows free stopovers at most cities along the route. Thus if you have a ticket to Rome, it will cost you no more to stop at Paris, London, and Shannon. Among others, either coming or going.

However, the time and expenses involved in getting between airports and cities will be a factor to consider. Trains between Paris and Brussels, for example, are so fast and inexpensive you may not consider it worth the trouble, time or transfer expense to fly, even with a free ticket.

All the above can be arranged in advance through your travel agent.

(Q) "How is an audience with the Pope arranged at the Vatican?" — L., Palo Alto, Calif.

(A) Apply to Rome's Pontifical North American College, Via dell'Umilta 30. Everyday dress is acceptable for public audiences, but for the Baciamanos (ring-kissing), men must wear dark suits and women black or white, with long sleeves, high neckline, and a black veil.

Sore Feet No Longer Her Complaint

DEAR DORIS: Seeing a request in your column for the remainder of quotation of "The man who had no feet." I am enclosing one which I have had for many years. This has been a great help to me when I, too, have been tempted to complain, not of having no shoes, but of sore feet.

DORIS CLARE

NO SHOES — NO FEET

"I had never complained of the vicissitudes of fortune, nor murmured at the ordinances of Heaven, except on one occasion, that my feet were bare and I had not wherewith to shoe them. In this despondent state I entered the mosque at Kufa and there I beheld a man who had no feet! I offered praise and thanks for Allah's kindness to me, and submitted with patience to my want of shoes."

—Sa adia Quilistan.

Hope it will be an inspiration to someone else. — J.F.

DEAR J.F.: So do I. Thank you.

Lines on Life

Man Victim of Glands

By Dr. Stuart R. Rosenberg

Modern man has been told over and again that he is the victim of his glands. Man is subject to all kinds of terrors which result from his biology. His emotions run wild and, often, when he does the wrong thing we are told to remember that he is only an unwilling victim of his own passions.

There's a lesson about all this in the Hebrew Bible.

> When Abraham was about to lay his hand upon Isaac he suddenly and, quite literally, could see what his passions could do to his moral code. His ethical position was threatened; it was protected and safeguarded only because he finally realized the meaning of morality. Without it, he would have destroyed himself by destroying Isaac.

Our glands, so this episode teaches, can be overwhelmed by our reason. We must come face to face with the implications of our passions in order to see how they can destroy our lives. It is not until Abraham comes to the very brink of killing Isaac that he recognizes what he must do: he must not give in to his aggressive, passionate tendencies. His emotions must be overcome by his mind. How does he do this? He comes to a full realization of what he is doing to himself, when he realizes what he is about to do to Isaac.

MUST USE REASON

Rationality is the applied use of reason; it is the active use of intelligence which helps us to gain the outcome of dangerous desires without having to go through the terrible experience. Abraham didn't have to kill Isaac in order to understand what his son's death would mean. When he "saw" the consequences of his act, he understood in his senses. When he "came to his senses" he overcame them — his rationality conquered his passions.

This question is at the heart of many adult issues, in our time. We need to communicate this view to our young people, in particular. They repeatedly tell us that the only way young people can become adults is to permit them to experience everything that adults will know, even though they have not yet acquired licence to do so.

Our children sometimes inform us that adulthood is hereby to stay, It should be fully experienced in order to know and understand it, any time one desires. We are also told by our young people that no rules are final or absolute and that their passions must have unlimited reign to explore the world, so they can savor for themselves every drop of life.

But the "spiritually...sensitive person" does not unreasonably have to be governed by such easy way out. His reason must overwhelm his passions and there is only one way that this can come about. Just as our passions are built into our body from birth so must we learn to build into our life structure a ready-made, prearranged series of moral values and codes that will go into action automatically, long before we may even be aware of things that may destroy us.

We need not wait that long. Before we discover ourselves we need to think our way through towards well-developed answers to the basic questions of human conduct. Then, we will become more human — less animal-like — more reasonable and less emotional.

Costume-accents: Newsy Gloves

A smart pair of gloves enhances any outfit. This Spring's collection gently lays its hand on fashions to create lovely accents of softness and femininity.

Many glove lengths are seen; brief shorties in wrist-buttoned and comfy slip-on styles; dramatic flatterers that can be worn gracefully with any length sleeve, and long gloves, especially in four-button and eight-button models.

Fabrics are exciting and varied. Textured nylons, a big success last fall, blossoms forth even stronger this spring. A velvet twister is a nylon shortie in an uneven basketweave pattern. . . it boasts such bold colors as pink ice and rajah green. Elegant classic is an eight-button "raffia" weave in a soft beige called "biscuit."

For sheer whimsey, there are the flimsy "mesh" gloves that embellish more than they cover. They add sparkle to any feminine wardrobe and may be had in classic shorties or with a part little lace cuff.

Know Your Antiques

Prints decorate this German glass beaker of the sixteenth century. This type of glass seems to have been the inspiration for the nineteenth century hobnail glass.

(The Corning Museum of Glass, Corning, N.Y.)

Antique Hobnail Glass Inspired by Earlier Idea

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Women's clothes today remind us of the 1910 or 1920 periods. All designs seem to be reflections of an earlier period.

The antiques we are collecting often were inspired by the still earlier art of a preceding century. Hobnail glass was popular during the 1870's and 1880's. The pattern of glass had a series of bumps of glass in an all over pattern.

There were many variations of the pattern and at least 25 patterns were called hobnail. All of them were inspired by the hand made German glass of the sixteenth century. The bumps were called prunts.

Q. What are apostle spoons? My mother gave me a set of 12 spoons. I have been told they are priceless.

A. Apostle spoons were given as a christening gift to a new baby. Each spoon handle was topped with a likeness of one of the 12 apostles. This was the custom from about 1485 to 1600. Reproductions of the old spoons, plus some new patterns based on the old idea, were made during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

The Gorham Manufacturing Company produced a full set of apostle spoons. Gorham made 12 different apostle spoons, plus a master spoon picturing Jesus.

The full set of 12 apostles and the master spoon of the early nineteenth century pieces is indeed priceless. The late nineteenth century spoons are still available to the determined collector. They are not priceless.

Treen ware or wooden ware is collected today for its beauty and historic interest. If you are collecting treen ware for resale is the serious collector don't wear or varnish the wood. If you want to live with the piece, treat it in a manner that will make it most enjoyable to you. We find a thin coat of wax will add to the beauty. The wax can always be removed.

Errors in information about antiques often are hard to correct. We would like once again to explain about the painting on Mary Gregory glass. Mary Gregory was a glass decorator who worked at the Sandwich Glass factory in the 1870-1880 period. She painted white enameled figures of children on clear or colored transparent glass. These figures were painted on white enamel. In the better examples the faces were flesh tinted.

Ralph and Terry Kovel regret that they cannot research and provide personal answers about antiques you may own. They do appreciate your questions which can be found in the columns. Pictures and drawings cannot be returned.

SALAD (for 50)

10 cups diced cold cooked chicken or turkey, 10 cups diced inner celery, 16 hard-cooked eggs, chilled and chopped, 4 cups canned cubed pineapple, drained, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 cups pared diced cucumber, 2 cups toasted shredded almonds, 6 chopped, 3 cups mayonnaise or salad dressing, 6 heads Iceberg lettuce.

Combine all ingredients except lettuce, adding more mayonnaise or salad dressing if it is not moist enough. Chill and serve on lettuce.

Contralto Guest Soloist At Messiah Presentation

Miss Doris Brown, one of Toronto's outstanding contraltos will be a guest soloist for the Messiah presentation by Bridge Street United Church choir, on Monday evening, April 23.

Miss Brown, a soloist at Bloor Street United Church, has had extensive experience as soloist in oratorios including appearances with the Winnipeg Philharmonic Choir (Elijah), the Renaissance Singers of Montreal (Messiah) the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

The soloist has also appeared on CBC radio in recital and as guest soloist with several of the symphony orchestras of Ontario.

Tickets for this, an evening of listening enjoyment, are available at Leslie's Shoe Store or any member of the choir.

CHRIST CHURCH CONTACT CLUB

Mrs. Wilma Summers, teacher of fashion co-ordination at Moira Secondary School was guest speaker at the Contact Club program night held Tuesday evening. Mrs. Summers outlined her course, gave fashion hints and demonstrated the use of hair pieces. She also explained how to take care of hair every occasion. In a question and answer period following her talk, Mrs. Summers answered queries about individual figures and clothes problems.

Mrs. Summers was introduced by Mrs. Carole Kidd and thanked by Mrs. Ann Treglodd and Mrs. Bongard. The latter spoke on behalf of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, who were also in attendance at the meeting.

Hostesses were Mrs. Lillian Middleton, Mrs. Shirley Harris and Mrs. Edith Pringle.

Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson of 57 Montgomery Blvd., Belleville, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently.

Mrs. Anderson, formerly Adeline Sprague, and Mr. Anderson were married at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Laurence F. Sprague of Mountain View. Mr. Anderson is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James R. Anderson who lived in Mountain View.

Their only attendant was Mrs. Anderson's niece, Mrs. Alfred (Sprague) Post who was flower girl.

The couple have lived most of their lives in Mountain View, only recently moving to Belleville.

On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste of Mountain View and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McMurter of Sarnia entertained at dinner at Maple Inn, Bloomfield at a small family gathering in honor of their uncle and aunt. Only present were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Anderson, Miss Lillian Anderson, Mr. Lawrence Poste and baby Alfred McMurter.

There were four generations of Mrs. Anderson's family present: they were Miss Anderson, Mrs. Alfred Poste, great-niece, Mrs. Ralph McMurter, and great-great niece eight-month-old baby Alison McMurter.

The guests later returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs Stanley Barber of Mountain View, former neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, entertained at a turkey dinner at their home in their honor. Covers were laid for 34 guests. The table was centred with a three tiered wedding cake decorated in white with pink rosettes and entwined with pink rose buds.

Mrs. Barber presented Mrs. Anderson with a corsage of miniature yellow roses and Mr. Anderson with a boutonniere.

Progressive euchre was played after dinner, with the prizes going to Mrs. Ed Hall and Mr. Grant Clapp. During the course of the evening Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were presented with a gold and white coffee pot and tea service from everyone present. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. W. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sprung, Mr. and Mrs. W. Burkitt, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Minaker, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hall, Mrs. Clifford Barber, Miss Lillian Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfet Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Barber and Mr. and Mrs. A. Poste.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson also received many other gifts and cards of good wishes at their home from their many friends.

Ann Landers

Discipline in Youth Aids Mental Health

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say a word or two to the mother of the four-year-old child who refuses to sleep in her own bed and screams until her parents take her into bed with them.

We had an identical situation in our family. Her parents entered to Ellen and gave in to her because they couldn't stand the screaming. They took her in bed with them until she was ten years of age.

Ellen is now a woman of 40. She has been in and out of mental hospitals all her life. When she got out into the world and discovered she could not control anyone around the way she ordered her parents, she became so frustrated and angry that she withdrew to a world of make-believe.

ANN LANDERS

Please keep telling parents that they owe it to their children to control them when they are young. If they fail in this duty the child pays a terrible price. — MRS. M.E.B.

DEAR MRS. M.E.B.: Thank you for sharing a personal experience with us. I have had a hammer away at the same line, but a letter like yours is well worth printing because parents need to be reminded time and time again that if they don't get control early they are sunk.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My parents are divorced and I live with my mother and myself. I have many friends at school who have invited me to their homes for dinner so many times that I have lost track.

I would love to invite a few of the girls to have dinner here but I don't feel this is my home. I hinted to my aunt that I would like company once in a while and she said she didn't feel up to entertaining. Mother is out alone for me. I hate to keep accepting invitations when I am not able to reciprocate. Can you help me with my problem? — UNHAPPY GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: The word "entertain" is scaring your aunt off. Tell her you would appreciate the privilege of inviting one girl at a time for dinner whatever is on the table. Surely she can bake an extra potato and buy one more chop.

Stress the fact that no special preparation is necessary. Tell your aunt you want to use the same dishes and tablecloth. Offer to help prepare and clean up as part of your contribution. Only the coldest heart could say no to this simple request.

SUNDAY (Guests)

Dinner Menu

Fried Chicken Legs; Cream Gravy; Corn Fritters; Quick-cooked New Cabbage; Tomato Aspic with Cucumber Dressing; Blueberry Steamed Pudding with Lemon Butter Sauce; Tea.

SALMON LOAF (serves 48):

7 lbs. salmon weighed after it is drained, boned and skinned (may be canned or cooked fresh).

3½ lbs. (7 cups) milk, 1½ lbs. dry breadcrumbs, 3 cups eggs beaten, 6 cups plasticine chopped, 4 ozs. melted shortening, 1 2/3 ozs. Worcestershire sauce, 3 ozs. lemon juice, ½ oz. salt, 1 teaspoon pepper.

Combine ingredients until thoroughly blended. (The amount yields approximately 13½ lbs.) Grease 2 loaf tins 5¼" x 10¼" x 3" (or 4 standard loaf pans, 5" x 9¼" x 2¼") and turn salmon mixture into them. Bake uncovered in Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 45 minutes or until set. Cut each loaf into 12 slices.

MASTER MEAT LOAF (serves 48):

Two 48-oz. cans unsalted tomato juice, 5 lbs. lean ground beef, 4 lbs. lean ground pork shoulder, 1 cup chopped parsley, 4 cups chopped onion, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 8 medium-size eggs, beaten, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 tablespoon pepper, ¼ cup Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon allspice (for sauce).

Mix all ingredients well in large bowl. Shape into 4 loaves and place in 4 greased loaf pans. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Cool slightly and cut each loaf into 12 slices. In the meantime heat together the remaining soup and all spice and when serving the slices, coat each with approximately 1½ ozs. sauce over each. Serve hot.

A Lift for Living

Springtime of Body, Spirit Arrives With Help of God

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Earth will not renew itself this spring. It will be revived by a series of "independent means" try eating foods for breakfast instead of cold-and-self certificates for dinner instead of steaks, and we will discover before long how utterly dependent we are upon fertile fields, the smiling sun, the lovely grace of falling rain, and the ceaseless energy, benevolence and compassion of a kind Creator.

Sanity, then, has this religious meaning: sanity signifies that we are in touch with Ultimate Reality. Among other things it means we are aware of the Power beyond our limitations, conscious of the grace and mercies beyond our human control. It does not matter that "our daily bread" comes to us in a plastic wrapper from the corner grocery; we are still cognizant that the inexhaustible activity of God produced the light, warmth, fertility and seed that yielded the wheat that was made into flour that was baked into bread.

HUMBLE ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The petition for "daily bread" in the Lord's Prayer is a humble acknowledgment that the essentials and benefits of life need not be treated for granted as we are heading into the goods of God. So the words used there are a humble, sincere request for a specific necessity of life. They denote a corrective for proud self-sufficiency, and they express an attitude essential for keeping a sane perspective who link broken relations with reality.

WILL REMAIN DEPENDENT

The self-sufficient suffers from the illusion that he cannot live if his unaided, has been sustained by his own unassisted ingenuity, and can go on and on without vital connection with any power other than his own. But in reality, he was created by Another, with the assistance of parents. He was nursed through days of helplessness by the tender care of others. And in every moment of his precarious existence he will be dependent upon the soil, sun, and rain, the seasons, the produce of the good earth, the air that bathes his lungs — upon the generosity and mercy of the Eternal Goodness, from whom all things come.

The man who "lives off" his stocks and bonds may feel a little less dependent upon the Father's Will than does the farmer whose income seems to rely more directly on Heaven's

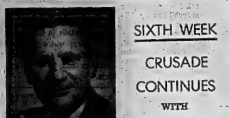
Importance of Accessories

Whether matching that new dress or holding tresses in place during a set of tennis, bands of silk, jersey, velvet and other fabrics will be going to every-where-and-everybody and fashionably around the clock.



Bouquets of plastic flowers, in a rainbow of rhinestones and clusters of pearls add an "especially glamorous note to the swinging accessories out and elaborate hairdo's for evening.

And while we're talking about accessories, above all loom the new spring hats! Most popular theme this season could very well be the "southern plantation" hat, a high-rising, wide-brimmed straw that is at once both feminine and dashing.

Banks Capture Limelight In Second Week of Advance

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Banks captured most of the limelight on Canada's stock markets this week to pave industrials section to their second consecutive weekly advance.

The upswing was sparked by growing speculation the government will remove the six-per-cent interest rate ceiling on bank loans when it tackles revising the Bank Act.

The Toronto bank index jumped 7.78 to 145.55, Montreal 6.31 to 123.77.

Volume at Toronto was 27,864,213 compared with 25,454,-200 last week. Most of the increase was in speculatives.

Royal led the banks gaining 4¼ to 77. Imperial-Commerce added 3¾ at 69¾, Montreal and Toronto-Dominion 3¼ at 43¾ and 64¼, and Nova Scotia 3¼ at 71¼.

REACTION WAS MILD

Market reaction to Tuesday's budget was described by some observers as mild and short-run. Most felt the recent advance among industrials was influenced by buoyant prices at New York.

One analyst said there was little in the budget to concern the market and only the five-per-cent forced savings on cash profits of more than $30,000 may curtail some investment activity by companies pressed for money.

In the industrials, Moore Corp. was up 2¾ to 82¼, Du Pont 2¼ to 44¼, Aluminium 2¼ to 41, Brazilian Traction 1¼ to 19¾, Trans-Canada Pipe Line ¾ to 35¾ and Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 15¾.

On the loss side, Chrysler slid ½ to 54, Interprovincial Pipe Line 1¼ to 83, MacMillan Bloedel 1¼ to 27½, CPR 1¼ to 69¼ and Canadian Breweries ¼ to 7⅝ on 83,754 shares following the announcement its Dow subsidiary at Quebec City will close.

Western oils were the only major group to decline. Chieftain Development, which has property in Albert's Rainbow Lake area, plunged 4.25 to 7.50. Last week the stock jumped up 2¾.

HOME A OFF 1

Home Oil A was off 1 to 19, Hudson's Bay Oil ¾ to 19 while Scurry Rainbow moved up 1½ to 25⅝, Banff ½ to 17¾ and Pacific Petroleum ¾ to 12¼.

American Leduc highlighted speculative oil activity, rising 10½ to 37 cents on 3,204,892 shares. Charter Oil moved up 25 cents to 4.10 and Aumeru 42 cents to 3.00.

Among base metals, Pine Point climbed 5¼ to 62¾, after it agreed to sell zinc ore to Anaconda for refining in the United States. Campbell Chibougamau was ahead 2¾ to 10¼.

In golds, Dome Mines gained 1½ to 41, Kerr-Addison 1¼ to 11¼, Campbell Red Lake ¾ to 21¾ and Hollinger ¼ to 24¼. Cochenour Willans lost 60 cents to 4.50.

Speculative mines were mainly mixed with Coulee up 19 to 77 cents, Headway 10½ to 27 cents and New Senator to 39 cents. D'Eldona dropped 20 to 89 cents and Louvicourt 13 to 42 cents.

On index, industrials were up 1.36 to 169.06, golds 4.77 to 170.85, base metals 0.82 to 115.15 and the TSE 1.34 to 150.77. Western oils slipped .63 to 106.67.

At Montreal, Industrials were up .910 to 166.20. Utilities were down .76 to 141.20 and papers 2.00 to 121.86. Volume was 6,383,284 shares compared with 5,538,-394 last week.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Trading on choice steers was uneven at easier prices with other grades of steers trading actively at steady prices at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Cow, bull and veal calf prices were higher, replacement cattle prices were barely steady to easier in dull trading and hogs were firm with lambs unevenly steady to higher.

Slaughter cattle 36,800; Choice steers 27.50-28.50 with high yielding steers 29-29.40; good 26-27; medium 24-26; common 19-23.50; choice heifers 26-27 with sales to 27.80; good 24-25.50; medium 21.50-23.50; common 18-21; choice-selected yearlings 27-29; good 24-26; good cows 20.50-21.50 with sales to 22.50; medium 19-20; canners and cutters 15-18.50; good heavy bologna bulls 22-23 with sales to 23.50; common and medium light 17-21.

Replacement cattle: Good light stockers 27.50-28.50; stocker steer calves 30-31 with sales to 31.50; good heifer stock calves 25-28; common and medium 23-27.

Calves 1,700: Choice vealers 38-43 with odd sales to 46; good 33-37; medium 28-32; common 23-27; boners 19-22.

Sheep and lambs 1,500 Good grade 33-33.75; sheep 5-15 with yearlings up to 14.

U.S. Raises Quota on Cheddar Cheese

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States has raised its quota on Canadian cheddar cheese by 200,000 pounds to 814,000 pounds in the year ending June 30, 1966, Trade Minister Winters announced Thursday in the Commons.

In future years, he said, Canada can expect the U.S. quota will be raised to 1,000,000 pounds annually.

Mr. Winters said the U.S. increase in its world quota on cheddar cheese will be 800,000 pounds of which the Canadian share is 200,000 pounds.

The U.S. was also considering an increase of 5,500,000 pounds next year with a supplement of 1,200,000 pounds on aged cheddar.

Thus the U.S. world quota next year would be more than 9,500,000 pounds compared with the present 2,800,000 pounds.

Mr. Winters said U.S. restrictions on import of Canadian cheddar cheese were discussed in early March at the Canada-U.S. joint cabinet committee on economic affairs.

Al Purdy, Ameliasburg Poet, Wins Gov.-General's Award

"If I were Bobby Hull's mother I'd eat the apple now". This was Alfred Purdy's reaction to winning the $1,500 Governor-General's award for poetry.

Mrs Purdy, 48-year-old Ameliasburg resident, was the award for his "The Cariboo Horses", published by McClelland and Stewart.

Mr. Purdy was referring to the lucky apple Mrs. Hull kept as a good luck charm while her son caught the NHL scoring record. He made the comment during a long distance telephone conversation with The Intelligencer, from Toronto, shortly after the award was announced Friday afternoon.

The poet, who was born in Wooler, now divides his time between his home on Hobb's Lake and an apartment in Toronto. His wife, the former Eurithe Parkhurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Parkhurst, 91 Camilton Road, is in Toronto this winter attending teachers' college.

Mr. Purdy, who has held a number of jobs including those of a mattress factory laborer in Vancouver and taxi driver in Belleville, is now devoting his time exclusively to poetry and play-writing.

"My wife made $700-$800 a year up to a year ago with poetry," he said. "Now I'm doing considerably better, but anybody who starts out to earn a living writing poetry in this country is crazy," said Mr. Purdy.

Mr. Purdy said that although many of the poems in "The Cariboo Horses" are about the Belleville district, "no one knows I live in the area." During winter in Toronto he worked on a new book, "North of Summer". Based on a two-and-a-half visit last summer to Baffin Island, on a Canada Council grant. He expects to spend this summer in Newfoundland, gathering material for a book of poetry about the east coast.

Other Governor - General's award winners were:

James Reaves, 40, a native of London now living in Toronto, winner of the English non-fiction award for In Defence of Canada volumes I and II, published by University of Toronto Press;

Gilles Vigneault, 36, of Natashquan, Que., winner of the French poetry award for Quand Les Bateaux s'en Vont published by editions de l'Arc;

Gerard Bessette, 47, of Sainte Anne de Sabrevois, Que., winner of the French fiction award for L'Incubation published by Librairie Deom; and Andre S. Vachon, 41, of Strasbourg, now living in Montreal, winner of the French non-fiction award for Le Temps et l'Espace dans "Pleurve de Paul Claudel published by Editions du Seuil.

Hellyer Said

funds as between capital and consumption.

Mr. Hellyer is determined to increase allocations for weapons, equipment and construction and reduce housekeeping costs.

But housekeeping costs include such items as pay. And he now has to put out more money for this—higher pay for pilots, for example — to keep skipped men from returning to civvy street.

Except for some loose ends, the defence accounts for the fiscal year which ended Thursday now are in.

Officials said Friday they show expenditures on house-keeping at $1,150,000,000, including a last-minute outlay of $27,000,000 for re-engagement bonuses, compared with $1,139,000,000 in 1964-65.

Expenditures on weapons, equipment and construction fell to $504,500,000 from $239,500,000 in the previous year.

NOT AS PLANNED

In short, expenditures in both fields went in the direction opposite to that planned by Mr. Hellyer.

In the fiscal year which began Friday, Mr. Hellyer will make a renewed attempt to reverse this trend.

He has earmarked $297,500,-000 for spending on weapons and equipment in 1966-67. This is 18.9 per cent of the $1,573,-000,000 defence budget compared with 13.3 per cent in the fiscal year just ended.

At the same time, he has allocated $1,097,500,000 for house-keeping, a decrease of more than $50,000,000 from the year just finished.

If these financial plans hold well it will be up for skilful, and promotion on the basis of merit rather than length of service — halt the manpower drain and boost morale, Mr. Hellyer will have achieved most of his major goals in the defence department.

North England Crippled by Snow Storm

LONDON (CP)—Blizzard conditions today crippled the north of England.

Daffodils were blanketed by heavy snowfalls in the north of the country where the Royal Automobile Club called weather conditions like the "a little Siberia."

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Jim Brown, Oshawa was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Simpson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Payne of Elmira spent a recent weekend with his mother, Mrs. Ben Payne and visited Mr. Payne at Reeds Lake, Picton.

A smorgasbord dinner was held in Bloomfield United Church last Sunday School room on Thursday evening, sponsored by the men of the church under the direction of George Bonnell. In spite of a stormy night a capacity crowd was served. So much of everything was left over that a noon dinner was served the next day to 150 people.

IN MANY CARS, REGULAR GAS PERFORMS AS WELL AS PREMIUM! Many cars do not get better mileage and performance from premium grade gasoline. Because of the higher octane of gasolines today, many older cars perform as well on standard grade as they did on yesterday's premium. Then, county road chairman, Clayton McMurray, assisted the official party in holding the first No. 62 highway sign to mark the new highway extension.

BRIDGE IS ALSO OPENED

As master of ceremonies for the ribbon cutting ceremonies Warden Clayton Hall said the event was one which the people of Hastings and especially member of county council had long dreamed and hoped for.

"As you witness the ceremony of transferring this road over to King's Highway No. 62, those of you who are members of past road committees will no doubt have memories of the days and weeks spent in procuring the right of way for reconstruction. Today your efforts have been fully realized."

MEMBERS PRAISED

Warden Hall expressed the county's gratitude MLA's Mr. Sandercock and Clark T. Rollins for their untiring efforts.

"Mr. Rollins has worked unceasingly for this transfer and I am sure today is the happiest man here."

Mr. Hall also expressed his appreciation to the highways minister for the consideration given Hastings through the recently instituted county roads needs' study.

As result, Mr. Hall said, we, in Hastings know that during the next five years county roads systems in Ontario are going to be considerably upgraded.

SPEAKING OUT

Let's face the facts!

The newspaper is the best medium of sports activities in any community whether it be in Ball-Ball, Aklavik or Lower Slobboria.

Sports department writers are trained from the beginning to report what they SEE with accuracy whether the home team is losing or winning.

Sports columnists under their signed name can criticize or praise as they see fit. They have the right to editorialize or analyze.

Mentality — and it is only natural — they lean toward the home team. Perhaps they are kinder in their praises than they are in their criticisms. But in the main they write it as the situation appears to them.

Both writers and columnists are fair game for biased fans. The majority do not go along with Decatur who once said, "I do not believe what he says — but I'll defend with my life his right to say it."

One type of fan I've found in yaps at this business is he who sees nothing but holes on the heads of his favorite team, football, hockey or what have you.

That is his right. But I deny him the right to express the opinion that every member, official etc. of an opposing team are skunks, sap's, sons of canine female and other verbal garbage.

Another kind is the player, fan or official who crawls to a newspaper to have his opinion, personal and/or otherwise aired but "P'Gawd's asks don't quote me."

Then there are the anonymous "heroes and heroines, who are Churchills and Joans of Arc behind the safety of a telephone or a pen. They suffer a swollen loss of memory via telephone when asked their name. Their pens suddenly run dry after the written garbage is completed and nothing remains but the signature.

I once attended an affair in London, England where Britain's perfect man and woman showed why they were called that. Fleet street newspaper friend of mine said, after the viewing of the show, nudged me and said, "Y'know, this would be one heluva world if everybody was perfect."

Sportswriters and columnists do not claim to be perfect. Contrary to some opinions they are human and as such are subject to err. The hell of it is there is too much self-imposed divinity in some sports fans in that they do not exercise their prerogative to forgive — except themselves.

Garry Alexander in his boxers' opinion and others is one of the better sportswriters in this district. He was trained in the office and being a natural writer developed his own style.

His copy is and always has been subject to editing and is passed by the sports editor's desk before publication. One of his best reported traits is that he writes things as they happen — and he sees them. That is his job. He has been trained to do that.

... He, like his departed friend and fellow writers, is not perfect. He is the first to admit it.

There is some sort of a controversy (again) raging in the ranks of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. Alexander's story published in Friday's edition took in a section of both sides.

If there is skullduggery afoot inside the Belleville Minor Hockey Association executive it will be published. If there is an organized move among coaches, parents etc., we will publish it. But this newspaper will not print anything but substantial facts.

I have had several telephone calls from irate parents, coaches and officials.

But get this straight. This department will not pull any editorial punches if there is something going on that is detrimental to the hockey-playing youngsters of this city.

After all, this pot-boiling will have some effect on the youngsters and both the MMHA and coaches, parents etc., should realize that minor hockey is for the kids alone. They play it, why spoil it for them with disagreement and bickering between the men who forfeit a lot of time, effort and money to help young Canada enjoy its favorite winter sport.

Defeat Kingston 4-2

Regals Capture Title

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Regals doubled the score on Kingston Aces 4-2, Friday night to win the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior A final 4-1.

The Regals, who brought the title home for the first time since they entered the league three years ago, now meet the winner of the Sudbury-Sudbury series for the all-Ontario championship.

Guelph's big thrust Friday came late in the third period from two goals 46 seconds apart that broke up a 2-1 goalkeepers' duel between Regals' Bob Hurley and Kingston's Neil Perry.

Bob Pole, Keith Wormald, Elmer Skov and Dave Lucink shared Guelph scoring while Jim Gebhart and Dave Jones scored for Kingston.

MONTREAL BEATEN

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Saint John Atlantics defeated Montreal Snowden YMHA 108-97 Friday to open a 1-0 lead in a best-of-three series for the Canadian Junior ville basketball championship. Second game of the series is here tonight and the third, if necessary, Sunday.

Montreal Needs Point ★★★★★★ Habs, Hawks Seek Big Win Tonight ★★★★★ Chicago Can Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks meet Montreal Canadiens tonight in a game they must win to remain in contention for the National Hockey League championship—something they have never won.

All Montreal needs is one point in its remaining two games to clinch its eighth championship in 10 years.

The only other game scheduled tonight has New York Rangers playing Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Sunday's schedule has Montreal at New York, Toronto in Detroit to meet the Red Wings and Chicago playing Boston Bruins in Boston.

Should the Hawks win tonight, they would pull themselves two points of the Canadiens. A Chicago victory Sunday, coupled with a Montreal loss, would pull the Hawks even with the Canadiens.

In the event of a tie for first place, the championship would be awarded the team with the most goals scored in the 70-game schedule. So far, Chicago has scored eight more goals than Montreal.

Bobby Hull will continue chasing a record for most points in a season. He has 85 so far, including his record 53 goals, and needs only two points in his remaining two games to break the record of 96 points in a season, set in 1958-59 by former Montrealer Dickie Moore.

SCORELESS IN FIVE

Hull hasn't scored a goal in his last five outings. He scored his 53rd marker of the season March 18 in a 4-1 Chicago victory over Detroit.

Claude Larose will not play in Montreal's weekend games. Larose, nursing a sore shoulder from Sunday's game at Boston, is expected to be ready for the playoff.

The Maple Leafs will be without the winger Frank Mahovlich for both weekend games and he may not play the first game of the semi-final either.

Mahovlich, who has 32 goals this season, suffered a knee injury in Toronto's loss to Boston Thursday night.

Boston and New York are waging their own little battle for second-last place in the standings.

Bruins and Rangers are tied for fifth spot with 66 points, 27 behind fourth-place Detroit.

In the event of a tie, fifth place would go to the team with the most wins over the season. The Bruins, who have one game remaining, have won 20 games to date while the Rangers, with two games left to play, have 18 wins.

Memorial Cup Play

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds defeated North Bay Trappers 6-3 Friday night to take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Northern Ontario Hockey Association junior final.

CORNWALL (CP) — Cornwall Royals took a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Junior hockey quarter-final series Friday night, drubbing Halifax Junior Canadiens 10-3.

International Badminton

Malaysians In Brilliant Form

QUEBEC (CP)—Four relaxed Malaysians unleashed power and finesse Friday night to win the men's singles and doubles semi-finals at the Canadian open badminton championships here.

European entries captured the other two positions. No Canadian advanced, beyond the quarter-finals.

Tan Aik Huang, winner of the 1966 all - England badminton championships, had little difficulty downing teammate Tan Yee Kan 15-7, 15-3.

Yew Cheng Hoe, rated just a shade below Huang, fought a fast-moving battle with Channgrong Ratanasaeung of Thailand but showed superior speed and stamina. He defeated the former Canadian open champion 15-5, 15-3.

In the men's doubles the effective combination of Kan and Boon Ng Bee used a murderous attack to overwhelm Don Paup and Michael Hartgrave of Los Angeles 15-5, 15-5.

Danish champion Svend Andersen combined with Yew Cheng Hoe to defeat the battling twosome of Ratanasaeung and Jim Poole of San Diego 15-13, 15-8.

Ulla Strand of Denmark captured the semi-final position in the women's singles, blowing Ursula Smith of England 11-7, 11-7. Judy Hashman of England beat Tina Barinaga of Port Angeles, Wash., 11-4, 11-4, to win the other top position. Mrs. Hashman also captured a semi-final doubles position in combination with Sue Brand of England. They will meet Miss Barinaga and Jensen of Port Ang.

Miss Str. ...nd Bee will meet Helen Tibbets and Paup, both of Los Angeles, in the mixed doubles.

Kansas City Pair Tosses No-Hitter

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Paul Lindblad, a 24-year-old lefthander, teamed with relief specialist John Wyatt for the second no-hitter of the exhibition season Friday as Kansas City Athletics blanked Houston Astros 4-0.

The no-hitter came four days after Bob Veale and Luke Walker of Pittsburgh Pirates held Los Angeles Dodgers hitless.

Lindblad worked the first six innings, retiring 11 straight batters before issuing a walk to Jim Wynn and then settling down the last seven he faced. Wyatt walked two and was helped by a double catch by Bert Campaneris in his three-inning stint.

Last year Lindblad had a 12-11 record with Vancouver Mounties before joining the Athletics late in the season.

Rob Roberts took the twelfth loss, yielding a two-run homer to Bill Bryan in the second and a solo circuit shot to Larry Stahl in the eighth.

New York Mets, last-place contenders for the Athletics in the National League, whipped Chicago White Sox 4-1 behind the stirring pitching of rookie southpaws Rob Gardner and Dick Rusteck.

INDIANS BOMB GIANTS

San Francisco Giants rested their ace for a weekend exhibition series with the Dodgers and Cleveland Indians wore out the other half 13-3, scoring 10 runs in the fifth inning off Ron Herbel and Lindy McDaniel.

Marcelino Lopez buried seven Cincinnati batters, allowing only three hits, as California Angeles trimmed Chicago Cubs 5-0. Norm Siebern and Willie Smith homered for the Angels.

A three-run homer by Zoilo Versalles and Harmon Killebrew's solo blast powered Minnesota Twins to a 10-4 victory over Cincinnati Reds. Don Pavletich homered twice and Tommy Helms hit his first of the spring for the losers.

Carl Yastrzemski drove in four runs with a homer and bases-loaded double as Boston Red Sox routed 24-game-winner Tony Cloninger and whipped Atlanta Braves 7-1.

St. Louis Cardinals edged Detroit Tigers 3-2, Tim McCarver leading the way with three hits including a homer, Norm Cash and Al Kaline homering for Detroit.

Pittsburgh struck for four runs in the 11th inning and topped New York Yankees 7-3. Bob Bailey's three-run homer pulled the Pirates even in the fourth.

John Callison pinch-hit a run-scoring triple in the eighth inning and tallied the go-ahead run on Tony Gonzales' third hit as Philadelphia Phillies came from behind to nip Baltimore Orioles 7-3.

Educators Defeat No-Stars

Belleville Educators showed last night they were almost as much at home on ice surface as in the "cloistered confines of knowledge".

They picked up unfamiliar hockey sticks and whipped the CKWS No - Stars puck-chasing nomads from Kingston by a 9-3 score.

And some 900 fans made a handsome contribution to charity.

The Educators were held to a 1-1 tie in the first period forged ahead to a 4-2 lead going into the final frame then took the win with five goals against a single return.

Dave Bell, R. Madden and L. Holland each scored a pair for the winners with G. McGaughey, S. Sneddon, and D. Talbot scoring blasters.

Mr. Sneddon picked up four assists, M. Brydson, a pair, with Messrs Holland, Bell and Mr. Bryant getting singles.

Thirteen penalties were handed out, eight going to the winners.

Belleville Livestock Sales won the Quinte Classic League title last night. They finished the season with 1826½ points. Belleville Hydro Electric No.1 was second with 1417. Tip Top Cleaners followed with 1390, Sharland's Service Station 1259½, McDougall Insurance 111, Bob Peake Wood Products 1059½, Pidutil-Fabbri 1044½, Bird Electric 100, Horlock Electric 99 and Woodland Cleaners 1.

Individual scores: C. Hardwick 1132 (371), R. Saylor 1124 (393), R. Dellne 1083 (315), G. Bell 1058 (335), J. Canning 1024 (308), B. Feltcan 1024 (363).

Pay Alimony Or Else

Clay Faces Jail Term

MIAMI (AP)—World heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay faces a contempt of court citation and a possible jail term unless he comes up with court-ordered alimony of $1,250 a month for his ex-wife.

Circuit Court Judge Harold Spaet said Friday the boxer, who defeated George Chuvalo in Toronto this week, appeared to be in contempt of court.

"I don't want to be unreasonable," said the judge, "but a man of his means who can't make monthly payments makes me doubtful of his good faith."

Spaet said if Clay didn't come up with the money, he would put him in jail.

However, he asked Mrs. Clay's lawyers to have an exact audit of what Clay owes when they appear Tuesday.

"When you put a man in jail in a case like this you have to give him the key, let him know how much he has to pay to get out," the judge said.

Clay told the court during proceedings for the divorce from his wife, Sonji, that his income was $300,000 a year. However, Mrs. Clay said most of Clay's money was tied up in litigation following his fight with Floyd Patterson.

Second Bid From St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A second applicant for the National Hockey League franchise in St. Louis entered the picture Friday and is scheduled to put in a bid Tuesday at the NHL meeting in New York.

NHL president Clarence Campbell revealed the development in a telephone interview from Montreal with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Campbell said Carl Berst of Chicago heads the syndicate and that 40 per cent of the backers are from St. Louis. He would not identify them.

A group composed primarily of St. Louis residents and headed by Sid Salomon Jr. entered the first application. That group already has negotiated with Arthur Wirtz, co-owner of Chicago Black Hawks, to buy the arena, a pivotal part in the franchise. Wirtz is co-owner of the arena with the estate of the late James Norris.

The sixth NHL franchise is expected to be forwarded at the Tuesday meeting. Campbell said it would go to Baltimore if neither of the St. Louis applicants is accepted.

Joseph E. Levine presents — Never is Love more Wild and Abandoned
Horst Buchholz - Catherine Spaak and Bettie Davis

MONDAY ONE COMPLETE SHOW STARTS 7.30 p.m.

At the Park

Bettie Davis stars in "Empty Canvas"

Joseph E. Levine's "The Empty Canvas," starring Bette Davis, Horst Buchholz and Catherine Spaak, opens Monday at the Park Theatre for 3 days through Embassy Pictures release. Directed by Damiano Damiani, the unusual film is based on the best selling novel by Alberto Cravia Moravia. Produced by Carlo Ponti, "The Empty Canvas" is a drama of turbulent emotions centred about a young artist, his promiscuous girlfriend and his domineering mother.

Buchholz, who plays the artist, is one of Europe's most popular male stars today and is well known to American audiences for his roles in "The Magnificent Seven," "One, Two, Three" and "Nine Hours to Rama."

Miss Spaak, only 18 years old, already numbers over a dozen films to her credit, including "The Easy Life," which was named one of the year's top ten in this country. The niece of Paul-Henri Spaak (Foreign Minister of Belgium), Catherine is the daughter of veteran screenwriter Charles Spaak.

Miss Davis, who recently electrified audiences with her performance in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" has received two Academy Awards during her incredible thirty year career.

Second Feature
Movie Within Movie

Joseph E. Levine's "Contempt," the Brigitte Bardot-Jack Palance starrer opening at Park Theatre through Embassy Pictures release, actually features two movies for the price of one.

The romantic drama will include scenes of a movie epic based on Homer's "Odyssey." As in the novel "A Ghost at Noon" by Alberto Moravia on which the film is based, the movie-within-the movie mirrors a dramatic parable for the story's content—conflict.

Fast color film stock and heavy make-up will highlight the sequences from the "Odyssey" in contrast to the low-key mood of the film proper. The audience will actually be seeing two films, one modern, the other classic, yet both closely related by moral and emotional content.

"Contempt" co-stars Michel Piccoli, Fritz Lang and Georgia Moll. It was filmed in color and Franscope.

Both features are first showings. One complete show starts 7.30 p.m.

"Voice Of Niagara" Is Dead

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Ray Stimers, well-known sportscaster on radio station CKTB here since 1934, died in hospital Friday night after a brief illness. He was 62.

Funeral will be held Monday.

A flamboyant personality, Stimers broadcast a number of sports but concentrated in recent years on junior hockey and the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

He was a St. Catharines oldtimer in 1939 and president of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association in 1955.

Morrisburg Wins Over Moncton

MONCTON (CP) — Morrisburg, Ont. Combines, leveraged in the first game of the Eastern Canada Senior quarter-finals by Moncton Hawks, came back Friday to defeat the Hawks 5-3 and tie the best-of-five series 1-1.

Third game will be here today.

D. P. Casselman led the Combines with two goals. Mel Mantley, Harold White and Derek Holmes scored the others. Paul Hebert, Guy White and playing coach Romain Gaudet scored for Moncton.

Coach Forgot The Date

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — Canadian ski coach Pete Webster received a telephone call Friday with bad news.

All five members of the Canadian girls' team taking part in the High Sierra Cup races said they were ill.

He rushed in their room to find them lying on a bed, rags wrapped around their heads.

Their ailment was a almost sent the distraught Webster on his way for an aspirin, his racing plans fast disappearing.

The outcome of the drama was inevitable — considering the date.

"April Fool!" the girls screamed, leaping from the bed and laughing at their coach's relieved grin.

TV Western Goes Through 9 Producers, Still Success

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Can a television series go through nine producers in its first season and still find success?

In the case of Wild, Wild West, the answer is yes.

The CBS western totalled that many production bosses before settling back with the man who originated the show, Mike Garrison. Most series that suffer such upheavals are written off to oblivion at the end of the season, but not Wild, Wild West.

"We've had a very busy season that has consistently built an audience," says Robert Conrad, who stars as James T. West on the series.

"Our latest share of audience is 43. What does that mean? Well, Bonanza has 49, and that's tops. I think CBS would have been happy if we had been able to manage a 36. Hah!"

PLEASED WITH SHOW

Conrad is extremely pleased with the way the show is going.

"It's an actor's dream—changing the girlies, falling through holding, getting out of one now and then, James Bond devices in the West—the whole bag.

"I'm not being Hollywood humble when I say that I don't even mind the working hours—and I have averaged 71 hours a week. In 28 episodes, I've had three mornings off."

Conrad is finishing up the first season, then he takes a brief respite and begins the second year—in color—April 18. He figures the series to last four or five years, after which he plans to set himself up in the picture business.

Terrell A Crossword Fighter—Clay

Vertical Then Horizontal

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, subdued and talking softly, suggested off the cuff on 'a television show Friday night that he run for vice-president of the United States.

"I was in the White House just the other day," Clay said, tongue obviously in cheek, "and I was talking with Mr. President Johnson.

"And I said to Mr. President Johnson that when the next election comes along, I ought to run for vice-president and he'd be elected for four years for sure.

"Then he asked me how come.

"So I told him there were three reasons.

"First of all, he'd get all the Negro votes. Second he'd get all the Black Muslim votes and the unions."

Clay, who was introduced on the Johnny Carson Show by his Black Muslim name of Muhammed Ali, then apparently lost count in his enjoyment of the moment and went immediately to point No. 4.

"Four, it would be the greatest life insurance in the world. I told him he could go anywhere he wanted, could take Mrs. President Johnson to the supermarket or anything.

"Then he wanted to know why, and I told him how much safer can he get. 'Who in the devil is gonna do you any harm when a Black Muslim is gonna be the next president?'

"He said he'd think about it." Clay then settled back in his chair in obvious satisfaction and added:

"I'll probably go see him later."

Clay touched on a number of subjects including his fight with Georgis Chuvalo in Toronto last Tuesday night, but both he and the show's host avoided any direct mention of either his draft status or impending troubles over non-payment of alimony.

Clay had a number of gags about Chuvalo but also added some compliments to the rugged Canadian champion who went 15 tough rounds before losing re a decision.

YOUGHEST OPPONENT

"I wouldn't say it was my toughest fight, but he was my toughest opponent," Clay said. "He just took so much punishment. Most fellas wouldn't. Most fellas would have quit.

"I'm sore all over. I'm sore on my back and my legs and my knees and my thighs. He hit so low so many times that I got hit on the knees about three times."

Clay said he'd spent most of the day watching films of tild fights, mentioning Jack Johnson, Joe Louis and others. In answer to a question, he said he thought he could beat any of them.

On Ernie Terrell, recognized as the champion by the World Boxing Association and Clay's originally - scheduled opponent, Clay had this to say:

"It's talking a lot about a fight. But I can tell you this. When we fight, he's going to be a crossword puzzle fighter."

"Crossword puzzle fighter?" the host asked, as straight man.

"Yeah," answered Clay. "He'll come in vertical and go out horizontal."

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Fly fishing is rapidly making a comeback throughout Eastern Ontario. According to these hard headed fishermen, this is the only way to catch trout or bass. They could be right. Let's take a look at the equipment a fly fisherman will use from the beginner to the expert.

For the beginner an 8½ or 9 foot rod with a medium action is recommended as an excellent starter. This type of rod will do a fine job in all around fishing for most species of fish. Most of the fish should be in the upper two thirds of the rod. The weight will vary from four to six ounces and the rods will mostly be made of fiberglass or split cane.

The casting of the fly, usually a tiny replica of an insect form, is possible because the fly line is comparatively so much heavier than the fly. So the fly rod casts the line and the fly goes along for the ride.

The fly reel is the simplest type of reel, from the single action to the automatic model. For most fresh water fishing the fly reel simply acts as a carrier for the line. This is because most fishermen do not retrieve the line with the reel but prefer to hand retrieve it. Instead, their underestimate the value of a good fly reel because of this peculiarity.

The single action model has a one to one retrieve ratio but this can be increased by using all the line backing the reel capacity will allow. You do this by first putting the fly line on the reel, tie on two continuous spools of braided line, about 10 lb. test, then fill the spool to within a ¼ inch of the edge.

The automatic fly reel has a large clocklike spring which is kept wound by stripping line from the reel. All you have to do is press a release lever with your little finger and presto it's all done automatically.

There is much to be said for both models and you will hear many arguments in favor of each, but, most advanced fly fishermen use the single action reel. Take your choice — you can't go wrong either way.

Fly lines leave an opening for many arguments with the experienced fly fishermen but here are some of the facts.

For years fly fishermen have been raising a fuss of balancing a specific line to a certain rod, vowing no other would do.

Here is some simple advice to save you headaches and money but it will get you into the swing of fly fishing without worrying about the uncertainty of perfect balance.

Firstly, any fly line will balance with any fly rod. That's right, even though your rod might be a six foot lightweight and the line a heavy bug taper, they will still balance.

This is because of one simple fact. Balance means when your fly rod, as you fish it, is just before being overloaded by the weight (length) of line you are false casting. In other words, a few more feet of line and your rod overloads to the point that your line starts to sag both on your forward and backcasts. Thus, "balance" is when you are casting the right length (or weight) of line to give your rod that sweet feel which lets you engage in the act of false casting with the least effort. (False casting means making repeated forward and backward casts without dropping the fly in the water.)

Simply take your line and your rod, get the best fly fisherman you know to assist you, and practice until you can keep your line in the air with the least effort. When your backcasts are high and forward casts straight, and your fly drops reasonably close to your target, you are ready to go fly fishing and to catch fish. It will be one of the most enjoyable experiences of your life.

Chevrolet value is tough to beat at any price...

Especially now during

Car buyers' field days

at your Chevrolet Dealer's

Impala Sport Sedan

Now's your chance to find out what makes Chevrolet tick . . . what makes it the best value in the business. Your Chevrolet dealer has his biggest selection of new cars in stock, so come in now and test drive just about any one of Chevrolet's 15 models.

You'll be amazed at how fast you'll acquire a taste for Chevrolet's Jet-smoother ride (it's so relaxing)...that beautiful Body by Fisher (it's so luxurious) . . . that sure-fire Chevrolet performance (it's so exciting). It's that combination that makes Chevrolet such a great buy. And when you sit down to talk price and trade, you'll discover that these really are Car Buyers' Field Days. . .

Why? Because this is your Chevrolet dealer's peak selling period. He has more cars in stock, so he can give you the best new-car deal going. He also needs good trade-ins, so he can offer you the best price for your car, no matter what make or model. And because he probably has the car you want right in the showroom, he can give you delivery in a matter of hours.

Tomorrow, go see your Chevrolet dealer and pick your kind of Chevrolet. No matter which one that is, you're sure of getting a really great deal right now during Car Buyers' Field Days.

BUS ROUTE CHANGE

WESTHILL - NORTHPARK

Effective Monday, April 4th, 1966 the Westhill Northpark Bus Route will be changed in the Grove Street area on a trial basis.

The bus will turn left from Grove Street on to Cameron Street and will proceed via Cameron Street and East Moira to resume its regular route at North Front Street.—

This change is made to by-pass the heavy traffic congestion on North Front Street during rush hours.

RECOVERY FLEET STALLED OVER BOMB — Vessels of the U.S. bomb recovery project are "anchored" above the bomb awaiting preparation of a CURV (Controlled Unmanned Recovery Vehicle.) The bomb, lost from a crashing B52 bomber in January, has been located five miles off Palomares Beach, Spain, 2,500 feet below the surface of the Mediterranean. Midget submersibles like the above shown here, are unable to attach a cable to the bomb since it slipped to a steep slope. The CURV, directed from the surface through use of underwater television, can reach the weapon a source at the scene said.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are driving to Miami Beach and would like to visit the Shenandoah National Park on our way down, as we plan to go there next summer. — A. W., Belleville

ANSWER: This is a very lovely trip in the summer time, as you can well imagine. At this time of year the scenery, of course, will be without the summer trimmings, but it still will make a nice drive. I suggest you drive through Watertown, Syracuse, Elmira and then to Williamsport. Take Highway 15 all the way down to Warrenton, and then go on No. 211 until you hit the Skyline Driveway which will take you through the park. At the end of the park, take highway No. 211 and No. 29 to Lynchburg and then over to No. 460 and No. 47 to Highway No. 15 again and on to Florida.

QUESTION: We are visiting Montreal at the end of this month. The past two or three times I have visited that city, I got completely lost upon entering. Would you please tell me where I can get a Montreal City map which would show me all the main streets, or could you give me direction on the best way to get downtown? — I. R., Belleville

ANSWER: For a map of the city write to Montreal Tourist and Convention Bureau Inc., 3955 Peel Street, Montreal, Quebec, or call at the Ontario Motor League office. On your next trip you will be on No. 401 and No. 2 when you cross the bridge at Ste-Anne de Bellevue. Take the new express highway which is the Boulevard Decarie, turn right on Decarie until you come to Sherbrooke, turn right on Peel and continue until you come to St. Catherine Street West or Boulevard Dorchester West, which will give you downtown Montreal.

QUESTION: We are leaving next week for Kentucky and would appreciate it, if you could tell us if visitors are allowed at any of the famous horse farms and what district to head for to visit them, etc.—E. McF, Belleville ANSWER: Lexington is the centre of some of the most famous horse farms in the world. Some of the noted thoroughbred farms in the vicinity are open to tourists. Visitors are cautioned to close all gates they open and not to smoke while on the grounds. Information and maps showing the location of the farms are available at the Blue Grass Automobile Club, 153 Walnut Street, Lexington.

The following is a list of some of the farms that are open to visitors.

Darby Dan Farm — hours 9 to 4.

Elmendorf — open daily 9 to 4 unless no visitor sign posted.

Greentree Stud — open 9 to 4, closed Sun. and holidays.

Maine Chance Farm — hours 9 to 4.

Walnut Hall Farm — visitors welcome until 4 p.m.

Man O' War Farm—a photographs of Man O' War line the walls of the stable where this famous horse lived for a number of years.

Calumet Farm — of special interest is the Horse Cemetery. The stallion barn is open 9 to 2 on visiting days other stables are closed to visitors but they may drive over the farm Mon. to Fri. 9 to 4.

Normandy Farm — Permission may be obtained from office.

Dixiana Farm — open 9 to 4.

Mereworth Farm — one of the largest breeders of thoroughbreds in the State and one of the largest commercial Hereford herds east of Mississippi. Permission may be obtained at office.

Swingin' Down the Lanes

With JIM McKENZIE

Athletes who stay up all night are hardly expected to excel at their particular sport . . . but, there are exceptions. For instance, take the over 100 five pin bowlers who rolled in the annual "Tommy" Singles Grips and Classic at O'Connor Bowl, Toronto, last Sunday. All of these gentlemen stood up all night and many of them excelled. They had to stay up all night to bowl in the tournament, which began at twelve midnight Saturday night and ended, ten games later, at 7.00 a.m.

Main reason for the all-night session was to enable the O'Connor Bowl, on behalf of the bowlers, to donate the entire proceeds of the lineage, to the East York Rotary Club for their work with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. A total of well over $500 was realized.

Two well-known local bowlers, Bud Petican and Bill Bateman, managed to stay awake and both rolled good totals. Petican's 2808 for the ten games was good for ninth spot and prize money. Bateman was far from outclassed with a 2414 performance. Winner was Bob Ernest Longpre of Montreal with a "Frank Merriwell" finish. A 301 ninth game and a 322 final game gave him a total of 2744.

It was just last Saturday that Longpre completed a remarkable string of 12 consecutive appearances on CBC Championship of Bowling and, although once again victorious, it was to have been his last show of this season. His "rummy" luck apparently pots him right back on TV and he'll be seen at 4.00 this afternoon bowling against second place finisher, Frank Degraits of Toronto. It only goes to prove that some stars can stay out all night!

Speaking of TV bowling, next Saturday the CBC will inaugurate a new format for the ballyhoo that's back and on the first show we'll see Sj Rizun, well remembered for his long string of victorious appearances. Others who'll be seen are Andre Morrisette, Bobby King of Winnipeg and who knows, maybe Bill Bateman who had a successful three weeks in the TV spotlight a few years ago.

DESERONTO — Mrs. Bonnie Festa of Dundas St. returned Thursday from the Kingston General Hospital following surgery.

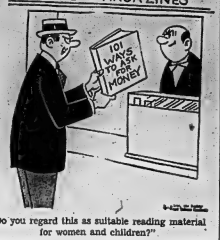
Clinton Topping of Stanley Ave. is under treatment in the Kingston General Hospital.

Mrs. Charles Cole of Fourth St. spent a week in Algonquin Park and the Huntsville area, visiting friends and enjoying the park in wintertime. She was accompanied by her granddaughter, Jodi Hird.

The Rev. Russell Finley of the United Church attended the meeting of the Bay of Quinte Presbytery in Madoc last Tuesday. Mr. Wilfed Lake of Morven accompanied him.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Clute will celebrate their 47th wedding anniversary Sunday, at the home of their daughter, Mrs. De Verde Powell and Mr. Powell near Napanee on Highway 2. Mr. and Mrs. Clute are Deseronto residents, but have been with their daughter since both returned from hospital in Kingston this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Chapman and Lori are visiting Mrs. Chapman's mother, Mrs. Neta Sweet of Dundas Street. Mr. Chapman is owner and manager of the operations at the Mohawk Drag-way, which holds its opening meet on Sunday. Deseronto is expecting an influx of between six and eight thousand to attend this.



Stamers "The Crucifixion" will be presented Sunday evening April 3, in the United Church, beginning at 8.00 p.m. The choirs of the Anglican Church and of the United Church are combining in this effort. Soloists from both churches are taking part, the production is being directed by Mrs. R. T. Simpson, organist and choir director of the United Church.

Deseronto Town Council will bring down its budget at Monday night's meeting. Mayor Gerald Lott has stated.

The Deseronto . Pentecostal Church will observe its 11th anniversary Sunday, April 3. The Rev. John McEwen, pastor of the church, stated that the guest speaker for both services will be the Rev. Norman E. Schlarbaum of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College of Peterborough.

Russian Satellite Lunar X Is Reported In Orbit Around Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government told the Communist party congress today that Luna X has gone into orbit around the moon, marking a major step toward a manned landing. It was history's first artificial satellite to orbit the moon.

The announced Soviet feat chalks up a key victory over the United States, which still has to match the soft moon landing achieved by Russia's Luna IX Feb. 3. The U.S. is not scheduled to begin moon orbits until late this year.

The Russians dramatized the feat by playing a recording of the Internationale, the Communist anthem, which Luna X had broadcast. The broadcast of the anthem was also picked up Sunday by West Germany's Bochum Observatory.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the moon satellite was equipped with scientific instruments "for the exploration of near lunar outer space" and that these were radioing data back to earth.

There was no indication, however, of what data was being received. Nor was there any suggestion that photographs of the moon's surface would be sent back.

The Russians achieved their first moon spectacular in September, 1959, when Luna II planted the Soviet flag on the moon. In October, 1959, Luna III made the first photographs of the unseen side of the moon, transmitting pictures of seas, oceans and craters never before seen by man.

After a number of unsuccessful attempts, the Russians made the first soft landing with Luna IV last February and sent back the first closeup picture of the moon.

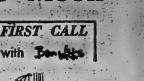
Luna X was launched Thursday in the first announced attempt to orbit the moon. Tass said it reached the vicinity of the moon and went into orbit at 9:44 p.m. Sunday (1:44 p.m. EST). This was detected by Western space trackers Sunday, but the Russians saved their announcement for the reopening of the party congress after a weekend recess.

Tass said Luna X was orbiting the moon about every three hours, and that the orbit ranges in altitude from 217.5 to 621 miles from the lunar surface.

The British space tracking station at Jodrell Bank announced Sunday night that signals picked up from Luna X indicated it had gone into close orbit around the moon. But Sir Bernard Lovell, the director of the station, said fading signals indicated that something had gone wrong and that Luna X might be in a spinning, tumbling orbit.

Lovell said "unless the Russians fire more retro-rockets Luna X will stay around the moon forever."

The British space scientists said the exploit raised a number of interesting possibilities: That the Russians would adjust the satellite's orbit, bring it out of orbit and land it on the moon, or bring it back to earth. But he added: "I think the most likely thing is that they will leave it there.



"If the Russians decide to leave it in the present orbit of the moon, it will give important information about the gravitation and shape of the moon.

"All these techniques and factors are important in future plans to land a man there."

Asked to mention whether Luna X carried cameras. If Luna X can take pictures of the moon from various angles, with the sun's rays casting different shadows, it could aid in preparation of more detailed maps of the barren surface than is possible from earth and help scientists pick a landing place for the first manned moon flight.

Cosmonaut Alexei Leonov, the first man to walk in space outside his orbiting spacecraft, said in a television interview today that the most important task of the Russian program was to put a man on the moon. He said every lunar experiment worked toward this aim.

Rail Firemen End Paralyzing Four-Day Strike

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Train movements picked up speed over eight major U.S. railways from coast to coast today after rail firemen ended a paralyzing four-day strike.

Under stiff pressure from President Johnson and heavy fines imposed by a federal judge, the union held out to the last minute in winning pledges of no reprisals against strikers or members of other unions who refused to cross picket lines.

President H. E. Gilbert of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (AFL-CIO) called off the 36-state strike just before midnight Sunday night.

Gilbert goes back before U.S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff today, facing possible punishment for the 13-hour delay in getting the strikers back to work. Holtzoff had set a Sunday noon deadline.

Holtzoff also imposed fines of $25,000 a day against the union and $2,500 a day against Gilbert, effective at noon.

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's inquiry into Mr. Justice Leo Landreville's fitness to remain on the Ontario Supreme Court resumes here today.

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of Sudbury in 1956 when Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. obtained a municipal franchise there. Seven months later —after he had been appointed to the bench—he received free 7,500 shares of NOONG Stock.

Police Dog Finds $16,000 in Bush Near Glen Miller

Butch's nose is a valuable asset to the Ontario Provincial Police.

He used it Saturday to root out almost $16,000, believed the money stolen Wednesday from the Bank of Montreal in Frankford.

Butch and his handler, Constable Gary D. Walker, O.P.P. Kemptville, were part of a massive three-day search of the bush in the Glen Miller area. Over 100 police officers took part in that search.

The money was located in the bush about eight miles south of Frankford. Despite a snowfall Friday morning, Butch was still able to follow footprints and locate the money.

Sgt. Lloyd Lyle said, "It's just fantastic that a capable dog Butch is. It's hard to believe any dog could follow the scent for eight miles from the scene and after a two-fall."

GAVE POLICE TIP

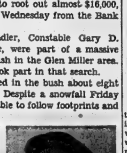
Police revealed today that a Belleville area man was instrumental in Thursday's apprehension of four suspects.

Police said Harvey Martin, R.R. 8, Belleville, was driving a Wilson Concrete Products trucks west on Highway 401 Thursday when he spotted a car stop quickly and two men run out of the bush and get in.

Mr. Martin took the licence number of the car and notified the police, enabling three O.P.P. cars to intercept the suspect vehicle which contained the four suspects.

The suspects, four Montreal men, are now in custody. They are Maurice Langis, 31, Armand Blanc, 34, Victor Tessier, 42, and Gilles Gaudette, 27.

Inspector A. McDougall, Belleville O.P.P., had high praise for two O.P.P. constables, Gord Oliver and Allen Armstrong.



"Constables Oliver and Armstrong are the two men who found the hookup car in the bush west of Glen Miller. This was extremely important as it told us where to concentrate our search and it also led to the discovery of the footprints in the bush.

"Without this discovery, we would have been in a difficult position indeed."

Issue Ready For Vote

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The emotion-packed issue of capital punishment comes to a preliminary vote in the Commons today with a showdown due Tuesday night.

Most MPs and political observers predict only that the outcome will be close in the vote free of party lines.

Under an order passed unanimously by the House Thursday night, a roll-call vote must be taken by 8 p.m. EST today on a Creditiste amendment to retain the death penalty for one type of murder.

The amendment, introduced a week ago by Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Roberval), affects planned and deliberate murders committed by any prisoner serving a life sentence.

Many abolitionists are reported ready to vote for the amendment to improve their chances of winning the vote on the main resolution, as amended.

Riots Hit Saigon; Govt. Ready to Fight Da Nang

From AP-Reuters

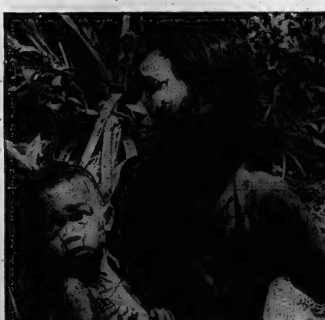
SAIGON (CP)—Rioting broke out in Saigon tonight as Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime wrestled with a spreading rebellion in South Viet Nam.

The U.S. military command declared the capital's streets, bars and public places off limits to off-duty American military personnel.

Government police with tear-gas and clubs broke up about 500 teen-age demonstrators at the old National Assembly building but the youths then surged toward the Saigon River in the direction of the U.S. embassy.

Another 1,000 demonstrators struck out from the Buddhist Institute, but police beat them back with tear-gas and club charges.

The rioting was the worst to hit Saigon in the crisis that threatens the life of Ky's nine-month-old government.



Police cordoned off the U.S. Information Service building, one block from the National Assembly. U.S. personnel who were in a restaurant atop the building shouted at the demonstrators.

The demonstrators appeared to be in the 17 to 25 age bracket.

Demonstrators overturned an American military jeep and set fire to it. None of the occupants was hurt.

Anti-government demonstrations flared up again in several cities and military and police

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's embattled military regime mobilized planes and paratroops today to crush what he called a "Communist-inspired" state of insurrection in Da Nang. But South Viet Nam's political crisis spread to other cities.

The mayor of Da Nang, South Viet Nam's second largest city with 100,000 population, hurled defiance at Ky, denouncing his charges and saying the Da Nang "people will stand up" to any attempt to seize the northern trouble spot.

There was no indication when Ky's airborne units would move north.

Da Nang's Mayor, Nguyen Van Man, a French-educated physician, branded Ky's insertions of a Communist takeover there as stupid and a distortion. In a press conference at the city hall, piped by loudspeaker to a crowd of 1,000 supporters outside, Man charged that Ky had "openly defied the people of Da Nang."

Asked whether he agreed with the anti-Americanism displayed in public protests in Da Nang and elsewhere, the mayor said:

"Not at all. We are very thankful that the Americans are helping the Vietnamese fight the Viet Cong. We are not critical of Americans although we might disagree with some American policies."

Some 50,000 U.S. troops stationed in and around Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon, were under orders to avoid any involvement in the crisis.

The U.S. Marine Corps commandant, Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., said in Washington the marines headquartered at Da Nang would not be put at Ky's disposal to wrest back the city.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: All of Ontario is in a light northerly to northwesterly flow of modified arctic air and this weather pattern is unlikely to change significantly in the next day or so. Temperatures will continue rather cool. Local snow is expected over the north than over southern Ontario. The light snow falling at times over Northern Ontario will continue and only a few widely scattered snowflurries are likely over southern Ontario.

Reports 'Silent Revolution' In Treating Mentally Ill

As result of recent breakthroughs in drugs and therapy, mentally ill patients now have a better than 80 per cent chance of returning to society within six months.

This was told to members of the Belleville Y's Men's Club by Bob Henderson of Smith, Kline and French drug firm of Montreal as he addressed the club's "president's night" meeting here Saturday evening.

Speaking on the "silent revolution" in the treatment of the mentally ill, Mr. Henderson told the meeting that mental illness was the nation's No. 1 health problem with patients filling more beds than cancer, heart disease and tuberculosis patients combined.

He said the disease is one born or other afflicted 1,800,000 Canadians, or one person in ten and one family in four.

"But the picture has a bright side too," he said. "At no time in the past have prospects for understanding and treating mental illness been as promising as they are today.

"Professionals are more mobilized against mental illness and new drugs are powerful weapons in their hands. The search for new, more effective drugs is continuing."

1956 TURNING POINT

A turning point in mental health history was reached in 1956 when tranquilizers were first used on a large scale. This was also the year when for the first time in history there was a drop in the number of mental hospital patients in proportion to the population.

Today more patients are being received at mental hospitals and are being treated successfully and so returning to the community.

The speaker spoke of the need for an understanding of mental illness. By means of modern knowledge, it has often possible to detect the illness in advance and treat the patient so he does not have to enter hospital.

"We can help those recovering from mental illness when we accept them as they are, when we welcome them to our homes, our businesses and our organizations," Mr. Henderson concluded.

"What a former mental patients wants above all is a chance — a chance to pick up the threads of life — to be accepted once more by his family, his friends and his community."

Guests were present from Kingston, Ottawa and Montreal to enjoy the president's night banquet party started by club jester Jim Barton, re-elected for a second term.

INDUCTS OFFICERS

District Governour Ken Sanford of Ottawa, inducted the new executive: President, Jim Barton; first vice, Glen Salter; secretary, Vern Weir; treasurer, Bill Kindy; past pres., Garry Sherman; directors, Les Backus, Robbie Clarke, Cecil Hinzer, Terry Marsco, Graham Geldart and Ken Thompson.

Several presentations for perfect attendance were awarded, notably to Bert Hiles, 14 years, and Robbie Clarke, 18 years.

Hugh Watson, president of the Y.M.C.A., brought greetings from the Board of Directors to the gathering. Mrs. Bert Monroe, wife of the Y General Secretary, led the group in a fun-filled sing-song. The evening concluded with prizes being won by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hutchinson and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Watson for high scores.

of the four sponsors of the resolution to substitute life imprisonment for hanging, said in a statement Mr. Cathbert's amendment is acceptable to him and to other abolitionists.

Few murders of the type described in the amendment had occurred in the past.

The hanging debate, interrupted a week ago after running almost three sitting days, must come to a vote by 9:30 p.m. EST Tuesday. If a second amendment is brought in, it must be voted on by 3:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Prime Minister Pearson told reporters Sunday he does not plan to speak in the debate because he believes a speech by the leader of the government might exert undue influence.

Lawn Bowlers Getting Ready For Season

The executive of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club met at the home of the president, William Wright, over the week-end to lay plans for the coming season and the usual enthusiasm shown the lawn bowlers are in for a good season. Those present included the secretary, George Fisher, the treasurer, Owen Gray, secretary-treasurer of the Corbin committee, Harold B. Hyde and Gordon Vince, John Avery, Roy Hall, Ken Ashley, Art Brown, Bruce Graham, Bill VanTassel and Claude D. Tice.

The Corbin committee was again formed with Bill VanTassel being elected convener, chairman and "Jerry" Hyde as secretary - treasurer. Mr. Hyde gave a report on the tournaments last year, which showed it was a successful one but plans for a better one are being laid. The entry price for this year's event will be $20 a rink a hike of four dollars from last year. Mr. Bradden will conduct the advertising for this event and also will be in charge of collecting.

The greenskeeper, Jack Smith, was again employed for the season and the light and water will be turned on at the greens about the middle of the month. A committee was named to meet with the members of the Trenton Bowling Club to discuss terms for the use of the Belleville greens for tournaments during the year. Other matters of a financial nature were discussed at length. The spring meeting for the club will be held on Saturday May 7th at which time the executive will report to the membership. It is hoped there will be a large turnout at this meeting.

A concerted drive for membership will be conducted this year. Many of the older members who have retired from bowling for the time being, will be invited to return and younger members will be eagerly sought. Lawn - bowling is a splendid summer pastime and a way to spend a most enjoyable evening.

Guides, Brownies Hold Tea and Art Show

TRENTON — RCAF Trenton Guides and Brownies, with the assistance of their mothers, held a tea and art show in Brownies' school over the weekend. The tea was arranged by Mrs. Dora Brink, district commissioner and Mrs. J. P. Hunt, district secretary, and Mrs. Vera Powell in charge of the kitchen. Tables were decorated in true brownie style with crocheted cloths, white cloths and white candle holders. The centre table held a display of all life, arts and crafts of the artists' theme of the event.

In charge of the art exhibit was Mrs. Joan Anderson and she was assisted by Mrs. Carley Henry.

Facing the tea table were exhibits of prize winning RCAF oil paintings, and of the 160 paintings on display altogether many were from the brush of local artists, not connected with the service.

Conversation pieces— were "art out" display by Dave Rye, who has recently retired from the RCAF and now makes his home in Yorkville Village, Toronto; a controversial painting, "Grass" by G. Putnam of Belleville, depicting the futility of war and based on a poem by Carl Sandburg; "Black and White," also by Mr. Putnam; "long, tall narrow pastels" making use of plaster of paris and freezer; traditional landscapes and three paintings, by an Australian artist, Bernice Hunt, who married Brian Hunt, of Trenton, recently and is continuing her talent to both media and subjects.

One section was devoted to handiwork fashioned by Guides and Brownies of the RCAF complex and another point of interest was a display of pebble-art driftwood, which anyone could adopt as a hobby.

preliminary hearing. Latey, the Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario) recommended he be removed from the bench, a step which only Parliament can take and which has never been done with a high court judge in Canada.

The Rand inquiry sat last month in Vancouver — from where the NONG shares were sent to the judge—and Sudbury, where former municipal colleagues testified Mayor Landreville did not exert any improper pressure during the controversial passage of the company's franchise.

The 56-year-old justice, who has not yet testified, will be the final witness at the public hearings.

About 16 witnesses have been called for Toronto, including John McGraw of Vancouver, head of the brokerage firm of Continental Investments which forwarded the 7,750 shares to the judge. Mr. McGraw was in Africa when the commission sat in Vancouver.

Convesto's books showed it put through a deal by which it bought 10,000 shares of NONG at $2.50 a share in Mr. Justice Landreville's name and simultaneously sold 2,500 of these at $10 to meet the $25,000 purchase price, that the judge the remaining 7,500 without his putting up any money.

CHARGED TO FARRIS

The commission has not yet been told precisely how this operation was directed, although the books showed that the repurchase price was charged to the personal account of Hedley K. Farris of Vancouver, then NONG president. Mr. Farris in 1964 was convicted of perjury for having told an Ontario government inquiry in 1958 he did not know the disposition of a 14,000-share block of stock that included the Landreville shares.

At the Vancouver hearings, Mr. Farris was not pressed as to whether he had ordered the the transaction. However, he did say the Landreville acquisition was the consequence of an action the present judge had received while he was mayor, based on a supposition that he was to join the company as an executive. His appointment to the bench had nullified the agreement, but it was renewed at his request.

42 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 42 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, including 11 in one fire in Ontario.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local time, in each province showed 28 died in traffic mishaps, one was drowned, and two died in natural causes or accidents.

Ontario led the provinces with 20 deaths. The 11 fire deaths at the Ojibway Indian reserve on Parry Island in Georgian Bay, 55 miles northwest of Orillia, included nine children and two adults.

Forestry Study Unit Will Hold Tweed Meeting

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests forestry study unit, under the direction of J. A. Brodie, is holding a public meeting at the Town Hall in Tweed, Tuesday, April 19 at 10 a.m.

Mr. Brodie is chief of the timber branch of the Department of Lands and Forests. He is considered an expert in forest management.

The forestry study unit was set up in 1964. Its purpose is to examine the existing forest resources of the Province of Ontario, to assure continued progress in use with a view to their fullest development.

The unit studies forestry practices in Ontario and recommends such measures as may be necessary to continue sound programs of silviculture, conservation and forest management.

Those attending the April 19 meeting in Tweed will have the opportunity to express their opinions on the management of the forest resources in this area.

Bridge Club Nearing End Of Schedule

With exactly three quarters of the scheduled games completed and reported to the League secretary Gerald Hyde, announced today that the standings show Messrs. Bill Coulby and Sid Vandervoort out in front with a comfortable lead over their nearest rivals. They have amassed a net plus score of 28,570 and have just three games left to play. They are followed by Jack Carson and Dr. Larry Simpson who have a plus of 21,650 with two games to play. Then follow Irv Shulman and Larry Simpson with 19,020 and three to go; Jim Aitken and Ted Schwab with 16,460 and three to go; Harold Mott and "Red" Townsend with 14,620 and two to play; Frank Domenico and Frank Creegan with 13,620 and three remaining and Jerry Hyde and Bruce Miller with 12,060 plus and two games to play. Five other teams in the league have at plus scores at this time and follow in this order: F. Catton and H. Lebel, J. White and Mc.Cullam, N. Banuk and H. Piperni, S. Reston and J. Belanger and C. Bailey, C. Bailey.

The special slam point prize won by Aitken and Schwab with 14 and Mott and Townsend with 13 in the back line. Aitken and ler with nine and Carson and Empson with seven are their nearest competitors at this time.

With the schedule calling for the finishing of all games by April 16th, the secretary urged that all teams which have been forced to postpone games during the league play make every effort to get these caught up so that the standings may be completed on schedule.

Fire Destroys Vacant Frame Motel Building

Fire of still undetermined origin early Sunday morning completely destroyed a vacant frame motel building in the North Front-Donald Street area.

The 100-foot long building owned by Bill Dolina was located east of North Front Street and north of Craig Street.

Firemen said easily one half of the structure was scorched in flames when the department arrived on the scene shortly after one o'clock. The flames had also spread through the attic toward the opposite end of the structure.

There was no hydro to the building and firemen are at a loss regarding the possible origin of the fire.

Crowds Large As Elks Sponsor Show of Magic

The amazing Conklins presented a 2 - hour shows of magic and illusion Saturday at R.C.I.V.S. Sponsored by the Elks Lodges of Belleville, Trenton and Picton, the Conklins thoroughly delighted the capacity crowds that attended the afternoon or evening performances.

Jerry Conklin, star of the show had the audience hanging on the edge of their seats as he apparently stabbed his wife several times doing the Hindu basket trick. He emerged unscathed. Connie Phelps, the closing princess seemed to vanish into thin air.

Duke Stern delighted the children and adults as well during the many zaney changes with his magical tricks, especially with a key duck that answered arithmetic problems faster than Stern could ask them.

The Amazing Conklins are a family group so son Michael, 14 and daughter Cynthia, 12, assisted in most of the shows acts. Gary Phelps is the man behind the scene.

Due to the generosity of many of the merchants and business men of the Quinte area several hundred children who would not have otherwise been able to see this excellent show were present.

Quinte Student Is Winner Of Legion District Contest

The Royal Canadian Legion District F public speaking contest at Cobourg on Sunday saw a Belleville girl win first prize in her group.

Sharon Dalton, Quinte Secondary Secondary was first place for Grade 9 and 10 for her talk on the United Nations and will represent again in Belleville April 17th at the district "speak-off" for contestants from Eastern Ontario and the Ottawa Valley.

Other first place winners in Sunday's competition at Cobourg were Joanne Gainor, Dunbarton, grades 1-6; Anne Short, Trenton, grades 7-8, and Brian Leppan, Peterborough, grades 11-13.

Angela Vesden of Ameliasburg and Tom DeForge of Trenton placed second in their groups.

Legionnaire Jack Rasbotte of Belleville was chairman for Sunday's competition, with the judges being Miss Cecelia Maloney, John Smith and Carson Stratton, all well known in the local teaching profession.

preliminary hearing. Later, the Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario) recommended he be removed from the bench, a step which only Parliament can take and which has never been done with a high court judge in Canada.

The Rand inquiry sat last month in Vancouver — from where the NONG shares were sent to the judge—and Sudbury, where former municipal colleagues testified Mayor Landerville did not exert any improper pressure during the controversial passage of the company's franchise.

The 56-year-old Justice, who has not yet testified, will be the final witness at the public hearings.

About 10 witnesses have been called for Toronto, including John McGraw of Vancouver, head of the brokerage firm of Continental Investments which forwarded the 7,500 shares to the judge. Mr. McGraw was in Africa when the commission sat in Vancouver.

Converto's books showed it put through a deal by which it bought 10,000 shares of NONG at $2.50 a share in Mr. Justice Landerville's name and simultaneously sold 2,500 of these at $10 to meet the $25,000 purchase price, giving the judge the remaining 7,500 without his putting up any money.

CHARGED TO FARRIS

The commission has not yet been told precisely how this operation was executed, although the books showed that the repurchase price was charged to the personal account of Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, then NONG president. Mr. Farris in 1964 was convicted of perjury for having told an Ontario government inquiry in 1958 he did not know the disposition of a 14,000-share block of stock that included the Landerville shares.

At the Vancouver hearings, Mr. Farris was not pressed as to whether he had ordered the transaction. However, he did say the Landerville acquisition was the consequence of an option the present judge had received while he was mayor, based on a supposition that he was to join the company as an executive. His appointment to the bench had nullified the agreement, but it was renewed at his request.

42 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 42 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, including 11 in one fire in Ontario.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also showed 26 died in traffic mishaps, one was drowned, and two died in unclassified accidents.

Ontario led the provinces with 20 deaths. The 11 fire deaths at the Ojibway Indian reserve on Parry Island in Georgian Bay, 55 miles northwest of Orillia, included nine children and two adults.

Forestry Study Unit Will Hold Tweed Meeting

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests forestry study unit, under the direction of J. A. Brodie, is holding a public meeting at the Township Hall in Tweed, Tuesday, April 12 at 10 a.m.

Mr. Brodie is chief of the timber branch of the Department of Lands and Forests. He is considered an expert in forest management.

The forestry study unit was set up in 1964. Its purpose is to examine the existing forest resources of the Province of Ontario, to assure continued progress in use with a view to the fullest future benefits.

The unit studies forestry practices in Ontario and recommends such measures as may be necessary to continue sound programs of silviculture, conservation and forest management.

Those attending the April 12 meeting in Tweed will have the opportunity to express their opinions on the management of the forest resources in this area.

Bridge Club Nearing End Of Schedule

With exactly three quarters of the scheduled games completed and reported to date, League secretary Gerald Hyde, announced today that the standings show Messrs. Bill Coulby and Skit Vandervoort out in front with a comfortable lead over their nearest rivals. They have amassed a net plus score of 28,570 and have just three games left to play. They are followed by Jack Carson and Dr. Jack Empson who have a plus of 21,850 with two games to play. Then follow Irv Shulman and Harry Bannister with 19,020 and three to go; Jim Aitken and Ted Schwab with 16, 460 and three to go; Harold Mott and "Red" Townsend with 14,620 and two to play; Frank Domenico and Frank Creegan with 13,620 and three remaining and Jerry Hyde and Bruce Miller with 12,900 plus and two games to play. Five other teams in the league have net plus scores at this time and follow in this order: F. Catton and H. Lebel, M. White and Mrs. McCullam, N. Banuk and H. Piperal, S. Reston and J. Belanger and J. Walker and Mrs. Bailey.

The special slam point prize shows Aitken and Schwab with 14 and Mott and Townsend with 13 in the lead. Hyde and Miller with nine and Carson and Empson with seven are their nearest competitors at this time.

With Thanksgiving calling for the celebration of all games by April 10th, the secretary urged that all teams which have been rained out rearrange their games in the next two weeks so that the ladies night banquet and prize distribution may be completed on schedule.

Quinte Curling Club Closes Season With Dinner, Dance

One hundred and fifty members of the Quinte Curling Club were on hand for the closing function of the season. Trophies that were won by the various clubs were presented, a buffet lunch was served and, dancing enjoyed till the small hours of the morning.

The mixed curling event for the Northern Electric Company Trophy was concluded and a rink of Mrs. Wyn McKeen, Joseph Valchar, Mrs. Agnes Benn with Ron Benn as skip won the trophy defeating a rink skipped by Jim Walker and only after an extra end. The trophy was presented by Al Shukster on behalf of the Company.

A rink of Miss Elizabeth Black, Bill Downing, Mrs. Kelly Brown with Dave Brown as skip was winner of the second event in the spiel and the presentation was made by Gokie Livingston.

The Bill Gault trophy emblematic of the men's curling title for the club was won by a rink of Murray Mowat, Huck Ingram, Ken Bulford with Bob Bastable as skip and the donor of the trophy made the presentation to the winning rink. The Hugh Murray trophy was won by a rink of Jack Robson, Everett Fairman, Jim Pettiferw with Dave Brown as skip and this trophy was presented by Bob Bastable. Fred Deacon, chairman of the mixed curling league presented the Hyman trophy, the oldest in the club to a rink of Mrs. Pat Dalton, Al Chadland, Mrs. Wyn Maund with Ross Booth as skip.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the floor was cleared and Dempster's orchestra took over and the assembly enjoyed dancing and a midnight lunch. It was a grand close to a most successful season.

Fire Destroys Vacant Frame Motel Building

Fire of still undetermined origin early Sunday morning completely destroyed a vacant frame motel building in the North Front-Donald Street area.

The 100-foot long building owned by Bill Dalzio was located east of North Front Street and north of Craig Street.

Firemen said easily one half of the structure was enveloped in flames when the department arrived on the scene shortly after one o'clock. The flames had also spread through the attic toward the opposite end of the structure.

There was no hydro to the building and firemen are at a loss regarding the possible origin of the fire.

Crowds Large As Elks Sponsor Show of Magic

The amazing Conklins presented a 2 - hour shows of magic and illusion Saturday at B.C.I. V.S. Sponsored by the Elks Lodges of Belleville, Trenton and Picton, the Conklins thoroughly delighted the capacity crowds that attended the afternoon or evening performances.

Jerry Conklin, star of the show had the audience hanging on the edge of their seats as he apparently stabbed his wife several times doing the Hindu basket trick, yet she emerged unscathed. Connie Phelps, the vanishing princess seemed to vanish into thin air.

Duke Stern delighted the children and adults as well during the many scene changes with his magical tricks, especially with a toy duck that answered arithmetic problems faster than Stern could ask them.

The Amazing Conklins are a family group so son Michael, 14 and daughter Cynthia, 12, assisted in most of the illusions' acts. Cary Phelps is the man behind the scene.

Due to the generosity of many of the merchants and business men of the Quinte area several hundred children who would not have otherwise been able to see this excellent show were present.

Quinte Student Is Winner Of Legion District Contest

The Royal Canadian Legion District F public speaking contest at Cobourg on Sunday saw a Belleville girl win first prize in her group.

Sharon Dalton, Quinte Secondary School, won first place for Grade 9 and 10 for her talk on the United Nations and will compete again in Belleville on April 17th at the district "speak-off" for contestants from Eastern Ontario and the Ottawa Valley.

Other first place winners in Sunday's competition at Cobourg were Joanne Gainor, Dunbarton, grades 1-6; Anne Skeet, Trenton, grades 7-8, and Brian Lappan, Peterborough, grades 11-13.

Angela Vosden of Ameliasburg and Tom DeForge of Trenton placed second in their groupings.

Legionnaire Jack Rashotte of Belleville was chairman for Sunday's competition, with the judges being Miss Cecelia Maloney, John Smith and Carlton Sparrow all well known in the local teaching profession.

South African Election

Overshadowed somewhat by the British general election, a similar vote in South Africa has returned Prime Minister Verwoerd's government to power with a record majority. His National Party won 126 seats in the 170-seat Assembly.

Thus the maintenance of the policy of apartheid, or separate development of the white and black populations, is assured for another extended period.

If South Africa regards apartheid as separate development — and in large measure it is — the system is also rightly viewed as one of discrimination against the Negro and colored populations.

The Negroes number some 11,000,000 as against about 4,000,000 Europeans, but they have no vote in the Assembly. Instead, the government places much stock on the establishment of separate Negro states within the republic such as Transkei.

Apartheid has given South Africa a bad name around the world. Yet criticism of the republic has only served to harden the attitude of the Verwoerd government. Many English-speaking South Africans, moreover, have rallied to the support of the principally Afrikaans-speaking Nationalists descended from the Dutch settlers. Even they have been disturbed by reports of chaos resulting from the granting of independence to African majorities in other parts of the continent.

It is said a country gets the government it deserves. And South Africans in recent years have shown loyalty to their view that this is the kind of government and leadership they want. And while apartheid has led to violations of human rights it is also proper to point out that successive nationalist governments have done much for the Negro and other non-white populations. For example, there are schools, universities, hospitals and housing areas which cater only to the needs of non-white groups.

South African golfer Gary Player was once asked for his views on his country's racist policies. He refused to be drawn into controversy, but his reply was a good one. He said, if we recollect his words accurately, that he was sure his countrymen had voted for a government which would do its best for them and for the country.

Sex Education

The subject of sex education in the schools is a controversial one. But then, sex generally is surrounded by so much prejudice, taboo, conflicts of opinion and plain ignorance that one more facet of controversy will not matter very much.

After all, sex is here to stay, as the wit put it, in a classic summation of a basic fact.

Why then should young people not be told what sex is all about, in clear, concise and unequivocal terms, whether by parents or by teachers? Ideally, parents should perform this task, but the trouble is not every parent, even those with a good general education is competent to do it.

That being so, why not permit sex education in the schools? Certainly there seems to be a growing demand for it. The Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, for example, is to be asked at its annual convention next week to support the inclusion of the subject in school curricula.

The request comes from Brantford Home and School council which has indicated it will introduce a pilot course in any event. In Brockville recently Toniata Parent-Teachers' Association held a panel discussion on sex education in the schools.

In this, as in any other vital matter, a knowledge of the facts is much more beneficial for young people, than if they are left to find out for themselves.

The Bohemians

An unfortunate characteristic of many of the so-called peace marchers is their scruffy appearance. With their beards and long unkempt hair, jeans and sneakers, they look as if they had come straight out of Greenwich Village.

A placard carried by a counter-demonstrator at the recent march in Ottawa suggested rather bluntly that a bit of soap and water might improve the appearance of the "peacenicks."

Over in Britain there is a long-haired entertainer who rejoices in the name of Screaming Lord Sutch. His talent as a singer is dubious, but the kids seem to go for him and there is little more we can say on that score.

Sutch also has political ambitions, and he was an opponent of Prime Minister Wilson, no less, in the British election. For the campaign Sutch had his 23-inch mane trimmed.

He explained that he wanted to look "clean and dignified." Admirable sentiments, most would agree. But why is it there are others, and particularly the placard-wavers who like to make public exhibitions of themselves, who are happy only when looking something like prehistoric man?

Can Get Lead Poisoning From Gasoline Fumes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of lead poisoning? Can it result from cleaning auto parts with gasoline?

I wonder if my 16-year-old son could have got it when he was repairing his car. He became quite sick, especially with headaches, lost weight and looked pale.

What organ does lead poisoning affect? Does one get anemia from it? — G. J. F.

Lead poisoning can be caused by breathing the fumes of, or by handling gasoline which contains tetra-ethyl lead.

There are different degrees of lead poisoning, but your son's headaches and pallor are among the usual symptoms. Others are loss of appetite, nausea and neuritis. A typical sign is a bluish - gray discoloration at the junction of the gums and teeth.

Since the lead is absorbed into the blood stream, virtually all organs can be affected to some degree, and red blood cells can be damaged, causing anemia.

If your son continues tinkering with his car, as no doubt he will at that age, he should work only in a well-ventilated place, and he should use some solvent other than leaded (ethyl) gasoline for cleaning purposes. White gasoline or kerosene would be better.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your booklet on mononucleosis was a tremendous help in explaining the sickness to our 16-year-old son. He was taken to hospital a month ago. It was a frightening experience. He is home now and recovering nicely.

We told your booklet was the best medicine he had. It took away his confusion as to what had happened to him, and what to expect in the weeks to follow. It seemed to give him peace of mind that we could not initially give him. —Mrs. R. R. C. M.

"Mono" is a very common disease among young folks but can be bewildering and upsetting unless it is understood.

By no means do all patients have to be hospitalized, the disease can be mild or severe. When not recognized, it can make a bright, active student appear to be dull and stupid because he is so exhausted.

Fortunately it is not a dangerous disease if reasonable care is taken to prevent complications. It is self-limited; the patient, in time, recovers. But while the extreme lassitude lasts it can make parents and teachers — and the youngsters themselves — wonder what on earth is happening to them. To obtain a copy of the booklet, "Mononucleosis — What It Is; What To Do," send 20 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box.158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Four of my fingernails are becoming white and dormant, and separating from the skin gradually towards the bottom of the nails. The nails are not thin and weak; they are as strong as ever. Can you help me? — J. C.

Only to direct you to suggestions mentioned. The whiteness is doubtless due to failure of certain chemical changes to take place in the nail substance. Injury to the nails is one possibility; so is exposure to various chemicals. Do you come in contact with any in your work or hobbies? Disturbances of the thyroid can be involved also. The condition also can be hereditary.

With so many varied possibilities I think your best course is to consult a dermatologist.

Ottawa Centennial Show

Centennial Commission

By means of stereophonic sound and the use of special color lighting, the story of the building of a nation will unfold in a 40-minute "Son et Lumiere" presentation planned for the Centennial Year in Canada's capital.

Highlights from Canada's history will be portrayed through the blending of lighting effects, voices, special sound effects and music in two evening presentations each summer night, utilizing the Parliament Hill buildings as the focal point.

Ottawa's Centennial "Son et Lumiere" is being produced by Legendecon Productions Ltd., of Toronto, of which Maxwell Moore is president. Legendecon Productions has only other sound and light presentation in Canada - - at Hamilton's Dundurn Castle and Upper Canada Village on the St. Lawrence River.

The Capital Hill presentation will be the largest and most spectacular presentation of its kind ever seen in Canada and will be the first time any natural capital has ever been dramatized in this manner.

Visitors will be seated at dusk in a permanent 1,000-seat amphitheatre to be constructed at Confederation Park between 1,500 feet from the actual illumination area surrounding the Parliament Buildings.

Sounds of days-long-past will return as the script unfolds, retelling the adventures of the men who built Canada from its earliest days.

Visible actors are used, although by stereophonic effects their footsteps and voices move unforgettably along the tree-lined walks, through the buildings and in some cases among the audience," said Bill Handbury of Legendrama Productions.

Basic script for the Centennial "Son et Lumiere" has been assigned and will be written during the coming months. Details and specific highlights have not been determined but it is planned to feature the spectacular 1958 fire which consumed the Parliament Buildings as a grande finale.

"This is our peak effect," says Handbury. "Suddenly the call of fire! The entire centre block is being consumed by flames, with realistic crackling sounds of a big building burning, very close to us, real lights dancing and flickering over real smoke. The shouts of the volunteers and the loudest possible sound effects will be heard as the walls tumble down and the Centre Block is levelled.

"From here the epic drama swiftly is a close. After the fire will come silence and darkness. Then the portrayal of the swift reconstruction of the buildings will symbolize the building of Canada itself as a nation."

City Has Assets It Should Boost

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With all the recent suggestions and criticisms being voiced in your paper about our fair city, I find it irresistible to add a few thoughts of my own.

Not long ago The Intelligencer published articles describing the many historical buildings in Belleville. One would be quite justified also in give Hastings County Museum a similar courtesy of recognition. It is an institution our citizens may be rightly proud of. Not only does it provide valuable education to our youth, but it also makes a perfect tourist attraction well worth advertising.

I remember visiting around the Georgian Bay area, and seeing how citizens there pointed out their tourist attractions by placing directional signs at intervals leading to the location of the site. The result being that the number of any tourist was aroused, and a stranger had no difficulty finding his way.

With the approaching centennial year, it would perhaps not be too costly a proposition to follow that example and emphasize what our city has to offer the tourist trade. Why not erect a placard along the Highway 401 entrances to the city announcing our museum and place directional signs along the local streets from there on? We have valuable assets and might just as well show it off and capitalize on it. How about it?

Strictly Personal

On Fostering Human Value

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"It's an interesting thing about fractions," observed my 10-year-old boy the other night, while he was grappling with his homework. "The larger the bottom number gets, the smaller it really is."

This seems so obvious to us that we never think of it. Of course, 1-50 is smaller than 1-5, and 1-20 is even smaller. As the bottom figure gets larger, it actually shrinks in value.

Now, considering the total human population as a whole number — which it is — every body is a fraction. And the larger this fraction tries to be, the smaller it really becomes.

This is a fatal argument against self-importance. For each of us tends to behave as if he were a whole number which could increase almost indefinitely — when, actually, each of us is a fraction of the whole, whose top number always remains the same.

How, then, do we increase the sum of human value? Not by inflating the bottom number which only makes us smaller, but by adding one person to another, until the total figure approaches a whole number. Only in the true purpose of any social system: to assist in addition, not by division.

If this is too abstract to visualize, the simplest example is drawn by noting what happens to human "fractions" in any closed social system — say, a business firm.

The larger any one individual becomes in this firm, the smaller becomes the firm's value, because if this one individual has too much power and responsibility to with him, and there is chaos after his departure. As he begins to become more important than he should, he has actually reduced the total importance of the system.

Many business failures occur, indeed, precisely because they are too heavy, and no chain of command has been forged that is strong enough to withstand the load of the man at the apex. His strength — like the dubious "strength" of a dictator — has only weakened the whole structure in its ability to survive his leaving.

Genuine power of personality is rarely individual power — rather, it is the power to contribute to others a unity of system that will be stronger after we leave it than when we joined it. Napoleon actually ruined only France, just as Hitler weakened Germany, for by inflating the lower figure in the fraction, they eventually reduced the whole number to impotence. And the world lacks genuine greatness there are less conclusive than the mathematical proof that such self-aggrandizement, by its very nature, always fail in the end.

"Factory" System in Schools

Letter to The Globe and Mail

Richard Needham devotes many of his articles to criticizing the Ontario secondary school system. Any complete system has its faults and certainly Mr. Needham touches upon some fundamental weak spots in his column. I feel that if he wishes to reform our school system he should not attack the effect but the diatribes toward the roots of the education problem.

Mr. Needham's assumption that the schools and the system decide what students should be taught, what detailed memory work they do not lead, they follow. Society, as a whole, decides the nature of the education we receive. Educators are hamstrung by social pressures and teachers, in particular, have little to say in either curricula or methods. Indeed, many teachers struggle against the "standardized memory bank" approach and wangle "pilot" courses and methods. Any methods which emphasize research, analysis and, in general, "thinking". I know of few teachers who do not detest the "factory" conditions that Richard Needham decries, although I realize that these conditions

A Place to Hang Your Hat

Charlottetown Patriot

Home is just a four-letter word these days. There was a time early in man's history when a cave was a home. It offered the protection he had against weather and a haven from the wild beasts at night. But because of the caves, the caveman and his family usually ate out.

Despite our pride in our evolution we have practically travelled the full circle.

Many of our modern man and his family, like the caveman and his tribe, is just what the big pot seeks — a place to sleep and a depot for a change in wearing apparel.

Most of our children have no born in a hospital. When we are ill, instead of being put to bed in the front bedroom, we are packed off to hospital. For most of us it is a matter of leaving our home to go to work.

We also go out for our recreation, whether to play our games or watch them. Indeed, except for the evenings when the members of the family sit, each isolated in the dark, to watch the television.

We are not in our home for work companionship and to make love. We don't usually even get married at home, and when it comes to the end of our road, very most of us are not buried in our homes to die in a hospital.

Our digression from the old-fashioned concept of the family as a unit is responsible for the household as a refuge of security is due, we are told by the Vanier Institute of the Family to the severe strain and stress exerted by the accelerated tempo of modern living.

With both parents often working and the children away at school, the home is empty most of the day. The children have no true sense of belonging to a family group and do not learn the sense of responsibility they need. There are few family ties and loyalties.

Faux Pas In Ottawa

Ottawa Journal

That was a dreadful thing Frank Clark, the British variety singer, did to English-speaking Ottawa folk who attended her concert the other night. She sang, we are told, more songs in French than in English, or nearly so, anyway. This apparently moved some people to get out of their seats after first half of the program. The more common reaction, we understand, was a surge of surprised anger based on the belief that Petula was merely the innocent victim of a program that ignored the lingual make-up of the national capital.

It is large-minded of those who resented Miss Clark's French songs not to hold her personally responsible. Goodness knows she must prefer singing in English, being British and all that (never mind that she made her first impact as a singer in French on the continent and even on television in Paris.) It was just a lapse in judgment of other performers may avoid in future by profiting with the latest Ottawa area popularity figures. Certainly not more than 37.2% per cent or thereabouts, of the songs should be in French, at the absolute maximum. And they should be clearly labelled on the program so that those who speak it only can do so before having so much as one bar of music spoiled by a word in French.

Survivors were Mrs. Pavla, Mrs. Tobodundung, and Robin, Mrs. Judge and three of her children.

Mrs. Judge was in Toronto with his 14-year-old daughter Cathy for a medical checkup.

Six survivors were taken to Parry Sound Hospital with burns and shock.

Robin said he remembered everyone "having a party" late in the night, but he fell asleep about 3 a.m.

He said he first tried to wake his mother and sisters.

"Mother was in the next room. I got her up but we couldn't see. Fire was all around the stove.

"I tried to wake my brother and two sisters but they didn't hear me and never got out. Kids were crying everywhere. I think I heard Harvey Pavla scream.

BROKE WINDOW

"I finally broke a window with my fist and got out. I hit it as hard as I could. It was so hot."

Robin said the fire road was about 25 yards and cried. Mother came out after me, but I couldn't see anybody."

The other survivors also escaped through the window Robin broke.

They were found huddling by the road when neighbors and firemen arrived around 8:30 a.m.

"There must have been an explosion," said Kelly Ritchie, 73, a neighbor. "Beds were thrown inside by 10 feet away from the house. Pots and pans were in the road."

The island is linked to the mainland by an old, one-lane bridge. Only one car can travel across at a time because rolling timbers and aged braces have made the bridge unsafe.

Police said the island, which is about 300 Indians, has no fire department. The only fire-protection service is a department of lands and forests pumper truck.

COULDN'T GET THERE

The Indians said it was impossible for the truck to arrive in time.

"The roads were muddy and unsafe," said Mr. Ritchie. "By the time they got here, the house was gone."

Trucks from this town of 6,000, more than 100 miles south of Sudbury, were stopped by the bad roads.

An inquest has been ordered and the fire is being investigated by the fire marshal's office.

More than 100 persons attended a memorial service for three of the dead Sunday at the Reserve's United Church.

A requiem mass was to be celebrated in the Roman Catholic church today for the Judge children and their grandmother.

Burial for the 10 residents of the reserve was set for today.

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP)— Fire believed started by a four-year-old boy smoking a cigarette Saturday killed 10 persons, including nine children, in a three-room house on the Parry Sound Indian reserve.

Robin Tobobundung, 9, the only occupant to escape uninjured, said four-year-old Charles Judge, one of the dead, was smoking.

"He threw the butt into a can of naptha. Then everything went whoosh."

Mrs. Mary Jane Judge, 73, and Harry Pavis, 30, a visitor from the Rama reserve near Orillia, were the adults killed.

The children were from the families of Joseph Judge, 40, and Ben Tobobundung, 39, Ojibway Indians.

The Judge children who died were: Thomasina, nine months; Dana, 1; Tracy, 2; Donna, 3; Charles, 4, and Abby, 6. Mrs. Judge was their grandmother.

The others killed were Wilfrid Tobobundung, 3, and his sisters, May, 5, and Nora, 7.

SHELTERED 18

Police said 18 persons, including nine Judge children and four Tobobundung children, were in the stove-heated frame building when the early-morning fire started.

Lack of Title Stalling Million Dollar Complex

Lack of legal title to some of the properties involved is stalling a potential million dollar three-store development in Belleville's burned out Front street area.

Donald J. Whalen of Whalen Real Estate today told The Intelligencer that a Montreal development firm was interested in constructing a three-store complex which actually would take in considerably more frontage than the burned out area.

Options have been taken on all the necessary properties and commitments of intent to lease obtained from two chain stores. Negotiations with a third chain store are in progress.

The Montreal development firm became interested in Belleville after being contacted by Ald. Jack Deacon, one of the Whalen sales staff.

But the whole developments hinges on the availability of all properties and Mr. Whalen said legal titles in some instances were not clear.

Refusal of one of the owners to sell could mean Belleville might lose out on the opportunity to have the whole burned out Front Street area re-developed with three fine new stores, Mr. Whalen said.

Tornadoes Slash Through Florida Killing Seven

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tornadoes slashed through at least eight Florida cities today, killing seven persons, injuring dozens more and causing heavy damage.

Two stricken counties were declared disaster areas by Governor Haydon Burns and the National Guard was sent in to help search for victims in the debris of smashed and twisted buildings.

The seven deaths were reported in Tampa, the state's second - largest city with a population of 274,000, and officials indicated there might be more.

At least 100 persons were injured in a widespread area.

About 30 children were taken to hospital at Lakeland, some 50 miles east of Tampa, after a twister ripped the roof from a junior high school shortly after the start of classes.

"We're so swamped in the emergency room we can't tell you exactly how many people are hurt," a spokesman for a Lakeland hospital reported.

In St. Petersburg, just across the bay from Tampa, at least 40 homes in a fashionable residential area were heavily damaged and nine persons were injured, none seriously.

SWINGS IN FROM GULF

The twisters, spinning violently out of a dark squall line, first struck at Tampa and St. Petersburg, on the Gulf of Mexico coast, then swept across the state through several smaller communities all the way to Melbourne, on the Atlantic coast.

With the twisters came torrential rains that flooded parts of Tampa and St. Petersburg. Power was lost in most of the stricken cities.

Also struck were Winter Haven and Auburndale, both about 35 miles east of Tampa; Clearwater, on the gulf coast northwest of Tampa, and Fort Pierce and Melbourne on the Atlantic coast.

At Melbourne, a state highway patrolman reported:

"Twisters hit at six different places. We have quite a few

O.P.P. as part of the Canine Division. Besides Butch, there is a police dog in Mount Forest and one in Sudbury.

He is the constant companion of his handler, Cpcl D. Walker, 26, a five-year veteran of the O.P.P.

Cst. Walker said, "We had to take him to Maryland for a 14-week training course conducted for dog and police there.

"He works strictly on commands. He can be given a piece of clothing or some other article from a suspect and follow it anywhere.

"He is trained by praising his good work, humoring his mistakes and chastising his disobedience.

"There are four basic commands which he obeys: sit, stay, down, no."

Butch eats two quarts of dry meat each day and about two pounds of meat. A 10-foot by 12-foot enclosure, fenced to six feet outside of his doghouse gives him some running room.

Butch is being re-trained every day and three days every second week, a refresher - retraining program for the three police dogs is conducted.

The dog is not always vicious, only when he is commanded to be. He demonstrated his talents on the Kingston waterfront yesterday, and when not at work, he was as friendly as any growing dog.

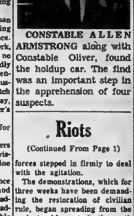
He took a shine to one woman spectator by simply jumping up on her and licking her face.

But when it's time to work, it's a different story. He no longer is the same friendly puppy. He stalks his prey menacingly, especially when the suspect moves and standing watch when the suspect stands at bay, awaiting eagerly for his master's command.

Det. Sgt. Lyle had praise for Butch and his handler,

"The administration officers of our department and their wisdom inaugurated the Canine Division last year.

"This is our first experience I have had with the Division and I feel it is a very beneficial addition to our force and the administrative officers responsible for it should be commended for their wisdom.



"We've had him in the search since the late afternoon of March 30. He did a marvelous job and as a result of his efforts, we have been successful in finding the money and accumulating other important exhibits.

"It's just fantastic!"

Const. Walker said he is trying to get off accident investigation. "With the dog in his car in the back seat of the cruiser, people do not have accidents or one enters it."

CONSTABLE GORD OLIVER, one of two constables who located the holdup car about two hours after Wednesday's holdup in Frankford.

CONSTABLE ALLEN ARMSTRONG along with Constable Oliver, found the holdup car. The find was an important step in the apprehension of four suspects.

District F.U. Plans Gov. Demonstration

Plans for a demonstration to the Ontario Government were outlined at a special meeting of the Hastings District Farmers Union held last Thursday evening, at the Plainfield Orange Hall.

The group will meet at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto, tomorrow. Mrs. Shirley Reid director of the county urged all interested persons to attend this meeting and said "What you, the farmers do or don't do is the cause of the end result".

Mr. Bernard Murphy another director of the county also spoke briefly and gave an outline of the desires of the Farmers Union. He pointed out the difference between the manner in which the Quebec Government dealt with the farmers and of the Ontario Government plans. This demonstration was planned, he explained, to let the government know what the farmers thought really had to be done.

Following remarks from the directors a lively discussion took place. Plans were made for the transportation and two buses will be available for those wishing to attend. One bus will go to Tweed and follow Highway 37, while the other will leave Springbrook and follow Highway 14. The schedule for the bus route may be obtained from any member of the union.

Rail

that he would end the strike if no reprisals were promised, railway lawyers went to Mulloy's home and the judge ordered the union to show cause why the fines should not be raised to $500,000 and $10,000 a day.

The end of the strike came 12 hours after Johnson told Gilbert "the nation's interest and respect for our country require immediate compliance today with the district court order. . . ."

When the strike dragged on into the night, Assistant Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds described it as "the most serious breech of faith that I have ever seen in many years of labor negotiations."

But the union credited Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz with helping wrap up no - reprisal pledges from the final two railways—the Central of Georgia and the Seaboard Air Line—finally ending the walkout.

The other affected lines were the Illinois Central, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Grand Trunk Western, Boston and Maine and the Pennsylvania Railroad west of Harrisburg, Pa.

HEAR BASIC ISSUE

Holtzoff also scheduled court hearings today on the basic fight—the elimination of the 18,000 firemen's jobs the last two years under a federal arbitration award that expired at 12:01 a.m. last Thursday when the strike began.

Congress in its first compulsory arbitration law in U.S. peacetime history, did not say what method lawyers use in arbitration ruling expired. The union contends it can demand that all jobs be restored, while the approximately 200 railways involved claim they have the right to keep on slashing jobs.

The firemen won nothing in the strike tht cost the railways an estimated $200,000 a day, made idle some 200,000 workers on the railways and other industries dependent on rail supply, and lost $320,000 a day in wages to the 9,000 striking firemen alone.

The possibility of multi-billion-dollar damage suits against the union by the railways remained. But the financial position of the union—with a total of some $5,000,000 in cash and property assets—made it unlikely.

The railways claim firemen have been excess since diesel engines replaced the last of the old coal-burning steam locomotives in the 1950s. The firemen reply they are needed as lookouts on the other side of the cab from the engineer to prevent accidents.

150 Years Ago

Thursday 4th — Planting Posts.

Note: The Government of 1816 had struck half an acre per lot appropriate site of a building lot, and 150 years later we find the Director of the Veterans Land Act still insisting that building lots contain half an acre for veteran, (of the present, that is, not of the War of 1812!)

John Simpson, son of James and Margaret Simpson, was a veteran of the 1812 war who petitioned as follows: The Petition of John Simpson of the Township of Thurlow, in the Midland District — Most Humbly Herweth — That your Petitioner is the Son of the late John Simpson, is of the full age of Twenty One Years and hath been taken the oath of Allegiance as appears by the Annexed Certificate, that he resides in the Village of Moira at Thurlow, and being desirous of obtaining a Town Lot in the said village for the present, Your Petitioner Prays that Your Excellency's Petitioner May obtain a grant for the same — and should this Petition be favourably received Your Excellency is prepared to pay the fees agreeable to the present regulations.

The lot Simpson requested and was granted was the northeast corner of Front and Dundas Streets. The old building now occupying the site was put up in the 1820s by Simpson himself.

Early in 1816, Belleville was referred to as "Town of Moira," "Village of Stoire" and "Village of Thurlow".

Strike to End This Week Says Paper

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says an end to the Ontario Teamsters strike, now in its 10th week, is expected this week.

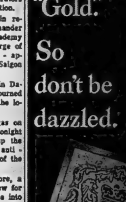
Spokesmen for the bargaining committee of the Independent Teamsters Union and the 35 trucking firms involved, however, refused to comment on grounds that there is an agreement to leave all announcements on weekend negotiations to W. H. Dickie, the department of labor conciliation officer.

Mr. Dickie was not immediately available for comment.

The newspaper said negotiators for the 8,500 striking Teamsters and the firms represented by the Ontario Motor Transport Bureau have paved the way for a settlement with agreement on a "contract broker" clause which gives the companies the right to contract work out to non-union firms.

It says the union's demand for a reduction in the work week to 40 from 44 hours has also been dropped. The companies earlier had offered a reduction to 43 hours.

Have New Way To Detect Blast



GENEVA (AP)—The United States today announced a new system of detecting underground nuclear explosions which it said would make it almost impossible for a nuclear power to deceive on-site inspectors.

The announcement seemed to offer no promise of progress toward an agreement to ban underground tests, however, unless Russia modifies its opposition to inspections.

School Set Up to Teach Immigrant Child English

VANCOUVER (CP) — A program set up to teach immigrant children English has proved so successful at, one Vancouver school that the school board has decided to expand it to others. The program, at Lord Nelson elementary school, is handled by teacher Aleta Humphreys and has 54 children, mostly in kindergarten and Grades 1 and 2.

"Many of these children just didn't have a chance before because of lack of understanding of English," says Miss Humphreys. "The majority of these children don't know a word of the language when they enter school.

"Their parents don't speak English at home and they have very little chance to learn the language. If they stayed in the regular class without any special instruction they would soon run into difficulties with their work because a teacher just hasn't the time to devote to one or two in a class of 40."

Miss Humphreys takes the children in groups of six and stresses personal attention. Her classroom is a kitchen adjoining the school lunchroom.

"We start off with songs and games and nursery rhymes and learn to identify common objects in the room. We have even baked a cake so the children would become familiar with the names of the ingredients."

Principal W. E. Boyes said he got the idea of the special program a year ago after becoming concerned because "the failure rate among new Canadians at this school was something awful."

The school board was so impressed with the success of the program that it decided to try it in four other schools.

The Many Fashion Faces of Knits

The look of soft facing, asymmetrical striping, knits with personal "pow" . . . all are part of the fashion signature story for spring, whether on a Jamaican interlude, a cross-country junket or just shopping around town, these on-the-go knits can and do go everywhere!

Newest trawlers . . . blended of cotton-and-, shows up in two-piece dresses highlighting the bold stripings. The architectural look, so typically Courreges, registers in textured popcorn knits that spotlight spanking white bandings.

Pants — hers . . . not a figure but a "pant-her" is in the streets. The weekend country look is stalking the city. Impeccably tailored pants in new bonded knits have put another face on fashion. The bonding treatment fuses two fabrics together invisibly, in creasing the shape and adding new body to the knitted fabric.

When is silk not silk? . . . when it shows up in the glamorous man-made synthetic with a silken hand. It makes up in gay little transitional shifts with flickering low flare shirts that wear from dawn to dusk. It also shows up in a variety of patterns that range from blocks of colors . . . to horizontal and vertical bands of color in a striped effect . . . to kerchief prints.

"In"clients . . . new textured cotton-and-no . . . with a crepe feeling — printed or striped . . . that's the latest from fashion's knitted bag of tricks . . . as becoming and forthcoming "star."

Ann Landers
Monetary Worth Of Wives Questioned

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As if my wife and I don't have enough arguments about how much work she does and how little she gets in return, you had to print that letter from some nutty home economics teacher who figured out that the average housewife is worth $6,000 a year on today's labor market. I'm willing to bet that ours was the only one of a million fights you caused across the nation.

Has it ever occurred to you that for $6,000 a year a man could live in a beautiful apartment with maid service and not have to put up with a nagging broad, not to mention her miserable mother?

The American housewife has been glorified to the point where she thinks she's right up there with the vice president of General Motors. You make less sense all the time. I think you're getting rocks in your head, Granny. — NO FAN OF YOURS.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How do you know what my wife is worth as a housekeeper? Have you ever been inside our home?

I'd invite you over for a look but I don't think you could get through the front door. Junk is piled to the ceiling — unopened barrels and crates she hasn't gotten to yet. (We moved into this place last November.) The Christmas tree is still up. She says she'll take it down when she has a free afternoon.

I can't say much about my wife's cooking because she hasn't cooked a meal in so long I can't remember it. The last time she did the laundry was in 1956 when she washed my wallet which was in the pocket of my work pants. The wallet contained my pay cheque and I was broke and couldn't collect it because I owned.

You may know a lot, Ann Landers, but you don't know what goes on in our house. So, please don't try to tell a man what his wife is worth unless you have met her. — UP TO HERE.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It's about time you came through for us women for a change. I have been reading your column for years and you are so prejudiced in favor of men that I am sure those pictures that run with your column are phony and that you are really a man yourself.

That estimate of $6,000 was low. I perform all the duties mentioned in the teacher's letter plus the following:

I hang wallpaper, repair furniture, serve as my husband's barber, psychiatrist, and financial adviser. I interpret his dreams and read his horoscope. I referee the fights he has with his relatives. But the money is only part of it. Most men have such lousy dispositions they couldn't hire help to stay with them. Marriage is the only answer. — SWAMPFIRE.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read where some so-called authority has decided a housewife is worth $150 a week. I am a married man who earns only $135 a week. This means I cannot afford to keep this wonderful woman who sleeps until noon and has accepted every gift I have ever owned. Thank you for making me realize that I don't deserve her. I'm kicking her out tomorrow. — STANLEY GREATHEART.

DEAR NO FAN, UP TO HERE, SWAMPFIRE and STANLEY: You've provoked me with a lulu of a column and I gave you a chance to sound off — so everybody's happy.

Spring Chic For Closets

Here's news about clothes — and so much the upcoming spring fashions — but the closet they go into after we get them. Here are four simple suggestions for making your closet as chic as your new clothes.

There's only one way to start. Strip your closet to its "bare bones". Then, when all that's left is the skeleton, wash the walls, shelves and floor with a sponge which has been dunked in plus cleaner and water. This way, you'll get rid of dirt and grease and your closet will smell as clean as it is.

Suggestion number two — makes good use of the side to neatness now on the market.

These are the plastic garment bags, which through last boxes, hanging shoe shelves, belt racks and the like. Just explore your nearest closet shop and you'll get the idea.

Suggestion number three — modernize and decorate your closet. You can do this all at once with a clean deodorizer.

Suggestion number four — avoid family friction by dividing your closet in two. Try using a shirt hanger, or even a garment bag, to make two sections out of one closet. Then, if it's a "his" and "hers" closet, the dividing line is clear. Is it's just your closet, take advantage of organizing space by putting short garments on one side, long ones on the other. Then it will look neater and keep both your clothes and your temper in better condition.

WEDDING

NAIDOW — MERSON

On Saturday, April 2, 1966 in Bridge Street United Church Chapel, Belleville, by the Rev. H. J. Davis, Mrs. Margaret Alice Merson, widow of Mr. Ezmo Anderson Merson and daughter of Mrs. Arthur Bates of Belleville and the late Mr. Bates of Montreal was united in marriage to Mr. William Duncan Naidow of Montreal, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alexander Naidow of Morrisburg, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. James MacKenzie were in the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Naidow left for a month's stay at Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

AUTHOR DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Russel Crouse, 73, author of numerous Broadway shows, died Sunday in hospital. In 1946, Crouse won the Pulitzer Prize for State of the Union, but his best-known work was co - authored with Howard Lindsay in 1939, Life with Father.

Bold Color Keynotes New Spring Jewelry

Color is the keynote in spring fashion jewelry, reports the Jewelry Industry Council. The soft airiness of spring clothing finds compatible contrast in glorious swinging ropes or chains of multi-colored stones and beads. Dramatic earrings, long and drop, make the most of scene, and huge rings, many adjustable, feature one colorful large stone.

From the Orient comes the use of pink quartz and gold filigree, or jade and filigree combinations. Arm bands, slave and spiral bracelets wrap up in magic, and the well - dressed wrist often carries a multitude of different bracelets, interspersed with rigid bangles.

The popular "Granny Look" is reflected in the overall fashion picture of feminine daintiness. Here we find choker-length necklaces, dainty pierced earrings, and delicate enamel pins combined with gold. Long chains and pendants in designs of heirloom designs, and dropped earrings also provide happy harmony.

The "fine look" in fashion depends as ever on golden jewelry. Light and airy for spring, the gold look promises a season of sunshine. For daytime wear silver has come up strong and it is now being made so fine it adds lovely elegance to evening too.

Holiday spirit comes to spring with ever-popular pins, particularly whimsy pins in adorable animal motifs. Flower pins too are fashion favorites, and enamel daisies with sunny centres provide a "upright" touch. Sea life themes are there, with delightful fish figures and with colorful coral. New emphasis on white coral is a particularly happy note in spring fashion.

Biggest news in the brave, bold approach to costume jewelry, featuring pavettone designs, three-dimensional geometrics, plastics, yards of textured beads, pearl, velvet, lace, madras, patent, papier mache, enamels and woods, all helping to create a flamboyant fashion image.

C. A. SERVICE

FRANCFORD — The C.A.'s of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle met on Friday evening. President Glen Post welcomed everyone and Mr. Maurice Steacy of E. F. B. C. led in prayer. Mrs. Mary Patrick read the Scripture.

Miss Janice Lockwood led the song service with a number of gospel hymns and a poem was read by Glen Post. Miss Dorcas Grant conducted a Bible verse drill.

The evening offering was received from ushers, Jonathan Chapman and Ricky Reilly, and Miss Beverly Wannamaker sang the solo.

The evening message was brought by Mr. Murvyn Steacy of Eastern Pentecostal Bible College, Peterborough.

Social, Family Life Of Dr. Janet Ross Becomes Complicated

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Janet Ross is one general practitioner who hasn't time for obstetrical cases.

She's too busy combining her duties as wife of a university president with other medical responsibilities to wait for babies who won't keep to a timetable.

"I don't ignore them completely," she says. "I start looking after them once they are born."

The social and family life of Janet Ross has become complicated since her husband, Dr. Murray Ross, was named president of Toronto's York university.

Monday morning telephone conversation between his social secretary and her medical secretary go something like this:

"My Dr. Ross wants your Dr. Ross to attend these functions this week . . . Also my Dr. Ross won't be home for dinner Tuesday and Thursday nights."

The medical Dr. Ross doesn't really mind. Being in on the development of a new university has been a wonderful experience, she says.

Besides, the two Ross children no longer require much time from their parents. Susan, a home economics graduate of Acadia University, her father's alma mater in Wolfville, N.S., is doing postgraduate work and Robert, an arts and science student at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., is considering a medical career.

DIDN'T PRACTICE

Janet Ross graduated from the University of Toronto in 1938. She was married in 1940.

Her husband's doctorate is an economics.

"We met at a social workers' conference when he was program director of the national YMCA," she says.

Dr. Ross did not try to continue her medical practice while her children were small, but she did keep up her medical interests. She was for three years director of the division of maternal and child health of the National Welfare Council, and she worked in out-patient and well-baby clinics. She also did research at the Babies' Hospital at Columbia University in New York while her husband was taking an advanced degree at the university.

Before returning to private practice 13 years ago, Dr. Ross interned for a year at the Hospital for Sick Children and Women's College Hospital in Toronto.

The university atmosphere is nothing new for her. Her father, the late Col. W. R. Lang, was a professor of chemistry at the University of Toronto, where he founded the Canadian Officers' Training Corps and was professor of military studies.

Dr. Ross believes that women doctors no longer need to disguise their femininity.

WOMAN FIRST

"The old picture of the early female doctor with her mannish clothes and her mannish hairdo is gone. They had to look that way in order to compete with men doctors. All that has completely changed. The medical woman is now a woman first and a doctor afterwards."

Dr. Ross shares her office with two other doctors, a man and a woman, and takes her turn being "on call" to patients one night out of every three.

Her contributions to York University, she says, are on the social level. Freshmen teas, formal balls and sports meets are some of the students' events the Rosses attend. As the wife of the president, Dr. Ross must also attend other official events and entertain a great deal. Small parties are held at their off-campus house, larger ones at one of their clubs or at the university. A president's residence is still to be built at the university.

Dr. Ross spent some time last year in what she calls "hospitals" with women undergraduates at the university. Sex was a frequent topic, but Dr. Ross doesn't think university students should be criticized for discussing sex openly.

"Perhaps women were more reticent about open discussion of the topic when I was in college, but sex is a subject that now is universally discussed by all generations."

GRANDMOTHER'S FRUIT SCONES

The fear of loneliness or being "put out to pasture" is no more.

Beautiful modern homes are being built and staffed to shelter our older generation so that they can still live happily and healthily after they are sixty and pensioned.

I visited Parkwood Manor for Senior Citizens in Waterloo, Ontario provided by The United Church of Canada and the Evangelical United Brethren Church and became acquainted with every one of its 94 residents except one. She was away for the weekend.

The remarkable fact that stood out for me was that none seems to be marking time or waiting to die! One 86-year-old I saw rushing out the front door to get into a taxi to go to town to buy a new Easter hat!

Their average age is an incredible 80 years.

It did not take long for me to get on intimate terms with some of them so naturally I asked why they loved the place so much. The answers were varied and often humorous:

"I never had so many lovely vegetables before in my life."

"I can play cribbage every night." (His dear old wife's own cribbage board made by his grandfather.)

"You can't be grouchy around here because of the wonderful Christian atmosphere."

"You feel the happiness as soon as you come in and there's always somebody to talk to."

"If you feel sick in the night life-line will always tend to you."

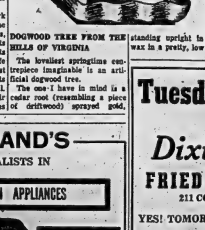
"I never had it so good. At every meal there is a nice surprise."

This pervading influence of happiness and affection are the heightened shadow of two people — Joan Love, the superintendent, and Vera Rae, the cook.

Joan Love is soon to be succeeded by Grace Tweed for believe it or not she is going to marry one of the residents, Frank Millard, who is a widower. With a twinkle in his eye, one 90-year-old is knitting a sweater and booties set for Joan.

On the Saturday night of my visit we were served Fruit Scones — a favorite recipe of the Grandmother of Joan Love. They were delicious and I have received the recipe to share with the Parkwood Manor amount so you can try them in your homes.

JOAN LOVE'S GRANDMOTHER'S FRUIT SCONES:



This makes a large amount but they are so good you will want it. Yeast dough is the 3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup butter (or margarine or shortening), 1 cup milk, 1 cup raisins or currants, 1 egg.

Measure the flour, baking powder and sugar into mixing bowl. Cut the butter in with pastry blender until size of peas. Beat in milk, egg and raisins. Turn out on lightly floured board and roll out to ½" thickness. Cut out with 2½" round cutter into 2" rounds. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 12 to 15 minutes.

A profusion of green crepe paper leaves and white dogwood blossoms cover its gnarled branches.

As the petals are intricate enough to require some illustrated directions, I will not become too explicit here. Instead, if you wish an outline for making the blossoms, we'll send it immediately upon receiving your request. — SUSANNA

DOGWOOD TREE FROM THE HILLS OF VIRGINIA

The loveliest springtime centrepiece imaginable is an artificial dogwood tree.

The one I have in mind is a cedar root (resembling a piece of driftwood) sprayed gold, standing upright in a base of wax in a pretty, low bowl.

Susanna's Family Fare

Presenting the regency look in cigarette and match holders:

Elegant, individual cigarette and match containers enhance gleaming dinner, coffee and end tables, or are a fantastic complement to a little marble-top console for anyone fortunate enough to have one.

Your guests will be flattered at your thoughtfulness if you place several sets within easy reach.

With such rich appearance, we hesitate to reveal their inexpensive secret . . . but it's just no fun holding back on one's friends, so come over close while we discuss it!

Cut two single strips of smooth velvet in an exotic decorator color — perhaps fuchsia or lime — exactly fit once around, two straight sided plastic pill bottles. The larger one 2⅜" x 1¾" — the smaller one 2" x 1¼".

Clamp the lids to the bottom first to give a firm base. If there is a tiny lid lip, snip it off with scissors. Glue the velvet tightly in place with a white household glue. Trim top and bottom edges white or gold braid. In addition, you might wish to cover the vertical join of the velvet with a strip of braid. Quite optional.

There! Did you ever before take so little trouble to produce such a fabulous result?

As usual, these don't hesitate to request a pattern or diagram if you require one . . . and thank you all again and again for being so generous with your supply of hints and craft suggestions. As Jackie G. says, you're a good group! — Susanna

ALL ABOUT COLORING EGGS

Are you disappointed each year in your attempts to color Easter egg shells?

Could be that you are not using vinegar and boiling water along with the food coloring to really set the color.

Perhaps we can help.

Here is the formula for a mixture that truly sets the color. Almost any shade you desire can be obtained.

Pour half a cup of boiling water into a wide mouth jar. (Stand a spoon up in the jar first to keep the glass from cracking.) Stir in 1 teaspoonful of vinegar and about 20 drops of food color.

Allow the liquid to cool and lower the hard cooked egg (on a spoon) into the mixture. Move it about, and remain with the spoon when you are satisfied with the color.

Successful Living

Thrilling Sensations Not Always Love

DEAR DORIS: I'm a girl of 16. This boy of 17 came to see me one night when I was baby sitting. My parents won't let me go out so I don't know how I can see more of him. At school parties and dances he usually dances with me most of the night, but never talked much.

The first time I looked at him that night it seemed like I had known him before. I told him this and he said he had the same feeling, when he looked at me. And when he held me in his arms, I felt there would never be anyone else. I felt we were all alone in a world of just us.

Do you think this is rather silly of a girl and boy of our ages? We both come from good common and decided that I should write, so you see I'm also writing for him. — TWO THAT WORRY.

DEAR TWO: Silly? No. Normal, and thrilling. Sometimes there does seem to be a spark between two people; the danger lies in the chance of a fire starting which may get out of control.

You know, this boy may thrill you simply because he's about your first contact! You haven't been having dates. And I don't go for your saying him white baby sitting. Since Mom and Dad apparently countenance the school dances, how about seeking their approval to have him call for you to go to one of these?

At the risk of repeating myself, here's my advice: Don't mistake your present jealous sometimes for love!

DEAR DORIS: This is an open letter to "Bothered":

Not all of us are privileged to have our mothers with us as you are. I beg you do not feel your mother "modest" at 52. Small matter, that she is not always as well groomed or as well mannered as she might be. Cherish her, and love her for herself. Do this things for her without thought of reward.

My mother was an unwed mother at 16. She gave me up for adoption as she had no one to turn to. And society was not as liberal minded as they are today. So count your blessings and be kind, not critical. — HELEN K.

DEAR HELEN K: Right! Mothers are very precious! I find myself hoping that your adoptive one filled the bill for you.

DEAR DORIS: "Sicking Up For Rights" says, (re no talking to opposite sex in school corridor) "We have been given no reason for this."

On the CBC Speaking Personally program January 25, Thelma Wickman, CBC commentator in Toronto, gave one very good reason for keeping the sexes apart until they are decently married. Thelma's reason, "There has been an increase of two hundred and thirty percent in venereal disease in the last few years, in North America." At that rate, four feet of space (as required by the school principal) is not enough to save this society.

The only way would be to change the space to four feet of something solid, like cement. — RUBY.

DEAR RUBY: Oh, come now. The Berlin wall separates people, but does it prevent sickness? Wouldn't we do better to help the sexes understand what causes trouble and disease?

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNHAPPY — Why not make some plans of your own? He doesn't consult you before he goes out with the boys, or stays out overnight. Get that driver's license, take the hospital job, and let him find you missing sometimes when he does come home.

Marriage takes maturity. It also sometimes takes a shock to make a man who is acting like a spoiled boy grow up. Assert yourself.

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Second Term In School for Prince Charles

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles, 17-year-old heir to the throne, will stay in Australia for a second three-month term at Geelong School, it was announced today.

He will return to his previous school at Cordonstoun in Scotland in September, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

The prince went to Geelong near Melbourne in January for an initial one-term stay.

He will return to Britain in August via Jamaica, where he will join his father, Prince Philip, and sister Princess Anne at the British Empire Games.

FATE OF PRIEST TORMENTS COLOMBIA — The death of a young priest has become a highlight in the bitter election campaign now being fought in Colombia. Rev. Camilo Torres (above) was slain by army troops while fighting with Castro-style guerrillas in the mountains. His supporters cannot say just why the reform-minded priest turned to violence but trace the beginnings to his clash with Luis Cardinal Concha Cordoba, the unbendingly conservative Archbishop of Bogota.

What Drove Columbian Priest From Church Into Red Band?

By CP Correspondent

BOGOTA, Colombia (CP) — Those who call themselves Christians preferred to look a man in the pillory rather than help his search for social justice and bear him company in the building of a new society.

A charge heard often enough during the 1966 years of Christianity.

It glitzens fresh-minted today in this fervently Roman Catholic country.

The best known of Colombia's 4,214 priests, handsome young Rev. Camilo Torres, died Feb. 15, newly bearded, clad in Castro-style olive drab fatigues and clutching the rifle with which he had just helped kill four Colombian army draftees.

Army bullets tore the life out of him at a coffee plantation clearing in the mountains. He was slain as he bent to take the sub-machine-gun of an officer gravely wounded in the ambush Camilo had mounted as a member of the Pekinglike guerrilla group which affects the grandiose title of Army of National Liberation (ELN).

What drove Camilo from the church to the cardine?

The question torments the nerve and fibre of Colombia today.

It is all the harsher because a bitter election campaign is spotlighting the nation's values, and a feudal fangus can be discerned upon them.

Yet think when the church pushed Camilo out of the way he turned to the other side in desperation," says former education minister Jose Feliz Patino, today rector of the National University where Camilo served as chaplain and was idolized by students.

"He could have been an excellent leader of the liberal, Christian movement in the university. He was respected by the students and reflected a new trend in the reform-minded faction of the church."

His leadership, in these circumstances, would have been against just those forces for which he was carrying a gun when he died.

The labor union that paid for the newspaper advertisement from which the opening paragraphs of this story is taken had had its troubles with Camilo.

Once linked with him in his United Front movement, it broke away because it considered talking-liners were taking him over.

Depending on when you listened, Camilo could sound like anything from the War on Poverty's Lyndon B. Johnson to Marx to Mao to Lewis Carroll.

Yet the torment of spirit expressed in the union's advertisement, and deriving from Camilo's tragic choice of course, churns today in hearts and homes from the highest to the humblest in the land.

Though he took to the gun and died by the gun, no one who ever knew him considered Camilo a killer.

Wrong - headed, sophomorewoolly, yes.

But before becoming a guerrilla he did not even know how to fire a rifle.

And the manner in which he broke cover when any combat-savvy mountain insurgent would have known a counter-ambush to be in the cards proved him fatally lacking in guerrilla guile.

SEEN AS UNFROCKED

Efforts to apportion the blame for Camilo's tragedy inevitably involve the name of Luis Cardinal Concha Cordoba, Archbishop of Bogota; not so much as an individual but as a symbol of a system.

Cardinal Concha, 75, ailing, and an unbudgable Latin American conservative at the Vatican ecumenical council, is looked upon as having unfrocked Camilo.

The fine print may show Camilo to have resigned his priestly functions. But all the circumstances leading up to the event indicate an "or else" resignation, and so Colombians call it defrocking.

Between Camilo and the cardinal, fate had set a collision course worthy of a Greek tragedy.

The tradition-rooted mood and style of the Catholic Church in Colombia makes it unlikely that a Colombian cardinal should come from any but one of the country's old, entrenched families, in other words, from that social stratum which views redistribution of wealth proposals most harshly of all.

Churchmen here who had spotted him as a quick intellect had obtained Camilo Torres a scholarship at the Catholic University of Louvain, Belgium. Northern European Catholicism's disposition to involvement in contemporary issues of social justice was catnip to Camilo.

GRAVE UNMARKED

Would a northern European cardinal have unfrocked him for his pronouncements and his none-too-pliant stance towards church discipline?

The question will never be answered.

But it may be asked for years to come.

Fate left bright the raw material for a Camilo legend. It denied him the time to grow stale or discredited.

Less than two years elapsed from the time he sprang into prominence as a social-reforming chaplain idolized at the university till he died by the shoot-or-get-shot code of the outlaw, and was consigned to an unknown grave "in the area" of his death.

Most of Camilo's preachments were wild.

This wild idealism, and consequent woolliness of reason, have served somehow to guarantee his sincerity.

Friends who were heartsick when Camilo joined the ELN remain his friends even in death. They have rallied to protect his memory.

They are determined that neither the army, the oligarchy or any other political manipulators shall take over Camilo's story to use for their own ends.

Camilo's elder brother Fernando, a neurology professor at the University of Minnesota, sounded the note for these friends when he wrote an open letter to all Colombians:

"Camilo Torres died in a struggle for what he believed to be just. He can be considered as a soldier fallen in battle, or as a martyr to an idea, as matter how wrongful some may consider the methods he used.

"Camilo was one victim more of the violence which is seen every day in all the world, and which for so many years has beset Colombia.

"Let us not cloud his image by having this violence grow, and Colombian deaths increased, through the labeling of his name as a banner."

COMMUNISTS FIGHT

The Communists who could be expected to exploit Camilo's name are making trouble among themselves.

A communique from the two ELN chiefs who flanked Camilo in the photo accompanying his declaration of having joined that organization accuses old guard Communists of conspiring with the Pentagon and the FBI to bring about the death of their glamor recruit.

The conspiracy, the guerrilla chieftains say, consisted of infiltrating informers into the ELN, then tipping off the army as to where Camilo was to be found.

This accusation hardly survives the post-battle pronouncement of a member of the army brigade whose patrol killed him:

"We had nothing against Camilo."

Nor did, nor do, countless Colombians.

They are facing imminent elections which may well determine the fate of democracy in their country.

At such a critical moment they are compelled to ponder what manner of democracy it is they are being called upon to endorse, that could not provide peaceful release for the demons which drove reformer Camilo Torres.

The Great-Hearted Few

Old Rabbi, Nicodemus, Was One Of Handful Defending Jesus

Strangely, the only voices raised in support of Christ in the period of His condemnation and execution came not from His closest allies, but from those outside His following. This Easter article about those dissenting outsiders and iconoclasts concerns a Jewish scholar who defended Christ in His time of crisis, when His usual advocates failed Him.

BY GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The wind is against you, old man. Why fight it? Give in. Be sensible and heed the ruling pressure of the day. It's politic. It is approved. It bears the sanction of the crowd and crown, of Caesar's power and majesty.

And yet you bridle at this course! What ails thee, Nicodemus, great old rabbi, learned teacher, sage of Israel?

How stubbornly you fret. "They drink the wine of violence!" So the prophets often warned—in vain. Be realistic. It is fruitless to object. The thing is set, the order sealed and duly authorized. The man will die.

You tread on dangerous ground, grey-bearded one, and few will stand beside you in this hour. As a member of the temple court, the sanhedrin, you already have felt the lash of scorn for sympathizing with the rebel Nazarene.

Now the inerliminating gale blows even stronger. And who could move against it? Who resist? Even the apostles of Jesus, His closest companions, had scattered into hiding, silence and fear. One, Judas, had sold Him out, and another, Peter disavowed Him. None of the others raised a voice in protest.

So His cruel, only a strange, mixed handful of individuals are stated by scripture to have demonstrated support for him. An odd lot they were —some women, a thief, a soldier and two ranking Pharisees.

The lonely minority, the deviants, the brave.

TOOK RISK

The pair of Jewish leaders had the most to lose. Their titles, fortunes, reputations. Why risk it all? How much safer and discreet to acquiesce.

Yet you balk, Nicodemus. You remember that night a year ago, when you talked with this Galilean.

In his responsibility, as an eminent instructor in the academies of Jerusalem, he had visited Jesus privately to determine, fairly and open-mindedly, just why some of his colleagues were so disturbed by the ways of the newcomer from the north.

Nicodemus had addressed the Nazarene as a fellow teacher. "Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God; for no one can do these signs that You do unless God is with him."

Jesus, dismissing the outward wonders, had said that what mattered chiefly was man's inner condition, that he must renounce his self-righteous pride, recognize his moral inadequacies and become dependent on God as a little child.

"Truly . . ." He said, "you must be born anew."

Then he spoke even more puzzlingly of His being offered up, a light in the world, not to condemn it but save it. "For God so loved the world that He gave his only Son, that whosoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life."

Two months ago, Jesus had been ordered silenced as an incendiary, fomenting unrest.

When the decision was put before the sanhedrin, meeting in the chamber of hewn stone adjoining Pilate's apartments at the fortress Antonia, Nicodemus had protested against prejudging the man, without deliberation of evidence.

Other Pharisees on the council, including the venerable Gamaliel and Joseph of Arimathea, also were feloniously disposed toward the nonconformist Jesus; but only Nicodemus is recorded, as having dared to declare his dissent openly.

Finally, Jesus was taken before Pilate for sentencing. An ancient non-biblical document, called variously the Gospel of Nicodemus or Memorials of Pilate, dating back to the first three centuries of Christianity, says the erudite old Nicodemus visited Pilate and begged him to spare Jesus.

It was useless.

The gospels record that Nicodemus helped bury Jesus. Other ancient manuscripts relate that he was deprived of office, banished from Jerusalem, baptized by Peter and John, and later buried in a common grave with Gamaliel and first Christian martyr, Stephen.

You could have kept silent, Nicodemus. But you chose to travel on that eternally reoccurring peripatus of truth, which even when crushed, bursts forth anew. You did not accept the passing guns, old conqueror, but you mastered the weather of life.

"Amen," you said, "and amen."

Here's How Retired Couple May Avoid Widow's Plight

By THOMAS COLLINS

The man coming up to retirement who thinks it's going to be easy to get out of this world is just not aware of the situation.

Of course his number is not coming up for a long time yet. And if a coronary does get him there's a good chance it will be contrary to statistics. And he could sue somebody.

Just as he caused pain to some woman coming into this world he will likely cause pain to a woman going out. A different kind of pain, but a serious one. And the woman will be his wife. If he has anything to leave her.

A few retired couples were shook up, and as expected a few lawyers got their dander up, when the Golden Years column a few weeks ago told the sad story of how a widow had to return to get the money her husband left her. This column is a follow up, to explain how a retired couple may avoid the widow's plight:

You are married, are of retirement age, and there is enough money and property to see the widow through if the husband dies first —

1. Go talk to an attorney, one recommended to you by a successful businessman, the County Bar Association, a respected judge . . . but not by your second-cousin, Horace. Tell the attorney you want to make two wills, one for the wife and one for the husband. Tell him also you want guidance from him on how the survivor of the marriage can get all of what the other leaves, can get it quickly, and get it without onerous taxes and fees. Tell him you want his guidance not in writing — a letter or whatever — because he might drop dead the same day one of you does.

2. A good attorney will know all the angles of a will, many of which you never thought of, and will write you good ones. He also will give you guidance on estate and money factors living outside a will. And if you should trust him, because you can't buy a will at a dime store or conveyor advice on the legal aspects of your money from a garage. An attorney is your would say so.)

And yet you may only hope, but it is a safe hope if you get a good one.

3. Ask the attorney these specific questions: (1) If the husband dies first can the wife gain immediate access to any joint bank accounts, safety deposit boxes, and can she sell the house and any securities if they are in joint names? (2) If not, what steps does the widow take and how much time will be needed . . . also, if not, will it be because inheritance tax appraisals are being made on the husband's half-ownership of everything, and where is the widow going to get the money to pay these taxes and thus get the property and bank accounts released to her? (3) If there are stocks and other securities in joint names, how does the widow get them transferred to her name alone, and how long will it take, since she can't sell them without his signature? (4) Would there be an advantage in putting everything in the wife's name alone, or the husband's name alone? . . . or would the government figure everything really belonged to the husband anyway and want to tax the whole works at full value? (5) What about capital Gains taxes on the house or any securities that have gained in value? (6) How should the beneficiary clause read in the husband's life insurance policies? And (7) How should the beneficiary clause read in the husband's life insurance policies? And (7) How should the beneficiary clause read in the husband's life insurance policies? And (7) How should the beneficiary clause read in the husband's life insurance policies? And (7) If there anybody anywhere (a divorced wife, former girl friend, a disputed creditor, a stepchild, any relative) who could challenge the husband's will in court and tie the estate up for three years? . . . AND if so what can be done about it now?

4. Pay the lawyer his fee, which might run from about $25 in a small town to $200 or so in the city. Which in either case would be a bargain. And if you don't think so take ten more minutes of the lawyer's time and ask him what kind of mess you'd be in if you didn't have a will and his guidance on the matters outlined above.

(P.S. This column has not been written as a sop to lawyers. If it knew a safe way to grow old and die without a lawyer . . . and a clergyman . . . it would say so.)

Begin Observance of Holy Week, Passover

By BENNETT M. BOLTON
VATICAN CITY AP — Christians began their annual observance of Holy Week Sunday as Jews by coincidence were preparing for their annual celebration of Passover, commencing tonight.

Pope Paul blessed palm branches in the Sistine Chapel and said mass before 30,000 persons in St. Peter's Basilica. The Palm Sunday rites marked the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem five days before his crucifixion.

The Pope distributed the palms to 21 cardinals, then led a procession through the basilica to the main altar for mass.

After the procession and mass, which lasted two hours, the pontiff appeared at his apartment window to bless 20,000 persons in St. Peter's Square.

Later Holy Week ceremonies in Christian churches will focus on the Holy Tuesday observance of the last supper and on the memorial of Good Friday, recalling the crucifixion. The theme of mourning will be succeeded next Sunday by Easter rejoicing.

In Jewish homes around the world, Passover Week begins at sundown today. Tradition calls for the youngest member of the household to ask the ancient question: "Why is this night different from all others?"

The oldest man in the family replies with the story of Moses leading the Israelites from Egyptian bondage into the promised land.

At the ceremonial seder meal tonight, and throughout the week, Jews eat matzohs, or unleavened bread, as a reminder that the fleeing Israelites had time only to prepare unleavened loaves sun-baked on rocks.

The holiday is called Pasch over because, in the final miracle in Egypt, God killed the oldest children of the Egyptians but passed over the homes of the Israelites.

The date of Passover is determined by the Jewish lunar calendar. Its simultaneous observance with Holy Week will not take place again for 95 years.

Date Set For Inquest Into 2 Deaths

NAPANEE — An inquest will be held May 4 to inquire into the deaths of two men who died in Sandhurst, a small community 23 miles south of Napanee on Highway 33, last December 21. Corporal Ronald Roberts of the Napanee detachment of the OPP told the press that the investigation has been "practically" completed.

Lennox and Addington County Coroner Dr. Brad Bergstrome will conduct the inquest in the County Court House on that date.

The deaths occurred under mysterious circumstances. Otho Teepell, 27, died of head injuries in the Kingston General Hospital. Mrs. Teepell was hospitalized for some time, also with head injuries, but has now recovered.

Raymond Tinkler, 30, a neighbor of the Teepells, was found dead in his car about eight miles from his home. His wife was in England at the time.

Ontario Provincial Police Sgt. t. C. Lyle of the Belleville detachment is in charge of the investigation. The inquest could not be held until reports had been received from the crime laboratory in Toronto, police said.

Pioneer Nurse Celebrates 88th Birthday

DESERONTO — Not many women of 88 bake all their own bread, do their own shopping, with an eye out for bargains, or knit on using a wood stove because things "taste better" than when cooked on an electric stove.

But Mrs. Calvin Emmons does all these things. Her only child, Mrs. Lena Minaker, lives with her, but Mrs. Emmons still considers herself the cook of the family. She is a very womats, full of energy, but bemoaning the fact that her eyes will no longer permit her to do some of the sewing she used to love.

One hobby is making artificial flowers. "If mother sees a flower just once she can go home and reproduce it in crepe paper", her daughter says.

Mrs. Emmons is a graduate of Mercy Hospital in Detroit, and after her marriage 67 years ago lived on farms in Ernestown before moving to Deseronto about 21 years ago. Doctors were not as plentiful then as now, and so she frequently brought babies into the world with no doctor there. "Half the babies on Snider Street were my babies," she says.

In the days when nursing homes were unknown, Mrs. Emmons nursed her bouse into a home where people could stay while they recovered sufficiently to go to their own homes. "We had a 16-roomed house, and I thought nothing of nursing a lot of sick people," she says.

When she celebrated her birthday recently six relatives came from Ottisville, N.Y., to stay for six days, and two for five days from Oneida. There was a houseful for the big day Maslf, and Mrs. Emmons was able to go for drives with them and enjoy herself.

She was showered with gifts. A highlight of the day was a telephone conversation with her only grandson, George Minaker, who lives in San

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Ralph Brouse, Conservative MP, has no objection to being labelled a "maverick." It's "renegade" that burns him up.

The 63-year-old Liberal MP for the Toronto district riding of York-Humber pulled out a dictionary in his Commons office to prove his point.

"A renegade is somebody who deserts his party. "I consider myself a Liberal and I have been one for 30 years," he said.

"I don't object to maverick," he added. "You can be a maverick and still be a member of the herd. But a maverick doesn't carry a brand."

Mr. Cowan added to his credentials in this field a few days ago by blocking government efforts to extend the Commons death penalty debate.

This got him into hot water with some of his brother MPs. But his stand was right in keeping with his status as Parliament's chief . . . well, maverick.

OPPOSED MAPLE LEAF

He was the only Liberal to favor the retention of the Red Ensign in the 1964 free vote that eliminated the Union Jack. The government choice was the maple leaf design.

He is not at all ashamed of our British historical connections, he said. "And I see no reason for jettisoning it."

But in going against the prevailing government view on the flag question, he says, he didn't vote against the government because it was a free vote.

He points out that he has never voted against the government or his party since he took office in 1962. In his view, that's further proof he's no renegade.

The trim, gray-haired, voluble former circulation manager of the Toronto Star does admit he has independent turn of mind, however.

A free-enterprisser, he thinks the mind seeing the CBC abolished because it competes with private business as a government corporation.

RAISE PENSIONS?

Abolition of the CBC would save $100,000 a year and the money could help pay for raising old-age pensions to $100 a month from $75.

He favors the pension increase, despite the fact that it was a major campaign plank of two opposition parties, the Conservatives and New Democrats, in the Nov. 8 federal election. Mr. Cowan said many other Liberals share his view.

Party loyalty? When the pension question came to a showdown in Commons debate during the early days of the session, he voted against the proposal and with the government.

His views don't run in the usual channels. He's a free-enterpriser in business, but favors "100 per cent" a national compulsory, government - sponsored medical care plan.

Name the subject and Mr. Cowan will likely have a controversial approach. One factor that brought him into politics was the economic policies of the Diefenbaker government.

"I can't think of anything he did that I liked," he said.

FATHER OF FOUR

Mr. Cowan is a father of four —his 19-year-old daughter is the only one still at home—a former Sunday school teacher for 17 years and a longtime community worker in Toronto.

"For 40 years I've been in the middle of everything that was good for Toronto," he said.

And as an avowed reformist, he's "like the law the way it is"—he has no apologies for his procedural vote to defeat the death penalty debate extension.

Three days was the time allotted for the debate and that's all he felt it should get. Moreover, Mr. Cowan said he was acting for 90 other MPs, including 12 Liberals, when he halted it.

Furthermore, he objects to the government policy of commuting death sentences. The cabinet has commuted death sentences to life imprisonment in four since the Liberals took office in 1962.

But that doesn't mean he's not a Liberal, Mr. Cowan defies anybody to challenge that.

GENERATOR-ALTERNATOR SPECIALISTS
Alternator
Not Immune To Trouble
By EUGENE B. MILMOE
After the battery, generator and regulator were recently discarded, several owners complained that their cars have alternators — not generators. True, the alternator has replaced the generator in cars of more recent vintage, and should have been given some mention.
Basically, the alternator is an AC generator. Its chief advantage over the formerly standard DC generator is its constant output. Even at lowest speeds, the alternator delivers a charge to the battery. But, as far as trouble is concerned, it's no more immune.
As with the generator, it's most common complaint involving the alternator is weak output or charge. And, the cause is usually the same — a slipping drive belt due to wear or looseness. Other alternator troubles are not as simple to diagnose or remedy . . . and are best left to the specialist.
From L. G.: "Is it possible for a defective automatic choke to cause the engine to knock for the first few minutes after the car is started these cold mornings?"
Yes, if it's not rich enough. But excessive piston clearance or poor oil circulation would be equally suspect.
D. F. writes: "I have a peculiar overheating problem. At slow to moderate speeds engine temperature is normal, but at highway speeds, it rises quickly and will boil over if I don't slow down or stop."
Sounds like the lower radiator hose is collapsing. If it feels abnormally soft and thin, you can bet this is the culprit.
P. W. asks: "Is it helpful or harmful to add alcohol to the gas tank during winter to prevent gas line freeze?"
There are several effective products for this purpose, but a small amount of alcohol can be used, if desired. Usually a few ounces is enough.

Briefs From Britain

Hospital Patient Absconds in Ambulance

PENGE, England (CP)—Children were astonished to see police cars chasing an ambulance at top speed through this Kent-ish town. Police finally caught the fugitive, a patient at a nearby hospital who had absconded, and returned the vehicle and its unofficial driver.

Probe Tall Secret

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—Scientists at Birmingham University cast doubt on the belief that dogs wag their tails because they are happy. Biologists have discovered a previously unknown gland in the tail which they think works when the tail is wagged hard enough, but they still don't know why dogs do it.

Clean Up Cathedral

LONDON (CP) — University students helped with St. Paul's Cathedral's clean-up program as part of a city-wind effort. More than 100 boys and girls scrubbed the great steps up to the main doors, with tools brushes.

Gamble For Music

DODWORTH, England (CP) Members of the Dodworth miners' brass band depend on 75 cents a week for their future. The Yorkshire bandsmen have run out of money and various fund-raising schemes failed, so a weekly sweepstake draw is the last chance.

Dog Keeps Guard

LONDON (CP)—A passer-by and his dog foiled an escape from Wormwood Scrubs prison. A convict was climbing down the wall when Frank Prince shouted: "If you don't go back, I'll set my Alsatian on you." The man took one look at the big dog and fled back over the wall.

Race Ends In Turmoil

MARKET RASEN, England (CP)—Stewards of this Lincolnshire racetrack announced that, in the first race, the second place horse won and the other nine came nowhere. The rest of the field had taken a wrong fence and were disqualified.

Welcome Invaders

HASTINGS, England (CP)—Letters from Hastings, a Sussex seaside town where Norman invaders landed 900 years ago, bear the postmark "Popular with visitors since 1066."

Old Friends Go

LONDON (CP)—British telephone users are losing two valued calling codes, TIM and UMP, with the change to all-number dialling. TIM was the speaking clock and UMP brought up-to-the-minute international cricket scores.

Back To The Isles

GARRABOST, Scotland (CP) Rev. John MacSween of the Toronto Free Church is returning to his native village on Lewis, the most northerly island in the Hebrides. He will be first minister of the Point Free Church "rebels," a splinter group which left the Knock Free Church five years ago.

Expects Good Eyes

DISS, England (CP)—The Automobile Association's hotel handbook lists the King's Head hotel in Diss, Norfolk, as overlooking the sea. The coast is 25 miles away.

Boil World Banger

SCUNTHORPE, England (CP)—Butchers in this Lincolnshire town are making "one hell of a sausage" for the summer carnival. The mammoth "banger" will measure 9,000 feet from end to end. Each of the town's 40 butchers is making a section and the pieces will be sewn together for the show, then cut apart to be cooked and sold to the crowd.

Queen Carries Ghost

CLYDEBANK, Scotland (CP) When the Cunard Queen class luxury liner now known only as 04 is launched next year she will embody one ghost and two seasons. The new vessel is being built from scrap steel from the 36-year-old Mauretania, being broken up nearby.

Ban Dart Players

NETTLESTONE, Isle of Wight (CP)—A darts team has been banned from its home, the Roadside Inn, because the publican says the seven players don't drink enough beer. Team captain Harry Jacobs says all matches will be played away now, and the inn is looking for thirstier sportsmen.

Move Out Dozers

RICHMOND, England (CP)—Surrey public libraries are jogging catnappers. A bylaw introduced at the Thames - side branch here states, "A person shall not, after a warning by a library officer, persist in sleeping in the library."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Most home buyers have little choice when it comes to high mortgages — they take the largest amount they can get. There are some, however, who because of large savings have considerable flexibility in the mortgage amount. For them, choosing the right mortgage can pose a problem.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My question is relatively simple: What is a suitable down payment when buying a home? I've saved everybody from real estate brokers to the president of our local bank. No two people have given me the same answer.

My situation may be a bit different from the average. I have almost $35,000 in savings. The house I am buying costs $20,000 — my annual salary is $12,000. Shall I pay cash, shall I take a maximum mortgage of $16,000 which a lender is willing to give? — Conservatively.

ANSWER: The best mortgage is one whose monthly payments including taxes and heating expenses impose no severe strain on the family budget. Twenty per cent of income is often cited as a safe limit. But this has been found to be a comfortable amount. Unfortunately, most of us exceed this amount for we do not have enough savings and therefore, by necessity, must take larger mortgages.

Ordinarily, I do not recommend paying cash for a house. The family can better use its extra cash for other investments or have it available for emergencies. The one exception to the above general rule is where the breadwinner is approaching retirement age.

Dear M.R. Meltzer: I recently sold my house through a real estate brokerage firm. When the agent took the listing he stated that I give him a $50 "good faith" deposit which would be returned at settlement.

At settlement, the agent told me he would mail a cheque at a later date. Three months and a dozen phone calls later and I still do not have the money. Originally, I was not real stood such a small sum. But now I'm mad! Please tell me the best way of getting back my money. — Seeing Red

ANSWER: In the first instance, I would advise readers to avoid any real estate agent who asks for a "good faith" deposit. This practice is frowned upon by ethical realtors.

Getting small sums of money back poses a problem for the cost of retaining an attorney to collect usually exceeds the amount recovered. However, a real estate broker must diligently account for all funds or face loss of his license. It is strongly recommended that you file a complaint in writing with your real estate commission and send a copy to the broker. I'm sure you will get your money back by return mail.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Whenever I use my toaster and ironer at the same time, the chances are a fuse will blow. My husband tell me not to use the two appliances at the same time. Is there any other way I can solve the problem? — Don't Understand Electricity

ANSWER: Yes—by adequate wiring. A toaster takes about 1,000 watts and an ironer about 1,650 watts. Together they make quite a load.

The constant blowing of fuses indicates that your house wiring is inadequate. This is a dangerous condition and represents a serious fire hazard. Call in a reliable electrical contractor to correct the condition before your house goes up in flames.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My house has metal windows set in brick walls. Caulking is supposed to keep the joints water and air tight. Although I have had it recaulked the windows six times, I cannot keep out rain leakage. Cracks always open up after several weeks. How do I seal the windows? — Frustrated

ANSWER: When caulking cracks or pulls away from the surface, the chances are overwhelming that it is because the caulking was applied to a moist or wet surface. The bricks, although not appearing wet to the touch, have considerable moisture in them.

The best and easiest way would be to wait, before applying, until after a long dry spell. If you cannot wait, it will be necessary to dry the brick by artificial means (such as a sealer) before applying the caulking.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant returned home last week after a holiday with relatives at Vero Beach, Florida and a boat trip to Nassau in the Bahamas.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacNeil of St. Lambert's, Quebec are spending a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Smith.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Spring and family left on Monday to take up residence and pastoral duties in Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe O'Hara and son Michael of Carrying Place visited Mrs. Nathan Hoke recently.

Mrs. Fred Charlesworth has taken up residence in Trenton.

Mr. Tom Cleveland has returned home after spending a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Young in Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McLaren and son David of Oshawa with Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kennedy and daughters, Sandra and Colleen of Campbellford were recent guests of Mrs. William McLaren and visited Mr. McLaren, Sr., who is a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

ATTEND HOCKEY GAME

Two chartered buses from the Stirling area attended the Juvenile hockey game in Bolton on Saturday night when Frankford and Bolton tied 5-5. They play again this Saturday evening in Bolton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Caley and son Robert of West Lorne, Ontario spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rowe and family.

Mrs. P. E. Bonisteel of Brighton spent last week with Mrs. C. W. Scott and Mrs. L. Reddick.

The boys of the Crusader Department of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle enjoyed a hike on Saturday.

Mrs. William McLaren and Mrs. C. W. Scott attended the funeral service for Mr. George Clements in Belleville on Friday afternoon.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hearns and Miss Florence Hearns of R.R. 3, Frankford celebrated 65 guests in honor of Mr. Hearns' 83th birthday.

At 2 p.m. a buffet dinner was served, after which Mr. Hearns opened his gifts. In the late afternoon movies taken of the farm and in the immediate vicinity as long as 35 years ago were shown.

Pharmaceutical Assoc. Deplores Sales Tax

TORONTO (CP) — Confirmed application of the 11 per cent sales tax on drugs is a "tax on illness," the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association said Friday in a letter to Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp. President C. R. McLean of Saint John, N.B., said the tax represents $13,000,000 of the annual cost of drugs in Canada.

Non-ops Want Quarter Billion Package in Two-Year Contract

By DAVE BUTLER

MONTREAL (CP)—The railways have put a $250,000,000-plus price tag on demands by 16 non - operating unions in negotiations for a new two-year contract.

Bulk of the cost would fall on the giants, Canadian National and Canadian Pacific, which handle most of the negotiations for smaller companies.

A rail spokesman emphasizes that the estimate includes only those parts of the demands that can be accurately costed. He adds that other demands could raise the cost to $300,000,000.

A CNR official estimates the demands, if granted, could increase the amount spent on employees to more than 25 per cent of the $1,300,000,000 combined gross revenues of the CNR and CPR.

In terms of the individual employee, the railways say the benefits would average $1.50 an hour or $2,900 a year.

The non-operating unions' last contract, which ran out in September, provided for an average hourly wage of $2.21. Rail officials say they are unable to estimate what the average might be in the new contract.

Included in negotiations with the two big railways are the Algoma Central and Ontario Northland in Northern Ontario, the Hudson Bay and Midland railways in Manitoba, the Sydney and Louisburg division of the Cumberland Railway Co. in Nova Scotia and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway.

The unions, which represent nearly 100,000 employees, formerly presented their demands jointly. But after running into differences between skilled and unskilled workers on the amount of wage increases to be sought, they split into three groups.

The unions presented their demands in November and after three months of negotiations, a railway official says, they agreed to disagree. There have been no formal negotiations since February.

Largest of the three negotiating parties is a band of seven unions in the associated shop crafts representing about 51,000 employees. The shop crafts cover several types of skilled workers such as plumbers, machinists, sheet - metal workers, car men and electrical workers.

Topping their demands is a basic wage increase of 23 per cent, with an additional 30 cents for mechanics. They also want seven cents an hour extra for employees on afternoon shifts and 11 cents more for night-shift workers.

The shop crafts also ask longer vacations, more statutory holidays, improved health and welfare benefits, with the railways paying all the premiums, and more cumulative sick-leave days.

They have applied to the federal labor department for a conciliation board to handle their case and it has been granted.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, which is negotiating alone, represents about 23,000 men, mostly sleeping, dining and parlor car employees, accounting and auditing staff and clerks.

The brotherhood has asked for a general 25-cent-an-hour increase and 15 cents more for employees on afternoon and night shifts.

Expected to be a major issue is the brotherhood's demand for a work guarantee. This would require the railways to guarantee a number of hours of employment equal to the average worked the previous year.

Also controversial is a demand for the right to negotiate any material change in working conditions or alterations of conditions of employment.

The brotherhood and railways are reported to have come to agreement in principle on a separate set of demands for sleeping, dining and parlor car employees which would reduce working time from the present 48-hour week without loss of pay.

The third group of non-ops, known as the residual group, represents eight unions and about 24,000 men. The railways say their demands are the most difficult to meet. They are asking wage increases ranging from 25 to 33 per cent and the same work guarantee as requested by the brotherhood.

WANT LIFE INSURANCE

The residual group also has presented a series of demands on behalf of individual member unions to be negotiated after general settlement is reached. These range from a $50,000 pre-mium-free life insurance policy for members of the Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen to a 30-hour week for the Transportation and Communications Employees Union membership.

The residual and shop crafts groups have unofficially requested on the matter of conciliation. Harry Crowe of Montreal, former research director for the combined non-ops groups, was named their representative to their conciliation boards. The railways named Gordon Cooper of Halifax to represent them on both boards. A chairman has not yet been named.

The last board to be granted by Labor Minister Nicholson was on the CBRT application. The CBRT has named Pat Brian O'Neill, secretary of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, as its representative on the board. The railways are expected to make Mr. Cooper a member of this board.

No date has been announced for the opening of conciliation board hearings but some reports are that it may be as late as May.

Most of the cost of demands will fall on the CNR which employs 70 per cent of non-op employees, workers differentiated from those who actually run the CBRT has named Pat Brian O'Neill, secretary of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, as its representative on the board. The railways are expected to make Mr. Cooper a member of this board.

In the case of the rail brotherhood, all the cost will be on the CNR since the CPR is not involved except where the two lines operate joint facilities.

Railway officials have been inclined to play down any speculation that the matter might end in strike action. One official conceded, however, that whenever the railways and unions reached the time for contract talks the time can be termed ripe for a strike.

The main company argument against most demands is expected to be that they simply cannot raise the money needed because of the freight rate freeze instituted in 1958. The last contract resulted in the federal government underwriting about $70,000,000 of the additional cost in the form of subsidies.

Defeat Hawks, Blues ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Leafs Tie Twice

Hurtling Habs Sweep To NHL Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens are letting everyone concerned know this week that they will be out to keep the Stanley Cup they won last year as they head into the National Hockey League playoffs Saturday night by dumping Chicago Black Hawks 6-3 and then added a 4-1 victory over New York Rangers Sunday night for good measure, as the 1965-66 NHL season came to a close.

In other weekend games, Toronto Maple Leafs tied 3-3 in both of their outings—against New York Saturday night and Sunday night against Detroit Red Wings.

Boston Bruins escaped the NHL cellar for the first time in six years by defeating the Black Hawks 4-2 in the other Sunday game.

Although the Hawks lost both weekend games, Bobby Hull was able fa score a goal and pick up an assist to set a record for most points in a season. Hull's two points gave him 97 for the season, one more than former Montrealer Dickie Moore scored in 1958-59.

The Canadiens' victory Saturday won them the Prince of Wales Trophy — emblematic of first place in regular - season play—and boosted their individual incomes $2,250 a man. The Hawks got $1,250 a man for finishing second.

PERIA TO MONTREAL

Montreal's weekend victories also enabled goaltenders Lorne Worsley and Charlie Hodge to win the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually "to the goalkeeper(s) having played a minimum 25 games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it."

Jean Beliveau led the Canadiens to their one-sided victory Saturday night with his 28th and 29th goals of the season. The others went to Jim Roberts, Dick Duff, Henri Richard, Gilles Tremblay, John Ferguson and Ralph Backstrom.

Hull scored his 54th goal while Stan Mikita notched his 29th and Kenny Wharram his 28th.

Yvan Cournoyer, Montreal's power - play specialist, scored twice against New York Sunday. The goals were Cournoyer's 17th and 18th of the season and included his 16th power-play goal of the year.

Claude Provost and Duff completed Montreal scoring.

Phil Goyetta's third - period goal averted a shutout for the hapless Rangers, who failed to win a game in their last eight of the year.

BRUINS VACATE CELLAR

New York's Sunday loss coupled with Boston's win over the Black Hawks, moved the Bruins into fifth place in the final standings, one point ahead of the Broadway Blues.

The Bruins won the game with a pair of third - period goals within a 20-second span by John McKenzie and Ron Stewart, with his second of the night. Ron Shock got the other. Mikita and Lou Angotti were the Chicago scorers.

The third period was marred by a brawl between Boston's Forbes Kennedy and Doug Jarrett of Chicago, who left the ice for repairs. The Chicago bench drew a penalty for failing to replace Jarrett in the penalty box.

Val Fonteyne and Bruce MacGregor scored 42 seconds apart in the third period to earn the Red Wings their tie with Toronto.

The two goals were scored against Bruce Gamble, Toronto's third goaltender in the game. Veteran Johnny Bower started the game but was replaced by Terry Sawchuk for the second period While Bower coached the Leafs as manager-coach Punch Imlach sat in the stands.

ULLMAN GETS 31ST

Norm Ullman scored his 31st of the year to complete the Detroit scoring, Brit Selby, George Armstrong and Eddie Shack scored for Toronto.

Billy Hicke's goal mid-way through the final period earned the Rangers their tie with the Leafs Saturday.

Vic Hadfield and Don Marshall were the other New York scorers.

Dave Keon, Ron Ellis and Armstrong replied for Toronto.

Gambla shared netminding chores with Sawchuk and was the victim of two of the three Ranger goals.

The Canadiens now meet the Leafs in the best-of-seven semi-final series "" starting in Montreal Thursday, while Chicago and Detroit open their best-of-seven "B" series in Chicago Thursday.

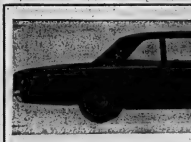
Second Straight Victory

Sanders Wins Playoff, $20,000

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—69, but finished well back at 278. Doug Sanders racked up his second straight golf tournament victory and third of the season Sunday when he dropped in a five-foot putt and beat Tom Weiskopf on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff for the title in the Greater Greensboro Open.

Sanders' triumph, worth $20,000, followed his victory at Jacksonville, Fla. Earlier this season he won the Bob Hope tourney.

Arnold Palmer closed with a Sanders and Weiskopf shot one-under par 70s to tie with a 72-hole total of 278, eight under par.



Each parred the 13th, where the playoff began. On the par three 225-yard 16th, Weiskopf missed the green, chipped up short and missed his putt. Sanders trapped his shot, blasted out and sank it for a par.

GETS BIGGEST CHEQUE

Weiskopf, 23, picked up $12,000, his biggest cheque since turning pro in 1964.

Miller Barber and Dave Ragan tied for third with 277 and won $6,250 each. PGA champion Dave Marr, who had a 68, was fifth with 278 and won $4,200.

R. H. Sikes, third - round leader, slumped to a 74 and tied Palmer and Al Geiberger at 279. Defending champion Sam Snead had a 72-hole total of 283. Snead has won the tournament eight times.

RCAF Flyers Defeat Port Perry

TRENTON — Paced by Joe St. Pierre and Al McVicar, Trenton RCAF Flyers topped Port Perry Bulldozers here yesterday, 7-4. St. Pierre scored three goals and McVicar fired a pair as Flyers opened up a 3-1 lead in the best of seven OHA Intermediate C semi-final series. The fourth game is scheduled for Port Perry Tuesday night.

Gord Frank and Harold (Bugs) MacDonald had the other goals for Flyers. Andy Matthews led Bulldozers with two goals with one each for Carey Geen and Bob Otke.

The teams were tied 3-3 after one period but Flyers moved in front 5-3 in the second and outscored the visitors 2-1 in the final 20 minutes.

Bob Michaud, public relations chairman and George Balazs, club professional and course superintendent of the Bay of Quinte Country Club tell me that golf expansion plans are well under way.

The club purchase of 36 acres east of the "old nine" paves the way for the installation of a nine-hole par-three course — and a practice area.

"The par three course will be ready in the not too distant future while the practice range is expected to be available this season.

Par three courses have proven and are proving extremely popular throughout the country. The Bay of Quinte course will be free for members but commercialized for non-members as will the practice range.

The advantages of a par three course, George says, include the fact it makes for good practice for those who play, or want to play, a short game.

"And with club membership at near capacity this year, the short course will help relieve the congestion on the 18-hole playground." Besides, he says, there are many people who have not got the time to play all round and can enjoy their game this way.

With the installation of the par three course the Bay of Quinte joins the ranks of the few Ontario 18-hole clubs that provide both courses for members — and other golfers.

It marks another milestone on the trail of progress that has followed upon the since the "Festival of Golf" was inaugurated a few years ago.

The first festival perhaps was the finest medium of publicity Quinte's 18-hole course could get. Some fifty-four professionals playing it the first time were generous in their praise. Their appearance in succeeding years proved they meant what they said.

The word got around and Ontario Golf Association officials after a right thorough look at the course the nod of approval and As an OGA tournament "18". It sent the "Best Ball Tournament" here. It is a possibility another big tournament will be played here this year.

And speaking of the festival. Al Balding, one of the country's best touring pros — or he was until illness stopped his trail game — will be here for the Civic Holiday Festival at Golf.

He told Mr. Balazs his intention of coming and asked for an entry. George met him with several other golf top men at the recent Annual Turf Conference and Exposition held in Toronto. Balding was the first Canadian to win an American Professional Golf Association tournament.

All indications point to the club heading for another highly successful season, perhaps the best in its history

As was noted, membership is near - capacity. Over 100 junior players are registered. The club has purchased new course equipment to facilitate mannicuring and maintenance.

Club pro Balazs and his six-man team of course assistants tackled the big job of readying the course this week. "The course" George said, "appears to have wintered reasonably well with not too much snow this winter. It will be ready for play between April 10 and 14th."

"I have an exceptionally fine staff working with me, all good men who can be relied upon to do a thorough job. They include Adam Brummell, course foreman and greenkeepers C. Marvell, R. Sonderland, H. Wannamaker, J. Clearwater and R. Meens.

The club's pro shop will carry a full line of 1966 golfing equipment.

In this district, like all parts of the country, golf has captured the imagination of people of all ages and income brackets. It is at the same time the simplest and most complex of sports.

The level of skill of the participant does not detract from the pleasure and practice he gets. In football and hockey the less proficient player spends a lot of time on the bench. In contrast the golf pro may spend twice as much time on the course during a single game as the super player and will play more shots.

At present more than 500,000 Canadians match their skills against the 700 golf courses in Canada. And the number of participants grows each year. The growth of the game can be seen in such cities as Winnipeg which has more golf courses per capita than any other city in North America.

Canadian Badminton

Malaysians Take Honors

QUEBEC (CP) — Malaysians dominated the finals of the Canadian open badminton championships Saturday, capturing the men's singles crown and sharing the mixed doubles title.

Tan Aik Huang won the men's singles, defeating team - mate Yew Cheng Hoe 15-11, 15-3. Tan Yee Kan and Ng Boon Bee took the doubles with a 13-15, 15-1, 17-15 victory over Hoe and Svend Andersen of Denmark.

Bee combined with Ulla Strand of Denmark to win the mixed doubles, defeating Don Paulp of San Diego and Helen Tibbetts of Los Angeles 15-10, 15-6.

The only Malaysian in the tournament who did not win a title was Hoe. He advanced to the semi-finals of the men's singles, however.

Huang, winner of the recent all-England championships and rated the best badminton player in the world, glided swiftly about the court, returning shots from unusual angles to far corners of the opposite court.

ADDED TO LIST

Judy (Devils) Hashman of England, winner of more major tournaments than any other woman, added to her list of victories Saturday by winning the women's singles and sharing the women's doubles.

Cleveland Wins Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons all but clinched second place in the Western Division and about all that's left to decide in the American Hockey League is the individual scoring championship.

Dick Gamble, a Moncton, N.B., native, held onto his lead during the weekend by scoring two goals and two assists for Rochester Americans. He has 95 points on 46 goals and 49 assists.

Cleland Mortson of Quebec Aces, running a close second, cut Gamble's margin to three points. Mortson had a five-point weekend, notching three goals and two assists and now has 92 points on 34 goals and 58 assists.

Quebec has already clinched first place in the Eastern Division and Rochester has sewed up first place in the west.

Cleveland swept two games, downing Baltimore Clippers 5-2 Saturday and Providence Reds 7-0 Sunday, to move four points ahead of Pittsburgh Hornets in the west. The Hornets lost twice to Hershey Bears, 5-3 Saturday and 3-2 Sunday. Both clubs have two games left.

In other Sunday games, Quebec dumped Buffalo Bisons 7-4 and Rochester edged Baltimore 4-3 Saturday, Rochester defeated Buffalo 4-2 and Quebec tied 3-3 with Springfield Indians.

Hull Establishes New Scoring Mark

Tops By Point

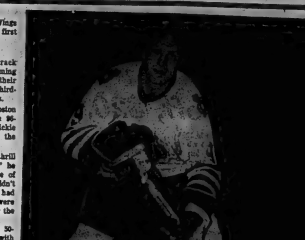
BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Hull hasn't set any more goals for himself — except a winner's share of the Stanley Cup playoff purse.

The Chicago scoring ace, who previously set a National Hockey League record with 54 goals, established a scoring mark Sunday night while Boston Bruins were whipping the Black Hawks 4-2 to finish out of the cellar for the first time in six years.

Hull was obviously proud of his 97th point in one season—an assist on a goal by Stan Mikita—but he was a bit downcast over Chicago's failure to catch Montreal Canadiens in the battle for first place.

And he was looking ahead to the coming semi - final series against Detroit Red Wings.

"I think we'll do well against Detroit," he said. "We always play well against the Red Wings at home and we have our first two games in Chicago."



PICKS CANADIENS

"I'd like to get another crack at Montreal," he said, assuming the Canadiens will win their playoff series against the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Hull's assist against Boston enabled him to eclipse the 96-point record set by Dickie Moore with Montreal in the 1958-59 season.

"But it wasn't the same thrill I got from my 51st goal," he said. "And that wasn't one of my best shots. In fact, I didn't hit the puck squarely. I've had much better shots that were blocked by a defenceman or the goaltender."

Hull's 51st goal created a 50-goal record he had shared with Montreal greats Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

BOBBY HULL SETS NEW SCORING MARK

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks scored a goal and picked up an assist in two weekend games to set a record for most points in a season as the 1965-66 national hockey league season came to a close Sunday night.

Hull finished the season with 97 points, including a record 54 goals, to break the mark of 96 points in a season set in 1958-59 by Dickie Moore, a former Montreal Canadiens star.

Hull's 97 points also won him the third scoring championship in nine seasons with the Hawks.

Stan Mikita, Hull's teammate, and Montreal's Bobby Rousseau finished in a tie for second place with 78 points, one more than Jean Beliveau of Montreal. Mikita, Rousseau and Beliveau finished the season as the league's top playmakers with 48 assists each.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, who completed his 20th NHL season Sunday night, took fifth place in the scoring with 75 points, followed by teammates Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio with 72 and 69 respectively.

OASA Convention

Belch Elected; Drastic Rules Change

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TORONTO — Twin highlights of the 44th annual Ontario Amateur Softball Association convention here on the weekend were the election to the executive committee of Belleville's Cliff Belch Jr. and probably the biggest change in the playing rules since the introduction of gloves.

Belch, was one of six voted to the executive committee by the 329 voting delegates from across the province.

While this marks his debut as an elected member, Belch is no stranger to the executive. He has been appointed for the past two years.

The major rule change, voted in after some debate during the Saturday afternoon business session, concerns all classes of OASA ball from juvenile up.

The distance between bases, from the pitching mound to the plate, and across the diamond, have been lengthened. Base runners will now be permitted to leave their base as soon as the pitcher releases the ball. A smaller sized ball will be used.

Senior "B", all intermediate, junior and juvenile teams are included in these changes, bringing them into line with the present senior "A" rules. The changes will be in the 1966 rule book, expected to be available by the middle of May.

Also of interest to teams from this area is the elimination of Junior and Intermediate "D" classes.

And, passed in the same motion, is the splitting up of midget, bantam and peewee divisions into "A" and "B". The new "B" groups are for centres under 15,000 population.

During the election of officers President Harold Downer, of Peterborough, 1st vice - president Clare Butler, Willowdale, secretary Leroy Pickard and treasurer Lloyd Aiguire, both of St. Catharines, went back in by acclamation.

Max Scheiff, of Toronto, defeated C. H. Dunn, of Galt, to retain his place as 2nd. vice-president. In another battle for 3rd. vice-presidency, Danny Flynn, of Hamilton, turned back bids by Dunn and S. Reeve, of Sarnia.

The were nominated for the executive committee, with 20 of standing. Joining Belch in the winners circle were: Joe Dunn, Galt, Harold Langabeer, Kingston, Don Prescott Sudbury, Stan Reeve, Sarnia and Tom Sims, Meaford.

Six appointed at a later meeting were: Charlie Russell, Oshawa, E. Fowler, Brampton, Norm Fraser, Willowdale, O. Pearson, Woodstock, J. Rouch, Hamilton and G. Thomas, Simcoe.

This eastern area is well represented and added to the "team" are Jim Tebworth, Belleville, and Harold West, Kingston, as special conveners.

Of special note at the convention were meetings between OASA executives and delegates from the Maritimes and Calgary with the idea of forming a Canadian Amateur Softball Association.

While these meetings were not open, OASA Secretary Pickard said this reporter: "Our exploritory meetings have proven most encouraging. Two of our Calgary delegates will attend a meeting of the OASA in Saskatoon during the month of May. The future looks bright in this direction." President Downer is expected to be one of the delegates.

Over 200 persons attended the annual dinner and civic welcome on Saturday. Jim Turner, president of the host Scarborough Association, spoke briefly. Honored during the affair were five men with a total of 139 years of service to the OASA. Herb Champion, Vern McElwraith, Frank Feaver, George Campbell and Otto King receiving life membership plaques the first ever presented.

The 1967 convention will be held at North York.

Meet Oshawa Tonight

Rangers Eliminate Marlies

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Rangers flashed the superb goaltending of Ken Broderick to eliminate Toronto Marlboros 3-1 to enter the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals.

The Rangers eliminated the favored Marlboros after eight games, with the finale before 7,023 cheering Kitchener fans. Rangers won the series 4-3 with one game tied.

The OHA announced Sunday the best-of-seven final between the Rangers and Oshawa Generals will open in Oshawa tonight.

The second game is scheduled for Tuesday in Kitchener with the third in Oshawa Friday and the fourth back in Kitchener Saturday. Remainder of the schedule will be announced later.

Kitchener finished seventh in the nine - team league. They eliminated Niagara Falls Flyers in a six-game quarter-final.

CHECKED TENACIOUSLY

Once again, it was tenacious Ranger checking and sparkling work by Kitchener netminder Gary Kurt that stifled the Marlboro attack Saturday. Toronto held a 35-28 edge in shots on goal, but Kurt made numerous fine saves, including a brilliant stop on Tom Martin with 50 seconds left.

Bob Jones scored two goals for Rangers, but it was a goal by Jim Krulicki early in the second period that turned out to be the winner.

Krulicki took a faceoff in the Toronto end, worked in front of the Toronto net, lost the puck, and then regained it to fire the big goal through the pads of Al Smith.

Jones gave Kitchener the lead early in the first period with Toronto two men short. Mike Corrigan tied the score late in the period.

Barons, Wings Win BMHA Bantam Titles

The championships in the B.M.H.A.'s bantam division were settled on Saturday.

Barons captured the "A" crown with a 2-1 win over the Hawks.

Wings grabbed the "B" title by edging the Leafs 3-2. Both clubs won the titular nods in two consecutive games.

Semark and Ineson fired the Barons' goals and Goulah had an assist. M. Coogan from R. Roy was the Hawks' scoring play.

For the Wings, Ron Mitchell's second goal of the game proved the winner while R. Clements was the other marksman. Fred Slickle, S. Buck and D. Lorimer had assists. Les Westfall and Ron May scored for Leafs. Ivan Robinson had an assist.

PEEWEE

In the "A" semi-finals, Rangers edged the Canadiens 3-3 to eliminate the Canadiens. This was a replay of an earlier protested game won 4-3 by Canadiens. C. McKenna scored twice and W. Andrews once for Rangers. K. Hodgson had an assist.

J. Lofthaus and Ron Brunton were Canadiens' marksmen while J. Garvin and T. Ford had assisted. Rangers will meet the Bruins for the "A" title with the series starting today.

In "B" group playoffs, Leafs blanked the Barons 4-0, sparked by P. Duffy's four-goal performance. D. Gay potted the other goal. T. Dall and R. Watt had assists.

A peewee exhibition was also played with Golden Mile Hawks and Montrose tying 3-3. The opposing team coaches, Bob Burnett and Merril Dales played goal in this game. R. Bennett and J. Fraser scored for Maroons, D. Harrington and D. Grier for the Hawks.

RITEWAYS BEATEN

Scarborough Red Wings twice overcame first-period leads to defeat BeWellite Riteways 6-3 in a novice exhibition here Sunday.

Great Googan gave Riteways leads of 1-0 and 2-1 but Scarborough, sponsored by the Detroit Red Wings, won it with four goals in the third period. Peter Crawford had an assist on one of Googan's goals.

Smoldett and Sampson scored two goals each for the winners while Michel and Lukewich got the others.

City Minors Win Four From Syracuse

Belleville Kinsmen bantams and Western Tire midgets swept to four victories, three of them on the away variety, in exhibition - hockey games against Syracuse here on the weekend.

Western Tire midgets came from behind to top Syracuse 6-5 Saturday and scored an easy 9-0 triumph on Sunday.

Kinsmen bantams whipped their visitors 9-0 Saturday and 4-1 on Sunday.

The midgets outscored Syracuse 5-1 in the third period to take the 6-5 nod. Cliff Scott scored two Belleville goals with one each for Mike Healey, Cal Wilson, John Holgate and Ron Fuller. Joe Lumsden helped on two, Healey, Wilson and Fuller on one each. Rick Gelina fired a pair and Kurt Kemp one for Syracuse.

It was different Sunday as the Tiremen scored two in the first and three in each of the last two periods, without a reply. Wayne Brown and Grant Hopkins triggered two goals each, Mike Healey, Ron Fuller, Joe Lumsden and Cal Wilson one. Jim Dafoe assisted on two, Wilson, Healey, Bob Carter and Pete Jury on one each.

Kinsmen scored almost at will in their two easy wins. On Saturday, Pat MacKenzie led the way with three goals. Mario Venutti and D. MacCormack each triggered a pair, Terry Meagher and Al Genereaux one apiece. Meagher, Mike Allore, S. Moore each had two assists, MacCormack and C. Powell singletons.

In the 8-1 win Sunday, Baldy Mosher fired Syracuse's lone'r in the first period. Bill Beckensa sparked Belleville with three goals, Terry Meagher, Dennis MacCormack, Mario Venutti, Bruce Lattimer, Steve Moore and Jim Potts got the others. Chuck Powell had three assists, Venutti and MacCormack two each, MacKenzie, Meagher and Genereaux the others.

Vancouver Groups Drop Franchise Efforts

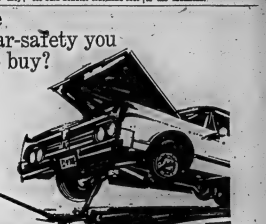
VANCOUVER (CP) — What may have been Vancouver's last attempt to get a team in the National Hockey League ended in failure, it was learned Sunday night.

Despite a petition with 60,000 signatures asking NHL governors for a franchise, the men who had considered making an other bid decided not to handle it.

Businessman Cyrus McLean, who headed Vancouver's first application to the NHL governors, rejected it in favor of more U.S. teams—said Sunday night that industrialists M.s. Bell and Frank McMahon decided they were not interested in a second attempt.

McLean said he and Allan McGavin, the other businessman involved in Vancouver's first application, would have submitted a second bid at Tuesday's NHL meeting "if I thought it had any chance at all."

Les McDonald, who organized the 60,000-signature petition and a public meeting which decided to ask Bell and McMahon to spearhead a second franchise application, said Sunday night that he had learned definitely that no group would make another bid for Vancouver.



He said Senator Hartland Molson of Montreal, who has said he would like to see Vancouver in the league, wired that NHL president Clarence Campbell confirmed there was no second bid on file from Vancouver.

The NHL governors meet Tuesday in Montreal.

Mary Martin Extravaganza Welcome as First Daffodil

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Easter show at Radio City Music Hall is a spring institution of this city, as those who are once again buckling the long walking lines can attest.

NBC televised the great stage show Sunday night in color with Mary Martin an extra attraction. The extravaganza was as welcome as the first daffodil.

Miss Martin, radiating her own special charm, served both as hostess and singing star—and even did a little dancing. She ran through an enormous number of songs during the hour. One long number set in a lovely flower market was devoted entirely to songs about spring, April and rain.

Without derogating Miss Martin's talents, the real stars of the hour were those famous Rockettes, the long line of look-alike girls who've precision dancing and kicking is a tourist sight that competes with the view from the top of the Empire State Building.

There was a short dog act and Miss Martin and Paul Hartman did a comedy number involving a maladroit magician. But the hour was primarily a series of lavish musical production numbers with huge sets, lots of people and lovely color. If it had a fault it was that the show itself was a bit too big for television screens.

REPORTS ON CONGO

An hour earlier NBC presented an illuminating—and discouraging—report on conditions in The Congo less than six years after its independence.

The country's economic state, said Premier Col. Leonard Mulamba, is "catastrophic."

A survivor was shown walking somberly through Stanleyville—soon almost a ghost town—and recalling the massacre of whites in 1964. He pointed to a spot where his wife was shot dead.

A plantation owner returned to the land he had operated for 30 years and found everything from the buildings to a dirt-covered plane and rusting machinery, a shambles.

There were scenes of the sporadic warfare that wracks the country. One showed by indirection a uniformed soldier beating a prisoner who was tied by the hands and feet. We did not actually see the blows land, but heard the victim's whimpers of pain.

"It is his soon to be that the Congo is an emerging or submerging nation," said narrator Chet Huntley. "But if it emerges it has got to be by the black with the whites, not black against white or vice versa."

AT THE PARK — Brigitte Bardot and Jack Palance star in Joseph E. Levine's "Contempt" opening tonight at the Park Theatre through Embassy Pictures release for a three day engagement. The drama, directed by Jean-Luc Godard and produced by Carlo Ponti, was filmed in color and Franscope co-location in Rome and Capri. On the same program the most startling film that you will ever see "The Empty Canvas" starring Bette Davis, Horst Buchholz and Catherine Spaak. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m. "Contempt" at 7.40 and "The Empty Canvas" at 9.35 p.m.

Commercial Hockey League

Belvedere Hotel scored a 5-2 victory over American-Optical last night to deadlock the best-of-five Commercial "B" Hockey finals at one game apiece.

The series continues next Sunday, at nine o'clock.

The winners' five goals were divided among as many players. The marksmen were Taylor, B. Hughes, J. Hughes, Nolan and Reid.

Jones and C. Boonhower secored for Optical.

In the penalty department, Belvedere drew four minors and the losers took just one.

TV ENTERTAINMENT

MONDAY

- At 9 o'clock, the popular Andy Williams Show features guest performers Pat Boone, the Smothers Brothers, and Indian folk singer Ravi Shinkr-Maire — channels 3 and 8. Also at 9, vocalist Jack Jones is presented in his first TV special with guests Tony Bennett and Milton Berle — channels 11 and 13.
- The Sixties this week and next examines Canada's water resources and the national water policy. Earlier this year in the House of Commons, Davie Fulton termed this one of the most pressing questions facing the nation. He warned that Canada will find itself in serious difficulties if it does not develop long-range plans for water supplies and distribution — channels 11 and 13 at 9 p.m.

AT THE BELLE—Today — Alan Bates leading British actor, and Irene Papas, the famous Greek actress star with Anthony Quinn in "Zorba the Greek", international classic, filmed on location on the Island of Crete in the Mediterranean.

Wellington Novices Deadlock Series

Wellington roared back on strange ice to defeat Bobcaygeon 6-2 in their OMHA Novices playdown series on the weekend.

The victory tied the best-of-three series at one game each. The deciding game will also be played in Bobcaygeon on Wednesday night.

D. Wight paced Wellington's attack with three goals. MacDonald scored a pair and Brown got the other.

Fawcett and Richardson had Bobcaygeon's goals.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 5

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Outside pressures dominate. Public reactions, relations and comments create excitement. Active day . . . but best to avoid pushing hot buttons. Wait and observe.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you expect others to be discreet. . .you may be disappointed. Not a good time for secrets or clandestine meetings. Caution should be key word. Check twice!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Pace steps up. You may not get too much rest . . . but excitement is plentiful. You enjoy variety, but need to guard against letting fatigue dominate.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Take care where instructions, directions, and journeys enter picture. Tendency is to skip pertinent details. People who relate information may have only superficial facts. Know this!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Full Moon position stresses plans which may require more shaping. You should take time to be thorough, complete. Otherwise frustration could spoil glow of good feeling.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Specific chance to be fair with yourself is highlighted. Emphasis on possessions, money, ability to make gains. Take fresh point of view. Welcome new chances, meet challenges.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 — Oct. 23): Full Moon in your sign emphasizes personality — possible opposition by loved ones. Important to analyze true feelings. Search deep . . . bring forth answers from within.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Setback you might have feared can now become asset. Utilize innate ability to turn odds in your favor. Means be shrewd, perceptive. Major question can be answered.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Speculating may not work out in your favor. Means base actions on knowledge. Not time to dabble in fine or details. Be thorough, aware of minor matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Pressures may exist from various angles. Likely interpretation is argument from bottom and top. Means you will have to step lightly. Don't create needless irritation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Don't tray yourself into wild goose chase. Means be practical where change, travel plans are concerned. Family member can offer sound suggestion. Be willing to listen!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Concentrate on increasing security measures. Means protect what you own. Debts owed you due to be repaid . . . but you may have to settle for less than you expect.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you possess vitality, are attractive to members of opposite sex — you enjoy travel and never are satisfied with mere routine tasks.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Full Moon position points to broken agreements.

MONEY!

To do what you want to do this Spring — Rent the money from CRESCENT
Phone Crescent and tell us how much money you'd like to rent ($50.00 for a week only costs $6.50). Ask for a Crescent Rent Money Bouquet. You can choose from assorted colours, all trimmed with bright orange bows, mixed with purposeful purple blooms — and a few pink lilies a-top. Then just come in and pick up your money. It's done-quet — it can be ready in as little as 24 hours.
Some of the ways Crescent makes it easy for you to rent money

Decide Awards Today

MONTREAL (CP)—Ron Andrews, National Hockey League publicist, said Sunday night that a decision will be made today on how prize money is to be awarded to the runner-up in the individual scoring and Vezina Trophy races.

Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens finished the 1965-66 season with identical records of 30 goals and 48 assists.

The Vezina race, both the Black-Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs finished in a tie for second place honors behind Montreal. The Hawks and Leafs have 127 goals against each after the 70-game season ended.

That will head with 173 goals against.

The Vezina Trophy is awarded to the goalkeeper(s) having played a minimum 25 games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it.

The runner-up in each category over the season receives $500.

"We're still not sure what money will be awarded to whom until I speak to Mr. Campbell (league president Clarence Campbell)," Andrews said.

Burnley Gains On Liverpool

LONDON (CP)—Burnley, the only club to go into action Saturday among the top five teams of the First Division in the English Soccer League, would gain only one point from a tough away battle against West Ham United.

Tying 1-1 with the London club, Burnley advanced to 46 points, one behind league-leading Liverpool.

Burnley plays with Sheffield Wednesday was one of six matches in the First Division postponed because of snow in the north of England. Liverpool has seven more leagues matches to play.

Leading the standings is Liverpool with 33 points, followed by Burnley with 47, Leeds United 42, Manchester United 41 and Chelsea 40.

Left-winger Peter Brabrook put West Ham ahead at the 64-minute mark. Ten minutes later the score was evened by centre-forward Willie Irvine.

Substituting at fifty EARLY Scottish international Bill Brown, recalled to Tottenham Hotspur after two months out because of injury, allowed three Nottingham Forest goals in the first 13 minutes.

David Stalwright, 17-year-old inside forward, sparked the 3-2 Nottingham victory with a goal in the first five minutes.

Right-winger Mike Keay in the seventh minute and centre-half Roger Hoy in the 18th scored Nottingham's other goals. Right-winger James Robertson and Ed Clayton scored Tottenham's goals.

It was a good day for two clubs inhabiting the bottom rungs of the league. Fulham beat West Bromwich Albion 3-1 at home and Northampton Town won 3-1 on Aston Villa's ground.

Vietnamese Demonstrators Have Far Greater Powers Than Number Suggests

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — When 10,000 people demonstrate in Da Nang, it is the equivalent of 2,000,000 demonstrators marching down Fifth Avenue in New York.

In the demonstrations spring ing up around the country against Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government, less than one per cent of the population has been directly involved.

Most of South Viet Nam's population lives indifferent to politics, dodging the bullets of war and struggling to stay alive.

Nevertheless, the tiny percentage of South Vietnamese involved in the demonstrations is misleading.

The demonstrators have power far greater than their numbers would suggest.

OVERTHREW DIEM

A hard core of experienced politicians and religious figures are behind the agitation. They helped to overthrow President Ngo Dinh Diem, Gen. Nguyen Khanh and four other premiers.

The only new force is the young students, who have been drafted into the movement to do the leg work.

In one of the high politicos backing Buddhist and student agitents to Safeguard the Nation is the secretary of an extremist group called Dai Viet Party.

Based in Saigon, Minh works out of the Buddhist Institute, between Cholon and Saigon, and is a moderate wing of the Buddhist hierarchy. But students and Buddhists from all over Saigon demonstrations recently.

Respectacled Thich Tam Chau, the leading monk at the institute, worked actively to overthrow Diem. Joining him in that struggle was Thich Tri Quang, a moody, mysterious figure who is stage-managing the demonstrations in Hue and Da Nang.

REPRESENT BUDDHISM

Both Thich Tam Chau and Thi Quang represent all organized Buddhism in Viet Nam.

The Buddhists have several key pagodas in Saigon and other large cities where hundreds of the faithful will gather at a moment's notice. And there are key colleges filled with students eager to obey the wishes of the monks.

With these sources to draw from, the Buddhists are finding no difficulty in pulling crowds for larger than in the Buddhist demonstrations against Diem.

A Buddhist Institute meeting last Saturday drew from 7,000 to 10,000 people, all of them squatting orderly inside the institute courtyard to one of their favorite monk orators.

Only a handful participated in the demonstration that same evening. There is no doubt, however, that if the monks had pulled out the stops, all of the streets, all would have done so.

CONVENIENT CALL

The anti-American aspect of the demonstrations has given more a convenient political rallying call than a deep-felt feeling, even though every Vietnamese has suffered real or imagined difficulties since American troops arrived in large numbers.

Taxis are harder to get, prices are higher. The American troops appear richer. Ky's buzzed visit to Honolulu to meet with President Johnson is a subject of ridicule at the demonstrations. Ky is called a lackey of the United States and much worse.

The danger of the anti-American slogans painted on banners by demonstrators is that the war - weary Vietnamese may eventually start believing them.

If that happens, then the overthrow of Ky, the establishment of a civilian government may not be enough.

They may start agitating for the removal of U.S. personnel. The Viet Cong, who benefit every time a demonstration takes to the streets, would be overjoyed.

SCHOOL IS A SEA SONG — Teacher Joseph Gladstone of Toronto's Main Street School leads a group of teen-aged girls in a noisy old sea song, the girl's Eglish lesson for the day. The school is scene of a pilot project by the Toronto board of education aimed at finding how to help new Canadians learn both a new language and a new way to live. Principal Joseph Sterioff said he has thrown away the book and substituted the premise that oral language to deal with particulars situations is the immigrant's primary need. (CP Photo)

Toronto School Test Wages To Assist Foreign Children

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—For 27 Toronto teen - agers, school is a place where a noisy old sea song is an English lesson, where they have learned to drink milk and a bus ride is a teaching aid.

They are new Canadians from 10 different countries. They started in September to attend Main Street school because they spoke little or no English.

Main Street is a pilot project of the Toronto Board of Education, aimed at finding out how to help newcomers to Canada through the twin difficulties of learning a new language and a new way to live.

Its program was mapped out by principal Joseph Sterioff who says he threw away the book and began with the premise that oral language to deal with everyday situations is the first tool an immigrant needs.

"I think the aim of this school is to be a reception centre for non-English-speaking new Canadians with their social and other problems," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Doherty of Wetaskiwin, Alberta were Mrs. Joseph O'Neil and Peter Arnouls from Montreal where he had purchased a fire engine for the city and drove it home to Alberta. Mrs. Charles O'Connor and Mr. and Mrs. Doherty with her cousin and other relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Bedore Marmora Township and LAC Frank O'Neil and family and LAC Ken O'Neil, Mrs. O'Neil and family, Trenton, left on 30 years since Mr. Doherty visited relatives in this area.

W.M.S. MEETING

Speaker at the March meeting of the Free Methodist Missionary Society of Marmora Church was Mrs. Sidney Caswell of Oshawa. She and her husband Rev. Caswell spent many years as missionaries in China.

Mrs. Caswell related their missionary experiences and showed many interesting curios brought home from China.

The meeting was held at the home of the president Mrs. Everett Barrons which followed a social luncheon served at the home of Mrs. Stewart Hardy.

RING TOGETHER

At Main Street, language and new ways are taught together and made to seem desirable so that the students want to learn. Jack Was Every Inch a Sailor is be sort of song teachers enjoy believing. When they do, no one's mispronunciation makes him feel noticed or ignored, consciously afraid to try again.

Even lunchtimes are informal learning times as students have learned to drink milk at the school. They resisted at first in spite of the example set by their teachers, because in many of their home countries milk is strictly for babies. In some it was strong - tasting goat's milk. The school will soon be serving lunches to help accustom students to other strange foods.

A ride on an escalator will never frighten a Chinese girl again as it did the first time. She had never even seen one before.

Public transportation, barber shops and grocery stores are becoming things to take in stride because of school trips.

Back in the classrooms, all of these serve as material for English lessons. At first the teachers talked about an excursion and wrote down what they said on the board. Then the whole class talked and the teachers wrote down what they said. Now students write essays about their own impressions.

HOMEWORK

They are learning to handle workaday English, a more valuable first gift than tangling with textbook and literary English. Such standard high school texts would often be so remote from their experiences as to be incomprehensible. They are also learning to write the language without the strain of coupling with students whose native tongue is English.

Present classes have only 12 students, and each of the eight teachers works with each class. Mr. Sterioff says he did not have to look for staff, they applied. Several speak more than one language, as does he. The students range in age from 13 to 18. Their classes are not without regard to age or background. This helps to make them rely on English as their only common language and encourages them to help each other since no one automatically outmarks anyone else.

They take science, geography, history, art, but do not try to follow a standard curriculum. Some of the students have had only a few years of schooling, others much more. Students from Greece or China have their problems complicated because they must learn entirely new symbols for written language.

THREE GRADUATE

No effort was made to screen the students on the basis of intelligence.

So far three Main Street students have "graduated" to regular schools, the goal for most of them.

"Principals and guidance teachers from the area have been most sympathetic and sensitive to the problems. They lent their timetables to take our students. We need their cooperation. For instance, some of our graduates should probably postpone taking French or Latin and take a double period of English or math or take remedial reading. A student who speaks French or Spanish might be allowed to write out that exam and use the class time for something else."

In addition to work with the students, the Main Street staff tries to teach parents to help them understand what their children are doing, to encourage them to feel free to visit a school and talk to teachers.

They have explained that it is part of school and acceptable in Canada for the girls in the choir to be out in the evening to sing in a school concert. They try to explain that in Canada boys are not automatically expected to go to work when they are 16.

SHOWS FOR PARENTS

The students have put on an international smorgasbord at the school for their parents. They are planning a Canadian evening with square dancing, gingerbread and cider.

Indonesia May Return to UN

All Canadian Universities Plan One Test

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says a uniform, nationwide, bilingual system of university entrance examinations is expected to be in operation in Canada by 1968.

The newspaper says three foundations for a deal set of papers in English and in French will be laid at a meeting this month in Ottawa sponsored by the Association of Universities and Colleges in Canada.

It adds:

"The model of representatives of Canadian universities and provincial education departments will be the founding conference of the Canadian equivalent of the United States College Entrance Board examinations."

The foundations for the dual set of papers will be spiritual and achievement tests.

Three Nova Scotia Skindivers Find $700,000 Treasure Ship

LOUISBURG, N.S. (CP) — One of three skindivers who claim to have recovered $700,000 in silver and gold coins from the wreck of an 18th century French ship says he's the happiest man in the world.

"I'm awful glad the secret is out," said 35-year-old Harvey MacLeod at his home here Monday after it had been revealed that he, Alex Storm, 29, and Dave MacEachern, 28, had kept their discovery a secret for seven months.

Storm and MacEachern are surveyors with the northern affairs department working on the restoration of the old French fortress here. MacLeod is a fireman with the Sydney and Louisbourg division of the Cumberland Railway.

Their treasure find—after a three-year hunt—was not disclosed until they were able to determine the value of thousands of silver and gold coins they brought to shore here last fall. They refused to say how many coins they recovered.

"It was difficult to keep from talking," said MacLeod, engineer-navigator of the treasure hunt. "I don't know what's going to happen now, but I'm the happiest man in the world."

LOST IN 1725

The divers said the treasure, mainly in the form of coins, was found in the scattered wreck of the 132-foot French pay and supply ship Le Chameau, which went down off this former French fortress in eastern Cape Breton Aug. 26, 1725.

Mr. Storm said the $700,000 evaluation was based on the opinions of coin experts in New York, London and Paris, who had studied samples of the treasure.

A 21 - page report of the search, written by Mr. Storm, said the men would return this summer to Le Chameau reef, the area of the treasure find, to clear articles from the sea bottom and complete a map for historical value. They said there

10 Dead In Wake Of Storm

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Householders and cleanup squads picked today through the debris of hundreds of homes reduced to rubble by tornadoes that chewed a disastrous path through central Florida.

A 25 - year - old Davenport woman, Mrs. Flora Mae Bowen, died this morning of tornado injuries bringing the twisters' death toll to at least 10. The storms also injured more than 300 persons and wrecked hundreds of dwellings and stores.

National guardsmen kept vigil against looting and looked for additional victims.

The Red Cross said the hardest hit area was around Gibsonia north of Lakeland, where a preliminary survey showed at least 300 homes were destroyed or damaged. There was heavy damage all around Lakeland, a city of 41,000, at Auburndale, Davenport, Haines City and Winter Haven.

Striking first at the St. Petersburg - Clearwater area about 8 a.m., the bowling winds next hit Tampa, second largest city in the state with 275,000, then moved on to Lakeland in the northern part of citrus-rich Polk County.

The two twisters moved south of Orlando and went into the Atlantic just south of the mile cenire at Cape Kennedy.

West of Gibsonia, another 32 homes were destroyed. Twenty-six trailers were splintered at a trailer park south of Polk City, at least four homes destroyed in an area southwest of Lakeland, and serious damage was reported by tornadic winds on at least 30 homes in southeast Lakeland.

At the big missile center, there was only slight damage. Three workers received minor injuries and hundreds of the city's biting astronomical observatory was postponed.

At Ocoee, which adjoins Cape Kennedy, the Red Cross said 133 persons received hospital treatment. Fifty trailers were destroyed and 75 to 100 damaged along with 23 homes and a shopping center.

Some citrus groves in the Lakeland area were destroyed as winds stripped the trees and left the ground yellow with fruit. However, Robert W. Rutledge, executive vice-president of Florida Citrus Mutual, said the loss would be minor.

At least 10,000 homes in the Tampa - Lakeland area were without electricity. Of those, 22,000 Tampa homes had no electricity. Many other areas were also affected, including Brandon, Dade City and Northern Polk County. The tornado killed three persons in Tampa.

Premier Ky Backs Down After Talk

(From AP-Reuters)

DA NANG (CP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and his opponents in the northern provinces of South Viet Nam appeared tonight to have worked out a compromise to avert bloodshed and civil war within the Vietnamese armed forces.

Ky flew from Saigon to Da Nang and held day-long talks in the sealed - off Da Nang Air Base with Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, who replaced Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Chang Thi, Ky's chief rival for power, as commander of the South Vietnamese army's 1st Corps.

After the talks, Ky flew back to Saigon, and Chuan told reporters the premier had agreed that about 4,000 Vietnamese marines flown during the night to Da Nang to quell the opposition would remain on the base. He said they would not try to enter Da Nang.

Chuan said he in turn had ordered elements of the 11th Ranger Battalion — which he had called into Da Nang to oppose the marines—to return to their station at Hoi An, south of Da Nang.

Chuan said he also had pledged to control the anti-government demonstrations that have swept Da Nang and would try to bring a halt to expressions of anti-Americanism that accompanied the demonstrations. The demonstrators objected chiefly to American support of the military government.

Da Nang was calm today and there were no demonstrations. Hundreds of Buddhist-led youths continued to demonstrate against the government in Saigon, but the army was taking a firm hand with them and so far had them under control.

Gen. Thi did not attend the meeting between Ky and Chuan.

South Vietnamese military sources said Chuan warned Ky

Britain Will Warn Portugal Letting Oil Reach Rhodesia May Cause UN to Use Force

LONDON (AP) — Britain decided today to warn Portugal that sewing shipments of oil through her territory to Rhodesia might touch off pressures for the use of force by the United Nations in the Rhodesian crisis.

Government officials said Ambassador Sir Archibald Ross in Lisbon has been instructed to tell the Portuguese authorities that the safety of the passenger-running tanker Joanna V is bound to attract the attention of the United Nations.

Ross also has been told to say that the presence of Joanna V and in the port of Beira is certain to increase pressures for trans forming the current program of economic and financial embargo on all trade with Rhodesia's government of Prime Minister Ian Smith, who declared independence from Britain Nov. 11 to preserve white-settler rule.

A senior British official said: "The Portuguese will be told that if such a resolution is passed under Chapter VII of the (UN) charter (making sanctions compulsory) it will at least impose a binding obligation on Portugal to apply sanctions against Rhodesia.

"At the worst, it might also call for the use of force."

Informants said the imposition of mandatory sanctions also

Manitoba Folk Start Moving As Red River Begins Flooding

WINNIPEG (CP) — Families began to leave flood-threatened southern Manitoba Monday as ice jams and swollen tributaries quickened the rise of the Red River.

Flood control officials issued a standby warning to all people in Emerson, St. Jean Baptiste, Morris and surrounding areas to be prepared to move by Wednesday.

"We ask all citizens to be prepared to move, not to be prepared," Agriculture Minister George Hutton said in a special radio and television flood report over the province's Emergency Measures Organization network.

In the border town of Emerson, eight families abandoned their homes Monday and flood-controller Frank Muirhead advised residents in the lower part of the town to start evacuating. About half the town's 852 residents live in the low area.

Mr. Muirhead said evacuation should start when the river level hits the 796-foot mark, 2.3 feet above bank level. Monday the level was 793.23 feet, only two-fifths of a foot below the stage reached last year when several feet of water slopped into the downtown area and some students of low - lying Hutton said in a special radio areas were forced to move.

Emerson schools are already closed and Monday night there was only one patient in the hospital, where plans were set to move equipment to safety.

"We don't want anybody to depend on the dike," Mr. Muirhead said.

"It's a new dike and you can't really depend on it."

The latest prediction is for a high-water peak of five to eight feet above bank level for Emerson between April 9-13.

Fourteen families at St. Jean Baptiste, a dike-lank forced 14 families to evacuate. Flood controller George Bonnerby said a secondary dike is being built behind the faulty dike.

When the secondary dike is completed the town should be safe, "for the time being anyway," Mr. Bonnerby said.

About 300 Indians evacuated the low-lying Rosean Reserve between Emerson and St. Jean Baptist Monday. They were taken 100 miles by bus to an old RCAF station at MacDonald, 60 miles west of Winnipeg.

The reserve, situated at the function of the Red and Roseau Rivers, was previously evacuated in 1948, 1950 and 1965.

Outcome Of Vote Unsure

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons votes tonight on a resolution to abolish capital punishment. The result seems anything but certain.

Four days of debate, including an overtime session Monday night, have had 36 speakers favoring retention, 26 for abolition and two undecided. More will speak today.

The first of the free votes came Monday night on a Creditiste amendment to maintain execution for persons who kill while serving a life sentence. It was defeated 190 to 23.

Conservative Terry Nugent and New Democrat Reid Scott, both proposers of the main resolution for abolition, voted for the amendment.

Liberal Robert Stanbury, another sponsor, voted against it while Liberal James Byrne, the fourth sponsor, was absent.

Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker both voted against the amendment.

Mr. Diefenbaker re - opened the debate, adjourned last Monday, with a 90-minute argument for abolition. He said the government has a responsibility to make its position clear on the matter.

The Opposition leader suggested a free-year trial period for abolition and a 20-year minimum prison term for those

Martin Is Sharply Critical Of France's Action in NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Monday France's action in withdrawing from NATO militarily may jeopardize the stability of central Europe.

It might also, he said before the Commons external affairs committee:

1. Weaken the political unity of NATO;

2. Stimulate nationalistic tendencies absent in Western Europe since the war;

3. Put bilateral relations between France and some other NATO members under a "great strain;"

4. Set back the eventual aim of Western Europe taking on more responsibility for its own defence;

5. Divide the countries of Europe over what their defence policies should be;

6. Alter the balance of forces in Europe.

It was the sharpest criticism of France in years by a member of a Canadian government.

Mr. Martin said France's decision will not be permitted to result, as far as Canada is concerned, bilateral relations in the political, economic, scientific and cultural fields between Canada and France.

He was sure that France would want to provide some "compensation" for its "unilateral and final" decision that Canada's two bases on French territory must be vacated by April 1, 1967.

Mr. Martin also dealt with Viet Nam and Rhodesia and announced that Canada will forgive India a $10,000,000 debt owing on two 1952 loans.

He said Canada wants to see the International Truce Supervisory Commission in Viet Nam — Canada, India and Poland are the members—used on a "good offices assignment" to unblock the channels of conversation between the parties concerned.

Canada was not urging the commission to call for a new Geneva Conference. The 1954 Geneva meeting ended the 30-year civil war in Indochina and established the commission.

Mr. Martin said such a call would produce no results in the present circumstances. But the commission could pursue "cautiously and discreetly" an attempt to bring about conditions which would allow the parties involved to engage in discussions as a prelude to formal negotiations.

Mr. Martin made public Prime Minister Pearson's Feb. 28 reply to the Jan. 24 letter from President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam.

The letter said in part:

"I also hope that the international commission may be

MPs Favoring Death Penalty Abolition Are Having Troubles

OTTAWA (CP) — With party voting discipline cast aside for the capital punishment debate, MPs favoring abolition of the death penalty are having their troubles.

Assuming a yes-or-no vote on the resolution to do away with the penalty forever would lose by a few votes, leading abolitionists in the various Commons parties have been working behind the scenes to win support from wavering retentionists, for a compromise decision.

But normal inter-party communications have been suspended for this free vote. It resulted in rampant disorganization, as one abolitionist MP termed it, during Monday night's first vote of the debate.

The capital punishment resolution, which abolitionist MPs figure won't be passed as it is written, would substitute a life sentence for the death penalty in case of capital—planned and deliberate — murder. It would make the federal cabinet approve any parole of a person convicted of capital murder.

The abolitionists saw an opportunity for compromise last week when Chairman — Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste — Roberval) proposed an amendment to retain the death penalty only for persons committing capital murder while under a life sentence.

The abolitionist leaders saw the amendment as an opportunity to tip the voting balance in their favor. They figured that the only handicap was that this was much better than losing the final vote outright.

But after the Commons ballot began ringing at 8 p.m. Monday to summon MPs for the vote on the amendment, informants said it became apparent that many Liberal party abolitionists wanted to go for broke.

Abolitionists from Liberal, Conservative and New Democrat parties gathered in conference in the centre of the Commons like a football team huddled on third down.

But without effective channels of communication, many abolitionists never got the word. Some of them—like some retentionists—were unknown to organizers. In the 194-to-23 vote defeating the amendment, several abolitionists voted contrary to their cohorts.

The 11th-hour confusion over the signal switch was apparent when voting started on the Liberal side of the Commons. Three ministers voted for the amendment while the others—many of them favoring abolition —voted against.

Informants say this voting pattern either confused abolitionists or caused them to

Africans Deal in Slavery Says Church Moderator

Africans in the independent nations of the continent deal in slavery just as the Europeans did when they held power, the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Rev. James M. Munro, D. D. told Rotarians Monday.

Dr. Munro, who visited Nigeria just before the revolution, there last November, told of a visit to the market place in Calibar, and said: "One thing that startled me, the population have been no better in dealing with their own people than have the white races going there after the British put down slavery.

"I was in the slave market in Calibar where the natives themselves deal in slavery."

Dr. Munro said that in Africa there are Africans "from the United States," who are exploiting the people as ruthlessly as any of the non-African peoples have done through the years."

"This is something we must all remember," he said "We are not so different under our skins from these people."

Even while Dr. Munro was in Nigeria there was ferment between the different tribal regions which make up the country. Many people were killed, troops and police were everywhere and curfew was strictly enforced. He believed that under its military strongmen, General Ironsi, Nigeria would resume its peaceful ways, although this would take time.

"Nigeria is a nation which is trying in one generation to jump 1,000 years." You would think the way the money was splashed around, and observing the lavish hotels and embassies in the capital, that this is a wealthy country, it has resources, but they are not developed. Apart from the cities the country consists largely of village communities."

STRICT CODE

Speaking of the work of the church in Nigeria, Dr. Munro said experimental farms established by the churches of the world have been "by far the most successful part of the program to make the country productive."

Dr. Munro said that while the churches would like to see established a monogamous rather than polygamous society, the Nigerian made himself responsible for his several wives and children in a very real sense.

"There is a very real sense of family responsibility and they have a very strict code within the family."

In Nigeria it is impossible to start a mortgage to build a home, said Dr. Munro. "You can only build if you have the money to build it. Travelling around you see a large number of homes in various stages of construction."

Dr. Munro told of seeing a cemetery where are buried members of the early European Missionaries in Nigeria. Some died while still aged only 36 to 39 victims of tropical diseases unknown to medical science.A Yet others followed them.

Canadians, said Dr. Munro, have so much to contribute to the building up of civilization in Nigeria.

Court Clerk Sent to Trial On Theft Count

Marjorie Mary Labey, 44 clerk and court reporter on the circuit of Magistrate R. C. Jackson the past five years, was committed for trial by judge and jury trial yesterday on charges of theft of Ontario Government funds over $50.

Miss Labey was committed at a preliminary hearing at Hastings County Court House before Magistrate J. W. German of Oshawa.

It was revealed at the hearing that $5,083.96 is the amount allegedly stolen from court funds.

Miss Labey, a native of Maple, was first charged with the theft November 3, 1965, following a five - week investigation.

CHARLES LINDSEY

Ill for the past two months Mr. Charles Lindsey, 1 Brown Court, Belleville, died on Sunday. He was in his 85th year. Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lindsey, he was born at Flinton and during his active years had worked in the lumbering trade as a hook - on or dealer at West Guilford in Haliburton county. He was an adherent of Trinity Temple. He was a member of the Haliburton Orange Lodge.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Almeda Lindsay of Belleville and two brothers Silas Lindsay of this city and Andrew Lindsay of Toronto.

The funeral will be held Wednesday from the Grant Funeral Home with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

JOHN SHAMBO

Funeral services for John Shambo were held yesterday from the Grant Funeral Home to Belleville Cemetery, Canon R. B. D. Wright officiated.

Bearers were Howard Johnston, Simon Robb, Damon Bryden, James Freeburn, Harvey Andrew and J. R. Dent.

PERCY ROBERT SNIDER

Percy Robert Salder, of Otter Crescent, Toronto died Saturday morning at the Toronto General Hospital in his 80th year, after a brief illness.

An electrical engineering graduate of Cooper Union in New York, he was technical assistant to Thomas Edison during the early days of the invention of the gyroscope. The original model of the device he worked is now in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington D. C. He also helped Mr. Sperry install the first gyroscope in the United States Navy on the original battleship, Utah, about 1912.

After a year with the General Electric Company in Schenectady, he returned to Canada in 1914 and became an agent with the Travellers Insurance Company. Later, he was head of P. R. Salder Associates, affiliated with the Excelsior Life Insurance Company. At that time, he was a Chartered Life Underwriter, and a member of the Million Dollar Club. For the past six years, he has been associated with Fraser Brunner Limited, a Toronto investment counselling firm.

His affiliations include the Engineers Club of Toronto, the Empire Club, the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, the Royal Canadian Institute, and the Toronto Board of Trade, where his life membership covered a span of forty-six years. He was also a member of the International Alumni Association and was formerly a regular contributor to its monthly publication.

While maintaining a United Church interest, he was leader an Adult Bible Class at Farmer Memorial Baptist Church in 1958-53.

Born of United Empire Loyalist stock, his parents were Alvin T. Snider and Jennie Bustard of Deseronto.

He is survived by his wife, the former Margaret Herriger; by Jean (Mrs. Henry A. Hoadley Jr.) of New London, Connecticut, the daughter of a previous marriage to Anna B. Meier, who predeceased him by twenty-one years; by three grandchildren; two step-daughters, Dr. Doris Barber and Mrs. Marilyn Watson, and four step-grandchildren. He also leaves a sister Mamie (Mrs. Archie Grastrix) of Belleville, and a brother Raymond Salder of Eastend, Saskatchewan.

WILLIAM WEBBER

CAMPBELLFORD — One of the unusual persons of the community died last week in the age of 82 years. William Webber, a bachelor who after the death of his mother years ago, made his home with his sister, Mrs. Ida Rightmyer of Mowmsey. Mr. Webber was born in Westwood, during his early life did some work as a farm laborer.

Mr. Webber was one of the best known personalities in the area of Campbellford and Warkworth. He loved to walk which he did, day after day, walking with no other purpose except for the enjoyment derived from the exercise. He was a quiet, gentle personality and was known to young and old as "Walking Bill Webber." Sunday morning one could see him wending his way to Campbellford Free Methodist Church attired in good time for the service.

MANSON MACDONALD

The funeral of Manson MacDonald was held Monday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Chapel with Rev. Ernie Brown officiating. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Walter MacDonald, Hillsgrove; Gary, Ted Stewart, William Donahoe, Bernard Lloyd and James Scott.

MISS GRACE ISABEL SERVISS

Rev. Morgan E. McFarlane of Tabernacle United Church conducted the funeral services yesterday afternoon for Miss Grace Isabel Serviss. The funeral was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with interment at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Harry Faith, George Taylor, Jack Green and Bram Humphries.

MRS. SALTERN COOLEY

Mrs. Salters (Ariel) Cooley, 74, Thursday of Thurlow, died at her home yesterday. She had been ill four years.

Born in the 4th Concession of Thurlow, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cainsey Palmer, she lived all her life there.

The last of her family, she was a member of Bethany United Church and life member of the United Church Women.

She was predeceased by her husband in 1957 and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edward (Ileta) Trevorrow, 4th Concession of Thurlow, and four grandsons, Orval Trevorrow, Madoc, and Arthur, Roy and Milton Trevorrow of Corbyville.

that if his troops tried to move into Da Nang there would be "inevitable bloodshed."

Shortly after their meeting, Ky broadcast to the Da Nang area on a radio transmitter at the air base, appealing for the co-operation of the people.

He said he concluded from his talks with Chuan the city was not under the control of the Communists, as he charged at a press conference Sunday.

Thi was reported to have said he would take command of the northern zone area again if there was a counter-attack with "foreign" troops — presumably those brought in from Saigon.

The mayor of Da Nang, Dr. Nguyen Van Nam, said Gen. Chuan was backing the rebel forces. Sunday, Ky vowed to have the physician-mayor shot and charged he was the centre of a "communist-inspired" insurrection in Da Nang.

Da Nang radio called on the people to resist to the last breath. Troops in the city were red scarves, apparently to distinguish them from the loyalist soldiers at the air base.

The political crisis is the worst since the Buddhists protested last June. He faced a political fight in trying to win back the loyalties of the Da Nang people spurred on by anti-government, anti - American demonstrators in half-a-dozen cities.

ACCUSE U.S.

The demonstrators have repeatedly charged the United States with backing the military junta in obstructing the election of a civilian government.

able to play some part in helping to restore peace in Viet Nam.

"It seems to me that by virtue of its long association with the problem and the advantage of access it has to all the parties to the present conflict, the commission is in a unique position to play such a part.

"As far as my government is concerned, it is prepared to explore all possibilities that may be open to the commission in present circumstances to exert its efforts in the direction of peace."

The letter was taken to Hanoi by Chester Ronning, Canadian diplomat called out of retirement for a special mission to Hanoi and Saigon last month.

Mr. Martin said Victor Moore, senior Canadian delegate on the commission who accompanied Mr. Ronning to Hanoi about a month ago, was told by the North Vietnamese they would like to see more commission visitors in Hanoi.

There appeared to be "general agreement" in the commission that it act on the suggestion, Mr. Martin said. The commission now would perhaps meet as often in Hanoi as in Saigon.

WON'T RELENT

On Rhodesia, Mr. Martin said Canada won't relent in its association against the white-dominated Central African country.

It was important to keep up the economic pressure to make clear to the Rhodesians there will be no slackening of effort.

On France and NATO, the minister said Soviet forces in East Germany are strength now than at any time since the war.

The need for integrated military command and joint defence planning was undiminished. Central Europe remained an area of potential crises, particularly if arrangements for political stability were upset.

Mr. Martin said any North American move to disengage militarily in Europe would be dangerously premature. West German forces were under NATO command. In any dismantling of NATO, all forces would revert to national command.

Steps Must Be Taken Says Moderator

Canadians must take steps to counter a trend toward the "effeminization" of the country's youth, the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Rev. James A. Munro, D.D., told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

What the club had just accomplished with its Science Fair and Hobby Show, said Dr. Munro, was one of the marks of its concern for the community, with special emphasis on the young people.

"Man for man in Canada, one of the things one craves for this nation is the kind of thing Rotary does," he said. "But we have not succeeded completely in this task. I feel that in this nation — and it is a great nation — there is a danger of the effeminization of our youth.

"I don't know what the reason is — social or otherwise — but we must take time to develop men of the mark of our forebears."

Bomb Hanoi Railway Link

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers have struck North Viet Nam's main railway line to China, giving top priority to a bridge only 25 miles northeast of Hanoi, an American spokesman reported today.

The spokesman said that for the first time since the 37-day bombing pause ended Jan. 31, restrictions limiting American planes to communication targets in the southern part of North Viet Nam had been lifted somewhat. He did not explain further.

switch their votes.

Best example was the NDP, whose members all favor outright abolition. Some would be against the amendment while others stuck by a caucus decision to support it.

Pierre Elliot Trudeau, an abolitionist and parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, supported the amendment. He said afterwards: "This view was popular only an hour before the vote."

Some MPs, persuaded that support of the amendment represented the best chance of pushing through modified abolition, were worried.

"It's almost certain the main motion will be defeated," said Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth).

Pessimistic abolitionists were assured by some of their allies that another amendment — to wipe out the death penalty for a five-year trial period—stands a better chance of success when the final vote comes at 9:30 p.m. tonight.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker supported such a trial period when he advocated outright abolition earlier in the day and two New Democratic MPs supported this proposal later.

Donald S. Macdonald (L—Toronto Rosedale) moved such an amendment late in the evening.

tural Gas Co. shares.

Mr. Justice Landreville's illness to remain on the bench is under inquiry as the result of he receiving 1,900 free shares of NONG stock in 1957. He was on the court at the time but had been mayor of Sudbury when that city awarded a municipal gas franchise to NONG in 1956.

Assistant Commissioner Wonnacott had a hand in investigations here in connection with a 1964 prosecution of Mr. Justice Landreville under the Criminal Code on a charge of municipal corruption as the result of the stock deal. The judge was freed after preliminary hearing.

Mr. Bates, while with the RCMP at Vancouver, questioned Ralph K. Farris of that city, first president of NONG, concerning the disposition of a block of 14,000 shares of NONG treasury stock, some of which was diverted to the Ontario Judge.

QUESTION CROZIER

Another on today's list of witnesses before Ivan C. Rand, the retired Supreme Court of Canada Justice conducting the inquiry, was A.R. Crozier, chairman of the Ontario energy board and a prominent figure in the handling of the gas franchise at Sudbury in 1956.

Three former Sudbury municipal officials testified Monday that Mr. Crozier and the Ontario fuel board—as it was then called—helped stimulate a sense of urgency for approval of the franchise among the city's municipal politicians.

They were County Judge Harry Walsberg of Toronto, a Sudbury councilor at the time; John J. Kelly, Kitchener city solicitor and former Sudbury city solicitor, and Gerald J. Monaghan, now an Ottawa business man who was Conservative member of the legislature for Sudbury in 1956.

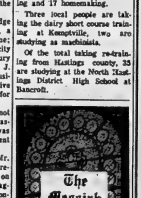
Mr. Monaghan added that not only did Mr. Crozier spur passage of the franchise, but it was a matter of Ontario government policy at the time.

Judge Walsberg and Mr. Kelly testified Mayor Landreville never pressured them on behalf of NONG. Mr. Monaghan, a former Sudbury controller, was out of municipal politics at the time the franchise was going through.

Mrs. S.E. Turner Dealt Perfect Cribbage Hand

During a social game of cribbage on Saturday night between Mr. and Mrs. Allan Mott and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Turner, at 65 Grier Street, Mrs. Turner, a comparative newcomer to the game, held a perfect hand of 29 points. Mrs. Turner was dealt the Jack of spades and the five Diamonds, Hearts and Clubs and the five of Spades was cut, which gave the perfect count. Mr. Turner stated he had been playing cribbage for 46 years and that is the first perfect hand he ever saw.

300 People Take Course Of Program 5



Many out of work Belleville and district residents have been taking advantage of the Program 5 job retraining programme this past season with nearly 300 people taking training here or at the city schools.

The actual number starting the courses last autumn was 285 a compared with 178 for the 1964-65 training season.

Of the total, the big majority — 184 — enrolled in the basic training course; 47 are taking clerical training; 34 power sewing and 17 homemaking.

Three local people are taking the dairy short course training at Kemptville, two are studying as machinists.

Of the total taking re-training from Hastings county, 35 are studying at the North Hastings District High School at Bancroft.

Jobless Number 13 Per Cent Below Last Year's Figure

With the spring construction program again about to get underway, employment in the Belleville area is already about 13 per cent ahead of last year, according to the month-end report released by the local employment office.

Office manager Cecil Hisner said that as of the end of March there were 1,827 persons — 1,250 male and 577 female — registered as job seekers in the Belleville and Hastings county area.

This is 269 less, or 13 per cent lower, than the 2,096 figure at the same time last year.

Mr. Hisner expects still further improvements as the annual spring construction activity gets underway in full force.

At the same time it is believed that a fuller awareness of the winter works program to some extent has been responsible for the present encouraging employment picture.

MOST UNSKILLED

As is usually the case the largest number of unemployed are in the unskilled category with a total of 509 men and 135 women in this category registered as job seekers.

A further breakdown shows 68 men and 197 women clerical workers are registered at the employment office, 22 men and 88 women sales personnel, and 107 men and 84 women service occupation workers.

In the skilled construction trades — carpenters, bricklayers, painters and electricians — there are slightly fewer unemployed this year than at this same date a year ago.

Science Fair Fine Success

Rotary President Ernest Burnham told members yesterday that the Science Fair and Hobby Show had been a success.

"It was a credit to the club, and as a community project it was a very fine effort," he said.

He thanked J. C. (Pat) Houston and his organizing committee for their efforts.

Exact figures are not available but assistant treasurer David Duffy indicated that receipts were higher than last year's.

Silly Season

Vancouver and British Columbia are so far away for most of us that the people out there — Canadians believe it or not — might as well be from another planet.

Still it is pleasant for those familiar with the Pacific region to think of the spring season that really is spring out there. The daffodils and the sunshine we can take for granted, but for real proof that winter is over in B.C. the golfing fraternity can furnish it. Duffers and scratch men alike have been playing regularly. Even club competitions are under way, as a picture in The Vancouver Sun sports section reveals.

Yes, they are a different breed, the Western Canadians. Ottawa, to the folks on the Pacific Coast, is some far-off city, as remote in some ways as Ulan Bator in Mongolia, and which occasionally lets its existence be known when someone from the outer reaches of the country (like Erik Nielsen of the Yukon or Lucien Cardin from Quebec) rises to his feet and makes some startling statement.

In British Columbia they also seem to have a different concept of democracy from ours. And they seem a little rough, perhaps, to call what you will, but perhaps no more so than the chaps on Parliament Hill (who include, incidentally, representatives from British Columbia).

For example, in a recent discussion in Vancouver city council a Mr. Aubrey King, of Burnaby, complained to members about apartment zoning changes. He said the changes would have the effect of developing apartments that looked like those in Russia in the 1930s.

In full fury, Mr. King later cut off a planner explaining a point, and Alderman Ernie Broome said: "Be Quiet!"

"That's free speech for you," observed Mr. King, who owns property in Vancouver.

"Go to hell," said Broome.

Well, we said they were different, out west — a little rougher, more intolerant perhaps.

One might dismiss the entire proceedings as an isolated incident in the affairs of Vancouver city council if another similar one had not taken place at the same meeting.

Alfred Brown, Bell-Irving, the chairman, attempted to rule out of order comments made by a Mrs. Hetti Mantey.

"I thought we had free speech in this country," said Mrs. Mantey. "Not in city council," remarked the chairman, banging his gavel and telling her to sit down.

Maybe things are getting out of hand in British Columbia. Perhaps Ottawa should take a closer look at these maverick Canadians in the far west. Many city councils of the largest city browbeats citizens interested enough to attend its meetings, and where there is a provincial government which seems bent on turning B.C. into a colony of Japan, judging by the amount of trade between the two these days.

But what do westerners think of easterners — when they think of us at all? Well, we heard it put rather well during a recent train journey. There was this fellow from British Columbia. He was talkative and he found a friend in a girl from Alberta standing in line to get off at Belleville.

"The people down east," he said good-naturedly, "you talk with a girl and she thinks you want to spend a week with her. You talk with a man and he thinks you want to borrow a dollar . . ."

Well, that is another story . . .!

Fight Against Cancer

Cancer remains one of the chief scourges of mankind. It is one of the major mysteries of medical science. Yet all around the world, in universities and in laboratories, the battle against cancer in its various forms continues.

And not without significant success, as reports from Phoenix, Arizona, indicate. In one instance, the American Cancer Society's annual science writer's seminar was told, a strange difference in the energy system of one fast-growing cancer is being exploited to help its victims.

In another, researchers injected two cancer-ridden mice with an unknown substance and killed their tumors within hours. So potent is the material that it sometimes makes a tumor dissolve within 15 minutes.

But as yet, the researchers responsible for its development emphasize, the substance is not applicable to humans. Nor can they say whether it would clear up different types of cancer.

Nevertheless, Dr. Lawrence Burton and Dr. Frank Friedman from St. Vincent's Hospital in New York City now plan to work on the possibility of applying the substance to human cancers.

Cancer is such a potent and multi-faceted disease that these new possibilities for controlling it, together with those already in existence, still offer grounds only for cautious optimism. However, progress is being made all the time and the information stemming from the Phoenix discussions is certainly encouraging.

The tremendous responsibilities confronting Ontario farmers in future production of food which will save millions of people in Europe from starvation, and the measures which must be adopted on farms to attain the necessary increased production were outlined before members of the Moira Masonic Lodge at their annual "Farmers' Night" banquet. Speaking for Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario minister of agriculture, M. McIntyre Hood, director for publicity for the Ont. Dept. of Agriculture, stated it was the duty of the farmer to extend all the help possible to the countries of Central Europe.

In the early days when Frans beheaded, Louis king, abolished religion and defied the great monarchies of Europe, Danton and Robespierre had been colleagues. But as the Reign of Terror started Robespierre began killing off rivals to his leadership, charging them with treason much as Stalin was later to label his rivals conspirators with the exiled Trotsky. Robespierre himself died on the same guillotine 104 months later.

Delay in Treatment Results in Suicide

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Some time ago this column contained a tragic letter from a woman who had tried to get her emotionally disturbed husband into a mental hospital. Here is part of the letter again:

"I phoned the sheriff. His advice was "Call your doctor. He is the make exacerebtis for your husband to be taken care of.

"The doctor got my husband to agree to go to the hospital voluntarily, but when it came time to sign the admittance papers, he refused.

"It was a Saturday and I could not get a court order then because the courts were closed. We brought him home. It ended in suicide."

Manta' health officials in New York State call attention to the new law there, which is designed to prevent such tragedies, as well as to correct some other antiquated and in some respects psychologically brutal methods of handling the mentally ill.

For many years in most states, a mental hospital admitted a patient only under a court order declaring the patient to require such care. Once relieved, the patient had to be "restored" in another court hearing, to prove that he was "sane" and ready to rejoin society.

Most recently voluntary hospitalization has been allowed for patients who knew that they need help, and were willing to enter the hospital. A substantial number of mental patients do recognize that they need hospital care.

But when they do not realize it and rebel, we have continued the old practice of court commitment, which has more nearly resembled a trial than a process of taking care of someone needing help.

New York has at last discarded that attitude. The new law, which took effect last Sept. 1, operates wholly on the principle that hospitalization should be a matter of caring for a sick person, not of locking up someone who has done anything wrong.

This is a drastic change, and I think an historic and long overdue one. It is a humane method.

It also can exert such force as is necessary. Under the new law, that man who rebelled and committed suicide could have been taken to the hospital instead. Under this New York law his life might have been spared.

Explaining how the law operates will take more space, so I will go into the mechanics of the New York system tomorrow.

Officials in other states have been studying it carefully, and it would not surprise me — and it would please me — if other states devised comparable legislation.

Dear Dr. Molner: We lost a child, 8 years old, due to a brain hemorrhage from a weak blood vessel. Could this be hereditary and our future children also be affected? — Mrs. W. J.

It is extremely unlikely. Some fragility of blood vessels can give a hereditary aspect, but since you and your husband are healthy, it is vastly more logical to assume that this was just a tragic accident of nature, and is not likely to occur in another child.

Note to K.E.: Marriage of first cousins is opposed (and is illegal in some states) because if similar hereditary weak points exist on both sides, the children are very much more likely to have the same defects but much more severely. Third cousins, however, are far enough apart on the family tree so the risk of this is very small.

Ocean Ships In Squeeze

Washington Post

Sad news comes from a report of the Cunard Steamship Company, which is attempting to stem a tide of losses from its passenger ship operations.

Under a new chairman, Sir Basil Smallpiece, Cunard is taking steps to stop a loss that amounted to more than $3 million in 1965 during the first half of last year.

"In Smallpiece's view," says an Associated Press report of Cunard's troubles, "ships can no longer profitably compete in passenger transport. Jet planes have taken over the business of just getting people from one place to place. Now it is best for ship lines to offer more comfortable travel—to make their ships serve as floating hotels or holiday resorts and to specialize in cruises."

If we suppose ship lines must compromise with the inevitable, boy we regret it.

We shall be sorry to see passenger liners, sleek greyhounds of the sea, ploughing through the waves on purposeful business, subordinated to the luxury trade.

We hate to think that sturdy seafarers will take second place to unctuous bellhops.

We do not contemplate floating hotels 'with any zest, nor are we addicted to cruises with professional "hostesses" ordering our entertainment.

Time was when the Flemish could say: "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters . . ."

"These see the works of the Lord ,and his wonders ff the deep."

Under the new dispensation we shall see no wonders in the deep beyond the cocktail bar, bridge games and "fun nights" organized by the cruise hostess.

This is a sorrowful outlook mates, and we should take a sea voyage soon so that we can tell our grandchildren what it was like.

Is It Here To Stay?

Peterborough Examiner

The short, short skirt has not made much appearance in Peterborough to our knowledge but if the comments of the fashion experts are to be believed, we may be in for something more permanent than another fashion fad. Many see it as a very real sign of protest, an emblem of morals and mores in transition, a dividing line between the generations, as Phyllis Lee Levin has put it in a New York Times magazine article. One experienced designer says: "We are on the brink of something new. It isn't just a matter of cutting off a few inches from the hemline but of entirely new proportions." James Laver, a fashion historian and former curator of London's Victoria and Albert Museum sees the change as a bloodless revolution. "Women may go from skirts and stockings to trousers, from similar to the young men of 1400."

The short skirt is now four inches above the knee and this is not surprising that it should in turn, raise eyebrows. The varying significance of the degree of different parts of the female skin has always baffled the Wits, a marginally shorter skirt or a lowered neckline should be considered sexier than a bathing suit is to a reasonably extent beyond rational explanation. Perhaps it is not only a matter of custom but of purpose. Bathing suits expose the skin to get it wet or get it sunburnt. Presumably neural skirts and low necks have other (more nefarious?) purposes. Anyway, it looks as if we may have to accept it as a thing of the present and the future. In fact, it is not inappropriate to a free-swinging youth which does not accept the boundaries of taste and geography of its predecessors.

Statuary in The Capital

Ottawa Journal

State Secretary LaMarsh reveals that officials are considering placing statues on Parliament Hillagio prime ministers not already cast there in bronze.

She should tell them to forget it, after pondering the record of Marcus Cato that he would rather have been asked why he had no statue than why he had one.

Parliament Hill is not to be a cemetery.

If these book-keeper with a tidy mind thinks all prime ministers should have statues — all right, but why Parliament Hill?

Governments have decided that Government buildings should be dispersed. Let us disperse our statues. Tunney's Pasture might have Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Riverside Heights Sir John Thompson and the Printing Bureau Sir J. J. Abbott. Perhaps The Hill will always have room for our truly great, and there's room in the double-statue of Baldwin and Lafontaine in perpetual consultation overlooking the river, but for the rest there are other lawns to grace.

Why Deef Balks at Judge's Mandate in Security Issue

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So Conservative Leader Diefenbaker won't accept the controversial wording of the terms of reference for the Royal Commission inquiry into the Munsinger affair.

And no wonder!

The terms, Tories now read, John Diefenbaker, as he himself has said in protest, will be "on trial" before Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

For the Order in Council setting up the judicial inquiry directs Mr. Justice Spence to determine whether John Diefenbaker "failed" in not referring the Munsinger affair to the law officers of the Crown and whether a "security risk" was involved.

The answers to the questions of "failure" and "security risk" seem, say way you figure them, to be almost self-evident.

For John Diefenbaker, then Prime Minister, did not refer the case to the law officers, but in not doing so, did he "fail" — presumably, the Order in Council seems to imply — in his duty?

If there was, in fact, no "security risk" involved, then obviously he did not "fail" in not calling in the law officers.

Or are there special rules for Cabinet Ministers who, having the ultimate responsibility, are accountable only to themselves.

Scarcely.

DISCRETION THE TEST

So the crunch question is what is a security "risk"?

Defending the conservative position, former Justice Minister Davie Fulton has emphasized that degree of discretion. "Leak," certainly no security "breach," definitely no security "offence."

But oddly, he has said nothing about security "risk" — perhaps deliberately.

So what is a "risk"?

That very question was "answered 12 years ago — and there is no doubt about the outright dismissal or quiet transfer of anybody in the present Government service as a security "risk."

It boiled down to just this, Mr. St. Laurent informed him: "Reliability."

So then, what constituted "unreliability"?

And the Prime Minister answered:

"It includes not only indications of communist or fascist activities or associations, but also indications of weakness of personality or character or habits and circumstances that render a person susceptible to pressure or blackmail or unintentional indiscretions.

"Security reasons involving risks of disloyalty are only part of the circumstances giving rise to certain dismissals, removals or transfers . . ."

CABINET ABOVE ITT

That seems quite clear, except perhaps the Prime Minister's reference to what he terms the "unintentional indiscretions."

What, precisely, are they?

The Prime Minister, anticipating just such a question, went on before concluding his statement, to answer it this way:

"I envisioned the possibility of there being, well, involuntary indiscretions.

"We know of cases where this has happened.

"In an evening party something occurs that unloosens one's tongue, and it was more freely than it should in view of the information one has acquired because of his official position.

"We do not want to make that a scandal, but we do feel it reasonable being careful and cautious."

So there it is: The Anatomy of a "Security Risk."

Was "reliability" then, a question, and did a possible "unintentional indiscretion" enter into the involvement of Deputy Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny in what he insists was a simply a "certain relationship" with Gerda Munsinger?

And if not, what were the under-cover acts of the Judge in doing paying "Peeping Tom" when the Associate Defence Minister was the key of self-admitted questionable background were "socialising!"

Are these questions certain to be asked by the inquiry and only Mr. Justice Spence can answer them.

But John Diefenbaker insists he "won't accept" the terms of reference of the Judge in Council directing the Royal Commission inquiry.

Why "not accepting" what will he do? Refuse to recognize and answer to the inquiry? Take the position that a former Prime Minister cannot — or at least should not — be compelled to detest himself and thus retained office by having to account to a politically-directed investigation by a reconstituted body by tradition is only to Parliament itself. Or what?

Strictly Personal

Celebrities Are Human Too

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Americans make a greater fuss over what we call "celebrities" than almost any other nation — and, yet, on the whole, we treat them with less tact and consideration than any other people.

Friends of mine who fell into this odd classification — actresses — whether actors, authors or musicians — all make the same private complaints about public maltreatment. They don't mind being noticed, and they like being admired, but they resent being regarded as Things rather than Persons.

Over the years, I've remembered their most common complaints, and I've tried to pull them together into some coherent form, to give the public a consciousness idea of how it treats that envied, yet far from envi-able, secles, the celebrity:

1. Don't stare and point, as though the celebrity were a made creature standing in the middle of the road. It's astonishing how many otherwise well-bred persons will look their police and sense of manners when they spy a celebrity scalhparing through the lobby.

2. In introducing one's self, in being introduced, say, "I've enjoyed your work very much," which everyone likes to hear, and let it go at that. If you haven't enjoyed, don't say so. Above all, never say, "How does it feel to be a celebrity?", to which there is no other answer.

3. If there is time and opportunity for a conversation, try not to ask the same questions the celebrity must have been asked a million times before, and to which every time he answers bore him. Remember that, despite the celebrity's presence, he may be just as much a human ease as you are when meeting people.

4. Don't tell him about some youngster you know who is very talented in his field and only needs a break, or about how the celebrity if he would be interested in meeting the youngster or seeing his work. He wouldn't — so why force him to be a hypocrite in addition to a celebrity.

5. Don't ask him to divulge intimate information about his current love affairs or that he has married, yet far from envi-able, secles, the celebrity:

6. Adulation, to a celebrity, is as offensive as antagonism, and the latter, indeed can be a disgusting experience. What all of but the psychopathic celebrities like is little respect, a modicum of deference, and then to be treated like an ordinary human being with a special kind of gift."

7. A celebrity knows he must give up the right to a certain amount of privacy in return for this eminence; but, if the public really values his work, it would prefer that avaluation to manifest itself in supporting him professionally, rather than in badgering him personally.

Judicial Inquiries Powerless To Punish Any for Contempt

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice Wishart Spence may face the same problem that confronted Chief Justice Frederic Dorion in conducting a judicial inquiry.

He involves the powers of a judicial inquiry and traces its legal history back to the 1841 act of the British Parliament abolishing the Court of Star Chamber.

Mr. Justice Spence is the Supreme Court of Canada judge picked by the federal cabinet to inquire into the Gerda Munsinger affair, following sex-and-security charges by Justice Minister Martin.

Chief Justice Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court conducted an inquiry in 1964 and 1965 into allegations of bribery and corruption. He referred to the problem of his powers this way in his report:

"In the course of this inquiry I have realized that the judge presiding at a royal commission is set up under the Inquiries Act does not have all the powers which are ordinarily his in the exercise of his judicial office.

IT'S EMBARRASSING

"He cannot decide whether there has been contempt of court either in his presence or outside his presence, nor the exercise of powers, as I found on several occasions, leads to situations that are not only embarrassing for the judge and which prevents the normal conduct of the inquiry.

Parliament has not been asked to remedy the deficiency so suggested by Chief Justice Dorion.

The problem centres on contempt of court. Generally, any refusal of a witness to testify or through publication of reports which in an ordinary court of law would result in a fine or term.

Abolition of the Court of Star Chamber in 1641 limited the powers of any court and of the cabinet to investigate. They were no longer to have powers to punish.

Thus, on the face of it, the Spence and Dorion judicial inquiries, set up by the federal cabinet, are powerless to punish anyone for contempt.

The act says:

"The commissioners have the same power to enforce the attendance of witnesses and to compel them to give evidence as is exerted in any court of record in civil cases."

HAS NO OFFICERS

The problem arises when the commission tries to enforce this power. In a civil court, the court sheriff and his bailiffs do the job. But a royal commission has no officers for this purpose.

Furthermore, a person subpoenaed to appear before the civil court has certain legal rights to contest the subpoena to show why he should not be required to testify.

The legal precaution is not provided for by the Inquiries Act with respect to judicial inquiries, thus leaving the person subpoenaed at the absolute mercy of the judicial inquiry.

The sections of the Inquiries Act under which the Spence and Dorion inquiries were established make no provision for penalties or for enforcing orders of the presiding officer.

Receive Awards In Guitar Competitions

At the recent American Guild of Music competitions held in Detroit, Michigan, 12-year-old David Fleet of Belleville R. R. 7, along with 24-year-old Glen Payne of Belleville won the championship in the Rickenbacker (1997) guitar duet class.

David was also runner-up in the solo guitar class by a unanimous decision of the adjudicator Mr. R. English. The young guitar player was adjudged as having the making of a top-flight outstanding musician.

Former Mortgage Manager Admits Payoff of $10,000

TORONTO (CP) — William Pike testified Monday he received $10,000 from a company that wanted a mortgage from British Mortgage and Trust Co. of Stratford.

Mr. Pike, 35, former mortgage manager of British Mortgage, was testifying before a royal commission investigating the collapse last June of Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

Earlier Monday, president of Victoria and Grey Trust Co. of Lindsay, Ont., which took over British Mortgage after the Stratford firm was stricken by the Atlantic collapse, said outside the hearing he will meet with Mr. Pike and make a report to Victoria and Grey's executive committee.

Mr. Pike testified the money was paid by Holdings Property in London, Ont., which later got a $1,500,000 mortgage from British Mortgage.

Explaining to the commission, headed by Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court, how he got the money, Mr. Pike said he was told by Donald Reid, lawyer from London, Ont., that $10,000 was available if Widor got its mortgage money.

KEPT IT

Mr. Pike said he accepted the money for the payments of $5,000 each and stated:

"I kept it all myself."

He said the first $5,000 was paid in February, 1962, by William King, a director of Widor, the second payment was made by Mr. Reid in the lawyer's office in London, Mr. Pike said.

Mr. Reid, called to testify after Mr. Pike, denied Mr. Pike's statement that he (Reid) had said $10,000 was available. He also denied that he made any payments to Mr. Pike.

Mr. Reid said there was a meeting in his office at which Mr. Pike, Mr. King and his son, David, were present.

During the meeting, he said, Mr. William King instructed him to write a $5,000 cheque payable to William King. Mr. King then went and cashed the cheque and returned to the meeting and handed the money to Mr. Pike.

He said he recalled some discussion about the size of the bills, but took no part in it and in fact, paid no attention.

GOT FIVE $1,000 BILLS

William King then took the stand to say he went to the bank and cashed the cheque and received five $1,000 bills which he gave to Mr. Reid. He quoted Mr. Reid as saying the bills would be too easy to trace.

Mr. King said he then returned to the bank and got the bills changed to smaller denominations. He took them back to the meeting and gave them to Mr. Reid, who handed them to Mr. Pike.

Commission Counsel Albert Shepherd asked: "How are you to sum it up was five $1,000 bills?"

Mr. King replied: "I never

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

seen a $1,000 bill before in my life before and I never seen one since, I don't think."

He said Mr. Reid had never discussed whether such payments were proper and that he was Mr. Reed who had told him Mr. Pike would have to be paid off.

DOESN'T KNOW

He testified that he didn't know whether Mr. Pike had received any other payoffs, but he thought he may have been paid on other occasions.

Mr. King said he didn't know much about the affairs of Widor Holdings because Mr. Reid never showed him the books, despite repeated requests.

John Sopinka, Mr. Reid's lawyer, was allowed to cross-examine Mr. King. He produced books of Widor and asked:

"Do you recognize the hand writing in these books?"

"No . . . I've never seen them before."

Mr. King said he couldn't get Mr. Reid to send him some share certificates despite repeated letters and phone calls.

The hearing continues.

Later, Donald C. Macdonald (L—Toronto Rosedale) moved an amendment specifying a five-year trial period.

More amendments may be produced today. Perry Ryan (L —Toronto Spadina), an abolitionist, said he might move one to specify a higher minimum term for capital murder.

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) suggested a reservation amendment might be moved but did not elaborate.

Amendments would have to come to a vote by 5:45 p.m. EST, with the vote on the main resolution due by 9:30 p.m.

It would amend the Criminal Code to eliminate capital punishment for say crime and substitute life in prison, with the stipulation that there be no parole except after review by the cabinet.

The resolution, if passed, would have to be followed by a regular bill passed by the Commons and Senate to become law.

However, a vote for abolition would probably mean the end of the death penalty, last carried out in Canada in late 1962 in may be more treasure in the area.

Mr. Storm said the treasure would be shared equally among the three. However, the province of Nova Scotia is entitled to 10 per cent of the find under the provincial Treasure Trove Act.

It is the first major treasure discovery in the waters off the Atlantic provinces although divers have searched many wrecks in recent years.

A local historian said the Cape Breton east coast is "loony" from wrecks, but Le Chaineau was believed to be the only one containing significant treasure.

Mr. Storm, a Japanese war prisoner as a child in the Dutch East Indies, said the treasure was found in about 70 feet of water 15 miles from Louisbourg.

After three summers of fruitless searching, the first silver coins were found Sept. 19, 1965, more than 4,000 feet from where the vessel struck shore. All 210 persons aboard Le Chaneau were lost when the vessel crashed on the rocks during a wild gale.

Mr. Storm said they also found gold bars, which each weigh a miniature iron cannon and on Sept. 22, the bulk of the treasure was located.

They filled sacks with the coins and loaded them aboard their vessel, the Cape Breton Lass, stacked concentrations of slate-grey coins," said Mr. Storm. "I could see traces of gold."

After a lengthy separation the divers left for Halifax with their finds.

Mr. Storm said, however, that their only constant fear was the presence of sharks, common in Nova Scotia waters during the summer months.

Historical documents record Le Chaneau heading into the anchorage off the former fortress when she was driven ashore. She had on board some 209,000 louis in gold and silver, part of which was destined to the fortress's biggest French garrison in North America at the time.

Her ship, carrying many dignitaries among her passengers, was en route from France to Quebec City. The vessel was apparently carried out over reefs after she struck and immediately broke up.

BBC Banished From Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuter)—The Rhodesian government today declared the British Broadcasting Corporation unacceptable and ordered it to remove its representatives from Rhodesia.

A government statement said the BBC was being ordered out of the breakaway colony because of its connection with broadcasts into Rhodesia from neighboring African territory and "its long-established policy of a deliberately provocative attitude toward Rhodesia."

Life in Internment Camps Outlined by S.A. Head

PICTON (STAFF) — Mrs. Len (Capt.) Pearo of the Salvation Army, Picton Citadel, spoke to members of Kiwanis Club on Monday night and held an audience of over 75 persons enthralled while she related experiences of her early life in Manchuria and Japanese internment camps.

Mrs. Pearo, introduced by Mrs. Jack Ward, was born in Manchuria, her father was in charge of all Salvation Army in Manchuria and Mongolia. In the fearful area of the years 1930 and 1940 Manchuria came under Japanese control. The capital was placed under martial law and the lives of all foreigners was restricted.

She recalled being very lonely at the age of five and very conscious of the Japanese, she painted a vivid word picture of the Japanese soldiers that she seemed to be everywhere on the streets and even in the homes. She told of her early watchful of the activities of the Japanese. "The Japanese," she said " were confused with the role of the Salvation Army and could not understand why we were without guns. Her father, under Japanese rule, was continuously questioned and if they were told to leave, All of the family except the father boarded a crowded coastal train for Peking. After a lengthy separation the family were all re-united in Peking about the time of Pearl Harbor. For a year not a great deal happened, they were kept out under house arrest where no one could leave the house but Japanese. Later they were given more freedom and were placed under limited arrest where they could go to the market and visit certain restrictions).

Mrs. Pearo was interned with the city of Peking and related her impressions of "the beauty of the city with its beautiful palaces and temples. In March 1943 the Salvation Army was demanded that they be given two weeks to prepare for internment. Men were separated from the women. Each day they were forced to march through streets lined with Japanese soldiers and Chinese spectators. She said, not a word was uttered by the Chinese, who were being forced by the Japs to cheer as the prisoners were marched through the streets.

AMUSING HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Pearo continued thrilling her audience with gripping and sometimes colorful and amusing happenings during the internment period. She explained in detail how the family (fortunate enough to be kept together) lived, how the internees managed to exist under adverse conditions and how they received news of events in the outside world. "Chinese coolies," she said, "who were employed to run messages and happenings outside the confined area. She recalled the gifts of the American Embassy to the internees, the secret rolls of silk from their friends" which were made into camp to clean the latrines, spat out rolls of silk from their friends" which were made into camp to clean the latrines, spat out rolls of silk from their friends" which were made into camp to clean the latrines, spat out rolls of silk from their friends" which were made into McFarland who missed much of his council meeting to hear the address was most complimentary to Mrs. Pearo for her talk and in speaking of Mrs. Hull he said he was pleased to have Mrs. Hull in Picton. "We are proud of Bobby over here." "Belleville," he said, "has nothing to do with him whatsoever. The other side of the Bay of Quinte is now being called the North Commitnesses and Prince Edward County the South Commitnesses. Somewhere in the middle of this little war is Bobby Hull.

Past Lt-Governor of the district Carl P. Reid inducted two new members into the club, both employees of Lake Ontario Cement plant, Kiwanians of the Picton Club were accompanied by their wives for the dinner meeting.

Committees For C of C Are Named

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce at their monthly meeting Monday appointed committees for the coming year. Heading each as committee chairman are Ken Evans, membership; Jack Coldan, Businessmen; Roads Bridges and Harbors, Bernard Stephens; Budget, Jack Pearce; Georges Simpson, Industrial; Tourism will be co-chaired by Charles Hyde and Tourism, William Smith.

A report was also submitted on the recent hospitality seminar held in Picton, by Jay Hopkins. Police for Centennial Year was set up and it was decided that the Chamber of Commerce would assist any unit coming up with a program as well as providing one of their own. Loyalist days, which has been such a success for members since the past few years, may be intensified and possibly another special project added.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials maintained their upward momentum in today's heavy active trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Dominion Textile gained 1 at 30½, Massey - Ferguson added ⅝ at 16¾ and Algoma Steel and Canada Iron ½ each at 44½ and 23¾ while Bank of Montreal slid 1¼ to 61⅝ and Bank of Nova Scotia ⅝ to 71.

Golds were higher with Kerr-Addison ahead ⅛ to 11⅛.

Investment dealers remained active with Bankeno up 11 cents to 1.35 and Captain 10¼ to 25 cents. Canadian Javelin slid 1 to 30.

On index, industrials were up .67 to 170.77, golds 2.06 to 172.94, base metals .04 to 69.55, western oils .40 to 107.83 and the TSE 300 Composite .37 to 141.81. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,736,000 shares compared with 1,950,000 at the same time Monday.

Industrials highlighted trading on the exchange Monday as both volume and prices showed strength.

Total volume was 6,036,000 shares compared with 6,130,000 Friday.

One Bay Street analyst said the market's overall strength appears to reflect the strong showing at New York.

CPR posted a group, climbing 1¼ to 62. Peel Elder added 1¼ at 20¼, Massey-Ferguson ⅝ to 16¾ and Steinberg's and Versatile 1 each at 32¼, 27½ and 19 respectively, and Aluminium ¾ at 41⅛.

Banks suffered heavy losses in profit taking, set up by the federal cabinet, are powerless to punish anyone for contempt.

The act says:

"The commissioners have the same power to enforce the attendance of witnesses and to compel them to give evidence as is exerted in any court of record in civil cases."

HAS NO OFFICERS

The problem arises when the commission tries to enforce this power. In a civil court, the court sheriff and his bailiffs do the job. But a royal commission has no officers for this purpose.

Furthermore, a person subpoenaed to appear before the civil court has certain legal rights to contest the subpoena to show why he should not be required to testify.

The legal precaution is not provided for by the Inquiries Act with respect to judicial inquiries, thus leaving the person subpoenaed at the absolute mercy of the judicial inquiry.

The sections of the Inquiries Act under which the Spence and Dorion inquiries were established make no provision for penalties or for enforcing orders of the presiding officer.

RIBBON FRUIT SALAD FOR CROWD

Everything fitted into place (or ture), 1 cup genuine mayonnaise, with today's cooking aethers. Obviously it is frustrating to beat large quantity recipes unless there is somewhere to send the tested results. I conveyed a Sunday noon lunch for a meeting of ladies and shoeards at our church and carried over the three-layer Ribbon Fruit Salad given below. It turned out perfectly and looked beautiful and was eaten to the last shimmering mouthful.

I know our jellied salad addicts will bless me for this.

Fried Chicken Legs; Buttered Lemon; Glazed Carrots; Celery Hearts; Canned or Fresh Frozen Raspberries; Fruit Scones (see Monday); Tea.

RIBBON FRUIT SALAD
(serves 23 to 25):

2 lem-on cans Mandarin orange segments drained — reserve juice, 2 three-oz. packages lime jello, 1½ cups boiling water, 1¾ cups cold water, 3 ripe bananas sliced, 2/3 cup lemon jello (4 oz. measure from 2 packages), 1½ cups boiling water, 12 oz. whole cream cheese (room tempera-cheese, 1 tbsp. prepared mustard, 1 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. sugar, 1 tsp. onion juice, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 1 cup finely chopped stuffed olives, ½ cup chopped pimiento, ½ cup chopped green pepper, 1 cup chopped cucumber, drained and halved.

Dissolve lime jello in boiling water. Stir in cold water. Chill until thick. Add bananas and drained orange segments and pour into three glasses of metal pans, 9" x 5" x 2½" or 11/3 cups size) and set firm.

Dissolve lemon jello in boiling water then add reserved Mandarin orange juice. Chill until very thick but not set. Meanwhile beat cream cheese in electric beater until smooth then beat in mayonnaise until smooth and creamy. Beat thick lemon jello until completely foamy, then add cream cheese mixture and beat until completely blended. Carefully and slowly pour over each lime jelly layer in each loaf pan. Chill until set but not firm.

Dissolve orange jello in boiling water. Stir in cold water. Chill until very thick. Add halved grapes. Gently pour over jelly-cream-cheese layer. Chill overnight.

To turn out: loosen sides with narrow knife. Dip moulds into hot tap water and count slowly and steadily to ten. Invert oblong serving plate over top and turn over. Repeat with each mould. If desired, when serving, cut each 9" or 1" slices. May be served on lettuce leaves.

IN-LAWS WORRY LESS

MONTREAL (CP)—Business has tripled in the Marriage Counselling Service's 10 years here but the number of people with in-law problems is only one-third of the first year's figures. Director Mrs. Dorothy Barrier thinks this is because more older women are working and have less time to concern themselves with their children's families.

Mixed Marriage Topic For Study Guide Meet

The March meeting of the Belleville Women's Study Guild was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Orr, Foster Avenue with president, Mrs. C. R. Rosket, in the chair.

Miss J. Tickell gave a report on the Guild's sponsored child who now lives in Paris, France. Mrs. L. W. Lamb took the worship period with the theme "Brotherhood." It focused on "every social situation that degrades humanity and is tolerated by us."

The evening's program on problems of interracial marriages was developed by Mrs. O. B. Ragsdale and Mrs. L. W. Wilkins. To open the presentation Mrs. Ragsdale sketched a picture of social prejudice as it exists in Ontario — "the subtle bigotry which haunts us all". She said prejudice is usually the result of environment and is formed by life experiences. Persons living in a small community with little experience of people of other races or cultures tend to show greater prejudices than those living in large communities, or those who have the opportunity of travel or wider experience. ChiMians hold that God made of one blood all nations, but there seems Christians often deny their relationships in the fact of their everyday lives.

MIXED MARRIAGE A PROBLEM

Mrs. Wilkins took up the program by quoting from "Marriages for Canadians" by Henry E. Belkman, who holds that mixed marriages are very real problems for those concerned. Difficulties involved for couples include the finding of mutual friends unprejudiced against the union; in-law acceptance of the situation; marital problems which tend to be ascribed often wrongly, to the fact of racial difference, non-acceptance of the hybrid child by either race.

Many objections to racial intermarriages are not valid, Guild members were told, but because they are so deeply rooted they will only be eradicated very slowly. The idea that there is a basic incompatibility between races, the view that some races are innately savage, the fear of miscegenization of the races resulting in an inferior human product, the idea that race mixing is inconsistent with human nature, have all been proved wrong. No race is truly genetically pure. A distinguished group of scientist working for UNESCO in 1951 concluded that there was "no basis for the belief that the groups of man kind differ in innate capacity for intellectual or emotional development". The team also reported that there was no reason to believe that "race admixture produces disadvantageous biological results."

Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg of Toronto has expressed the opinion that the world will never eliminate racial prejudice until it eliminates separate races. He feels the final solution by racial prejudice should be a deliberate encouragement of mixed marriages by law, religion, and education, to create a mixture of races "so universal that no one can preen himself on his racial 'purity', or practice the barbarism to safeguard it".

The program produced a great deal of discussion and concluded with the reading of a letter from a young woman who is planning this spring to marry a man of another race. Her letter was written especially to help the Study Guild in this program, and in it the young woman gave her reasons for her marriage. In her letter she paid tribute to her parents who obviously accepted people of all races and creeds as human beings, with no barriers of prejudice to bar understanding or appreciation, and gave her many opportunities to get to know people of all who could find out about people of other races, religions, countries and cultures.

Hopefully, the group concluded that "the younger generation are just more honest than our generation" — with a long way yet to go in loving their neighbors.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. L. F. Reid and Mrs. C. E. Plummer.

CHRIST CHURCH
W. A. EVENING BRANCH

On Monday evening members of the W. A. Evening Branch of Women's Auxiliary of Christ Church held their monthly business meeting in the hall after attending the evening worship service in the church.

The devotional service on Easter as found in the "Living Message" was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Bongard, assisted by Mrs. L. Markle, Mrs. G. Kilburn, Mrs. R. Seale with Mrs. L. Williams at the piano.

The various secretaries gave their reports and correspondence was read expressing appreciation for cards and parcels received and from the Mental Health Association. Easter cards will be sent to sick and shut-ins.

Several events of the future were discussed including a coffee and dessert party, a rummage sale, the W. A. annual on May 3rd and 4th in Brockville and the Junior Auxiliary banquet in May.

A question and answer period pertaining to W. A. work, the purpose of the lenten pledge, thankoffering and self-denial envelopes was explained.

During a social half hour the ladies hostesses Mrs. W. Lancaster and Mrs. S. Beggs served tea and cookies.

BEST BUYS

Dear Susanna: The best idea is to take the whole newspaper page featuring sale items at your favorite grocery markets, with you on your weekly shopping expeditions.

Place the ads, right in front of you in the shopping basket. They are an excellent guide to purchasing the "best buy" brands and products that week.

To further facilitate matters, check the page beforehand with a thick red pencil, indicating which of the meat, fruit, canned goods and other sale items you don't want to miss. — Mrs. Bert Hadley.

Restore Winter-chapped Skin

America women have a problem on their hands—dry skin. Recent surveys reveal that at least half of all women over 18 "feel" that they have dry skin. And the truth is that this feminine intuition is based on solid fact.

First, the atmosphere — indoors and out — is constantly robbing skin of natural moisture. It is moisture that keeps the skin soft, smooth and youthful. Indoor heating dehydrates skin and so do cold damp winds, or blazing hot sunshine.

Next, American women are constantly washing: their hands, clothes, dishes, children, and houses. Modern soaps and detergents are effective, but they also remove the skin's natural oils.

Nature has not been naturally kind to hands, either. For example, hands don't have the same amount of lubrication as skin on other parts of the body.

For instance, did you know that there are almost no oil glands on the knuckles or palms of your hands; and that there are none at all on the backs of your hands?

So if you hands feel dry and thirst for softness, look for a new lotion designed expressly for extra-dry skin. It is thick, rich and concentrated, yet it penetrates quickly and is never sticky or greasy.

The lotion for extra dry skin was invented to moisturize the hands at the "detergent generation." It contains natural oils to lubricate inflexible dry tissue, and emollients to make skin supple and smooth. A light medication speeds healing of chapped hands.

Did you know that dryness is actually the halfway mark to chapping? The water content of your skin is normally 10 to 20 per cent. Chapping occurs any time this water content drops below 10 per cent . . . usually as a result of washing, or evaporation from the atmosphere. Regular use of a nourishing lotion will hinder this evaporation of moisture and oil, and protect your skin against parching, and aging.

The new lotion works equally well on all extremity skin areas — hands, elbows, arms, legs.

Spring Treats

Come spring, and a homemaker's imagination begins to work overtime on how to liven up the daily menu pattern. Admittedly, ideas that are both practical and tempt-pleasing aren't always easy to come by. But there's many a quick trick you can try with milk to start off the spring parade of good eating.

Superb Swiss Sauce

When vegetables need perking up in a hurry, make a delicious Swiss sauce. You'll need an (8-ounce) package of processed Swiss cheese slices (Canadian-made of course) and ¾ cup milk. Heat together in a double boiler, stirring occasionally until the cheese melts and the sauce is smooth. Add a dash of Worcestershire sauce and a Tabasco sauce and there you have it!

Casserole Caper

Speaking of sauces, that wonderful standby, cream sauce, is made for chicken and asparagus this time of year. For 8 servings, use 2 cups each of sliced cooked asparagus, cooked chicken and smooth cream sauce. Layer in a 2-quart casserole, starting with the asparagus and ending with sauce. Sprinkle generously with Canadian cheddar cheese, top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a 350°F oven about 30 minutes. Add tossed salad and your main course is complete.

Cream Soup Special

Milk adds extra goodness to canned soups. Take potato soup for a starter. To one can, add 1¾ cups milk and 1 cup mashed cooked cauliflower. Simmer gently for a few minutes and sprinkle with paprika before taking to the table. Tastes as if you spent hours making it.

Prettier Jellied Salads

There's nothing like a sparkling white layer made with milk to accompany a fruited layer of strawberry red or lime green jelly. Begin by softening an envelope of unflavored gelatine in ¼ cup cold milk, dissolve in 1¾ cup hot milk additional ¼ tablespoon sugar and a little vanilla or almond flavoring. Chill until slightly thickened, stir in 1 cup cooked nut and sour into a large mold. Chill until firm. Now add your favorite fruit salad chicken and refrigerate until the second layer is set.

Origin of Easter Parade Back in Roman Times

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Easter Sunday, as a day for parading in new spring clothes, may owe something of its origin to an superstition and a Roman rector.

You once thought that it was unlucky to start a new year wearing old clothes. And when Emperor Constantine had a Easter the first day of the year, it set the pattern for an informal Easter parade.

It wasn't until 1854 that Jan. 1 became New Year's Day but by then the tradition of the "Easter Walk" in which men and women dressed in their best finery marched through town and into the country for special festivities had become entrenched.

Today the most famous of Easter parades takes place in New York, where traffic is cleared from Fifth Avenue for the fashionable paraders.

And although television has prompted some to dream up wild costumes, as attention-getting, there are a lot of tasteful stylish outfits on display. Seven years ago the suit became the main parading costume. Then the costume was a dress with jacket or coat loaf over. Suits came back a couple of seasons ago. This spring, sometimes may again have a slight edge although suits still are popular.

BLOUSES ARE IN

The No. 1 silhouette is a double - breasted jacket with a slightly A-line or a barely straight skirt. Not many pleated skirts were featured in the spring collections in New York although several designers favored them.

This is the first spring in years without the loose Chanel jackets. Collars are small and neat and sleeves continue to be narrow and set in.

Blouses are so much a part of the scene that many collections make them part of what called a three-piece suit. Gerald Casabi included a grey silk linen blouse, cowl - necklined, with an open V-neck.

More frequently a shell, rather than a blouse, teams up with suits. Jane Derby featured a white silk shell with a peach wool suit.

Several designers, including Adele Simpson and David Kidd for Arthur Jablow, introduced almost a costume look in suits with a weskit-blouse.

Interest in contrast colors also helps achieve this costume effect. Jablow combines both in a white weskit with a plaid navy-and-white jacket over a white skirt. Another is a two-piece combining a short cropped camel jacket crossed with bands of navy to match the skirt.

Norman Norvell combined a loose jacket and white over-blouse with a smaller pleated skirt. This tricolor look also appeared in the Canadian spring collection in which Irving Samuel of Montreal showed a long white jacket with matching strips of the skirt and a blue silk blouse.

CHECKS FAVORED

Suitings are smooth-surfaced and thin. There are many checks, overplaids and stripes. Christian Dior-New York featured a green-and-white check suit with a white shell, also a pink - and - white mosaic print with a pink gauze blouse and ascot. Louis Sarkier of Montreal combined a navy- and - yellow check wool with a navy blouse. In New York there was even a tiered skirt contrasted with a houndstooth check jacket.

However, you can really choose any suit type this spring. Ben Zuckerman went to the 1830s for culottes, low-rise jackets with kick pleated skirts and for grey flannel suits with striped cotton forest tops. Noell included both a strict tailleur, sometimes feminized by deep pleats in the straight skirt, and the cardigan suit, casual and comfortable.

Jean Louis leans toward the dandy with a regency suit in pinstripe and box jacket and white vests. He's one of the leading movie designers and his latest is a wardrobe for Lana Turner and the late Constance Bennett in the recently-released tear-jerker, Madame X.

John Moore says he goes along with the pants suit idea which appeared several seasons ago but never caught on with the majority of women. Moore says the pants suit is practical. A woman can travel in trousers and have a matching skirt to put on when she arrives at her destination. An example is his grey-and-white check jacket, mink cap and slats grey trousers.

Private Duty Nurses Elect New Director

A general business meeting of the private duty nurses of the Belleville and District Nursing Registry was held recently at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital with the purpose of electing a new director for the Registry.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Jean McDonnell, and minutes read by the recording secretary, Mrs. Doris Morrison. Reports were read by the chairman of each committee.

Three applications were read by Mrs. Joan McDonnell for position as director and voted on. Mrs. Joan Young (Reg. N. was elected to fill this office with Miss Jean Cummings, April. Mrs. Young's hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the telephone number 962-4363 is listed under Nurses' Registry. This same number may be called at all hours night or day to obtain private duty nurses who serve Belleville and surrounding communities.

The meeting was adjourned followed by luncheon with Miss Vivian Gross as convener.

HOLY ROSARY C.W.L.

At the March meeting of Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League held in Holy Rosary school the conveners for various projects including those in charge of a wedding reception, a rummage sale and bake sale were tendered thanks.

The president, Mrs. Walter Wan in charge of the meeting. It was noted that three members had attended the Day of Recollection in Kingston at which time Father Hamilton urged members to help their Children's Aid Society to have foster children in homes as there was a great need at present. The Holy Rosary parish has had six requests for foster children and one adoption in the parish.

During business a number of items were discussed including the holding of a tea at the Women's Prison in Kingston. An invitation was received from Halloway United Church to attend an open meeting. The president had attended the Women's Advisory Committee regional meeting which was held recently at Club Canara. Mrs. Reed had attended the Road Safety Conference in Kingston. Communion breakfast will be held April 20 with Mass at 10 p.m. with dinner to follow in the K. of C. Hall.

Father Rufus spoke briefly and congratulated the committee on having Mr. Robert Temple speak on "The Abolition of Capital Punishment."

A nominating committee was formed with Mrs. Stanley Doran and Mrs. Reed as members and Father Rufus, the director.

Mrs. Lyon, educational convener introduced Mrs. Darlington, the recording secretary for the Diocesan. She spoke on the office of the League at Parish Council level which proved most educational and worthwhile.

A social time followed.

MESSENGERS GROUP

RAWDON — Thirty-three children were in attendance at Mount Pleasant Church hall on Sunday morning for the March meeting of the Messengers.

Jeannette Hoard was pianist and the study chapter were synopsized by Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Miss Brenda Whitmore.

Plans were made to hold an open meeting at the church hall on Saturday evening, April 26th when the Messengers will entertain the women of the community. Lorraine Jeffs gave the call to worship and Mrs. David Potts conducted the devotional.

A period of recreation was enjoyed under the direction of Mrs. Potts.

Nazi Flag Poor Choice For Decoration

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father fought for the Allies in Europe during World War II. He and his men captured a Nazi headquarters. They divided the Nazi flags, lugers, helmets and other items which were available for souvenirs.

A few months ago my dad took his souvenirs out of the attic and decided to decorate the rec room. He placed the Nazi flag on a stand next to the American flag. Anyone could see it was meant as a decoration.

Some friends of my parents came to play bridge last night. When they saw the Nazi flag they said some words I cannot spell and you cannot print. I guess they were overly upset because they had lost some relatives in the German gas chambers and the sight of a Nazi flag was too much for them.

My mother says if that Nazi flag is going to cause so much commotion, Dad should take it down. Dad says he is not expecting anybody to salute it — that it's just a souvenir. What do you say? — BYSTANDERS.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR BY: Salute it yet? Your dad must be out of his mind to place the Nazi flag next to the American flag. And you picked a fine person to ask what to do with it. The thought of those butchery ravages me so that I can barely see to type the answer to the next letter. Put the thing back in the attic. Or, better yet, tell your dad to burn it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old girl who has a very serious problem. I am sure that my 18-year-old brother is a homosexual.

What can I do to help him? Our parents are divorced and we live with our mother. I'm not very close to mother and it would be very hard for me to bring up the subject. My father would not be interested.

Should I tell my brother I want to help him? He has never discussed this with me and I have not let on that I know something is wrong with him. Please give me some advice. — BIG SISTER.

DEAR BIG SISTER: While most homosexuals are very lonely and desperately unhappy, some are reasonably contented and have no desire to change.

Unless your brother confides in you that he wants help, say nothing to him — or to anyone else. The family physician would be the one to talk to if your brother asks for your counsel.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was in the service I met a girl I liked a lot. Her parents were very good to me and I had many wonderful Sunday dinners at their home.

I'm out of the service now and have invited this girl to meet my folks. (She lives 200 miles away.) I told her she could stay in our home and share my sister's bedroom. She wrote that she and her mother would love to come.

We don't have room for two people because the bed in my sister's room is the only extra bed in the house. Also, if the girl's mother comes, my mother would have to entertain her, and mother isn't the social type. What should I do? — IN A PICKLE.

DEAR PICKLE: Obviously the girl doesn't consider it proper to stay in your home unless her mother accompanies her.

Can't your sister sleep at a friend's house for a couple of nights so your girl's mother can have her bed? Your mother shouldn't entertain her. All she has to do is be pleasant.

Designate Proceeds From Fashion Show

The March meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Medical Society was held at the home of Mrs. J. Nelles.

The guest speakers, Mrs. Gourgeon and Mrs. Dolan representing the Women's Auxiliary to the Ontario Medical Association were introduced by the president Mrs. J. Empson. A brief history of the organization which was formed in 1853 was presented. The aims of the Auxiliary were discussed.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess.

Parents Not Wrong to Row Before Children

LONDON (AP)—A British doctor said today people who advise married couples never to have a row in front of the children are talking a lot of bosey.

Couples who boast they have been married for 20 years and never had a row are either "liars or jellyfish," said Dr. William Edwards, a retired general practitioner.

He made the comments in a section of a book called Getting Married, published today by the British Medical Association.

He said two red - blooded people cannot possibly live together without the occasional quarrel. It clears the air.

SHOULD BE SHORT

"The quarrel should be short and sharp, leaving no grudges," the doctor advises. "Never let the sun go down on your wrath. Make it up in bed."

The doctor went on:

"When you've been married a few years, someone will reproach you: 'Never row before the children.' They need a sense of security and if you quarrel, they get neurotic.'

"Hooey to that. Your children need to think of you as human beings, not as plaster saints. If they see you row and make it up, they learn not to hold grudges themselves."

TRUDY

"I'm making a list of the people whom I'd like you to invite to the surprise birthday party you're going to give me!"

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—Retail sales in January were estimated to be 7.5 per cent higher than in January, 1965, the bureau of statistics reported today. Gains by regions: Atlantic 6.3 per cent; Quebec 5.4, Ontario 8.8, Manitoba 12.1, Saskatchewan 4.7, Alberta 4.7, and British Columbia 11.4.

Lumber consumption jumped 23.4 per cent in January to 30,079,000 pounds from 24,370,000 pounds in January of last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The bureau of statistics today said a January survey showed shipments of iron castings, pipe and fittings at 53,324 tons in January compared to 46,878 tons in the same month of last year. Shipments of welded and seamless steel pipe and tubing advanced to 74,404 tons from 66,378.

The Intelligencer

introduces

some of the Authors and Artists who were commissioned to create the Canadian Centennial Library

The illustrated Canadian Centennial Library is an "All-Canadian" publishing project, which will distribute a series of handsomely matched hard-cover books during 1966 and 1967.

These superbly designed volumes, exploring every important facet of the Canadian Scene from 1867 to 1967, are being prepared by our nation's foremost authors, artists, photographers and editors. In words and pictures, each book comes alive with excitement as its pages reveal the most dramatic moments of our first adventurous century. Among the illustrious contributors whose works will be included are:

DR. WILLIAM KILBOURN has written many features for newspapers and magazines, radio and television, in addition to his award-winning biography, "The Firebrand" Eminent as an educator and historian, his documentary will be equally apparent in the Canadian Centennial Library volume, "The Making of The Nation," a stirring account of our first hundred years.

KEN LEFOLII, a writer of national standing, has also been published in the U.S. and the U.K. He has long been an appreciative student of the Canadian Look — as managing editor of "Liberty Magazine," as a former editor of "Maclean's Magazine," as a reporter and broadcaster. You will be amazed by his keen observations on the sights and styles of Canada's of yesterday and today.

ELIZABETH KILBOURN, a contributing editor to "Canadian Art Magazine," is also a member of the editorial board of "Canadian Forum." Her long experience in art critic and commentator particularly qualifies Mrs. Kilbourn to chart the achievements of Canada's greatest painters during the past century, an outstanding contribution to this Centennial Library project.

DR. CLAUDE BISSELL, President of the University of Toronto, has graciously accepted an invitation to lend his prestige to the Canadian Centennial Library. His anthology of best Canadian writing, now in preparation for this series, promises to be among the liveliest and most readable volumes ever produced.

FRANKLIN ARBUCKLE, painter, muralist and illustrator, is without doubt Canada's most famous artist. Through countless journeys to every corner of the nation, he has captured for all time the essence and mood of the Canadian scene. The Centennial Library is fortunate to include many of his original works, specially commissioned for this historic occasion.

ROBERTSON DAVIES, Canada's leading man of letters, is a dramatist, novelist, critic, essayist, columnist and sales manager who has appeared in many leading publications. Presently Master of Massey College at the University of Toronto, his most famous novel is "Leaven of Malice."

FRANK NEWFELD, noted book designer and winner of 87 awards and certificates of merit, is responsible for the visual appeal of these Canadian Centennial Library volumes. Art Director of this series, he has created masterpieces of design and typography, which complement perfectly the writings of these fine authors.

TRENT FRAYNE brings to this series twenty-five years of experience as news reporter, freelance writer, copy editor, public relations director, entertainment columnist, sports commentator and television personality. This series gives him free reign to comment on such unlikely subjects as the ferocity of female basketball players, and the subtlety of a punch in the nose.

Volume I, THE MAKING OF THE NATION, is the chronicle of Canada's epic Century of Challenge — the birth of a nation like no other; its rise to maturity and greatness. It is our saga of courage and crisis through one hundred turbulent years from 1867 to 1967.

No matter how much — or how little — you know about Canadian affairs, you will find THE MAKING OF THE NATION brimming with entertainment and information. Written by William Kilbourn, eminent educator and historian, this fast-moving documentary is skilfully composed in the same lively style as his award-winning biography, The Firebrand. 128 dramatic illustrations, many in full color, illuminate the pages of Dr. Kilbourn's exciting new work.

Examine Volume I without obligation

Even before you consider becoming a subscriber to the series, you are cordially invited to examine the first volume for 10 days, without any obligation to purchase it.

Just fill in the Charter Subscriber Reservation Certificate here, and mail it today, without money. The Making of the Nation, just published, will be sent to you at once. Read and enjoy it for 10 days. If you decide to keep it, remit only $2.95 plus a small charge for shipping and mailing. You will then be entitled to receive free-examination copies of future volumes as they are published, at two-month intervals, and to obtain them at the same low price if they meet with your approval.

Otherwise, return Volume I, and owe nothing; your subscription will be cancelled, and no further books will be sent. Of course, there is no minimum number of books to buy, and you may cancel your subscription at any time, simply by notifying us.

PIERRE BERTON,

Editor-in-Chief

A distinguished editorial board has been called together to direct the compilation of this series. Editor-in-Chief is Pierre Berton — Canada's esteemed journalist, commentator and critic. In addition to his editorial supervision on behalf of the Canadian Centennial Library, he has also written the accompanying text for Remember Yesterday, a memorable portfolio of historic photographs planned for early publication in this series.

Railroads Ready to Fight Demand for Negotiations Ere Job Conditions Change

By DAVE BUTLER

MONTREAL (CP)—A single strong union immediately protested.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which led the 15-day, unsuccessful strike that had "made it plain" it intended to proceed with the practice, regardless of objections.

Run - through trains had started much earlier in Western Canada but each time it occurred Eastern Canada the union position grew heavier. The blowup came in October, 1964.

CNR BACKED DOWN

A train running from Ontario to Manitoba started running through the turnaround point Nakina, Ont. Without warning 2,300 running trade employes booked off sick — unfit for work and threatened to hold transcontinental traffic.

The CNR backed down in the face of the Gimp and agreed to hold off on all planned changes through until the situation had been studied by an impartial observer appointed by the federal government. Prime Minister Pearson chose Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of Winnipeg to carry out the inquiry commission.

Many interested parties made representations to the commission but the real battle blazed between the CNR in one corner and a group of three operating unions in the other. The unions were the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (BLE), the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLE) and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC).

The unions tried to draw the Canadian Pacific Railway in the dispute by suggesting Mr. Justice Freedman that he invited to participate. The CPR declined, emphasizing that the original terms of reference did not extend to the CNR.

The CNR's position has been that run-through are the only reliable result of technological change. It maintained they are necessary to enhance the railways' competitive position by expediting service and saving money.

UNIONS WANT VOICE

The unions felt that the changes, if allowed to continue unchecked or without them having some say, could lead to reduction in jobs. They sought negotiation between the parties on the matter of run-through would be an instrument through which they could obtain "reasonable protection against the adverse consequences that might arise from the change in operations."

Mr. Justice Freedman brought down his report in November. While recognizing the necessity of the railway to continue run - throughs, it recommended that "run-through should be negotiated."

The railways had already agreed they would compensate men for loss of earnings and homes and similar expenses caused by the run - through. They also said "We are quite prepared to enter into discussions with representatives of our employees to determine whether or not voluntary agreement can be reached . . . by negotiation is preferred to legislation."

However, the CBRT's present demand goes much further and the CNR has indicated it will need fuller explanations of the clause's ramifications before considering it.

Prospects for National Government in South Viet Nam Not Promising

By ARCH McKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — What would happen if a South Vietnamese government—the present one or any new administration—told the United States to leave?

That is one of the unspoken questions revived here by the political unrest against the military regime of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

There are other questions, too —all reflecting the facts that South Viet Nam has not had a genuinely - national government for many years and that prospects for one are not promising.

This is so despite American efforts to fight a war with one hand and mount a vast pacification program with the other, working through what really is a warlord regime in Saigon representing regional military fiefdoms.

American justification for being in Viet Nam at all, as stated by State Secretary Dean Rusk, is to boost to a commitment given an ally. That commitment was given in 1954, it is contended, and re-emphasized in assorted ways.

It has been boosted through the downfall of playboy Emperor Bao Dai, the rise and fall of dictator Ngo Dinh Diem and for the six premiers who have reigned briefly since Diem's 1963 assassination.

Official U.S. statements have never said precisely what would happen if a South Vietnamese government asked the U.S. to take its 230,000 troops home.

While the current unrest has disclosed substantial anti-American sentiment, observers here discount the likelihood any southern regime will ask the U.S. to leave.

The military organization remains the only really organized entity in the south, despite Buddhist capacity to stage demonstrations, and will remain so, it is felt. The military has a vested interest in fighting on.

More ominous from the U.S. standpoint is the risk that in the northern area, centring on Hue, there may be some defecting troops. These defectors would be "rebels" to the forces representing Saigon.

Such a situation could be disastrous, amounting to what would be a civil war within a civil war if credence is given to the view that the Viet Cong insurgents in the south are rebels rather than aggressors representing the north.

Friendship Between Same Sexes Valuable

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS: When I was in my early teens I had crushes and puppy loves over all sorts of boys, most only castles in the air, but a wonderful girl friend and real pal helped me take my mind off the boys.

We spent many a happy hour together on the farm. We both loved outside chores and especially did we love to ride horseback. She would come to meet me; then we would laugh so heartily over many experiences until we almost rolled off our horses.

Sometimes we did mischievous things such as, throwing her dad's old felt hat under the car tires. We did nothing that we couldn't tell our folks about.

I am very happily married now, a good husband and four choice children.

I think that most any girl who has had a close girl friend during her teen-age years is lucky indeed. — LUCKY.

DEAR LUCKY: Ain't it the truth! One friend of mine told me that as a girl she was very shy. She used to pray that God would send her a girl friend and a boy friend. When she got both she was in seventh heaven.

Confidential to FRIGID: It's the most natural thing in the world that your mother's ideas about sex would affect your response to affection. She thinks of sex as unpleasant, as a sort of cross to bear. I'm sorry for her; but you don't need to fear frigidity, once you understand things better. At its ultimate best, physical relations can be a high expression of love between married people.

Row Over Bilingualism Appears to Be Shaping Up at CLC Convention

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A full-scale row over bilingualism appears to be shaping up for the Canadian Labor Congress' biennial convention at Winnipeg April 25-29, labor sources say.

The Quebec Federation of Labor is reported preparing an attack on the congress and its leading officers for alleged not giving sufficient attention to the French language.

At its last convention the federation also decided to demand more autonomy from the central labor body. It will insist that the Quebec federation be recognized as "different" from the other provincial groups.

Some labor leaders believe there will be strong resistance to any special treatment for the QFL, which contributes about 200,000 members to the 1,200,000-member CLC. But CLC President Claude Jodoin, a former vice-president of the QFL, is hoping to head off a floor fight on the issue.

Overshadowing the whole problem is the growing threat of the Confederation of National Trade Unions which has been scoring steady gains in its raids against CLC unions in Quebec. It now has its eye on tabling Quebec members out of such national bargaining units as railway crafts and CBC groups.

SAY UNITY THREATENED

The CNTU's main pitch has been tied to French-Canadian nationalism and has been focused by the congress of trying to undermine national unity.

CNTU leaders insist that CLC unions have not been giving enough attention to their French-speaking locals.

The QFL is seeking greater control over its own affairs, free of congress regulations, as a counter to CNTU claims that it is not a true Quebec organization.

Several other contentious issues are also scheduled to come up for debate among the delegates, expected to number between 1,600 and 1,800.

The Seafarers' International Union of Canada, kicked out of the CLC six years ago for raiding other affiliates, has applied for re-entry. The move is getting strong support from the three federal trustees who have been administering SIU affairs.

LEADERS DIVIDED

There is a sharp division among union leaders on the SIU application. Some are bitterly opposed, saying the sailors' union is being run by the same men who aided the ex-SIU president Hal Banks in his ruthless reign of terror on the waterfront.

Others have tended to go along with the view of the trustees who say these men have reformed since Banks was fired by the trusteeship two years ago and later fled to the United States to escape a prison sentence for conspiracy to assault.

The CLC's executive council has been discussing the SIU application for months but has not yet announced its recommendation. This may come at the council meeting in Winnipeg just before the convention opens.

The SIU has a membership of about 15,000.

There have been persistent reports that the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, also expelled in 1960 for raiding, is planning to seek admission to the congress.

URGED TO RETURN

Although the Teamsters have not yet made a formal application there have been some informal discussions with CLC executives. The Canadian Teamsters are reported to be under pressure from the parent union in the U.S. to get back into the CLC.

The general view among union officers here is that the Teamsters will win re-admission if it is put to a convention vote. The union, currently involved in an Ontario trucking strike, has more than 42,000 members.

A floor fight could erupt over proposals for a study of the CLC structure, particularly its machinery for handling jurisdictional disputes between affiliates.

The 1964 convention adopted a new approach to this problem, setting up a system of progressive sanctions against raider unions rather than expulsion. In recent months the United Steelworkers of America and the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the two largest unions in the country, have been hauled before the congress "court" on raiding charges.

Several unions want an easing of the sanction plan, possibly to allow approval of raids under certain circumstances. The smaller unions will undoubtedly resist this move in their apprehension about seizures by the big and wealthy unions.

UNVEILS PLATES

MONTREAL (CP)—The 1967 Montreal world fair and Canada's centennial will be the twin themes for Quebec's 1967 red-on-white licence plates, Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, Quebec transport minister, said Monday. The front plate is dominated by the title Expo 67, bears the name of Montreal, the traditional fleur-de-lys and the centennial number in small type at the bottom. The rear plate has the licence number in this normal size and below it the phrase 1867 Confederation 1967.

New Federal Dairy Policy Highly Praised by Council

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, T. E. Cooper, said Monday that the federal government's new dairy policy is probably the most progressive in 20 years.

Mr. Cooper told the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers:

"Under all existing circumstances, the new federal dairy policy is probably the most appropriate, constructive and progressive which has been implemented during the 20 years since the federal government became deeply involved in dairy farm price support operations."

Mr. Cooper said that among the reasons which called for a completely new approach to government dairy policy is the fact that for three successive years total domestic consumption of dairy foods and exports had outstripped production.

Milk production had shown no change since 1961. The number of farms with milk cows had declined 25 per cent in the last decade and the dairy herd was at the lowest level in half a century.

"The situation confronting the government, therefore, was that if serious shortages were to be avoided, policy must be devised to halt the decline in the number of efficient dairy farms and stimulate total production to the point needed to meet domestic consumption and retain traditional export markets."

"But it was highly unlikely that the increase in producer returns would result in a sufficient increase in milk output this year to avoid the need to import butter next winter.

"Once this becomes clear, no time should be lost by the government to import butter of a type and quantity to meet the demand."

"Under the circumstances I do not foresee any justification for serious consumer resistance to the moderate increase under the new federal policy, particularly in this era of unprecedented consumer affluence."

He said that in his view one of the most beneficial features of the new program is its flexibility.

"If, for example, the consumption patterns for dairy foods show any serious decline, price adjustments can and must be made."

Rod and Gun Club Important Factor in Conservation Effort

NAPANEE — The Rod and Gun Club which held its first regular meeting in January, 1950, with a membership of 30 now has over ten times as many members and is an important factor in conservation in Lennox and Addington county. It works closely with the Department of Lands and Forests.

Jack Cook, the first president, has done much to maintain and increase interest. The proposed dam to be built below the falls in Napanee was his idea, first.

The proposed dam, to be built where the old footbridge used to cross, will create a reservoir, raising the water about seven feet. The Department of Fisheries has promised to stock the reservoir with adult trout, and one project of the club is to tag these and offer prizes during fishing derbies. It is proposed to enlarge Springside Park on the south side of the river as far as the dam, and eventually much farther.

SERVE AS BRIDGE

In addition, the top of the dam will serve as a bridge, shortening the distance to the business section of the town for those who live on the south side of the river. The dam will thus be a convenience, a conservation step, and will add to the beauty of this section of the greenbelt.

With president Sam Markle, the club is increasingly active. They are holding a hunter's safety training class April 23. Friday will see a turkey and chicken shoot on the 18-acre property they own on the Melbourne farm off the Beach Road. There they have a rifle range, a trap-shooting range, and a club house. Proceeds from the shoot will go towards their pledge of $1,000 for the hospital fund.

The Rod and Gun Club works constantly to promote good relations between the hunter and the farmer. They have purchased several hundred signs "Hunting by Permission Only" with the name of the club, and space for the farmer's name. These are distributed free, and are being widely used in all parts of the country.

Over the years the Club has held many fishing derbies, one for children every summer, where the young anglers are guests of the Club and are served refreshments. A bird house contest will be judged this month by members of the Napanee Nature Club. Courses in boating safety are given at the NDSS. Thousands of pheasants have been raised and released.

For three years, Mr. Hanna has been writing a weekly column on conservation for the Napanee weekly paper.

Past-president of the club is Herb Hayes, vice-president is Bob Wilson, Oscar Asselstine, secretary and Barry Sanford, David Wagar, Howard Storey, Cecil Baker, Don Leary, Jack Meehan, Ken Martin, and Bill Hanna, directors.

WILL GIVE REPORT

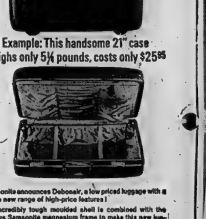
OTTAWA (CP)—Report of an inquiry into the collapse of a building being constructed here will be presented to board of control, Acting Mayor Ken Forsyth said Monday. Four workers died and five others suffered injuries in the mishap last week.

Open New School North Of Selby

NAPANEE — The ten-room Selby School opened Monday morning, replacing ten one-roomed schools in Richmond Township. There are nine classrooms, with the tenth room to use as an assembly hall and gymnasium. Principal is Fred Holmes, who formerly taught the scool in Selby.

The new school is one mile north of Selby on Highway Number 41, and is the second large school to be built by Richmond Township within a year. The Slash-Road School, near the hospital, had several rooms added and they were ready for use early in January.

Additional teachers in the new school are: Miss Mary Drummey, Mrs. Kathleen McCracken, Mrs. Joan Taylor, Mrs. Gail Clement, Mrs. Edna Dowdle, Mrs. Nellie Young, Mrs. Margaret Cook, and Mrs. Marjorie Storring. All were teachers in the small schools. The tenth teacher is going to another school.



BEATNIKS GO HOME

PARIS (AP) — France, long regarded as a haven for bohemian exiles, has decided that foreign beatniks will have to lead their unkempt lives elsewhere. The government has issued orders to its border police to refuse admission to moneyless tourists who present an unlady appearance, the French news agency said Monday night.

Hull Picks Up $2,000; Ross Trophy

MONTREAL - (CP) — Bobby Hull's record-breaking achievements warned the Chicago Black Hawk left winger $2,000 in award money from the National Hockey League for the 1965-66 season.

Hull, who established records for most goals in a season, most points in a season and most power-play goals, finished 19 points ahead of his nearest rivals, teammate Stan Mikita and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens.

Hull finished with a record 54 goals and 43 assists for 97 points while Rousseau and Mikita finished in a tie for second place with identical records of 30 goals and 48 assists.

Hull earns $1,000 as scoring champion and receives the Art Ross Trophy for the third time in nine seasons with Chicago. He also picks up another $1,000 as leader in each of the schedule.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal actually tied Hull in points during the second half of the season but because Hull outscored him 22-17, the "blood bomber" receives the $500 award. Beliveau receives $250 as runner-up in the second half.

Mikita and Rousseau, tied in goals as well as points over the season, will receive $500, which goes to the runner-up in scoring. Mikita, Rousseau and Beliveau finished in a three-way tie as the league's top play-makers with 48 assists each.

TOP GOALIES

The league also will pan an extra $500 in the Vezina Trophy award. Montreal's Lorne (Gump) Worsley and Charlie Hodge combined to win the over-all award with 173 goals against and they also led in the second half. This means they will share $1,000 as co-winners of the trophy plus another $250 as leaders in the second half.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago, tied for over-all runner-up honors with 187 goals against each, will receive $500 each to be spread among its goaltenders.

Glenn Hall and Dave Dryden were the Chicago netminders. Toronto used five goaltenders—Johnny Bower, Terry Sawchuk, Bruce Gamble, Gary Smith and Al Smith. Hall and Dryden also receive a total of $250 as first-half leaders.

Statistics released today by NHL headquarters show that Beliveau was placed fourth in the final standings behind Hull, Mikita and Rousseau.

HOWE IN FIFTH

Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings big right winger who completed his 20th NHL season this year, finished in fifth place, two points behind Beliveau.

Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio, Howe's teammates, placed sixth and seventh with 72 and 67 points respectively, and Bob Nevin of New York Rangers was eighth with 62.

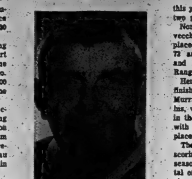
Henri Richard of Montreal finished ninth with 61 points and Murray Oliver of Boston Bruins, who led all point collectors in the final week of the season with six points, moved into 10th place with 60 points.

The NHL had more players scoring 20 goals or more this season than ever before. A total of 28 players are listed and six of them scored 30 goals or more. The previous high for 20-goal men was 24 in 1962-63.

Hull led left wingers with his 97 points. Mikita was the top scorer among centres and Rousseau topped all right wingers.

LED DEFENCEMEN

Pierre Pilote of Chicago was the leading defenceman with 36 points, although he missed 18 games due to injuries, and Brit Selby of Toronto led all rookies in scoring with 27 points, including 14 goals.



Roger Crozier of Detroit led the shutout parade among goaltenders for the second straight season as he recorded seven shutouts, one more than last year. Toronto, however, led team totals in shutouts with eight, including four by Gamble. All eight Leaf shutouts were in the second half of the season.

Reg Fleming of New York led the penalty parade with 186 minutes, including 53 minor penalties, six majors, two 10-minute misconducts and one game misconduct.

Fleming had 42 minutes in penalties with Boston before being traded to New York in mid-season.

The Rangers were the team leaders in penalties with 894 minutes. Total minutes for the 210 games this season was 4,985, the lowest total in three seasons.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Prince Edward county's famed Hayward Long Reach, the nautical raceway of world champions, will again resound to the pulsing roar of international speedboats this summer.

But not to the deafening snarl of a World War Two Rolls-Royce or Allison airplane engine of some 2,000 horsepower and a wall of water called a rooster-tail spewing 60 feet high and 200 feet long.

Commodore Jack Hartwick of the Prince Edward Yacht Club tells me his organization is fostering a completely Canadian racing boat classic, international in scope. It is the first event of its kind in Canada.

It will feature the first running of the "Limited" World Championship race for the Maple Leaf Trophy for competition only in Canadian or border waters.

To qualify for this race, motors must not exceed 427.161 cubic inches. There are no restrictions on either monster or half other class cubic inches. The Maple Leaf Trophy has been accredited emblematic of the "World's Limited Power Boat Championship."

The Maple Leaf Classic climaxes four days of racing at the Reach scheduled for July 29 to 31th. Included is a series of other rated speedboat races which include the running of the Grand Prix, 250 Class, 150 Class and 16 Class...

Commodore Hartwick says because of its official sanction by the Union of International Motor Boating, the Canadian Boating Federation and the American Power Boat Association, the classic is being highly acclaimed by racing-boat owners.

Among the number of contestants already registered — at this early date — are entries from Ontario, Quebec and the U.S.A. Also several entries will be received from European countries.

World power-boat competition on the "Reach" will bring nostalgia to racing buffs. It will recall the colorful panoramas of Harmsworth Trophy triumphs, and gallant Bobby Hayward, killed in a tragic accident on the Detroit River.

Perhaps the Prince Edward Yacht Club took up the racing torch tossed by the late Bob Finlayson, secretary-manager of the Canadian Boating Federation, Canada's parliament of nautical racing.

For I understand it was Finlayson, realizing that Canada could not answer a Harmsworth challenge because of the lack of a representative, was trying to arrange the seven-litre world championships for a Canadian centre.

And there is no other course in Canada that Finlayson would choose but the Reach. He loved its grassy-rippled waters. He loved the sunshine that glinted off its surfaces to the house he owned next the Quinte Cabins. He loved its wooded shores that slope gently upwards to tree-sentinelled skylines.

The United States will likely send a strong contingent of boats and drivers here in July, but they are going to have a race on their hands — and they know it.

Canada should take second to none in boats and drivers for she has a seven-litre "Miss Supertest III" set-up in owner Aubert Brilliant of Rimouski, Quebec and the well-known Canadian driver Art Asbury of Ste Yenegue Lake, Ontario and their champion "Royal Canadiana."

Asbury drove this midget queen to victory in the U.S. National last year — and broke two world records. He created them in competition at 99 mph. over a mile-and three-quarter course and the straightaway for the kilo distance at 159 mph.

Commodore Hartwick, his directors and committees are already hard at work formulating plans for the midsummer racing classics. Popularity of those mighty mites which toss gin-feather wheels instead of lacy arching rooster-tails has increased tremendously both in the U.S. and Canada the past few years

Hayward Reach, as is well-known here, is a natural racing amphitheatre with its high banks along the race site forming ample viewing areas for some 25,000 people.

Yankee Rookie Hits 3 Homers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tornadoes swept through Florida Monday, and that wasn't a bad hurricane New York Yankees unleashed at Fort Lauderdale.

Roger Repoz, a young outfielder, walloped three home runs as the Yankees outlasted Cincinnati Reds 10-9 in one of two games that survived Florida rainy, windy weather.

In the other Florida game, Baltimore Orioles downed Washington Senators 8-4.

At Mesa, Ariz., Cleveland Indians whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2 and at Las Vegas, Nev., Chicago Cubs blanked California Angels 4-0.

Repoz slammed two of his homers off Sammy Ellis, who will open the season for the Reds against New York Mets next Monday at Cincinnati, and the third off Ted Davidson.

Gordy Coleman led the Reds' attack with five runs batted in on a homer, triple and single. Johnny Edwards also homered for Cincinnati.

New York rallied for its winning runs in the ninth inning with Lou Clinton's bases-loaded single delivering the tying and winning runs.

STRIKE OUT SEVEN

Leon Wagner rapped a pair of run-scoring doubles and left-handed Sam McDowell struck out seven Dodgers in the six innings he worked as Cleveland beat Los Angeles.

Max Alvis also drove in two runs for the Indians and Mc-Dowell, the American League's strikeout king last year, allowed five hits but had trouble with his control, walking five, in his six innings.

Ernie Broglio worked the first seven innings and relief specialist Ted Abernathy finished up the Cubs' three-hit shutout of the Angels. Broglio allowed all the California hits and stretched his spring record to three-earned runs in 31 innings.

Catcher Chris Krug had a perfect day with four hits in four swings for Chicago. He drove in two runs. Billy Williams homered for the Cubs against Angel ace Dean Chance. Curt Blefary, the American League's Rookie of the Year last season, hammered two home runs and Boog Powell one as the Orioles defeated Washington.

RACE DRIVER DIES

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) Jimmy Daywalt, who drove in eight 500-mile races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, died of cancer Monday. He was 41. He survived four serious accidents at the speedway, three of them during 500-mile races.

Stanley Cup TV Dates

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC released Monday a partial schedule of the Stanley Cup semi-final games which will be carried live on its television network.

All eight games will begin at 8:30 p.m., 30 minutes after the opening faceoff. The only afternoon game on Sunday, April 26, between Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings, will be carried at 3 p.m. EST, 30 minutes after the opening gameoff.

The other four games are between Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens. The dates for these games are April 7, 9, 12 and 14.

A further schedule of telecasts of semi-final games will be released as the two series progress. Both series open Thursday with Chicago playing host to Detroit and Toronto visiting the Canadiens.

Longden To Drive A Sulky

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden, retired just a few weeks ago from thoroughbred racing competition, will drive a sulky Wednesday at Santa Anita.

Longden, raised in Tuber, Ala., will drive Santa Raider in the seventh race of the harness program.

That doesn't necessarily mean Longden has decided to come out of retirement. He's raced Sulkies before.

Will Award Sixth Franchise Today

—NHL Meets In NY—

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League's board of governors gathers here today to complete expansion plans by awarding its sixth new franchise, tentatively awarded to St. Louis.

One group, composed primarily of St. Louisians, is headed by Sid Salomons Jr., who has purchased the St. Louis Arena conditionally. The transaction will be completed if Salomons' group gets the franchise.

Last week another syndicate, headed by Carl Berst of Chicago, entered its bid for the St. Louis franchise. Forty per cent of the Berst group's backers are St. Louisians.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said that if neither group's presentation proves satisfactory to the board, the sixth new franchise will be awarded to Baltimore.

Last month, new franchises were awarded to groups in Los Angeles, San Francisco - Oakland, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

All six are to be operative in the 1967-68 season.

The league currently is composed of teams in Montreal, Toronto, New York, Chicago, Detroit and Boston.

Good News For Leaf Fans

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs expect to have winger Frank Mahovlich and defenceman Allan Stanley ready for action when they open their Stanley Cup semi-final series Thursday night in Montreal against the Canadiens.

Mahovlich, Toronto's top scorer with 32 goals and 56 points in the regular schedule this season, missed last weekend because of fluid on the knee. He did not skate at Monday's workout.

But manager - coach Punch Imlach said he will be ready Thursday.

Stanley, sidelined with pulled ligaments in his right knee, has been skating for 10 days and said the knee does not bother him. The 40-year-old veteran of 17 NHL seasons has been a mainstay of the Toronto defence all season.

Defeat Rangers 4-1

Generals Win Opener

OSHAWA (CP) — Kitchener Rangers have been the Cinderella team of the Ontario Hockey Association playoffs, but Ron Dussiaume stole their thunder Monday night.

Dussiaume, a 16-year-old rookie from Sudbury, rattled in two goals to lead Oshawa Generals to a 4-1 victory over the Rangers in the opening game of the finals.

The Rangers, who spent most of the season flirting with last place before limping into the playoffs for the first time in three years, move into their home rink in Kitchener for the second game tonight and will try to even the best-of-seven series.

Dussiaume, called up from the Oshawa Junior B club midway through the season, proved he belonged by banging home a loose puck that got away from Kitchener goalie Gary Kurt in the first period.

Then he connected with a picture goal in the second by rushing the length of the ice, skirting the Ranger defence and fooling Kurt with a slick backhander from close range.

A crowd of 4,385 that jammed the 2,479-seat arena in Oshawa saw the Generals take a 2-0 lead in the first period and increase it to 4-0 in the second despite a determined bid by the Rangers.

Oshawa goalie Ian Young, a standout so far in the playoffs, sparkled again. He lost his shutout late in the third when Don Luce finally beat him.

Other Oshawa marksmen were Danny O'Shea and Wayne Cashman.

APPRECIATION

May we take a few lines from your column to Minor Hockey in our District.

We the "B.M.H.A." Pee Wee Generals Hockey Team attended an invitation Hockey game at R.C.A.F. No. 8 R.D. Trenton on Saturday April 2nd.

On arrival we were escorted to their Recreational Centre and there, were seated to a treat that all minor teams look for - hot dogs , donuts and pop - then after resting we played their best team in the House League. Unfortunately, we lost a close one.

One thing, though, was not overlooked - the interest, the sportsmanship, the cheers from the fans, for both teams.

We in Belleville should attend our minor hockey games, week evenings, Saturdays 7.00 a.m. till 7 ? (watch your sports calendar).

May we thank Mr. and Mrs. Ken Olsen and their stalwart executive for their fine hospitality shown us at No. 6 R.D., Trenton.

OASA May Enter National

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Ontario Amateur Softball Association will send delegates to a Canadian Amateur Softball Association meeting next month with power to enter the OASA in the CASA, Harold Dormer of Peterborough, president of the Ontario association, said Monday night.

The delegates will be Dormer and Lloyd Algaire of St. Catharines, treasurer of the OASA.

The decision on whether the OASA should join the CASA will be taken by Dormer and Algaire at a CASA meeting in Saskatoon or Winnipeg on the Victoria Day weekend, when the Ontario officials will hear what the national association has to offer.

Morrisburg Eliminates Moncton

MONCTON (CP) — Morrisburg Combines, bombed 10-3 in the first game, won their third in a row Monday night—3-2—to clinch the best-of-five Eastern Canada Allan Cup quarter-finals 3-1.

Ken Booth of Morrisburg scored the winning goal at 7:32 of the third period before a crowd of 4,000.

After the crushing loss to Moncton in the first game, the Combines posted 5-3 and 5-4 wins to set the stage for Monday's deciding game.

Intelligencer Gold Cup Tournament

A new tournament with a handsome trophy as the top award has been added to the five-pins agenda of the Bowl-O-Drome here.

It is the Belleville and District Match Play Five-Pin Bowling Classic. It will be held on Saturday, May 7th.

The top award is the new Intelligencer Gold Cup with a miniature as permanent possession of the winner.

Other awards and prizes are expected to be available. The top 16 average bowlers of the city and eight top keglers from out of town within a radius of 25 miles are being invited to compete. The 24 bowlers will be divided into three groups of eight and will play a round robin schedule of single game matches within their groups to decide the six semi-finalists.

The primary round will begin at one o'clock sharp and be completed by five o'clock.

The six survivors will compete again at seven o'clock the same evening and will draw for opponents and lanes. Each will play a two-of-three match with the losers eliminated.

The remaining three bowlers will play a four-game round robin series - two games against each of the other two with one point awarded for each win. A one-game sudden death will decide a tie. In the event of a three-way tie the two bowlers with the higher pinfall will play one match for the title.

There will be no financial cost. Mr. Art Bridge of Sears Board Pinsetters and Paul Wall of Shannonville Canners are picking up the tab for the lineage.

However to assist in finalizing arrangements each entrant is asked to forward a $3.00 deposit. The money will be refunded when he signs in at 12.30 of the day of competition.

Entry deadline is April 17th. Any invited player not replying will be substituted.

The tournament is under the jurisdiction and supervision of a special committee consisting of Jim McKenzie, Cec Hardwick, Paul Wall and Bill Bateman.

Francis Denies Report

NEW YORK (CP) — Emile Francis, general manager-coach of New York Rangers, said Monday night the National Hockey League team has not approached Maurice (Rocket) Richard to serve as coach.

Francis was commenting on a report by Stan Fishler, Journal-American hockey writer, that Richard would be available as Ranger coach if sufficient money is offered.

Fischler quoted a friend of Rocket—unnamed — as saying the former Montreal Canadien ace would take the job for $20,-000 a year.

"He has never been approached about coaching the Rangers," Francis said.

As for his own coaching future, Francis said he would make no decision for at least a month, until after the NHL playoffs.

Francis added coaching to his general managership after Red Sullivan was transferred to scouting duties early in the season. The Rangers, by losing 4-1 to Canadiens on the final night of the season, finished in the league cellar for the first time since 1960.

LARSEN ON WAIVERS

MIAMI (AP)—Baltimore Orioles asked waivers Monday on Don Larsen preparatory to giving the veteran pitcher his unconditional release. Personnel director Dallas Sain said he had been unable to line up another big league job for the 36-year-old right - hander who pitched the only World Series no-hitter and a 2-0 victory for New York Yankees against Brooklyn in 1956.

Doug Sanders Eyes Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "I think I can win it—if this old putting blade stays hot," Doug Sanders said Monday after checking into Augusta National for the 30th Masters Golf Tournament.

The 32-year-old Beau Brummell from Ojai, Calif., winner of two tournaments in a row and three for the season, stole the attention from the favored big three—Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player—as the game's best players began gathering for the event which starts Thursday.

"I disagree with those who say the course is too big for me" Sanders said. "Palmer, Nicklaus and those guys don't hit that much farther than I do.

"The guy who gets down the putt will win. . . ."

Sanders beat Palmer in a playoff for the Bob Hope Desert Classic title, led at Pensacola by four shots before being disqualified for failure to sign his scorecard, and won the Jacksonville and Greater Greensboro Opens on consecutive weekends.

Palmer, seeking his fifth Masters title, disagreed with those who feel Sanders may not be able to drive the ball far enough to win on the 6,980-yard, par 72 course.

"This guy is putting like a miracle man — fantastic," Palmer said. "More than that, he has a ton of confidence."

Italians Want Babando

TORONTO (CP) — Pete Babando, former National Hockey League player, has been offered the job of coaching the Italian national hockey team.

Babando, at his home in South Porcupine, Ont., says he heard about the offer only last Saturday and does not know the details.

The offer was made through the office of the Ontario Trade Commission and is for a two-month contract covering next February and March.

The former Boston Bruins player, now 40, was a leading scorer with the Toronto Italian-Canadian team that toured Italy last winter. He says that if he accepts the offered post, he can speak Italian well enough to get by.

Scoring Race Hot In AHL

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A single point separates Dick Gamble of Rochester Americans and Roland Mortson of Quebec Aces in the individual scoring race as the American Hockey League season enters its final week.

Gamble held a 95-to-94 margin over the Quebec challenger through last Sunday's games, AHL figures showed today.

The battle for the overall team title still is up for grabs, too, with Quebec's eastern division kings holding a two-point edge, 98 to 96, over Rochester, the western leaders. Rochester, with three games to play, and the Aces, with two remaining, are within range of the all-time record of 100 points set by Springfield Indians in 1961-62.

FORMER BOXER DIES

EDMONTON (CP)—Miles Y. Palmer, 67, a former Canadian amateur middleweight boxing champion, died Saturday in Phoenix, Ariz. Palmer, a member of the Edmonton Sports Hall of Fame, was a guard on the Edmonton football team beaten by Toronto Argonauts in 1921 in the national football final.

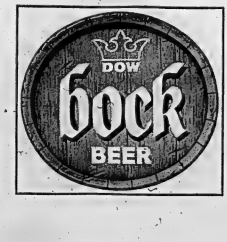
Canadiens gained a berth in the B.M.H.A.'s midget finals last night by eliminating the Wings by a 6-4 count.

Canadiens and Leals open the titular series at 8:15 tonight.



The winners' goals were shared by K. Marek, M. Rivers, R. Thompson and G. Hopkins, in that order. D. Thompson and D. McCormick had single assists. Both Wing goals were unassisted, scored by A. Jones and T. Waite. The winners drew the game's only three penalties.

The score sheet was not turned in for the peewee "A" division playoff game between the Rangers and Bruins.

Lana Turner's Office Looks Down on 'Sunset Strip'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The view from Lana Turner's office looks down upon her old playground, the Sunset Strip.

But Lana, as she pads about the thick carpeted executive suite she shares with her ex-husband and business partner, Robert Eaton, seems disinclined to play.

Asked why she needs an office, she replies: "To make money; we hope to make a lot of it."

Lana Turner, businesswoman, is a role I never expected to see her play. But she demonstrated her skill as a salesgirl in a recent tour she made on behalf of the film Madame X, which is expected to help supply the wherewithal of the Eaton-Turner Enterprises in films, plays and other fields.

The three-week stint was the second tour that Lana had made for it in 1965. The first was for limitation of Life, which provided her with a new career target and a $1,000,000 share of the profits. She also has a large share of Madame X profits.

The tour was exhausting but stimulating, and it taught me a great deal about the movie business," Lana said. "I covered seven cities, and I was on the go from morning to night.

"I learned so much about how movies feel about films. I found out they're fed up with the sick, sick, sick pictures that have been coming out of Hollywood. They want escape, and we haven't been giving it to them."

Lana had all kinds of praise for viewers, from teen-age panels to electronic inquisitors. She has been asked the penetrating questions with a soft answer.

"But I always supply an answer," she said.

Did she have a fight with Producer Ross Hunter on Madame X?

"Yes, we have a misunderstanding, and he didn't talk to me for eight days. But we're the best of friends now."

Did she hold up production?

"Are you kidding. I had four hair colors, 37 costume changes and a difficult makeup. We had a 30-day schedule and we finished in 35 days."

Cooper, Clay Toronto

LONDON (AP) — British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper's manager said he has a firm offer for Cooper to fight Cassius Clay in Toronto.

Manager Jim Wicks said Monday the offer for a Cooper-Clay fight in the immediate future came from Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

But, said Wicks, he has to Cooper to fight Clay in Britain.

Fight promoters on both sides of the Atlantic are competing for the right to match Clay against Cooper.

Wicks made clear that any hope of a Cooper-Clay match must depend on Clay's appeal against being drafted into U.S. military service. It is due for hearing in Washington April 14.

Rangers Blast Oilers

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sandy Fitzpatrick's three goals and the hottest goalie tending of Wayne Rutledge propelled Minnesota Rangers past Tulsa Oilers 8-0 Monday night in the first game of their Central Hockey League semi-final playoff series.

It was the eighth shutout of the season for Rutledge, the Central League's leading goal tender. Fitzpatrick rang up his second three-goal performance of the year.

Minnesota raced to a 4-0 lead in the first period on goals by George Konik, Pierre Pilote, Mike McMahon and Gary Sabourin. Jim Johnson scored in the second period.

CP Score Title To Stratton

DETROIT (CP) — Art Stratton, 30-year-old centre with St. Louis Braves, won the 1965-66 scoring championship in the Central Professional Hockey League, statistics released today show.

Stratton scored 28 goals and had 66 assists for 94 points.

Last season, Stratton was the scoring title in the American Hockey League with 109 points in 71 games for Buffalo Bisons. He played 66 of the Braves' 70 games this season.

Stratton played briefly in the National Hockey League with New York Rangers, Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks.

Second in the Central League was Paul Andrea, 34-year-old right winger with Minnesota Rangers who had 80 points on 37 goals and 43 assists.

Andrea tied with Oscar Gaudet of St. Louis for goal scoring honors. Gaudet had 37 goals and 29 assists for 66 points and a tie for sixth place.

Tracy Pratt, son of former NHL star Babe Pratt, topped the league in penalties with 306 minutes in 70 games for St. Louis.

Wayne Rutledge of Minnesota led the goaltenders with a goals-against average of 2.81 in 70 games. His seven shutouts were also tops.

RAISE $1,500,000

TORONTO (CP)—More than $1,500,000 has already been received by the National Crusade for Canada's Mentally Retarded, Donald S. Anderson, national campaign chairman, said Friday. The campaign seeks $5,000,000.

The John Forsythe Show Did Not Appeal to Kids

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—John Forsythe, starring in a Palm Springs play, obviously is not grieving over the impending demise of his unfortunate television effort called—much to his regret—The John Forsythe Show.

The actor, in New York rehearsing his hour-long comedy next Sunday night's NBC Telephone Hour, sat drinking a glass of iced tea and watching the ice - skaters in Rockefeller Center as he discussed the program as if it were already interred instead of on the verge of summer replacement.

The series started out to be the comic adventures of an air force major and his devoted sergeant running a girls' school. It paid - season, suffering - rating blows, the girl's school was abandoned and the major and his sergeant got into the comedy-spy business.

"I just don't think we had a hard concept of what we were doing," he conceded. "I guess we were wrong in the thinking that the public would be amused by the goings-on in a girls' school.

"Kids in the audience were not very interested in seeing other kids. It seemed, and the parents apparently just wanted to forget about kids in school hours for their TV chills."

Anyway, Forsythe's mishap is just one of those things, and until his career has been a succession of solid successes — and the future looms bright and busy.

"I think I can say now that is over that I'm very glad to get away from the confinement of television," he said.

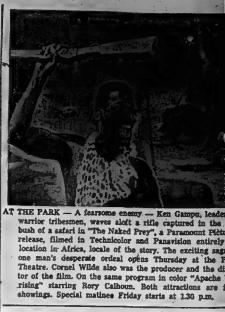
In the Nielsen report covering the two weeks ending March 20, ABC's Batman — the Thursday night episode — was first with a No. 3 position among the top 10 shows. The estimated audience was exceeded only by NBC's Bonanza and CBS' The Lucy Show. The Wednesday night episode was No. 22 on the list.

Other programs in the top 10 were NBC's Danny Thomas Special, CBS' Red Skelton Show, Beverly Hillbillies, Andy Griffith Show, ABC's Batman and CBS' Gomer Pyle and Green Acres.

Rutledge Stops Oilers 8-0

Minnesota Rangers blanked Tulsa Oilers 8-0 in the first game of their Central Hockey League semi-final playoff series.

It was the eighth shutout of the season for Rutledge, the Central League's leading goal tender. Fitzpatrick rang up his second three-goal performance of the year.



Minnesota raced to a 4-0 lead in the first period on goals by George Konik, Pierre Pilote, Mike McMahon and Gary Sabourin. Jim Johnson scored in the second period.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 6

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 20): Important to express feelings — but not in any halfway manner. Don't start anything you can't finish. Emotions start to take over. Be prepared for unusual reactions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your ability to handle extraordinary duties now under scrutiny. Check special papers, agreements. Draw fine line between wishful thinking, practical planning.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Perform basic services to best of ability. Means concentrate forces, fulfill obligations. Later you can relax — with clear conscience. Message clearer by evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Give attention to children — solve any emotional wounds. Day to live up to principles of golden rule. Applies particularly to relations with loved ones. Stand tall.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Make new contacts . . . expand your mind to adventure challenge. Means this is time to accept the new, to discard antiquated attitudes. Start building for future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 22): Key is being curious, investigative . . . ask questions, obtain answers. Active day. Relatives may be involved — also neighbors. Trust intuition. Follow through on hunch.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Practical matters demand attention. Includes ability to properly evaluate assets. Check with experts advisable. Be sure, get full value. Spotlight practical approach.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Cycle moves up. You can initiate action, programs, introductions. Put best foot forward. Build personal confidence . . . even if it means being a little selfish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Work in conjunction with charitable enterprises favored. Be considerate of those who are incapacitated. Create illusion of romance, beauty. Best not to reveal secrets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Stress hopes — bring wishes into line with reality. Gain shown through home, family. Highlight harmony. Make necessary adjustments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Push ahead — take advantage of professional opportunities. Avoid self-deception. Seeking perfection could lead to dead end. Appreciate what you possess!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Good hour expect pro motes long-range planning, projects. Individual responsibility important. Means don't delegate duties. Check travel opportunities, unusual offers.

The Great-Hearted Few

His Not to Question Sentence, Yet This Roman Centurion Did

From the time of the arrest of Jesus, and through the period of His condemnation and execution until after His resurrection, only a few unlikely individuals supported Him. His previous friends abandoned Him and fell silent. His Easter-even story deals with one man who felt for Him.

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Through the last watches of the night, he had paced the guard room floor, sleepless, disgusted, as the wheels of oppression turned. Bitterly, he had heard the shifty procurator pass sentence. And now, Pretonious marched the victims toward Golgotha, the hill of the skull.

Keep them moving. Don't think about the consequences. Follow orders and get it over with.

Up ahead, a trumpeter and herald moved at the front of the column, bearing the decree of execution. Behind them trudged the three prisoners, crossbeams on their shoulders, prodded along by soldiers.

It galled Pretonious fiercely, particularly in the case of that bloodily beaten but uncomplaining one called Jesus.

Yet, even as His flesh failed and His limbs faltered, there remained about Him a firmness, some commanding nobility, something in the calm set of jaw, the burning pathos in the eyes. Several times He fell under the heavy wooden patibulum.

Caesar had spoken, through his devious and ruthless provincial deputy, Pilate, playing up to an obviously staged claque. "Crucify him!" Thus the sovereign judgment. Thus the royal rot!

COMFORTS WOMEN

Pretonious muttered an oath, glancing about at the profusion of dark, gaping eyes, the sobbing native women pressing in close to them, gravely, sympathetically, concerned with them instead of Himself. "... Weep not for Me. . ."

So this was justice! Rome the astute mistress, guardian of the virtues, its will enforced by its legions.

Duty, discipline, allegiance to the emperor. For Pretonious, that was the code. All his adult days he had lived by it. He was a centurion, a career officer, dependable, regular, a commander of 100 men. Rome, not he, made his choices. He moved, not by his own standards, but by the sign of the eagle.

There was nothing that he could do. The powers and dominions of the world had fixed the course. He was a soldier, under orders.

Somewhere along the line, the authorities decided, and the momentum gathered, and you hurtled along with it. And even the authorities, confirming and echoing one another, were thereby caught in it.

Drowned in it was the conscience of the individual. But should a man let that happen? Could he do it and still be a man?

Pretonious stared at the dusty cobblestones underfoot, noting the red trail left there by the cartage of some newly slaughtered animal. Then, nausea filling his throat, he realized the blood came not from an animal, but from the lacerated Jewish rabbi being driven to execution.

A blatant sham, using this sensitive Jesus as a scapegoat, and Pretonious knew it. He was part of the detachment that arrested the man last night outside the walls, and which had hustled Him from place to place, trying to determine just what tribunal would handle the proceedings against Him.

The titled local sycophants, who co-operated with Rome, originally questioned Him, and their flunkies slapped Him around, seeking in vain to elicit some damning statement. "I have spoken openly to the world," He said, a rare policy, in those conniving times.

The man was locked in the fortress dungeon, before being examined and brought before Pilate this morning for the inevitable condemnation.

Even the man's trusted comrades deserted Him, spurned Him, repudiated Him. "I do not know the man," swore his chief apostle, Peter, cursing vehemently. "I do not know Him!" The whole, rickety, massmolded system had turned on its prey of the moment, and joined in crushing Him.

Pretonious was in it, too, hating it, condemning it, but going along with it.

Step by step, against the mounting sun, his grim parade passed through the gate, and climbed the rocky hill where the uprights stood. Revolted, angry, his eyes red with fatigue and anguish, he carried out the world's will. He hung Jesus until He was dead, and had Him speared in the side to make sure.

But even as he did so, his conscience rebelled and he flung its lonely protest into the darkened sky. "Certainly this man was innocent," he cried. "Truly, this man was the Son of God."

Pretonious sank to his knees, his face as ashen, corrugated mask, the dripping spear beside him. A dutiful Roman, a responsible man, properly serving a mighty civilization which dominated the earth.

He had done his duty. But he had violated his fundamental being. He had given up himself. At the world's bidding, he also was impaled on that far-spread cross. He, too, was its victim. He, too, was sacrificed.

Parade With Hearse

TORONTO (CP) — Complete with a horse-drawn hearse they said was symbolic of provincial policy, 75 members of Northern Ontario's Superior Auto Service Association paraded Monday outside the legislative buildings in an unsuccessful bid to meet with Premier Robarts to discuss An alleged monopoly of service centre owners on Highway 400, alleged unfair gasoline prices, and the gasoline tax. The group was led by Elwood Smith of Sudbury.

Conflicting Stories Told About Tanker

LONDON (AP)—An international war of words continued today over a Greek tanker which the British government fears may unload 140,000 tons of oil for Rhodesia in Portuguese Mozambique.

The tanker Joanna V anchored Tuesday off Beira, the Mozambique port which normally feeds oil to the vestigial British African colony by pipeline. Portugal's Lusitania news agency said the tanker was expected to dock today, but the South African Press Association reported Beira still anchored with no supplies from the tanker berth this morning.

The Joanna V is under charter to the South African firm of A. G. Morrison in Cape Town. Her skipper claims his cargo is destined for Djibouti, French Somaliland, and that he put in at Beira only for supplies.

The British consul at Beira, John Taylor, reported to London that the Beira port authority has stated categorically the Joanna V will stay anchored in the green until she sails."

Ronald Kawlinads, managing director of the British-Portuguese company that operates the pipeline to Rhodesia, said the company's board of directors would vote in Lisbon today whether to pump the Joanna V's cargo.

LINK WITH ROYALTY

Kawlinads said the four British directors are expected to vote against handling the oil but the five Portuguese on the board are expected to approve it. One of the British directors is Angus Ogilvy, husband of Queen Elizabeth's first cousin, Princess Alexandra.

After Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's white-minority government declared independence from Britain Nov. 11 to preserve white rule, the British government launched a campaign to force the rebellion to end or to bring it to heel. The United Nations Security Council Dec. 16 later called on all UN members to stop supplying oil to the colony.

Portugal and South Africa declined to co-operate, but so far there is no evidence of sanctions busting. The British government fears if the Joanna V's cargo gets to Rhodesia, the economic campaign against Smith's government will break down.

The British government feared it is trailing another Greek tanker, the Manuela, believed to be carrying oil for Rhodesia. A British frigate intercepted the Joanna V off Beira, but the Greek captain insisted he had to go into the port for provisions.

Broaden Canada's Interest

By DON LeBLANC

NICOSIA (CP)—The responsibilities of Canada's 963-man contingent on Cyprus are being broadened as a result of Ireland's decision to pull out its 518-man contribution to the United Nations peacekeeping force on the tense Mediterranean island.

Ireland, its six-month commitment ended, pulls out its infantry, ground it, four days after the latest rotation of Canadian troops on Cyprus is completed.

A total of 720 men of the 2nd Battalion, Black Watch, from Camp Gagetown, N.B., and 30 troops of B Squadron, 8th Canadian Hussars from Camp Petawawa, Ont., are being flown here in nine RCAF Yukon transports.

The Canadians will be responsible for a zone of 750 square miles in the Kyrenia Mountains in northwestern Cyprus.

The Kyrenia zone will combine the battalion's 48 350-square-mile Kyrenia district, which Canadian troops have been patrolling, and the 200-square-mile Lefka district, currently the responsibility of the Irish troops.

GIVE MORE WORK

The changes, which take effect April 12, also give additional duties to the British, Finnish, Swedish and Danish contingents.

The withdrawal of the Irish, reducing the UN force to about 4,300 men, the lowest strength ever, has been necessitated by financial reasons. Ireland six months ago had reversed an earlier decision to withdraw its forces, but the decision appears irrevocable this time.

Ireland is the first country to quit the force since it moved into Cyprus in March 26, 1964, to prevent fighting between Greek-Cypriots and the island's Turkish-Cypriot minority.

Announcement that Ireland would pull out came after UN Secretary-General U Thant said

Minister Booed by Farmers

TORONTO (CP)—About 1,200 members of the Ontario Farmers' Union marched on Queen's Park Tuesday and booed Agriculture Minister William Stewart when he said "we'll see what we can do" about their demands for higher prices for farm products.

Anger built up among the crowd late in the morning when no government officials turned up at a meeting in a downtown hall called to discuss the farmers' requests for more money. The marchers had come in buses from as far away as Renfrew, 50 miles northwest of Ottawa, and some individuals had travelled from as far as Timmins.

When they reached Queen's Park the marchers had a 15-minute wait before Mr. Stewart, who operates a farm near London, appeared.

During the interim, New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald and Farquhar Oliver (L—Grey South) spoke to the crowd.

Mr. MacDonald said the farmers' brief was "one of the finest" he'd ever seen.

BACKS PROTEST

"But it is an arrogant rebuff to you people that it will be presented to a blank wall. I hope you protest more and more. Farm products are too often government controlled and manipulated."

Mr. Oliver told the crowd the Liberal party "are willing and ready to listen to any cause at hand."

The crowd, which had been chanting "we want action, we want Robarts," booed when Mr. Stewart appeared.

"As a farmer, I would be inclined to get out and march too," Mr. Stewart said. "If we could do all the things you ask in this brief, farming would be a pretty good life."

Hoots of derision greeted the minister's promise that the brief would be studied. "We'll see what we can do," he said before he left.

CAN'T APPROVE ALL

"But I don't know if we can do anything. You don't expect me to say yes to all your demands. Premier Robarts has asked me to call you to a meeting.

"Come in and talk with us and we'll see what we can do."

Farmers' President John Bolsover said the union intends to force the government by various means "to improve the lot of a distressed agriculture."

He said Ontario farmers are ready to block roads with farm machines unless their demands are met. The farmers were not happy with the reception given them, and if nothing is done about increased farm product prices and their other demands, a general membership meeting will be held to determine future action.

Government Will Continue To Operate Under the Law Says P.M. After Vote Taken

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal cabinet was left to ponder the fate of 15 men facing execution when the Commons Tuesday night defeated the resolution to abolish capital punishment.

Prime Minister Pearson and Solicitor-General Pennell sidestepped reporters' questions on whether government will reverse its practice since taking office in 1963 and start sending cases to the gallows.

After the 143-to-112 vote was announced, the prime minister told reporters the government accepts the decision and will "continue to operate under the law."

Mr. Pennell, his hands covering his face to hold back tears as the result became apparent, said he would continue to make recommendations to the cabinet on commutations on the basis of the merits of each case.

He respected the Commons decision but said "I'm crushed" by the vote.

The Pearson government has commuted to life imprisonment all 20 sentences of death that have come before it.

Despite the government's argument that all commutations have been decided on the merits of the case, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said that by "blanket commutations" the cabinet has taken over the interpretation of the law.

Mr. Diefenbaker, an avowed abolitionist, said the decision placed the government in an impossible position.

He said the prime minister should bring forward amendments to the Criminal Code that would win majority approval from MPs and settle the problem.

He also said the vote should not be interpreted as a mandate to hang capital murderers.

Of the 265 cabinet members, 17 voted in favor of abolition and 248 against. Revenue Minister Sauve abstained.

Meanwhile, abolitionist MPs, Liberal backbenchers and what the government should do now.

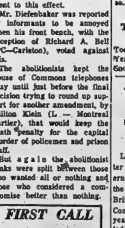
Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth), one of the sponsors of the abolition resolution, said despite the result the cabinet should commute every death sentence.

Pledging himself to "resume the fight immediately, he rapped the government for failing to answer questions raised in the debate about the country's parole system and methods of custody.

Life imprisonment was the proposed substitute for the death penalty in the resolution. Only a wavering resentiolism were concerned that a murderer would be returned to society too soon or might escape imprisonment.

"They wanted to know what was meant by life imprisonment," said Mr. Scott. "All their questions were left unanswered because of the silence of the minister of justice, the solicitor-general and the prime minister."

The abolitionists were sure several hours before the final vote that the battle was lost.



Several of their organizers urged their allies to accept a compromise by voting for amendments that would retain the death penalty for a few offences, such as persons under life sentence who commit capital murder.

Mr. Diefenbaker proposed a five-year trial period. And Donald S. Macdonald (L—Toronto Rosedale) moved an amendment to this effect.

Mr. Diefenbaker was reported by informants to be annoyed when his front bench, with the exception of Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton), voted against this.

The abolitionists kept the House of Commons telephones busy until just before the final decision trying to round up support for another amendment, by Milton Klein (L — Montreal Cartier), that would keep the death penalty for the capital murder of policemen and prison staff.

But again the abolitionist ranks were split. Others there who wanted all or nothing and those who considered a compromise better than nothing.

"Keep it short or we'll miss the Saigon demonstrations."

Hemline Up, Production Goes Down

CASTLEFORD, England (AP)—When Kathleen Yorke's hemline went up, production in a Castleford pants factory went down.

Kathleen, a 17-year-old who sews pockets on the pants, shortened her skirts four inches above her knees in line with current fashion. She also topped the shirt with a tight sweater.

Mrs. Claire Farrell, overseer at the factory, banned the outfit.

"The men kept staring at her," said Mrs. Farrell, "and they weren't getting on with their work."

Kathleen, a good - looking blonde, objected.

"The shirt was short but not indecent," she said. "And anyway, the men shouldn't look."

The company stood behind Mrs. Farrell.

Abolition Defeated By 31 Votes

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — In an atmosphere of tension generated by strong personal convictions, the Commons Tuesday rejected abolition of the death penalty for convicted murderers.

After a five-day debate featured by some of the finest Commons speeches in years, the resolution by four private MPs to substitute life imprisonment for the noose went down to defeat by a count of 143 to 112 in a free vote.

Four District MP's Vote With Majority

Four Bay of Quinte district members of parliament Tuesday night voted against the resolution in the House of Commons to abolish capital punishment for ordinary murder.

The motion was to abolish capital punishment and replace the death penalty with life imprisonment.

The vote 143 to 112 against the resolution saw Len Grills, Hastings South; Douglas Alkenbrack, Prince Edward - Lennox; Red Webb, Hastings Frontenac, and George Hees, Northumberland, all for retention of the death penalty.

sors, said those who advocate abolishing capital punishment wouldn't be downhearted by a loss now.

"This is only round 1, round 2 starts tomorrow," he said.

Solicitor-General Pennell, one of the 18 cabinet ministers who voted to do away with hanging, said afterward "I'm crushed." Tears ran down his cheeks as he left the Commons.

Mr. Pennell is the minister who recommends for or against commutation of death sentences when individual cases come before cabinet.

An immediate result of the vote was to leave a question mark on the 15 Canadians now occupying death cells across the country following conviction on capital murder charges.

New Riot Shakes Saigon

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON (AP)—New anti-government demonstrations rocked Saigon and Hue today.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky called the situation still serious but said he is confident the difficulties with dissident military men in Da Nang can be resolved peacefully.

A few hours after his optimistic statement, 1,000 student demonstrators surged through the centre of Saigon today, wrecking a newspaper office on the way. The youths took commands from a group of young Buddhist monks.

The mob attacked the ground floor office of the newspaper Song, smashing machinery and furniture. The demonstrations came on the heels of a report of a pact between Saigon authorities and militant student leaders to ease tensions in the capital.

Some 10,000 persons demonstrated peaceably earlier in Hue, 400 miles northeast of Saigon. Because of the continuing agitation in the northern Buddhist stronghold, some 70 foreign civilians—half of them Americans—were evacuated to nearby marine bases at Phu Bai and Da Nang.

Vietnamese authorities said they could not assure the safety of Americans in Buddhist areas.

CALL IN ADVISERS

Most U.S. advisers with the South Vietnamese army's 1st Division in the Hue area also were called into U.S. command headquarters in Hue and elsewhere, but some American advisers remained in the field with South Vietnamese troops.

In the war against the Viet Cong, the U.S. 1st Infantry and Australian Task Force launched a big ground operation 30 miles east of Saigon had driven the Viet Cong out of the base camps in the jungle and swamp. Supported by New Zealand artillery fire, the Allied push in the last week has accounted for 23 Viet Cong killed and the capture of 15.

2,800 Persons Evacuate Three Flood-threatened Man. Towns

WINNIPEG (CP)—About 2,800 persons left their homes in three southern Manitoba communities today, seeking safety from the increasing flood menace of the Red River.

Full-scale evacuation has been ordered for Morris, St. Jean Baptiste and Emerson, officials said "if they can clear these towns by today." Premier Duff Roblin said in a radio-television broadcast. "We must not take a chance with human life."

Emerson, a town of 820, is at the international border about 60 miles south of Winnipeg. Morris, with a population of 1,370, is 26 miles north of Emerson and six miles north of St. Jean Baptiste, a largely French-speaking village of 500.

The crumbler has ordered dikes in all towns and municipalities along the river raised to anticipation of higher-than-predicted flood crests.

They said unusually slow melting will result in a delayed crest, building up with runoff from Red River waters.

"It now appears the peak at Winnipeg may possibly go a little higher than predicted 29 feet—to something in the order of 29½ to 30 feet.

"Because of this, we consider it prudent to raise the level of Winnipeg's entire perimeter dike system of some 64 miles to 31½ feet. This applies to all towns and municipalities from the Minnesota border northward.

Mr. Roblin said municipalities will be provided with supplies and equipment to raise 50 miles of secondary dikes to the new level.

Flood control authorities decided on a mass clear-out of Emerson, Morris and St. Jean Baptiste rather than risk leaving populace behind in emergency dikes that may be holding back eight feet of water within a week.

The communities were flooded in 1950 when they lacked dike protection.

Only about 150 men—army reservists and civilians under army discipline—will be left behind at Morris and Emerson to patrol dikes.

Mr. Roblin said the RCMP will move in to ensure the security of buildings.

Evacuation started Tuesday and Mr. Roblin said it was proceeding quickly and smoothly. Evacuees sought shelter at Steinbach, Altona, Morden, St.

Wilson Shuffles His Cabinet To Seek Common Market Seat

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson reshuffled his government Tuesday night to lay the groundwork for possible British entry into the European Common Market in two or three years, political sources reported today.

Wilson retained most of his old cabinet but made a number of important changes on the eve-of-budget day in what the task of working toward a union with the Common Market to Economics Minister George Brown, who continues as deputy prime minister.

To assist Brown, Wilson appointed George Thomson to lead British delegations in meetings of the British-sponsored European Free Trade Association and other European economic discussions.

Thomson, minister of state in the foreign office, also will have responsibility for all political relations with West European countries, government aides said.

Wilson took away from Brown responsibility for wage and price restraints. He made Labor Minister Ray Gunter responsible for wages and Douglas Jay, of the board of trade responsible for prices.

Out of the government went Welsh Secretary James Griffiths, 73; Works Minister Charles Pannell, 64; and Sir Frank Soskice, 64, lord chancellor and former home secretary.

Fred Lee, 50, power minister, was shifted to the diminishing job of colonial secretary. He was replaced by Richard Marsh, 38, whose major job will be piloting the bill to nationalize Britain's steel industry through the House of Commons.

Wilson brought two more women into the sub-cabinet for a total of seven. Mrs. Eirene White became the first woman minister of state at the foreign office and Mrs. Shirley Williams was named a junior minister at the labor ministry.

Mrs. Williams' father, George Catlin, was professor of political science at McGill University in central Canada in 1935.

Mrs. Barbara Caste, the transport minister, continues as the only woman cabinet minister.

Wilson made clear last week he would shift his cabinet more often now that his Labor party has a 97-vote majority in the Commons, was in last week's general election.

Sources said a cabinet bopshuffle is expected in May, in the fall, for Patrick Gordon Walker, 59, former foreign secretary who made a political comeback by winning a parliamentary seat last week.

Quinte District Will Benefit From More Cheese Exports

The Quinte area could benefit from the recent increase of allowable cheese exports to the United States.

Lee Grills, Hastings South M.P., can be credited with some of the spade work involved in the upping of the cheese quota.

Mr. Grills made several representations to Howard Williams, Minister of Trade and Commerce, on the matter of cheese quotas. He first asked the Minister about it in the House March 2.

Mr. Grills said, "We hear a great deal about free trade with our good southern friends to the south. I happen to come from the belt of the cheese industry of Ontario the home of Black Diamond and other famous brands of cheese. Would the Minister tell us whether there is any quota on United States imports of cheese into Canada comparable to our exports to the United States?"

He then went on to point out to the Minister that the Canadian population is 10 times the Canadian population, yet our quota of cheese to the U.S. is only 600,000 pounds.

The Hastings South member also held meetings with with the House with Mr. Winters, and when the increase was announced, Mr. Winters looked directly at Mr. Grills in saying, "I am pleased to inform the honourable member that the United States has today announced an increase of over 600,000 pounds in the U.S. global import quota on cheddar cheese for the balance of the current quota year, which ends June 30."

EXPRESSES DELIGHT

Donald Jess, chairman of the Board of Black Diamond Cheese, expressed delight with the new quotas.

He said the increase of 200,000 pounds of allowable exports to the U.S. of Canadian cheese until June 30, and a further increase of 2,000,000 pounds for the 1966-67 season, could give a great deal of benefit to the Quinte area.

"The present restrictions went into effect in 1951. Ever since, Black Diamond Cheese has been attempting to have them removed," said Mr. Jess, local M.P., Robert Temple, and our present M.P., Lee Grills, have both given headed successive political drives in Ottawa to get the Canadian government to increase the quotas on Washington to have these quotas eliminated. Last week's announcement was a partial culmination of these concentrated efforts.

"Three million pounds of allowable exports to the U.S. might not seem too great an amount when compared to the 20 to 30 million pounds exported annually to the United Kingdom.

"However, when one considers the U.K. market, all cheese exported overseas is subsidized by the milk producers to the amount of approximately seven cents a pound. Exports to the U.S. will not be subsidized, and if the full allocation of 3,000,000 pounds is taken up, it will mean an increase return to cheese milk producers of $210,000.

WILL PROVIDE JOBS

"Furthermore," Mr. Jess continued, "since the United States is an advanced self-service market, similar to the Canadian one, a great portion of the cheese exported to them will be in packaged form, which will provide employment for Canadian labor and the purchasing of additional packaging supplied by Canadian manufacturers."

Mr. Jess said it is too early yet to ascertain the final net results of this change in policy, but nevertheless, it is the first time since 1951 that there has been any trend to relaxation of restriction on Canadian cheeses entering that country.

"An opportunity exists to greatly improve our exports south of the borders, and, in doing, improve the Quinte area economy tremendously."

$4,000 Damage Caused to Two Trucks

An early morning accident on Highway 401 just west of Cobourg way 14 resulted in nearly $4,000 damage to two trucks today at 8:30 a.m.

Sherwood Nathan Vader, 36 McFarlane Dr., suffered shock injuries and was taken to the Belleville General Hospital. He was driver of a dump truck owned by Leon Collins, R.R. 4, Belleville. Damage to the Collins' truck was $2,000.

Roy Frank Peacock, Scarborough, was driver of the other truck. The driver escaped without injuries and was taken by Hora Elevator Limited, engaged up on its side in the ditch on the eastbound lane of the highway. There was more than $3,000 damage to the van.

Time of the accident was 8.30 a.m.

Police say charges are pending.

death penalty without the sanction of Parliament.

The present Liberal cabinet has committed 90 death sentences since taking office in 1963. The Conservative government of John Diefenbaker committed 33 such sentences during the six years it held office.

Prime Minister Pearson and the rest of the cabinet big guns led the 73 Liberals voting against the death penalty. A notable exception was Justice Minister Cardin, one of seven cabinet ministers for retention. Revenue Minister Benson was absent.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker was among the 17 Conservatives voting for the motion and New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas led all 21 MPs of his party in calling for abolition.

BALANCE TIPS

Speakers for and against abolition were evenly divided in the early days of the debate. But the balance swung towards the abolitionists as MPs came onto the home stretch. The final count for speakers: 31 for retention, 41 for abolition, two undecided.

Three amendments to water down the resolution, other than gain support for the main resolution, were defeated.

A Creditiste motion to keep the death penalty for murders committed by those serving life sentences was defeated Monday 199 to 22.

Two motions were voted down Tuesday. The first would have abolished the death sentence for a five-year period only. It was defeated 148 to 113.

The third amendment to retain the noose for killers of prison guards and police officers went down 179 to 74.

Mr. Scott lamented the failure of Canada's top law judicial officers to speak in the debate.

"It will always be a source of personal regret we did not have the benefit of their views and experience of the prime minister, the minister of justice or the solicitor - general," he said.

Only two cabinet ministers spoke during the debate. They were Secretary Jody LaMarsh for rehabilitation and Immigration Minister Marchand for bilingualism.

DIEF WANTS ACTION

After Tuesday's final vote, Mr. Diefenbaker said the government now is in a position to table position. He said it should introduce amendments to the Criminal Code indicating public support from a majority of MPs.

Conservative MP Marcel Lambert, veterans affairs minister in the Diefenbaker administration, said during the years the cabinets over a period of years have "improperly usurped" the law by setting themselves up as super grand juries to examine every death sentence.

Thus strong-minded individuals who could dominate cabinets became indirectly the law of the land.

The Conservative government in 1961 had divided murders into capital and non-capital cases, Mr. Lambert said. This should be given a fair trial before any other changes were made.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre), former Conservative defence minister, said those who favor abolition can't complain of the law as it now stands. The death penalty was used sparingly.

The same held true for the retentionists. Hanging was still on the law books as the ultimate weapon against crime.

SEEN AS BARBARISM

Mr. Douglas said Canada should join other progressive countries in dropping "this relic of barbarism."

To those who quoted Scripture to back up their stand on hanging, he said the Bible has been used to support slavery, child labor, polygamy and the burning of witches.

Life imprisonment was as much a deterrent to murder as hanging.

"To me, I can conceive of nothing more immoral than to break a man's neck as a deterrent to others."

Mrs. Jean Wadds (PC—Grenville-Dundas) received frequent applause as she argued for retention. She said she wanted to express the common feelings of all mothers—the overpowering concern felt by mothers during pregnancy that "this child live."

The other women MPs, Miss LaMarsh voted for retention and Mrs. Grace McInnis (NDP — Vancouver - Kingsway) and Mrs. Margaret Rideout (L—Westmorland) for abolition.

New Apartment House Complex Boosts Total

Application for a building permit for the proposed new apartment house complex on the site of the old Lazier residence, bounded the Marsh hollow valley, according to city building inspector Gerald Riddle.

The permit for the multi-storey 67-foot high apartment structure will call for an expenditure of $341,000.

In all 19 permits were issued in city hall during March for a total value of $394,200. Permits for alterations make up $11,800 of the total while one new commercial structure, a Wayne Dundas street fruit market to be built by Scinlets Fruit Co. of Trenton, will cost $22,000.

Despite the new demonstration in the north of the country, Ky said his emergency talks in Da Nang Tuesday convinced him the problem could be resolved without force. He said in a statement:

CHURCH EXTREMISTS

"Consequently, on the one hand I have given instructions that everything possible be done to restrict extremist activities of both sides so that nothing regrettable happens while a political solution is being sought.

"On the other hand, I have called a meeting of the (ruling) military directory and the cabinet and I am positive we will find a solution very soon."

Ky promised to offer terms to the Buddhist government leaders in Da Nang after the junta met.

In Da Nang, the commander of the army's I Corps, Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, announced that 4,000 South Vietnamese marines flown there by Ky Monday to take control of the city after rebel troops would be sent back to Saigon today or Thursday.

It is the government authority was part of an agreement worked out by Ky and Chuan at an emergency meeting at the Da Nang air base Tuesday. The marines had faced mutinous local troops behind barricades only several hundred yards apart.

POLAND OPPOSED?

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Poland was understood Tuesday to be against any move by the United Nations Committee on Vietnam on Viet Nam under present circumstances to get a Geneva conference for settlement of the Vietnamese crisis. External Affairs Minister Martin has said that Canada is trying to get Poland and India, the other two members of the commission, to promote such a conference.

Kiwanis Hears RCAF Chaplain

Presenting a brief sketch of Christ's days on earth, Flight Lieutenant R. A. Golebieski, Roman Catholic Chaplain at RCAF Station Trenton, brought home the meaning of Easter to members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club of Belleville yesterday.

"Throughout Christendom, there is one major spirit building up to Easter," he said "and it is good for us to recall the true meaning of the season as opposed to materialistic things."

Wing Commander Stu Olsen introduced Squadron Leader Omar of the Malaysian Air Force, Flight Lt. Lee of 21 Malaysians now training on four Caribou aircraft at RCAF Station Trenton. On April 25, the trainees will begin the flight home in the four Caribou planes.

"In Malaysia, we have steamy summer and we're dying to get home," said S/L Omar.

Malaysia has been a member of the Commonwealth since 1963.

tary action against the Rhodesian government.

"The Portuguese government will not accept the blame in a situation in which it has formally and categorically rejected all responsibility," said a note published in Lisbon by the Portuguese today.

It added that the Portuguese government cannot be expected to interfere in the affairs of private companies.

The Greek government, which adheres to the UN sanctions, said it could do nothing about ships which had contracted before March 14 to deliver oil to Rhodesia. That was the effective date of an order to Greek ships to observe the ban.

The chairman of the UN special committee on colonialism, Gershon B. O. Collier of Sierra Leone, said in New York the committee's African and Asian members were "very upset" over the Joanna V case. He said it could bring about a move in the Security Council to force against Rhodesia.

Lord Caradon, Britain's chief representative at the United Nations, was summoned to London for talks with the government.

NEW LOW TRAFFIC LIGHTS FOR COMPACT CARS? — Not really. The traffic light fixture beneath the signpost is about to be installed as part of a city plan to provide the Pinnacle-East Bridge Street intersection with a more adequate traffic lighting system. Overhanging traffic lights, standards and a new lighted sign directing motorists to Highways 2 and 14 will be other features of the intersection, along with newly installed "walk" lights.

Bridge Season At St. Michael's Is Concluded

A very successful season of marathon bridge, which began last September, finished on Monday night with a party at St. Michael's Junior School.

Twelve tables of "mixed" bridge were played in Room 1. These tables played twice "around" for high score for the season.

Thirteen tables were in Room 2 where some women begin their knowledge of bridge under the capable instructions of Mrs. Genevieve Gallagher, convener, assisted by Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon and Mrs. Ella Trepanier. Beautiful corsages were presented to the conveners at the beginning of evening play by the ladies of this room.

Following the delicious lunch by the tea hostesses, Mrs. Ben. by O'Brien presidented the C.W.L. addressed the players expressing her sincere thanks to the conveners and all who participated in making the marathon such a success.

Mrs. O'Brien then presented the prizes to the winners in Room 2: First: Mrs. Norman Lyons and Mrs. Theresa Hogan. Second: Mrs. Florence Brobeck. Mrs. Irene Smith. Consolation: Mrs. Kay Young, Mrs. Hazel Booth. A special prize for perfect attendance was won by Mrs. Blanche Sullivan. High score for the evening went to Mrs. Rita Parfitt, second high to Mrs. Dorothy White. Consolation: Mrs. Hilary Frid.

In Room 1 the high score prize was won by Mrs. Serenie Bowler and Mrs. Fran Hotchkiss, second high Mrs. Grace Clapp, Miss M. Hall. Third high Mrs. Kate Cook, Mrs. Kay Varley. Consolation prize: Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy. A special high single score was also won by Mrs. Bowler and Mrs. Hotchkiss. Door prize won by Mrs. Nita Cowan.

Each of the conveners was presented with a beautiful hammed glass vase by the ladies in Room II. In presenting these Mrs. Tobin expressed their sincere appreciation for the time and guidance given them during the marathon. The conveners are truly thankful for the kindness shown to them and hope to see them all again in the fall.

High School Board Asked To Pare Year's Estimates

PICTON (Staff) — The rising cost of secondary education, without a corresponding increase in government aid, was deplored by Mayor H. J. McFarland in council this week.

As ratepayers received notice that taxes are virtually certain to be higher this year.

Councillor Andrew Jarvis added that if council gives into the trend, it will in effect be endorsing a policy which inevitably will mean another five mill increase in the high school requisition next year.

Council is hoping that the high school board will be able to pare it's requisition for $301,700 before the final budget estimates are approved. This amount is $39,200 more than last year — an increase of 4.7 mills. Council agreed to adjourn the regular meeting Monday night pending word from the board and revisions where necessary to other estimates. Tentative estimates show that council expects to have to raise approximately $200,000 this year, about $50,000 more than 1965.

Deputy Reeve Don Thompson reminded council that some changes such as the town's share of the new library extension, the final debenture payment on the old sewage plant, consolidated fee, will not occur next year. This should enable the tax rate to go down again, he indicated. "We have a problem this year, next year it may be better", he said.

CONGRATULATED

The mayor congratulated council members for keeping estimates down as much as they had in view of the rising costs.

He added that the time has come for the department of education to take over education, or maybe consulting also, because municipalities like Picton cannot withstand the burden.

The mayor complained that the senior government seemingly can find millions for horse racing, a new art centre in Montreal and other entertainment while little communities like Picton are hard pressed for additional funds for education.

Councillor Andrew Jarvis ceriticized the estimates being presented to council a week ago, for telling council "nothing." Behind this budget is a policy; if we give our approval, we are guaranteeing there will be another five mill increase next year, he claimed. The conclusion to all this would be that education is a thing, said Mr. Jarvis. He said he believes $100,000 could be taken off the gross requisition, which is divided between the nine contributing municipalities on the basis of equalized assessment without impairing the quality of education. "If you put all the emphasis on cold brick and mortar and fail to breathe in the spirit of education, the institution suffers," concluded Mr. Jarvis, although he conceded some new facilities are necessary.

The Rural Scene

The first meeting for Field Crop Clubs was held in Baxter's Hall on March 30th. However, further applications will be accepted in the barley, corn potato, tomato clubs as well. Membership in 4-H clubs is open to all young people who were 12 years of age by January 1, 1966, and who will not reach their 21st birthday by December 31st, 1966, with the exception of the Tractor Club members who must have been 14 years of age by January 1st, 1966 and the Engineering Club members who must have been 15 years of age by January 1st. Ten applications are required before a club will be organized in any project.

Col. Mulherin Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

RC TERDAM (AP) — Lt.-Col. Herbert William Mulherin of the Canadian Infantry Brigade at Soest, West Germany, died of a heart attack Tuesday while crossing from Britain to The Netherlands, Rotterdam police reported.

The body of the 43-year-old army officer was taken ashore upon arrival of the British night ferry boat Avalon from Harwich at Hook of Holland, police said.

Born and educated at Grand Falls, N.B., he attended Royal Military College at Kingston in 1939-41 and was commissioned with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and served with them in the United Kingdom, Sicily, Italy, North-west Europe and with the Canadian occupation forces in Germany.

He won the George Medal in Italy for rescuing the pilot of a crashed Spitfire that carried a live bomb.

Editor's Note: Lt.-Col. Mulherin was C.O. at Camp Picton for some time.

Resolution By C of C Is Tabled

PICTON (STAFF) — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce may ask that the county be designated as depressed in order to be able to offer industry more incentives for locating here. A resolution that such a request be made was introduced by Jack Evans, Secretary - treasurer, for discussion purposes at the regular meeting Monday. The resolution was tabled while the industrial and development committee studied the possible advantages of such a move and makes a recommendation to the chamber.

Mr. Evans stated that other areas have benefitted from being designated depressed by having new industry in to bolster the economy.

The resolution states that Picton has already lost one industry which was interested in locating here, because the town was unable to compete with the depressed area of Perth.

If an area is thus designated by the federal government, it qualifies for special tax relief and subsidies to help it get established.

"Mental Pollution"

The greatest gift of all is life itself. And the greatest sin is to waste or misuse that gift. It has been said that it is better to be alive and miserable, making the best of the situation, than to wish say that one were dead.

Easier said than done perhaps. And yet, to give up on life, to go further and attempt to take one's own life, is to deny oneself that one vital possession — the life force itself. Without it, and respect for it, nothing else is possible

No one knows this better than the person who has been brought back from the brink of suicide — and with psychiatric counselling and treatment has learned to look on his problems differently.

Death is so final — as the heading of a recent article in The Peterborough Examiner infers. "Attempted Suicides — on the brink of eternity," it says and the article points out that in Peterborough five people have been charged with attempted suicide so far this year.

People's troubles can be very real if they take them too seriously or have no one — friend or medical man — with whom they can discuss them.

The pace and impersonality of modern life are contributory factors in this rising incidence of personality breakdown. So much so that the World Health Organization says that even "mental pollution" should be added to air and water pollution as a major hazard of the urban way of life.

Dr. Marcelini Candau, WHO's director-general, attributes many of the disorders of the mind to the swift growth of cities.

"Psychosomatic and neurotic disorders are undoubtedly largely associated with the congestion and noise, the hectic rhythm of city life, its vast anonymity and its many strident appeals to the individual to do this or that."

He was speaking in Geneva in connection with World Health Day which falls on Thursday of this week.

Noise, as we noted in a recent editorial, is one of the scourges of the modern age. And WHO, significantly, lists it as one source of what it calls urban pollution.

"The main cause is motor traffic which so substantially contributes to nervous disease, insomnia, nervous tension, ill temper and accidents . . . not to mention "noisy neighbors shouting, listening to the radio or TV, or busy with a do-it-yourself job."

In Canada alone, nearly 2,000,000 suffer from mental illness in one form or another. This is one-tenth of the population and the figure (1,800,000 to be exact) was mentioned by Ron Henderson of a Montreal drug firm in an address to Belleville YMCA's men's club at the weekend.

On the bright side, Mr. Henderson noted that treatment facilities, including the use of drugs, are improving all the time. People who are mentally ill should realize that they are not alone and that there is help at hand if they will but take advantage of it.

Soviet Moon Orbit

The circling of the globe by Soviet nuclear submarines capable of striking targets thousands of miles away with rockets is of little account in the context of any conflict involving the ultimate weapons.

The United States has long since had nuclear submarines in operation and demonstrated their long-range capability with round-the-world voyages under water.

One interesting feature of the Soviet vessels, according to the sketchy information released on their performance, is that they also have torpedoes apparently capable of hitting targets "thousands of miles away."

One would have to doubt the accuracy of such a missile, however, in view of the great distances they would have to travel against ocean currents.

Rather it is in space that the Soviets have once again scored a notable achievement — the placing of Luna X-in orbit around the moon. Coming on top of the successful soft landing on the surface of the moon by Luna IX in February, this new feat gives the Soviet Union important advantages over the United States.

A few years ago, Premier Khrushchev suggested that his country was no longer in the space race, that it did not matter who reached the moon first. Under its present leadership, however, the Soviets seem to be pressing ahead.

What use the moon may be to the advancement of mankind is another matter. It is disturbing to think that the real reason why the Soviet Union and United States want to be first on the lunar planet is to gain some military advantage. Who knows how vulnerable this earth of ours may be if at some future date it is to be menaced from outer space.

The Mormon Church, otherwise known as the Latter-Day Saints, was founded 136 years ago today—in 1830 at Fayette, N.Y., by Joseph Smith. Unpopularity with local citizens caused a number of moves to new communities over the years, reaching Nauvoo, Ill., in 1839. The sect left there seven years later, after Smith had been shot in a jail, and moved across the Great Plains to Utah. Mormon beliefs are founded on the Book of Mormon, a document Smith claimed to have received orders on plates of gold, after a series of visions in the 1820s.

To Your Good Health

Praises New York Law Covering Mentally Ill

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

The new mental health law in New York State which I discussed yesterday is simple enough in concept. If a mental patient is ill enough to need hospitalization, he should be hospitalized on that basis — a medical determination of his condition.

The law, except for remote or unusual circumstances, does away with the necessity of having the courts rule that hospitalization is needed.

Therefore it is no longer necessary for the courts to "restore" a patient at a further hearing once he recovers. It should be kept in mind that an increasing number of mental patients, given early and intensive treatment, are capable of leaving a hospital in a short time, quite often in a matter of a few weeks.

While the New York Law is simple in its aims, it took nearly four years of work by health, legal and other authorities to plan a way to put into words that would accomplish what needed to be done and yet protect the civil rights of everyone.

Briefly, patients are divided into those who don't object to going in the hospital, and those who do. There is "informal" admission, when the patient (referred by a physician, if a state hospital) and even goes to the hospital voluntarily. He is free to leave at any time.

"Voluntary" admission is somewhat different in that the patient must sign a formal request, and staff physicians must concur that hospitalization is needed.

For the unwilling patient, a "two-physician certificate" is required. This in addition is hedged with safeguards which I will outline in the final article tomorrow. A "one-physician" certificate" also may be used when necessary but a staff physician of the hospital must also examine the patient and endorse the certification.

Finally, for emergency cases, or when a patient appears to be dangerous, he can be hospitalized unwillingly if he is found in certificated by a health official's health commissioner, or some designated physician. This ad-mission is good for only 15 days, and by that time if the patient is to be kept in the hospital, the case must be converted to one of the other categories.

A peace officer can take a person into custody if he appears to be mentally ill or irrational; any magistrate can order the same thing. Again, this can be done a limited time only, and the judgment of need always reverts to doctors.

The essential question is whether the person is ill enough to need hospitalization.

Tomorrow: Safeguards of the patient's rights.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have become allergic to metals, can't wear jewelry even long to set wooden chairs instead of metal ones. Why would this start late in life? I am 57. Is it a danger signal that something is wrong with my system? — Mrs. J. U.

Such sensitivities break out if you happen to be subject to them and if you become sensitized by more contact than you can tolerate. It does not mean that anything else is wrong with your system.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you think a bath every night is necessary? Does it cause dryness? — E. M.

No, I don't think it is necessary every night (depends on how active a person is, where he works, and so on, of course). In older people such frequent baths do dry the skin needlessly and thereby cause itching. Bath oils or lotions help.

Rituals Long Since Lost

Letherridge Herald

Recently a man and his wife visited a home which had four children ranging from 10 to 18 years in age.

They came to the living room before dinner, shook hands with the guests, joined in polite, intelligent, and animated conversation, then sat at the dinner table, bowing their heads while the blessing was said, then remained until the father and mother rose after the meal was finished.

There was no sign of conspicuous affluence, though the children were energetic and intelligent, much above average. In how many homes would one find such courtesy and these exquisite rituals?

Few have a dinner table. Few say a blessing at meal. Few children practise politeness to visitors or their elders.

In most homes children snatch food from a refrigerator, eat while watching television, and the idea of cleaning their hands and faces for a meal rarely occurs to them.

The gracious rituals which dignify family life are slipping away.

President Johnson probably won a hundred thousand or so extra votes for himself when the news got out that he simply cannot tolerate sloppy smokers. When there's a smoking slob around, there's a fiery President.

The non-smoking President finally got so fed up with the sight of a reporter's dirty pipe that he made a red-faced and spluttering example of a reporter by personally carrying over a beautiful ashtray and placing it in front of him.

Scores of books and hostesses will see Mr. Johnson in a rosier light as a result of his testy scuffle. The fact is that all people who have ever felt like swinging the necks of persons who sprinkle ashes on rugs, who drop butts anywhere, and who place burning cigarettes on table edges and on dinner plates, will sing the President's praises.

U.S. View of Seaway Tolls

Waterloo Times

Of all people, the Canadians are talking about increasing the seaway tolls on manufactured products as much as 12½ per cent. This is the country that argued the longest and loudest against imposing any tolls whatsoever in the years when the seaway was debated and before it became a reality. The date of imposition would be 1967, but before that there must be public hearings. The United States is not enthusiastic about a high-er schedule, hoping that the increase in volume will offset deficits.

Originally the Canadians opposed the tolls on the ground that its national policy for waterways was toll-free. It remactually went along with tolls in order that the United States would commit itself to seaway construction and thereby save years of procrastination. The toll-level in the United States was opposed by making charges, but an American compromise was necessary in order to please the owners of the seaway, the railroads, the Port of New York authority, and others who having invested through the years over their special forms of subsidy, were unwilling to face competition which would be subsidized if there were no tolls charged. With the talk of additional tolls, some of the loudest champions of the Canadian position are the Canadian American port authorities, the Atlantic seaboard railroad associations, and other transportation agencies that compete.

According to the figures, the seaway-sized ship will carry a load of manufactured goods would carry a load in 1967 of $19,000. A similar sized vessel carrying a bulk cargo would pay $13,800. These prices are anything but token amounts.

Will the day ever come when it is better to dawn on the economic policy makers that the biggest victims of high tolls are Canadians? The seaway was designed to benefit low-cost transportation through the Great Lakes. The arguments were valid and successful to the effect that this would save sizeable sums in transportation. In the sophisticated transportation of the day, however, there are those who advance the theory that the transportation charges would be based on the highest possible competition charges, forgetting the economies and forgetting also the purpose of the seaway transportation system.

As one newspaper points out, the Canadian waterway or harbor development in the United States or Canada is expected to pay its own way. Billions of dollars have been spent to develop the eastern and gulf ports and waterways without the collection of a dime in tolls."

Yet the very agencies that are not charging tolls are the ones that went the seaway tolls increased.

The Canadian argument to increase the tolls may be motivated by a desire of cashing in on the large grain shipments that are moving out of the mid-West of the continent, shipments that are going to hungry people and hungry nations. There will be more of these shipments before there are fewer because the food demand of the world are so great. Another $1,600 or $2,000 in fees for the big ships will be a nice piece of change.

Spuds a Hit In Albania

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Are potatoes playing a part in the Sinification of Albania? Do potatoes — usually considered a poor man's vegetable, at least by Western tastes — have some concealed yet highly significant role as weapons or agents of cultural influence?

Few people are bigger potato eaters than the British and the Irish. Yet even this national habit of potatoes as an obligatory vegetable on the dinner plate owed something to the American in the first place. Potatoes were, in fact, never indigenous to Europe. They first came from South America. But when they crossed the Atlantic for the first time four centuries ago, the sauceputh seems quickly to have boiled down to whatever nourishment they brought with them.

But now America is quietly having its revenge — in Britain, potato chips are potato chips. And the British calls chips — as in "fish and chips" — in America are French fries.

Albania's early rivalries (at least in their origins) are homeforgers and hot dogs. Now the potato has entered the Sino-Soviet-year delay, is boring at British England from inside in apparent retaliation for having been initially so ruthlessly Anglicized. Believe it or not, at Stresnaham in Worcestershire, just outside the lovely old abbey town of Tewkesbury, the new restaurant of the M-5 highway serves what the printed menu calls "French fried potatoes".

But what has that to do with the Sinification of Albania? Well, at the beginning of this year, a Chinese delegation to the most circumnavigated Asia to bring a cargo to the Albanian port of Durazzo. Thousand working people of all circles turned out to join in the ceremonies. The cheers of the crowd thundered "along the Adriatic seashore" — so Peking radio reported.

What did the ship carry? Mao's Tse's talks? Ivory carvings? Figs brimful Ginseng? Or other spices? No — simply seed potatoes.

Strictly Personal

Doubts About Viet Nam

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In Florida recently, a pair of unsavory characters were acquitted after a three-week murder trial, because the jury found a "reasonable doubt" of their guilt. This was quite just and proper.

At the same time, however, thousands of American boys are being drafted and shipped overseas to their possible death while their fellows are told that "reasonable doubt" that the war we are waging in Viet Nam is either valid or necessary.

This doubt has been expressed by responsible members of the U.S. Congress, by a Supreme Court Justice, by an esteemed military leader, and by scores of professional and academic scientific figures who have seriously addressed themselves to the problem.

Putting aside for the moment all the pro and con arguments about our commitment to South Nam, what strikes me as grotesque is our insistence that no one should be sent to death on a "reasonable doubt" remains — yet our willingness to send thousands of our sons to the bloodiest of battlefields in a land where many good men think is unreasonable.

Nations, apparently, consider themselves above the rules and laws which they invoke for their citizens. The United States has broken three treaties and is in violation of the U.S. Constitution in its undeclared "war" in Viet-nam — and how can we ask citizens to observe laws when nations feel free to break them at will?

We may be right or wrong in doing what we are doing there, but that is not the point of my objection. Even if we are right, we do not convict an individual as long as a reasonable doubt remains; yet the doubt many of us have about Viet Nam are reasonable, and still we do not impede the flow of human sacrifice to the battle front.

A nation, of course, cannot always wait until every one of its citizens is under attack; indeed, many of the neutral nations, and some of our so-called allies, privately regard us as the interferers and attackers in South-east Asia.

There is much conflicting evidence in this matter, much still to be debated and weighed and analyzed. While we do "die" in a trial, we do not at the same time allow the defendant marching along to the execution block. But nations are like the Queen in "Alice in Wonderland," with her shrill, hysterical cry of "Sentence first — verdict after-wards." And if the conflict turns out to be "not guilty," how repay the lives of these young men?

Literbugs

Windsor Star

With the summer tourist season just approaching, Ontario Provincial Police should be instructed to conduct an all out crackdown on motorists who litter highways.

Perhaps if a few heavy fines were handed out and the proper publicity given to the crime, litter bugs would be eliminated.

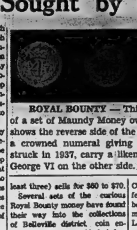
Maundy Pence Given by Queen Eagerly Sought by Coin Dealers



Tomorrow Queen Elizabeth will distribute 28 pounds each to 39 men and 39 women pensioners selected to take part in the annual Maundy Thursday ceremony at Westminster Abbey. Some recipients will keep their Maundy Pence as cherished souvenirs; others, will dispose of them immediately to dealers and coin collectors.

For many of the specially selected elderly people who receive Maundy Money from the Queen's hand, their first stop after they leave the Abbey is at the nearest coin shop. And no wonder, for as soon as it leaves the Abbey, the money increases from its face value of 29 pence to the English equivalent of $200 or more.

Last year, the "deserving paupers" clutching their little bag of Royal Pence didn't even have to seek out the nearest coin shop. Dealers were waiting outside the Abbey to buy the coins from them as they left. A set of Maundy Money (and each recipient is given at least three) sells for $60 to $70.

Several sets of the curious Royal Bounty money have found their way into the collections of Belleville district coin enthusiasts, who provided information about Maundy Money and its current market value. Maundy Money is far from rare; Toronto dealers carry it as part of their regular stock.

Collectors explain that the Maundy Thursday rite began in the middle ages, when all Catholic sovereigns washed the feet of 12 beggars on the day before Good Friday to commemorate Christ's action at the Last Supper. Now the ceremony consists of the presentation by the sovereign of Maundy Pence to as many men as the monarch has years and to an equal number of women. The number of pence in each bounty bag is the same as the monarch's age.

ROYAL BOUNTY — This actual-size photograph of a set of Maundy Money owned by a Belleville man shows the reverse side of the coins, each marked with a crowned numeral giving the value. These coins, struck in 1937, carry a likeness of the head of King George VI on the other side.

STRUCK BY MINT

Each Maundy set consists of a series of four silver coins of denominations of one penny, twopence, threepence, and fourpence. Each set is especially struck by the Royal Mint for distribution by the sovereign. Coins of the coins, the fourpence and the twopence, are no longer in general circulation in England. The threepence and the penny coins are still used, but are struck in copper for general circulation, instead of in silver. Because they are made of a costlier metal, the Maundy pence are smaller than regular coinage of the same denominations.

To meet the great demand from collectors, the Royal Mint struck further Maundy coins for sale. More Elizabeth II Maundy Pence are on the coin market than the number known to have been distributed by the Queen since her reign began. This spells things for purists among the coin collecting fraternity.

"I wouldn't buy Maundy Money," one Belleville collector says, "for there is no guarantee that the coins the dealer sells you are actually those handed out by the Queen".

Appeal of Maundy Money to collectors lies in its association with an ancient tradition and in its inclusion of two now-obsolete coins and two coins specially struck in silver for the occasion.

About 1,000 to 1,500 sets of Elizabeth II Maundy coins are known to have been struck. Because Queen Victoria reigned for so long, more sets from her era are in existence and some sell for as low as $30.

Prices quoted are for mint sets. When Maundy money goes into circulation — and some does annually on the death of a recipient who has kept it for a lifetime as a souvenir — the value is somewhat diminished. Circulated Maundy Pence are worth no more than their face value.

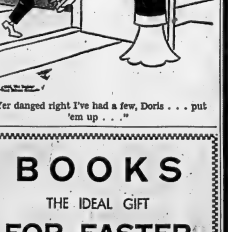
Cancer Fund Drive Started In District

TRENTON — Canvassers for the April drive for cancer research funds are already in the field, according to Mrs. George Greer, campaign chairman, although the "drive," as such isn't scheduled to start until next week.

Mrs. Greer said that many of the 35 captains and 450 to 475 canvassers were using their own judgment about canvassing times. The Trenton and district unit of the cancer society hopes to raise $6,500 this year.



In Trenton, Paul Bailey and O. M. Newton will canvass industry; Douglas Tufford will head up the commercial canvass; Brigdon chairman is Keith Taylor; Batawa, Mrs. Alex Muskinker, Wooler, Mrs. A. Dorland; Middleton Park, F/L Clifford Christian; Cherry Ing Place Mrs. R. T. Gilchrist; Frankford, Mrs. G. McLay and ladies from the Pull Gospel Tabernacle Church.

News in Brief

TRENTON — Rev. James Spearman, president of the Trenton Ministerial Association today voiced opposition to announced plans for the area Rite-Way store to stay open on Good Friday.

Mr. Spearman said he did not have time to contact other members of the association and prepare a formal protest, but said he felt he was speaking for all members in his protest.

MILL RATE DELAYED

Town council learned Monday night that budget estimates for 1960 and the amount needed of the mill rate would be delayed his year. Usually, the announcement is forthcoming by the middle of April, but a delayed auditor's report is the reason for this year's expected delay.

Tax bills, ordinarily mailed out in the middle of May, will also be delayed, thus showing back the first quarterly payment.

Slippery Road Said Cause Of Accident

Slippery driving conditions on the Wallbridge Road this morning were seen as partially responsible for a two-car headon crash that sent five people to hospital for treatment of lacerations.

A car driven by Wayne Read, R.R. 3, Belleville, was in collision with one driven by Raymond Ryan, R.R. 1, Foxboro.

Police say the Ryan car was southbound on Wallbridge Road and the Read car was northbound when they struck each other.

Read, alone in his car at the time of the accident, was treated for lacerations to the head and left arm, and Ryan and his three passengers were also treated for lacerations.

Damage to both cars was heavy. Ryan's car, a 1953 model, is a complete write-off.

No charges will be laid.

Ann Landers

Choice of Beds Is Private Matter

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A girl friend of mine who is 19 plans to be married in the spring. Last week she and her fiance went shopping for furniture. They bought a bedroom set with twin beds — but only after a bitter argument.

I asked her why she insisted on twin beds when her fiance made his plain he wanted a double bed. She said, "I have slept alone for 19 years and I just can't sleep with anyone."

Will you please tell me what is wrong with a girl who wouldn't even try a double bed to please her fiance? — INTERESTED THIRD PARTY.

DEAR PARTY: What difference would it make to you if Mary slept on an ironing board? When it comes to beds, Dearie, there is really a crowd.

If this girl wrote to me, I'd tell her about twin beds with a single headboard, but since she hasn't asked for my advice, I'm keeping my nose out of it. I think it would be wise if you did the same.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A man I have been going with has a habit that embarrasses me to death.

When we dine out and the waiter brings the check this gentleman makes a big production of changing his glasses, getting out his pen and adding up the bill. If he finds a mistake he points it out to the waiter with the air of a man who has just foiled a bank robbery.

Is it worth the few dollars he saves? (he has yet to find a mistake which gives the restaurant more and himself less.) What is your opinion? Frankly I find it uncouth. — TOO CRITICAL.

* * *

DEAR TOO: Machines make mistakes and so do people. There is nothing uncouth about adding up a bill before you pay it. If you don't check your bills before you pay them, you aren't very bright.

It is not good manners, however, to make a big flap when a mistake is discovered. You could ask him to soft pedalthe large act.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am secretary to the sweetest, kindest boss who ever lived. His wife is a neurotic nag who drives both the boss and me crazy with her countless telephone calls.

Yesterday she phoned to tell him the egg man didn't show up, the vacuum sweeper broke down, his mother wrote an unfriendly letter, and she lost a filling from her tooth.

This morning she asked me to call him out of a conference to tell him that the garbage man didn't collect the trash and her bridge club is coming and what should she do.

I think the biggest favor I could do my boss would be to drop his wife a line and explain nicely that her frequent interruptions are a nuisance and to please call him only when it is urgent.

Will you back me up? — FED EDNA.

DEAR EDNA: No. It is not your place to tell the boss' wife anything. When he gets fed up with her calls he'll let her know. Until then (which may be never) keep your lip zipped.

Woman Will Seek Recovery Of Her Son

SARNIA (CP)—Mrs. Catherine Convery, 21, says she will go to Scotland Sunday in an attempt to recover her two-year-old son, Patrick, who has been missing from his home here since March 19.

A charge of abduction has been sworn out against the boy's father, Patrick Convery, 23.

Mrs. Convery said she has received word that the boy is in Glasgow, which the couple left a year ago to come to Sarnia.

Mr. and Mrs. Convery separated nine months ago and family court awarded custody of the boy to his mother and gave the father visiting rights.

The boy and Convery were last seen here March 19 when the father took him out for a visit.

Mrs. Convery said she will start legal proceedings against her husband to get the child back when she arrives in Scotland.

Sex Courses In Schools Turned Down

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations Tuesday would not consider an emergency resolution urging the introduction of sex education in Ontario schools.

Several delegates said they were personally in favor of introducing sex courses without delay, but said they could not vote on so controversial a subject without direction from their associations.

The resolution was drafted by the Brantford and Brant County Council of Home and School Associations which represents 33 associations. It came up for consideration on the first day of the three-day meeting, attended by about 600 delegates.

Mrs. Lou Axworthy of Brantford presented the case for adding the resolution to the agenda. She said it had been drafted too late for presentation as an ordinary resolution because it was based partly on the results of a survey done by the council and just completed.

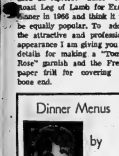
Mrs. Axworthy said the survey, taken in three Brantford schools, showed 94 per cent of parents and students in favor of sex education courses.

When the motion to introduce the resolution was defeated, Mrs. Axworthy was urged by a number of delegates to have her council re-introduce it next year.

Roast a leg of lamb for your Easter dinner. Mary Moore gives you the directions for applying an apricot glaze and making the eye-catching tomato rose garnish and French paper frill.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB WITH GLAZE

On rare occasion: I still hear about an apricot glaze that I recommended in this column back in the Forties to spread on an Easter ham. Now I have used an Apricot Glaze on a Roast Leg of Lamb for Easter dinner in 1966 and think it will be equally popular. To add to the attractive and professional appearance I am giving you the details for making a "Tomato Rose" garnish and the French paper frill for covering the bone end.



TOMATO ROSES

With a small sharp knife, carefully peel a firm tomato, starting at the stem end and end peeling down and around the tomato. The peeling should be about ¼" thick and ½" wide. Be careful not to break peeling but to have it in one complete spiral. To form into a rose, start twirling the peeling in small close circles around your finger. Make about 6 or 8 to garnish roast and use leftover tomato in slice for salad.

FRENCH PAPER FRILL (for covering end of lamb leg bone):

Paper frills to use on the end of the leg of lamb chops or leg of lamb, can be easily and inexpensively made.

Fold a sheet of white note paper in half lengthwise — making a sharp crease. Cut a fringe with pinking shears through the folded edge, then unfold and turn paper inside out so that the folded edge has a soft rounded appearance. Twirl around one or two fingers to make size desired. To trim off surplus paper from uncut edge of frill back as far as desired. To hold in place simply fold uncut edge under.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB WITH APRICOT GLAZE:

These directions are for a 6 lb. leg of lamb. If using frozen New Zealand lamb defrost it in refrigerator. Wipe meat with damp cloth. Cut several slits in top fat, and if desired, sprinkle with rosemary sparingly, rubbing it into slits. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan and insert meat thermometer. Roast uncovered, without water at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2½ hours for medium or 3 hours for well done.

Meanwhile combine one 6-oz. can baby food apricot puree with 1 cup light brown sugar, One-half hour before lamb is done lip all fat from pan, place sheet of foil under roast, spread apricot glaze all over top and return in oven for ½ hour longer. Transfer to preheated platter and garnish with

Dance Group Greets 122 New Dancers

Swirling skirts, smooth music and happy enthusiastic dancers set the scene at Quinte Secondary School Saturday night as the Quinte Twigger Family of Square Dance Clubs welcomed 122 new dancers to the fellowship of club dancing.

The 122 persons graduated came from four classes held during the fall and winter — 60 persons from Bob Williamson's Couples Class; 33 preteens from Garnet May's Children's Class; 11 teens from Jim Ketcheson's High School Class and 18 from his young single Adults Class.

A capacity crowd in the gallery watched as the club dancers and new graduates demonstrated their proficiency in the Do Si Do and Allemande Thars and other movements too numerous to mention.

Dave Williamson and Garnet May shared the evening calling while Bob Williamson was Master of Ceremonies. Jim Ketcheson inducted the new dancers with the square dancer's pledge.

A highlight of the evening was the fifth anniversary remarks and cake ceremony, as the dancers wished anniversary greetings to the 11 persons still with the clubs who were part of the first class who graduated in April 1961.

The Belleville Recreation Committee have sponsored the 18 square dance classes held here during the past five years. Alderman Don Willard brought to the group the greetings of the Recreation Committee and their wishes for the continued success of this recreational activity in the community.

A large number received diplomas.

Mental Health Concepts Reach Into Classroom

Behaviour grows! Behaviour has pattern and shape just as does physical structure. This is something that today's teachers are recognizing more and more just as a child's body grows in a reasonably patterned manner so also does he behave. But he learns best in a spontaneous natural situation where his interest is challenged and his experience developed.

This was told to the primary teachers and principals, supervisors and inspector by Dr. Eleanor Gullette, general consultant in primary work on the Toronto Public Schools' staff at the regular monthly meeting held in Sir Winston Churchill School on Monday afternoon.

Miss Gullette is a graduate of the Ontario Institute of Child Development with 30 year's experience on Toronto Public School staff and is at present time directing experiments in experience teaching in Primary classes in selected Toronto schools.

THOROUGH DESCRIPTION

Miss Gullette developed her topic — "Child Development and Mental Approaches" by means of a thorough description of what she calls the experience approach to reading. The teacher's purpose must include the establishing of rapport — a sympathetic relationship between teacher and pupil; the building of security for the child and the improvement of his self image. A child centred program rather than curriculum centred is a necessity, highly motivated so that all activities hold maximum interest for the child.

The teacher must know something about child's mental, social, emotional and physical development, Miss Gullette chose the 6-year level as an example and gave the principles of practice.

Where the reading program is based on topics of the child's interest — family, school, home pets, nature, adventures, and other teaching employed, the reading interest provides a motivation for other subjects. A good development program includes definite steps in listening, speaking, reading and writing. To bring out the developmental side of learning there must be activities to meet emotional, social, physical and mental development.

This is done by setting up activity centres in different areas of the classroom. These activity centres are other subjects. A good development program includes definite steps in listening, speaking, reading and writing. To bring out the developmental side of learning there must be activities to meet emotional, social, physical and mental development.

ACTIVITY PROGRAM

What results and accomplishments can a teacher expect from the activity program? According to principals and inspectors where this type of teaching is in progress there follows a child-imposed discipline, he learns to share and take turns, he grows out his over-aggressiveness; has an opportunity to achieve at his own level, becomes emotionally more stable, and co-operates in group activities.

What does the teacher do? She sets the environment, provides interesting things to talk about, provides experience for concepts and ideas, creates a happy atmosphere, takes time to listen to children, establishes respect — teacher for pupil, pupil for teacher.

Slides showing activity centres and the experience approach to reading in the Dale of York School in downtown Toronto completed the address.

The meeting was chaired by Mrs. Norma Powell under the convenorship of Miss Marion Gray. The speaker was introduced by Miss Beth Hodgson and thanked by Miss Janet Surtees.

The meeting was under the auspices of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Miss Phyllis Beatty, primary supervisor in the Belleville Public Schools entertained. Miss Gullette, Mr. Robert Bunn of the Ontario Division of C.M.H.A., Miss W. Huffman, supervising teacher and instructor in professional training at the Ontario School for the Deaf, and Mrs. Wanda Sias of the Belleville Branch C.M.H.A. to dinner at the Queen's Motel Restaurant following the meeting.

More Women Are Choosing Medical Life

TORONTO (CP)—More Canadian women than ever before are now choosing medical careers, according to a survey of women medical students and graduates in Canada.

The study, published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, says women in Canadian medical schools now number 114 per cent of the total body compared with seven per cent eight years ago.

The survey by doctors Carol Buck, Mary Scotfield and C. M. Warwick of the University of Western Ontario in London, found that child-bearing was the most important factor in determining whether a female doctor would stay in medical work.

Ninety-five per cent of unmarried women doctors were in full-time practice while only 63 per cent of married women without children were in full-time work compared with only 43 per cent of women with children.

A survey of women medical graduates of the University of Western Ontario shows that of those who graduated six years or more before the 1964 study, only 67 per cent were engaged in medical work. Of those, 66 per cent were practising medicine full-time and 74 per cent part-time.

Men women who were older than 25 when they graduated than those younger are still in practice.

The physicians said the study also showed that 35 per cent of women with four or more years of post-graduate training are single or married without children, compared with only 24 per cent of the women with less than four years of post-graduate training.

Bringing Up Baby

MOTH CORRECTED BY MISS DEAN SCHOOL, MOTHER OF 3

The debut of a baby is a happy event, indeed. Smiles reign all around. You feel relaxed and rested. Done home from the hospital, however, try to use your strength sparingly.

- Offers of help are worth their weight in "breathers" for you.
- Simple, easy-to-prepare meals, with things like frozen casseroles, are money-saving.
- A few minutes' rest before you're tired do more for you than an hour when you're exhausted.
- A change of shoes, at least once a day, is a foot 'n' body perker-upper.

Today's healthier advance at such a fast pace they're ready for solid food almost before you can believe it. (Usually cereal at first.) Gerber Baby Cereals are specially designed with your baby's early nutritional needs in mind. All five have added iron and the important B-vitamin, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. All five are excellent dietary sources of these important nutrients.

Gerber Baby Cereals are designed to pamper inexperienced palates. For instance, as calories, the texture is ever so smooth and nice-to-the-tongue. Gerber Rice Cereal is super gentle as an enriched "starter."

Chin chat. First-time parents are sometimes a bit dismayed to find that baby has an almost no chin. All babies have receding chins. It's Mother Nature's way of making it easier for baby to feed from bottle or breast, and long itself develops baby's lower jaw and prominent chin.

Bottle-fed or breast-fed? Infants' noses need vitamin C for sound gums and other body tissues. For development of strong bones and teeth, Gerber Strained Orange or Apple Juice provide iron-enriched vere to start your baby on this important vitamin. Both are delightfully mild in taste and the important C-vitamin is retained for easy bottle feeding. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

BAYSIDE SCHOOL

Members of Bayside Home and School Club met in Bayside 2B school last Wednesday evening. The president, Mrs. H. Hennessy, welcomed everyone and called on the secretary, Mrs. E. Snowdon, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. Sparling for reports.

Mrs. W. Cassidy asked for more volunteers to assist with the Fun Fair, and reminded members to get their donations in soon. Miss A. Blakely's room won the prize for the most parents in attendance. Mrs. G. Benjamin introduced the members of the Sidney Township Area School Board, as follows: Mr. Elliott Sine (chairman), Mr. R. Armstrong, Mr. H. Gray, Mr. G. Sickle and Mr. G. Meyers.

Mr. Sine explained the procedure that the board must go through in order to build new schools, or addition to existing ones. There will be four rooms, plus an auditorium, added this year to Bayside 2A school, also a four room addition to the school as Batawa. It was hoped to have had these additions completed by September, but due to a delay in assessments it will likely be November before they are ready.

SCHOOLS CLOSED

The following schools will be closed when the additions are completed — Riverside, Meadowvale, Brookdale and Harper. Some pupils from Glen Miller will go to Batawa school, while others from Johnstown and Centenary will go to Bayside schools.

Mr. DeClerc, former president of the Sidney Township Ratepayers Association (now non-existant), told the board that they had a balance of money which they would like to turn over to the school board if they will use the money, as well as add to it, as bursaries for outstanding Sidney Township students attending Quinte Secondary School.

Mr. Sine thanked Mr. De Clerc and said that the board would give the matter its consideration. Mr. De Clerq also said that the field day trophies which had been purchased by the Ratepayers' Association would be turned over to the board to use for future field days.

Several other members of the club asked questions. The reason for closing many one-room ed schools is that it's difficult to obtain good teachers to teach in them. Most schools and land are sold when the schools are closed. Surveys are taken periodically to anticipate the need for future classrooms. There are no more schools in Sidney Township that have eight grades in one classroom.

MUST EXTEND

For safety reasons, they aren't allowed to build a second storey on top of the existing schools, but must extend outward. Bayside has 170 acres of land to build on. The government grant is given if schools are built according to specifications laid down by the Dept. of Education. Parents expressed the desire for improvements in the bus transportation of pupils. The board is hopeful that the situation will improve.

It was suggested that proper dish-washing by the county might improve the school-ground conditions. Board members were asked if they supplied sports equipment for the school. Mrs. M. Campbell was provided for Quinte View hopeful that swings would be School and Mr. Poole mentioned a new type of safety swing which would be most satisfactory.

Members of the board were thanked by Mrs. James Fahner.

A social hour followed with refreshments served by Mrs. P. Robbins and her committee.

PARENTS TOLD WRONG

SLOUGH, England (CP)—A Buckinghamshire hospital told Thomas Hicks and his wife that their new-born baby was a boy and they told all their friends. A week later they found out their "son" is a girl. The hospital announced an apology to stop people ribbing the embarrassed couple.

The Experts Say

Variety of Fillings Used In Catering Tea for 25

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — For 25 people at a tea you need 13 full-size sandwiches, 13 white, six brown.

To make them, put as many slices as you can handle comfortably side by side on a table. Butter them. Put fillings on half of the slices, cover with the others. Stack two sandwiches with the same filling to cut off crusts and cut into four small sandwiches.

Roy Locke, catering manager for Gainsborough Kitchens, says each guest will eat three - quarters' of a large sandwich with a plain filling. He recommends using five or six fillings including at least one fish, with a two to one ratio of white to brown bread sandwiches.

Mr. Locke says you need about eight or nine items per guest, from the celery through the cookies. This should include one open face and one rolled sandwich per person, as well as plain.

WORK DAY AHEAD

"To make a rolled sandwich, we recommend unsliced sandwich bread—and a rolled sandwich must be made the day before you want it.

"Have it sliced lengthwise at the store if you can. If not, take the crust off and slice it the thickness of normal slices. You should get six or eight, depending on your adeptness. Trim off the other crust and taper one end of each slice. Butter the slices.

"Put a row of olives at the thick end, then spread the fill down the length of the bread. Begin to roll it as tightly as you can from the olive end. If the tapered end doesn't adhere well to the roll, put a little more butter on it to make it stick. Wrap the roll in wax paper and put it in the refrigerator. Slice it the day of the party.

"Open face sandwiches are where your imagination comes in. The idea is to give them eye appeal. Use a mound of egg with a dot of red pepper, green cream cheese, sardine with hot mustard tubed on it.

"If you are using fish or anything wet, put cream cheese under it. It's also useful to make things adhere to bread so when the sandwich is picked up nothing slips onto the rug."

STORE CAREFULLY

Whether you are going to store sandwiches or not, don't make filling too wet, or it will soak the bread. If you are making sandwiches just a few hours before the party, lettuce is a pleasant addition. If you are making them the day before, it's too likely to spoil the sandwich.

Store sandwiches in the refrigerator, well wrapped. If you are keeping them for any length of time, put a damp tea towel over the whole stack.

If you want to include hot tidbits with sandwiches there are many you can cook the day before on a cookie sheet. Then at party time you just warm them. Mr. Locke says water chestnuts wrapped in bacon are simple to do and unusual.

When you are working with cream cheese as a garnish or filler for something like celery sticks, you can soften it by adding a bit of mayonnaise or by whipping it. It's easiest to handle if you apply it with a pastry tube.

Mr. Locke says one piece of celery and a few olives or pickles will usually serve each person.

You may need about three-quarters of a small cake or pastie fours per person, one bite-size fruit or butter tart and two small fancy cookies.

You can rent a coffee server big enough to make 50 cups and should have tea available to brew on request.

PEARL IS PRIZE

Population Explosion Said More Serious Than A-Bomb

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The moderator of the United Church of Canada, Rt. Rev. Ernest Marshall Howse, said Tuesday the population explosion is the most serious problem now facing the human race.

He told the Commons health committee:

"It is a more serious problem than the atomic bomb because the atomic bomb can be more easily controlled."

Dr. Howese led a church delegation which presented a brief on birth control legislation to the committee.

The committee is studying a number of private members bills which propose changes in the Criminal Code to legalize the sale of contraceptives and the dissemination of birth control information.

The United Church brief recommended that the code be amended to remove any reference to the prevention of conception.

It also urged:

—That physicians in private practice and public health services at all levels of government be encouraged to provide instruction in family planning;

—That public welfare agencies be encouraged to assist in financing the cost of contraceptive prescriptions and devices;

—That quality and safety controls of contraceptive drugs and appliances be provided by the federal food and drug directorate.

The brief also said there should be adequate regulation of the advertising of birth control devices and preparations to avoid offence to good taste, and that slot machine dispensing be forbidden.

A brief containing similar recommendations was presented by Dr. George Mongeau of the Montreal Association for Family Planning.

Dr. Mongeau said advertising about birth control methods through the mass media was necessary to reach the great numbers of people who never go to see a doctor or attend public health clinics.

SHOW TRICKS FROM NEW ORLEANS

Dear Susanna: I use a large crockery cookie jar with lid for my "small" garbage. Banana peels, tea bags, etc. Once a day I empty the contents into a bag. The jar is so easy to wash, and it does look nice sitting conveniently beside the sink.

The next tip came from a salesman in a shoe store in New Orleans:

The one shoe he was fitting on me was a bit tight. "We don't have a shoe stretcher, Ma'am," he said, "but if you dab the tight spot thoroughly with rubbing alcohol while you have it on, it will be all right." I was a little dubious, particularly because the shoes were gold leather — but it worked. Now, a tight shoe always gets a good treatment of rubbing alcohol applied with a wad of cotton batting.

—Another shoe trick at Mardi Gras time in New Orleans was to perk up slightly shabby (but oh so comfortable) older shoes with gold or silver paint or shoe dye to match our costumes. Always remember to wear comfy shoes when dancing or partying (or you won't have much fun.

— Oh yes, here is a dandy one. I always put my house key on a chain attached to the inside of my purse with a brooch or a safety pin (for quick transfer to another bag.)

Simply haul out the chain, which is easy to find, and there is the key. You can see this accomplishes a twofold purpose. I never lay my key down "some place" as it is always attached. That's enough from me, except to say, don't ever leave us! — Mrs. Dorothy Allan

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna 'n care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, when requesting pamphlets.)

CLUB 4-H NOTES

TYENDINAGA CALF CLUB

The Tyendinaga 4-H Calf Club had a successful organization meeting at the Tyendinaga Township Hall on Thursday evening. Fifteen members were enrolled and officers were chosen. They are: John Walsh, president; William Trevelion, vice-president; Fred Shannon, secretary and Denis Walsh, press-reporter.

The two leaders present at the meeting were Malcolm Lazier and Charles Bates. Officiating at the meeting was Larry Bertrand, fieldman for the Department of Agriculture extension branch, in Stirling. The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, April 19.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD DOUGLAS TOWNSEND

Townsend – Hart

North Trenton United Church was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony when Carol Ann Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hart, Trenton R.R. 3 was united in marriage to Richard Douglas Townsend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend, Halloway R.R. 1. Rev. F. Love officiated at the ceremony and Miss E. Burke played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Tom Hinchey in appropriate selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie fashioned in Empire style and highlighted with Chantilly lace bodice featuring long scalloped edged sleeves. A bouffant shoulder length veil was caught with a tiara of rhinestones and pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink roses mingled with lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Marsha Lisk as matron of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Beverley Hamilton and Miss Judy Hart were all identically attired in full length gowns of rose peau de soie fashioned Empire style with matching wedding ring head dresses. The matron of honor wore a corsage of white and pink 'mums, while the brides maids wore corsages of white 'mums.

Mr. John Emerson of Belleville was groomsman, while Mr. Raymond Emerson of Halloway R.R. 1 and Mr. Ralph Townsend of Newtonville were the ushers.

For the reception at the Glenburnie Restaurant dining hall, Trenton, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a three-piece brown suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a three-piece suit of navy boucle, navy and white accessories and a corsage of white and blue carnations.

Upon departure for the wedding trip to Windsor and Detroit, the bride donned a three-piece beige wool suit, with rust accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend will reside at Rondeau Provincial Park, Lake Erie.

Successful Living

Teen-age Crushes Can Be Healthy

DEAR DORIS: About the 15-year-old girl who had a crush on another girl; I think it's quite normal. I remember my own girlhood and the crushes I had; times when I wanted so much to stand in well with some girl I admired that I got quite tongue-tied in her presence.

DORIS CLARE

I remember a girl friend I had for many years, and I think we were dearer and more necessary to each other than any of our so-called boy friends during the time we spent with each other was a red-letter event. We discussed everything, and we always planned to meet when we were parted from each other for some days we might greet each other with shrieks; and we often walked down a road hand in hand.

After we grew up we wrote frequently and voluminously. Both of us have been happily married wives and mothers for years, but there is still a strong bond between us. I think the love of one woman for another, and of one man for another, can be a very sweet and precious thing. But all this present day emphasis on sex seems to make people afraid to admit to any such love for one of their own sex.

For the last 15 years or so all the books, radio programs, everything, are on sex. Sex with violence, illicit sex, evils of unfulfilled sex drives, sex perversion, and how much must be broad-minded about all these things. Ugh! Couldn't we just for a change have some stories about friendship! — FED-UP AND DISGUSTED.

DEAR FED-UP: Indeed we can. People who work with other people in the interest of preserving or restoring mental health still hold the line for healthy, friendly relationships between persons, especially in a large portion of brotherly love, be it between men, or between women, or between parent and child.

I count that girl unfortunate indeed who has no single chum of her own sex.

Confidential to UPSET BRIDE-TO-BE: It's all to the good if the groom's relatives care enough about him to want to see the ceremony. What possible objection could you have to this?

They will understand that the reception must of necessity be a small family affair. Greet them with a smile; and that evening for them later. They are going to be your relatives, too, don't forget!

Stewardess Requirements Outlined In Interview With C.P.A. Official

MISS KAY SIMONS

The man who marries an airline stewardess is assured of getting an unblemished product. She will have all her own teeth, perfect eyesight, a trim figure with a hip measurement not over 37 inches and will be straight but not overly glamorous. She will be well-educated, have a sense of humor and a love for people.

Despite all this, she will fall short of perfection. After being up in the clouds for about 22 months, the newly - married ex-stewardess finds it hard to come down to earth and live on the reduced scale of a young married couple. A top paying job with plenty of travel, long stop-overs at the best hotels, many hours of leisure time and the chance to meet important and interesting people leaves a girl with too high a sense of values to guarantee an easy transition to domesticity.

These facts were revealed during an interview with Miss Kay Simons, special representative for Canadian Pacific Airlines. Miss Simons, veteran of two and a half years as a CPA stewardess was interviewed while in Belleville to participate in a CPA travel night held in B.C.I.V.S. auditorium Tuesday night.

700 STEWARDESSES

"CPA employs 200 stewardesses", Miss Simons said. It has trouble recruiting enough girls because of the high standards demanded. With all airline companies offering the same types of aircraft and offering the same flight schedules, the only feature an airline can use to attract customers is top quality in-flight service. This is where stewardesses come in. Originally hired years ago to reassure nervous passengers, ("If this little girl can fly all the time, surely I can stand one trip.") stewardesses now personify the company's concern and interest in the passengers' comfort.

VARIOUS REQUIREMENTS

A stewardess applicant must be over 20 years old, under 26 and a high school graduate with two years experience in a job involving contact with people. She must be over five feet three inches and under five feet eight inches tall, weigh less than 135 pounds and have a hip measurement under 37 inches. The last requirement is to allow her to navigate narrow aircraft aisles without bumping into seats.

Girls who need false teeth, bridges, glasses or contact lenses are banned for safety reasons. Miss Simons explained. The impact of a crash could cause a stewardess to choke on swallowed teeth or be blinded through loss of her glasses.

"Of course we could lose a few passengers that way too," Miss Simons said, "but we can't afford to lose the stewardess at the time she's most needed."

Although stewardesses must be attractive, the glamor girl who spends too much time dressing over her appearance is turned down by most companies. The approach is one of wasmheerted, outgoing personality.

First assignments, after a four-week training course, are on domestic flights. With seniority comes assignments to international flights with salaries as high as $600 a month and long expense-paid stop-overs in the best hotels in foreign cities. All the world becomes the stewardesses' shopping place.

After a few years most girls find catering to the travelling public's wangling. Their warmth and eagerness to please is replaced with irritation and exasperation. The term of travel begins to pall and all but the most mature girls become bored and blase. For this reason, most airlines make retirement at 30 compulsory.

On retirement a girl usually goes back to her former career or finds a job in another department of the airline with no loss of her seniority," Miss Simons said, "Most girls leave after an average of 32 months service, to be married, usually to the boy back home."

This is when the letdown occurs. Miss Simons says she has known many girls ruined by acquiring a phony sense of values on expense account living during their stewardess days.

TALKS TO STUDENTS

In her talks to high school students, Miss Simons urges them to consider a job as an airline stewardess a temporary opportunity to travel and enjoy as adventurous life. She advises them to study for a career they can go back to after they leave the airlines.

Miss Simons is a trim and vivacious brunette who practiced radio and journal promotion in Canada and England before joining CPA three year ago. She admits it was boredom with the routine of a nine-to-five job that lead her to apply for a front office job with the airline. doing the work she first trained for . . . publicity and promotion.

The best part of her years as a stewardess, Miss Simons admitted is the "wonderful memories I have stored up of the places I have been and the people I have met."

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Naran Plan is easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly you must disappear—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Ontario-born Economist Given Top PC Position

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives Tuesday gave the party's top managerial post to an Ontario-born economist who joined the headquarters staff only last year.

James Johnston, 39, the quiet-spoken son of a United Church minister, has the title of acting national director, but there's no indication it's anything but permanent.

He succeeds Richard Thrasher, a 43-year-old lawyer who stepped down following the Nov. 8 federal election. Mr. Thrasher was later appointed a magistrate in Windsor.

Mr. Johnston, the holder of three university degrees, fills a job that reached an influential pinnacle under Alistair Grosart in the 1957-62 period when the Conservatives were in power.

Mr. Johnston's main job is to run the party organization and keep it in shape for elections.

He had been the speculative choice for months when Conservative Leader Diefenbaker finally made the announcement Tuesday.

The former newspaper man joined the party's head office staff just in time for the fall election and was in charge of television and advertising.

He embarked on the new career after selling his flourishing printing and publishing business in Aurora, north of Toronto.

BORN NEAR WINDSOR

Mr. Johnston was born in Malden near Amherstburg and grew up in a succession of southwestern Ontario communities where his father held parishes.

He got his BA in economics and political science from the University of Western Ontario. He added his masters and doctorate in economics at U.S. universities.

After writing for The Financial Post, he became assistant to the publisher of the Stratford Beacon - Herald before buying the Aurora Banner, a weekly newspaper.

Trim and stocky, he brings an easy grin to his new job. He moved his wife (the former Miriam Ritchie of Baden, Ont.) and two sons, Tim, 12, and Sandy, 9, to Ottawa in January.

Mr. Johnston's father, Rev. A. H. Johnston, is dead. His mother lives in Stratford. A younger brother, Keith, is a medical doctor in London, Ont. An older brother, Wallace, was killed in the Second World War while serving with the RCAF as a pilot officer.

The new Conservative administrator added to his credentials as an economist by serving as secretary to the government commission that investigated the economics of Ontario gold mines several years ago.

MAY TRANSPLANT TOWN

NEWTON, Ga. (AP)—Baker County officials are considering moving this whole flood-prone city to higher ground. The latest inundation put the centre of the community of 529 under five feet of water, causing $150,000 damage.

DIRECTS CONSERVATIVE PARTY — Dr. James Johnston, 39, has been named acting national director of the Progressive Conservative party. Dr. Johnston, a native of Malden, Ont., near Windsor, was in charge of television and advertising for the Conservatives during the last federal election campaign.

Mr. Roblin said the Red does not now pose a threat to the communities of Ste. Adolphe, Letellier or Ste. Agathe.

HELP MOVE PEOPLE

Agriculture Minister George Hutton said armed forces vehicles and personnel were assisting in evacuation. The morning job on the east bank of the Red and partially flooded last year when the river peaked at just below its present level. Older people and those living outside primary dikes left Tuesday night.

By nightfall Tuesday half the families had left their homes at St. Jean Baptiste. The moving job will be completed before nightfall today at Morris, where about one-third of the town's residents had been evacuated Tuesday.

Flooding of a bridge across the Morris River on the outskirts of Morris closed Highway 75 to all but emergency traffic Tuesday. Highway 21 east of Morris also was closed.

This was the river picture in Manitoba Tuesday:

Emerson—3.4 feet above bank level and rising. Dikes protect from five to seven feet. Peak of five to eight feet expected April 9-15.

Morris—4.2 feet above bank level and rising. Dikes protect up to 10 feet. Peak of nine to 12 feet expected April 10-17.

Winnipeg—16.7 feet above winter ice level, 1.3 feet below bank level, and rising. Primary dikes built since the 1950 disaster protect up to 20 feet. Peak of 26-29½ or 30 feet, compared with 30.2 feet in 1950, expected April 13-22.

Cold weather helped in slow the runoff as the Red's crests moved out of Minnesota toward Canadian cities.

Temperatures overnight slipped below freezing in northern Minnesota and North Dakota, further checking the run-off resulting from the spring thaw of heavy winter snow.

Meanwhile, the floods claimed more farmland after making a big take out of rich land along the Minnesota-North Dakota border. The U.S. Corps of Engineers announced preliminary damage estimates of $9,000,000 in North Dakota and $5,000,000 in Minnesota.

The Red Cross estimates that about 500 persons were evacuated from North Dakota and Minnesota communities.

The job of shoring up dikes and manning the dike patrol continues at many communities on the U.S.-side of the border.

TUESDAY, April 5, 1966

The Commons climaxed five days of debate by rejecting 143 to 112 a motion calling for complete abolition of the death penalty for murder.

In two other votes, it defeated by 138 to 113 a five-year trial period for abolition and by 179 to 74 a move for partial abolition.

The Canadian Association for Adult Education presented a brief to the government seeking a national scholarship program.

WEDNESDAY, April 6

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. for third reading of a bill to amend the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act. The Senate is adjourned to May 3.

be could not guarantee to repay costs incurred by Dublin if the Irish were to remain for another three months.

Canada and Britain are the only members of the force that foot their own bills entirely. Canada spent $7,000,000 in the operation of its contingent up to last Dec. 26.

COST IS HIGH

It will cost the UN about $8,700,000 to keep its force on the island for another three months. Apart from the countries composing the force, major contributors to its upkeep have included the United States and West Germany.

UN troops have been generally successful in holding Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots apart.

Terrorist bombings still shatter the uneasy peace, although only 17 bombings were reported during the last three months compared with 222 in the same period last year.

In recent days, Greek-Cypriot national guardsmen have fired shots at a Turkish-Cypriot village in the Kyrenia Mountain range, but no casualties have been reported.

WILL CHECK SAUCERS

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A panel of U.S. scientists is being set up to investigate reports of flying saucers, a congressional committee was told Tuesday. Rep. Overton Secretary Harold Brown told the armed services committee 95 per cent of the reported cases of unidentified flying objects could be explained as natural phenomena.

A WINNER FIRST TIME OUT is 18-year-old Stan Akey of Shannonville who took top honors and a trophy Sunday in motorcycle events at the Mohawk Dragstrip at Deseronto.

8,000 at Mohawk Dragstrip As Racing Season Is Opened

DESERONTO — With some 500 cars participating in the various events, the 1966 drag racing season opened at the Mohawk Dragstrip here Sunday. A crowd estimated at 8,000 took in the action. Included in that total were those who came over the fence, said dragstrip manager Ernie Chapman.

The Argyle Chrysler of Toronto, driven by Fred Fardon, was top stock and fuel eliminator for the day.

In the exhibition match race, Al Joniac of Philadelphia, Pa., piloted his Bat Car to three wins while Brees Gowan of Toronto drove his Chevy II to one win in the best of five contest.

Drivers from all over Ontario, Quebec and the U.S.A. participated in Sunday's races. The next meet is scheduled for April 17 when another match race will be the top attraction. On May 1, the Canadian Superstock National will be held here.

In Sunday's motorcycle events, an 18-year-old beginner from Shannonville sped off with a trophy. Stan Akey, a newcomer to motorcycling, won the 650 cc class by half a bike length, covering the quarter-mile distance in 17.8 seconds. His Ducati reached a top speed of 82 miles per hour.

Stan moved up to the 650 cc bracket when he was the only entry in his own class, the 250 cc event. He was given a three second handicap and made the most of it to win the honors.

The Ducati is Stan's first motorcycle. He bought the machine about a month ago and decided to try it out on the track here "to see what she would do".

Now that he's had a taste of racing, Stan is very interested in the sport and is thinking seriously of becoming a regular at the meets here.

FOOD RESERVES LOW

PARIS (Reuters) — Food reserves in the world's "bread basket" are getting so low that a single year of drought in Canada and the United States would cause worldwide deaths through starvation, an American official said Tuesday. Richard Reuter, special assistant to State Secretary Dean Rusk, made the statement at a press conference after telling a meeting that other countries should place more emphasis on food production.

Town Council Discusses Sub-Standard Housing

NAPANEE — Councillor Donald Reid was appointed earlier this year to advise on a by-law to do away with sub-standard housing in the town. Monday evening at the regular meeting of the Council he asked why such a by-law was necessary.

"We have a sanitary inspector and a department of health. If we had their cooperation we could see that Public School Inspector Paul Anderson says. The site has tentatively been agreed upon, and the Department of Education and the Hastings County Council have given their approval. It remains now for the Tyendinaga Township council to approve, and by-law adopted for the purchase of approximately $225,000.

Watson and Wiegand of Belleville have been engaged as architects, but no contracts have been let. However, Mr. Anderson is hopeful that work will start this fall, and that the school will be ready for use by Easter of 1967.

Some question arose as to the site for the new Secondary School in view of the fact that a Hastings Area Board is contemplated. But approval was given, as no Thurlow school would be close enough to absorb the Tyendinaga pupils.

The matter of financial support from the Hastings Government has also not been settled, but Mr. Anderson believes this is more or less a formality. Such support is indicated, since the children from the Reserve will now attend the new school in Shannonville will be pupils of the new school once it is built.

When the new school is completed, ten one - roomed schools will be closed. Some are close to a century old.

Approval Given For Building New School

NAPANEE — The worst of the difficulties standing in the way of building the Tyendinaga School have been overcome, Public School Inspector Paul Anderson says. The site has tentatively been agreed upon, and the Department of Education and the Hastings County Council have given their approval. It remains now for the Tyendinaga Township council to approve, and by-law adopted for the purchase of approximately $225,000.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — Gurman Hyland and Donald Scott, both of West St., returned Thursday from Florida, where they had spent two weeks in St. Petersburg and two weeks visiting Mr. Scott's sister, Mrs. Alden Kirkpatrick and her son Claire. They also went on a cruise to Nassau before spending home.

Barton MacLean of Morven was in Ottawa over the week-end and attended a reunion of his classmates from the Kemptville Agricultural School.

Mr. Percy Hambly of Vancouver, B.C., who was called home due to the death of his mother last week is remaining with his brother Kenneth of the Anderson district, who will enter a Toronto hospital for an operation.

Robert Scoggins, formerly of Switzerville Road, Napanee, a patient in the Belle River Hospital, fell Friday last and fractured his hip. Mr. Hodgston is 91 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse MacLean of Morven returned Friday with Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Frost, of the Camden Road, who have been touring the Southern States in their trailer during the winter. Mr. and Mrs. MacLean flew to New Orleans two weeks earlier, via Toronto and Chicago to join Mr. and Mrs. Frost. They spent four days there before starting their leisurely trip home.

Budget Report Shows Lower Mill Rate

DESERONTO — Reeve Donald Armitage presented to the Deseronto Town Council Monday night a budget which showed a lowering of the mill rate for 1966.

The industrial and commercial rate of 155.63 mills is 7.63 mills lower than that of 1965, and the farm and residential rate of 142.40 mills is 7.45 mills lower than last year.

Estimated expenditures over which the council has control have been kept to a minimum, Reeve Armitage stated in his budget report. Also, council had a surplus of $6,161.24 on December 31, 1965. In addition, an increase in subsidy for the expenditure on streets is anticipated from the provincial government.

Approximately $17,600 remains in the fund which the Board of Education has on hand, the balance remaining from the high school operations of 1965. It is the intention of council to place these amounts in a reserve fund for future working capital, and to invest them at the best available rate of interest on a short term basis.

Public school costs are estimated to be approximately 5 mills higher than they were last year, and high school costs 2½ mills lower.

The county rate is approximately 1½ mills higher than in 1965.

Four Arrested After Break-ins At Hay Bay

NAPANEE — Sgt. G. L. Langton of the Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police has released the names of four men arrested Tuesday morning and charged with possession of goods stolen in the Hay Bay cottage area.

They are Cecil Wood, 17, of Deseronto, David Wood, 19, of Kingston, Morley York, 28, of Napanee and Donald LaPointe, 23 of Napanee.

Stolen property valued at about $12,000 was recovered by the police following investigation of break-ins at 30 cottages in the Hay Bay area during the past month.

The men charged are expected to appear in court in Napanee on April 12.

'I Know Thee' Exclaimed Thief As Jesus Was Dying on Cross

In the climactic emergency of His career, Jesus was abandoned by His regular friends. He was recorded support during the period of His arrest, trial, execution and until after His resurrection came from astonishing sources — some leading Pharisees, some women, a soldier and a convicted felon—the bandit who honored Christ while the reputable world killed Him.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

It was a stinking rock heap, littered with bones and crawling with vermin, and reptiles. At the top, Dysmas eased the split log off his shoulder and let it tumble behind him, hoping it slammed again some cursed human legless naire.

They stripped the clothes off him and the two other doomed men, then shoved the three flat on their backs and bound their outstretched arms to the timbers. Dysmas stared up narrowly at the helmeted, shaven faces bending over him, and above them, at the stationary top right posts thrusting into the sky.

This was Golgotha, the "place of the skull" outside Jerusalem's walls, where Rome handled the mental mastery over insubordinate Jews.

Several soldiers held him down as they drove spikes through his wrists to secure his arms to the beam. He jerked with each blow of the mallet. Then he quivered, vaguely hearing the howls from his outlaw crony, Gestas, as they nailed him to the wood.

The third fellow didn't even whimper.

At the top of the uprights, the crossbeams dropped into the notch with an excruciating jolt to his suspended weight.

Now the slow, tormenting death began, one of the cruelest forms of execution ever devised, crucifixion.

TORTURE CRIMINALS

It had been originated by the Carthaginians and adopted by the Roman empire for use on non-Roman criminals in subjugated lands, chiefly on runaway slaves and native revolutionists. Jewish law prohibited such torture, but not the Western conquerors.

A boiling sun rode above the Moab Mountains. It was the third hour (9 a.m.).

On the three crosses, Jesus of Nazareth, the "friend of sinners" and companion of the lowly, the "rejected" and the lost, hung between two of the same miserable lot, a pair of robbers.

Ancient tradition identifies the two brigands as Dysmas and Gestas, tough, violent Jews, plunderers of trade caravans, despoilers of the rich, guerrilla fighters against oppression who had turned to wanton pillage.

Such underground turbulence was common under the Roman occupation, Israel seethed against the grinding taxes, exploitation, the infiltration of idolatry, pagan gladiatorial shows and military determination.

On the three crosses on Golgotha on the 14th day of the spring month of Nissan in the 18th year of the reign of Roman Emperor Tiberius (29 A.D.), Dysmas hung on the right of Jesus, Gestas on the left.

Legend pictures Gestas as a barbarous highwayman, who relished killing, while Dysmas, a one-time innkeeper, had turned to crime to ravage the ruling aliens and rob the wealthy to feed the ragged cave-dwellers.

MET BEFORE

Long before, it is related, the pair had encountered Joseph and Mary in flight to Egypt with the infant Jesus, and Dysmas had bribed his brutal partner to let the family alone. This suggests the two were considerably older than Jesus.

But now all three met again — hanging side by side, while ravens and vultures circled overhead.

The onset of traumatic fevers came soon, but in his clearer moments, Dysmas could hear the jeers by the soldiers and other governmental onlookers directed at the young man dying beside him, Jesus.

"Ahh . . . He saved others; He cannot save Himself . . .

He trusts in God; let God deliver Him now . . . for He said, 'I am the Son of God' . . . If He is the King of Israel, let Him come down from the cross, and we will believe Him."

Turning his head slightly, Dysmas looked blurrily at this final companion, a pitiful, forbearing fellow, a terrible sadness in His eyes, but also a flaming tenderness, an incredible living submissiveness.

But He was failing fast. His body having been previously torn and mutilated by flogging. A convulsion seized Dysmas and even as he fought through it, his mind stormed with anger.

"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

HEARD WORDS

The words of Jesus, the disturbing magnanimity, once scoffed at by Dysmas, breaking into his agony and anger, into the pounding ache in his head. He raised himself, panting, and sank again.

Again, voices reached him, this time the raging, begging, mocking fury of Gestas. "Are you not the Christ?" he railed. "Save yourself and us."

The taunt went on, as old non-Biblical accounts have it. "Why collect thou thyself Son of God and exact not help thyself, too . . . I behold thee not as a man, but as a wild beast caught and perishing along with me."

Dysmas, in that extremity, suddenly saw something more.

The onrushing reign of pain whirling at him took on other images, and straining, blanking, he turned his head and gasped, "I know Thee Christ . . . the Son of God . . . I see Thee, Christ, worshipped by ten thousand times ten thousand . . . Forgive my sins."

And Jesus said, "Truly, I say to you, today you will be with Me in paradise."

The Roman centurion in charge of the soldiers put a sponge soaked in the sour wine on the end of a javelin and held it up to Jesus, a potion to deaden pain. The touched Jesus' lips, but He spat the fiery gall aside.

FORGIVE ROMANS

Dysmas watched, puzzled at His new reactions, but not understanding, even though the confusion kept coming and going, but not now, and he, the forgiven, now could forgive and love—love even the hideous executioners.

It was the sixth hour, noon; the sky darkened and tremors shook the earth. The eclipse lasted until the ninth hour although the crucifixion process had taken two or three days, the legionnaires were under orders to conclude it before nightfall, Passover at the start of the Passover festival.

They broke the legs of the two thieves, so they could no longer lift their bodies, thus bringing on speedy asphyxia.

Jesus, weakened by the earlier flogging, was already dead. So His legs were not broken. But, as a finishing stroke, a soldier ran a spear into His side which drained water and blood, indicating He died of a ruptured heart.

So ended the worldly career of Jesus, friend of the underdog, advocate of the outcasts, healer of lepers, champion of the despised, the illiterate and lawless sinners, confederate in death as in life of the same lowly company—the least, last and lost.

And in His direst moment, it was one of them, a thief, who saw and acclaimed His saving sovereignty, while respectable society turned its back.

Net Income Of CPR Down From 1964

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. had a net income of $81,634,093 from all sources in 1965, it was announced Monday night.

This compared with a net income of $83,231,182 in 1964.

After provision for dividends of four per cent on preference stock, the net income from railway operations and miscellaneous sources made $38,074,182 available for reinvestment and dividends on ordinary stock.

From this, dividends totalling $1.25 per share were declared on ordinary stock, compared with $1.50 last year.

Income received from Canadian Pacific Investments, a wholly - owned subsidiary, amounted to $20,085,436 and was distributed by the declaration of additional dividends totalling $1.40 per ordinary share, compared to $1.75 in 1964.

The combined total dividends paid holders of ordinary stock was $2.65 per share, compared with $2.90 in 1964.

INCOME DOWN

Income from revenues from railways and miscellaneous sources was down $2,564,451 but was offset by income from CPI was up $5,632,982.

Prince Andrew To be Owner Of Sports Car

LONDON (AP) — Six-year-old Prince Andrew will take delivery in a few days of a £2,000 ($12,000) model of James Bond's souped-up sports car, complete with toy machine guns, bullet-proof windshield, two-way radio and real radar.

The car will be a gift from Aston Martin, who made the original for Sean Connery to use in the James Bond movies.

Prince Andrew's parents, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, made no midget car in action Monday when they visited the Aston Martin plant in nearby Buckinghamshire.

Factory Manager Stephen Hegbin's six-year-old son, Ian, demonstrated the car for the Queen and Prince Philip.

"Demonstrate the water scooter, Ian," said designer Tadek Marek.

Prince Philip—who was once accused of spraying two news photographers with a water squirter at the Aston Martin plant in nearby Buckinghamshire.

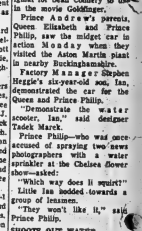
SHOOTS OUT WATER

Ian pressed a button and two streams of water shot from rejectors at the rear of the car. The water missed the cameramen but drenched a factory worker's face.



Ian pressed another button. A smokescreen belched from the tiny car and enveloped the photographers.

"It's wonderful," said the Queen. "Andrew will be so pleased."

The prince, third of the Queen's four children, will first use the car around the grounds of Windsor Castle. Electrically driven, it can go six miles an hour and its radar system operates over a radius of three miles.

Over the two - way radio Prince Andrew will be able to call and receive calls from shortwave transmitters at Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace.

Witness Breaks Off African Trip to Testify at Inquiry

TORONTO (CP)—A witness who broke off an African trip to fly to Toronto was expected to tell the Rand Judicial inquiry tonight just how 7,500 shares of gas company stock arrived in the hands of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court in 1957.

The commission moved its normal day sitting into the evening to fit into the plane schedule of John McGraw of Vancouver, whose brokerage firm sent the stock in late 1956 seven months after Sudbury had given a franchise to Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company during the Landreville mayoralty term.

Ivan C. Rand, retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, is investigating for the federal cabinet the propriety of the Ontario judge's dealings with the gas firm. The Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario) has called for Mr. Justice Landreville's removal from the bench.

The one-man commission had planned to question Mr. McGraw at its opening Vancouver sittings last month but he was on a business trip to Africa. He was reported to have hit Madrid Tuesday on the way to Toronto, and he was scheduled as the final witness of the hearings here that opened Monday.

RECESS SET

After his evidence, the inquiry will recess until April 25 when the resumed sittings are probably at Oilawa—will examine the 56-year-old Mr. Justice Landreville, a member of the high court since late 1956.

One of the things the commission wants to ask Mr. McGraw is how the orders were given for the transaction that gave the Judge 7,500 shares of NONG stock without his putting up any money.

Examination in Vancouver of the books of Continental Investments Corp.—headed by Mr. McGraw—showed that in one day 10,000 shares were bought in the name of the judge at $2.50 a share and 2,500 sold at $10 to meet the $25,000 cost, leaving the remaining 7,500 free.

The sale was charged to the personal account of Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, then president of NONG. Mr. Farris himself suggested in testimony the brokerage firm may have used his account as an accommodation, and he was not pressed as to whether the trade had been put through on his instructions.

TELLS OF ORDER

According to evidence given by a former RCMP sergeant here Tuesday, Mr. Justice Landreville in 1962 told two investigators he had placed an order with an investment agent at Sudbury in 1956. However, he could not recall the name of the agent.

Former sergeant Arthur R. Bates, now security officer at Windsor Raceway, and Assistant RCMP Commissioner R. H. Wonnacott of Edmonton—who was stationed here in 1962—also testified the judge declined to answer a 14-page list of questions in his office when he learned an abortive 1956 investigation by the Ontario government into NONG was being reopened.

Mr. Bates said the judge told them it would be "unwise" for him to answer the questions. He had come to the decision after talking on the telephone to a man in the Ontario attorney-general's department whom he addressed only as "Bill."

A letter written by the judge to Mr. Bates after two inconclusive interviews with him said the initial government NONG inquiry had been politically instigated and the ethics of the judiciary forbade him from getting into this field.

Cabinet Left to Ponder Fate of Fifteen Men Facing Death Penalty

Box Score On Abolition Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP)—Here is the vote by parties and regions in the Commons Tuesday night on complete abolition of capital punishment:

B.C. (22)	13	7	—
YT-NWT (2)	1	1	—

The cabinet voted 16-6 for abolition with one member, Revenue Minister Benson, absent.

In above tabulation Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who votes only in event of a tie, is included in absent figures although he was in the House presiding.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons' decision Tuesday night to retain the death penalty for capital murders may have been a matter of life or death to 15 men now awaiting dates with the hangman.

The Commons voted 143 to 112 against a motion to abolish the death penalty. The cabinet can still commute death sentences.

Eleven of those sentenced to die are in Quebec jails, three in British Columbia and one in Alberta.

They include two Quebec separatists, a morbid gravedigger and assorted hoodlums.

Roger Pulos, convicted in Vancouver Oct. 20, has the first appointment with the executioner—April 12. He, therefore, is expected since he is appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada. The case has not yet been argued there.

GRANTED REPRIEVE

Lloyd Lyding, convicted in Edmonton May 14 is scheduled to die May 18. He was originally scheduled to hang Tuesday but was granted a reprieve until May 18. He lost an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The 13 other convicted killers all have appeals pending with provincial appeal courts and are certain to receive stays of execution until all legal processes have been exhausted.

They are:

Claude Levasseur, convicted at Drummondville, Que., last April 29, sentenced to die July 18.

Francois Schirm and Edmond Gosselin, separatists convicted in Montreal May 21 of shooting a gun shop operator in an arms raid, executions were postponed to Sept. 30 from April 22.

Roland and Jacques Fabien, two brothers convicted in Montreal June 11 of beating nightclub dancer Margot Turner to death, executions set for May 30.

Robert Collin, convicted in Montreal Nov. 30, execution for July 15.

Roger Chevalier, convicted in Montreal Nov. 30, execution postponed to Sept. 23 after it was originally set for April 29.

Roger Poirier, convicted in Montreal Nov. 25 of killing fellow prisoner Bernard Robitaille with a prison stabbing, execution set for July 28.

William Tamas, convicted in Montreal Jan. 18, execution set for May 13.

Frederick Turner, convicted Jan. 30 in New Westminster, B.C., execution set for May 27.

Marcel Bernier, the Shawinigan, Que., gravedigger convicted Feb. 14 in the ruling gang of a teen-age girl, execution set for July 22.

Michael Smyk, convicted in New Westminster March 2, execution set for June 7.

Claude Martin, a Montreal longshoreman convicted April 1, for the murder last summer of a bartender, execution set for Sept. 30.

Hees Requests VastlyImproved Safety Program

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, former federal minister of trade and commerce, Tuesday called for a vastly improved highway safety program.

Speaking to the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, he said all highway accidents should be thoroughly investigated. At present, he said, they are merely reported.

Mr. Hees said police should have the authority to investigate all of the driver's activities for the 24 hours preceding the accident to discover if he had a health or emotional problem or whether he had been drinking.

"We should get from the automobile builders recessed knobs, handles, padded dashboards, seat belts front and rear, dual braking systems, signal lights on the dash to warn a driver when a light goes out, and from the government regulations," he states.

Mr. Hees recommended high school driver training and said all new drivers would take training either through the schools, drivers clubs or driver training schools.

Buddhists, Students Are Main Factors In Political Crisis

SAIGON (AP)—Four weeks of political unrest in South Viet Nam's cities have brought a dangerous new crisis, threatening the war effort.

What has caused the outbreaks in Saigon, Da Nang and Hue? What do the Buddhists and students want? Are Communists behind the outbreaks? Why the anti-Americanism?

There is no one answer. Here are some of the factors:

The people involved in demonstrations represent a small fraction of the population, perhaps no more than two or three per cent. But fewer students and Buddhists have toppled secular governments.

Perhaps four-fifths of the population is apathetic and war-weary after years of conflict. They leave political leadership to others.

Perhaps most significant has been the appearance of South Vietnamese soldiers and civil servants among the demonstrators in Da Nang. Wholesale defection by soldiers and officials could destroy the entire war effort.

WHAT'S RED INFLUENCE?

Undoubtedly Communist infiltrators have had a hand in the demonstrations but how much no one knows.

The Buddhists and students have been the main factors, as in every coup. Basically they want power—for not actual positions, then to be king makers.

Then there are skyrocketing prices and the natural resentment of any population against foreign troops who by local standards are rich, live better, and monopolize girls, bars and entertainment.

Finally there are the ruling generals who joust among themselves for power. The military junta just as they have done since the fall of Ngo Dinh Diem.

In this struggle Premier Premier Nguyen Cao Ky fired Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, commander of the 2nd Corps. That precipitated the present crisis.

Within days of this ouster, rioting began in Hue and Da Nang. Ky was forced to permit Thi to return to the northern sector.

By firing Thi, Premier Ky expelled a rival in the ruling junta. This gave the opposition an opening.

SURPRISES U.S.

What Ky has had the complete loyalty of his fellow officers last weekend when he announced Da Nang was a Communist city in the hands of "Communists." Ky's threat of military operations there brought thunderous groups from U.S. embassy officials.

His declaration that "either the mayor of Da Nang is shot or the government resigns" overshadowed his constituency plans to convene a political congress of all his opposition.

The latest now go far beyond a junta squabble. They affect the whole U.S. position here.

The Buddhists lasted power first in 1963 when they overthrew President Diem.

They have been a force to be reckoned with ever since, each day growing more powerful with a widening network of "Buddhist boy scouts," primary and secondary schools, and pagodas.

Buddhist leaders look more and more like the "third power" they have openly aspired to be, the "neutralizing" force between the South Vietnamese military men and the Viet Cong. Close observers believe they now want a government they can control.

Aside from the leaders, how far has the dissension spread among the army and the civil service?

As many as 2,000 soldiers at a time demonstrated in Da Nang against the government. Police and government officials responded overwhelmingly to the demonstrators' calls to join them.

In Hue, the situation appears even more anti - government. The South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, headquartered in the city, is believed to be under the influence of Gen. Thi, who lives in Hue.

In Dalat, Nha Trang and Quang Ngai, local authorities were slow to act against rampaging students.

The Communists have been building a network that could easily take advantage of unrest and turn it into political chaos. The Viet Cong and their backers have infiltrated all factions of Vietnamese life — the religious groups, the students, the government and the military.

The problem for authorities is: Where does a Buddhist, or agitator, or student end, and a Communist begin?

Painting of Buxom Nude Snarls Traffic

VANCOUVER (CP) — A painting of a buxom nude appeared mysteriously early Tuesday in Vancouver's newest intersection—the busy house fence—snarling traffic as motorists became instant art critics.

[illegible] vowed to a standstill as drivers appraised the latest addition to the paintings on the high fence around the provincial government's centennial fountain project in front of the courthouse.

The highly-developed panel was left overnight by an unknown artist.

Police controlled a pedestrian traffic jam on busy Georgia Street resulting from the army of businessmen people who headed for the courthouse at lunch hour.

Vancouver School of Art pupils, painting on nearby panels said the nude wasn't there when they left late Monday night.

City officials have not yet decided what to do with it.

IT'S MAYOR'S IDEA

Mayor William Rathie of Vancouver had the idea to sponsor an art contest to color up the drab chipboard fence surrounding the muddy, plowed-up lawn in front of the courthouse — and the artists loved it.

By Tuesday afternoon 40 of the 120 plywood panels were filled and city hall permits for the rest were going like hotcakes.

The huge display of free art has stolen the thunder from the provincial government's top-secret courthouse fountain project. The provincial works department left city politicians angered several weeks ago when it refused to divulge the design of the fountain.

Mayor Rathie has promised to pay cash prizes out of his own pocket for the three top entries in the contest when it closes May 21.

Styles of art so far have ranged through surrealistic to realistic and back to caricatures.

One panel getting a lot of attention carries a portrait of Premier W. A. C. Bennett wearing a Superman costume.

Gala Officers' Mess Dinner Marks Presentation of Badge

TRENTON — Last Friday evening RCAF Station Trenton was the scene of a gala officers' mess dinner held in honor of three historically significant events in the life of that station. Present at the dinner, as the guests of the Base Commander, Group Captain E. M. Butcher, CD, were eleven former Commanding Officers, representing the last 30 years of the Station's 35-year history.

The evening was held principally to present the station with its official badge which received Royal approval in February of this year. The badge is in the standard RCAF pattern with the central device heraldically described as "The Trillium of Ontario mounted on an ancient Compass Rose."

The ancient Compass Rose signifies Station Trenton's bond with the past as one of the pioneer RCAF Stations. The Compass Rose "has further significance as representing a steady guide to achievement" and its many points are indicative of the vast variety of tasks which have been performed and in its long and vital history. The Trillium depicts the location of the station in the province of Ontario and particularly in the Quinte area where the flower is found in abundance.

The Badge bears the motto "Comme Il se Doit" which, translated from the French, means "As It Should Be." The motto shows the resolution of the station to carry out whatever tasks it may be given to its best ability.

The badge was developed by a committee of three officers: Flight Lieutenants P. H. Wojciechowski, L. J. Kubas and J. J. Mortimer.

It is interesting to note that the presentation took place in the 30th anniversary year of the station's existence. Ironically, the presentation also took place in the last year of the station's existence, for on the very date of the presentation, action was ordered to have integrated forces title of "Canadian Forces Base Trenton."

The evening was a memorable occasion and a nostalgic one. Eleven of the RCAF's most senior officers had gathered to visit and pay tribute to a proud and historic station which they had all commanded. At the same time, they gathered to see that station's proud name finally accepted into the halls of heraldry.

Tomorrow night they're off — and running.

The war begins will sound the charge and the Montreal Canadiens will have at the Toronto Maple Leafs in Montreal while Chicago's Black Hawks with tomahawks at the ready will head to Detroit Red Wings within club-throwing distance of the Windy City shortly.

And it is open season for the swamis, yogis, savants, sooth-sayers, crystal-ball gazers and those ultra-loyal Joes who cannot see anything but their favorites.

Like the kinks who swore he would not eat anything but pea-soup until the Canadiens win the Stanley Cup. Right now his gills have a greenish tinge and he wakes up every morning believing "He-He-He" thinking he's a little green giant.

King Clancy, who dubbed me the night of the fight, the "tubby guy from Shelltown" says "we're the team to beat. If we beat Montreal we'll take the cup no matter who wins the other series. They won't beat us in Toronto." (Prover, Mahoney please note).

Detroit's Ted Lindsay thinks the Wings have a chance to grab the pennywave. He pointed to their 3rd record against Chicago but "we've got to start beating them some time and this could be it."

The Canadiens Toe Blake sniffs "Predictions are for tipsters. We do not care who we meet. If you're going to take it all you've got to beat the best."

Chicago's Doug Mohns spoke for his club. "Montreal and Toronto have given us a lot of trouble, more than Detroit. But the playoffs are different. Its like starting a new season and anything can happen in a short series. The breaks have a lot to do with it."

But for sheer expertise, we've got the greatest conglomeration of would-be-swamis ever assembled since Ali Khan pitched the harem and court of his incognitas cousin Tomato Soup.

The news-room-composing room soothsaying seraglios can foretell the winners of the Grey Cup, Stanley Cup, the Football Cup, the National and American League flag winners and the world series victors, the National Tiddlywink Tournament champions, in fact the winners of any event from bikini-fitting in Hawaii to lip tournaments in Uhangi.

They can prescribe cures for baldness, obesity, drooping eyelids, city councils, jaded chorus girls, income tax diseases, borrowing neighbors, nosy females, wife-eating husbands, pimples, spring fever, salesmen and potential suicides.

There are weeds and orchids in this political garden, too, depending upon which one of the Four Horsemen of the Favorite Approach you ride on.

Honor graduates of the pre-Easter crystal-gazing examinations are Yussuh Clair (voyant) Hoy and Mahomet Alexander.

By some strange freak of mentality, these turbulent swamis in a November projection scored 100 per cent on the final standings of the National Hockey League. This does not indicate any abnormal I.Q. merely that when they closed their eyes and stuck the pins in the list of team names, they hit the right targets.

The word got around. The Peace Corps has asked for an end-the-war prediction. Baseball hath seck info regarding the world series winner. Their second triumph came when someone phoned and asked what day Good Friday fell on.

But they're torn between love and duty. The Great Yussuh picks Toronto to win the Stanley silverware. The Mighty Mahomet selects Chicago as winners and bet-ball.

Meanwhile, hovering in the shadows of the background with a cat-that-ate-the-canary look, is the Grand Vizier of the Habitants, Claude D. Vice. Hevially counting the lettres which he'll pick fresh from the Hoy garden, he says the Stanley Cup won't have to go bease-hunting. The Habs will merely renew the yearly lease.

Detroit Red Wings

DETROIT (AP)—The upsurge in 30-goal players the National Hockey League this season was caused by injuries to defencemen, says Detroit Red Wings' coach Sid Abel.

A record 28 players scored 20 or more goals this year, with 10 months ago when the Black Hawks ousted the Red Wings in seven games.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks setting the pace with record 54.

"It's injuries to the defencemen," said Abel, whose Wings open their Stanley Cup semi-final series at Chicago Thursday night. "The top defencemen on every club have been hurt and they weren't injuries that just kept them out for a weekend.

"Look at us. Doug Barkley missed 27 games. Bill Gadsby and Warren Godfrey had knee operations.

"Montreal lost Jacques Laperriere and J. C. Tremblay during the season and Laperriere is out for the playoffs with that knee operation.

"Ted Green was out half the season or more for Boston, Toronto lost Carl Brewer before the season started (he retired) and Bob Baun, Marcel Pronovost and Allan Stanley all were out for fairly long periods.

"Chicago lost Pierre Pilote for 19 games," said Abel. "A club can't help but miss players like those. It has to affect the scoring."

New York's Harry Howell was the only defenceman who played the in annual all-star game last fall that went through the season unhurt.

Despite the injuries, Detroit's defence is in better shape for the Chicago series this year than

"We lost Barkley right away with a pulled groin muscle and Godfrey was getting frozen (pain killer) injections for every game," recalled Abel.

Detroit played without Barkley most of this season after he suffered an eye injury, but the shock has worn off. The Wings go into the Chicago series with only two other injuries. Defenceman Leo Boivin and centre Bruce MacGregor have pulled groin muscles. Abel said neither injury is serious.

Abel said he plans to use the line of MacGregor, Val Fonteyne and Paul Henderson to check Hull.

That means sacrificing two 30-goal players, MacGregor and Henderson, to stop one man.

"If you're going to cover Hull, you've got to forget about scoring" a goal yourself," said Abel. "The cover has to stay right on him the whole time. And Hull has a tendency to lay back when he is being checked closely."

Awarded Franchise ★★★★★ ★★★★★★ Three Rejected

St. Louis Gives Birth To The Blues

By KEN FRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Hockey League has six new franchise-holders on the mark and set to race the October, 1967, deadline for doubling the circuit to 12 teams.

For the newest franchise-holder, a St. Louis group headed by financier Sidney Salomon Jr., the race to meet the NHL's finest and arena requirements should hardly raise a sweat.

Salomon went into Tuesday's meeting of NHL governors here with an agreement to buy the St. Louis Arena, which already meets NHL standards, from Arthur Wirtz and the estate of the late James D. Norris of Chicago. The price: $4,000,000.

For the five other holders of conditional franchises, the next 19 months could be wearing. All have plans for new home arenas ready for the 12-team, two-division season of 1967. And in Pittsburgh, 2,100 seats are to be added to the arena now used by the AHL team there.

League president Clarence Campbell revealed that the governors had received and reviewed a petition from Vancouver, which did not win a franchise. Reports from Vancouver indicated 70,000 signatures were on the petition.

CAMPBELL COMMENTS

Campbell said:

—That such also as further expansion of the NHL is considered, the governors have agreed that cities such as Baltimore, Buffalo and Vancouver are acceptable and qualified areas. However, there are no additional franchises available at this time.

This is the lineup of franchise-holders, conditional until they meet all league requirements:

—Jack Kent Cooke, Los Angeles, former Toronto builder who has said he is considering possible sites for construction of a 16,000 - seat arena, a major premise in the submission that won a franchise for him over four competing groups.

—Bing Crosby, George Flaherty and Barry van Gerbig, San Francisco-Oakland, who expect to use the Alameda Coliseum, under construction in Oakland.

—Walter Buah, Gordon Ritz, John Ridder and five other associates in Minneapolis - St. Paul, who hope to have a new arena to start competition.

—Pennsylvania stats Senator Jack McGregor, Art Rooney and 29 others, Pittsburgh, where the rink now used by the AHL Hornets is to be expanded to seat 12,800.

BUILD RINK

—Jerry Wolman, William Putnam and two others, Philadelphia, who hope to have a new 15,000 - seat arena ready in time.

—Sidney Salomon Jr. and associates, St. Louis.

Salomon, a former part-owner of the Cardinals and the defunct Browns in professional baseball, was awarded the St. Louis franchise Tuesday over Carl Berat of Chicago.

Salomon, 56, prominent in raising money for the Democratic party and the Red Cross, is an investor and insurance executive. He told reporters his son, Sidney III, will sit on the NHL board of governors. Other members of his group include St. Louis investment banker Elliot H. Stein and Louis Menk, now of Chicago.

The six NHL governors made a start Tuesday on studying plans for a draft of players to stock the new entries. Proposals prepared by general manager Sam Pollock of Montreal Canadiens were represented. A decision is not expected for some weeks.

Commercial League Meets Tonight

The Belleville Commercial Softball League has its second meeting of the year on tap at the Belvedere Hotel tonight, at 7.30.

Much important business is on the agenda, according to President Dave Feeney and he asks that all possible entries have representation at the meeting.

The election of officers is scheduled, entries will be accepted and undoubtedly the change in softball rules, as adopted at the recent OASA convention, will come up for discussion.

Seven teams were represented at the league's initial meeting one week ago.

CNR Team Beaten In Semi-Final

Belleville dropped a 4-1 decision to Montreal to bow out of the annual CNR-CPR Great Lakes Region hockey tournament on the weekend.

The loss came in the semi-finals and Montreal went on to capture the championship with a 3-1 victory over Stratford.

Seven teams took part in the tourney, at Stratford, with Capreol winning the consolation title by defeating London 7-1.

Belleville slipped Capreol 1-0 in the first round in what was called one of the best games ever played in the tournament. Jim Muirhead scored the game's only goal, assisted by Jack Hughes, at 10.40 of sudden-death overtime.

Muirhead also scored the Belleville goal in the 4-1 loss to Montreal. Bob Boyle got the assist.

Toronto whipped London 9-3 and Montreal trounced Sarnia 11-3 in other first-round games while Stratford had a bye.

Stratford routed Toronto 7-3 in the other half of the semi-final.

Capreol edged Sarnia 1-0 in the consolation semis and London had a bye.

Members of the Belleville team were: W. Brant, E. Lapierre, R. Burrows, D. Potts, H. Townsend, R. Ebber, S. Muirhead, H. Pointer, B. Boyle, F. Day, B. Brooks, W. Nolan, G. Genereaux, D. Forsythe, J. Hughes, L. Potter and D. Maveau. George Bishop, Ray Jordinner and Ray Lucas formed the club coaching and managing staff.

Sudbury Concedes Senior Series

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Sudbury Levack Steelworkers conceded their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A championship final series Tuesday night after receiving an 11-1 drubbing from Collingwood Shipbuilders.

The best-of-seven series ended with Collingwood leading three games to one.

Laddy Kavluk, coach of the Steelworkers, announced the concession following a talk with the team after the game.

Masters No Plum Says Nicklaus

Crushmen Drop Opener

TORONTO (CP) — Westdale defeated Oshawa 8-4 in the first game of their OHA Junior B best-of-seven semi-final series Tuesday night.

Second and third games will be played at Oshawa Friday and Saturday, the teams returning here next Monday.

Doug Acomb and John Hughes each scored twice for Westdale, with other goals coming from Doug Histon, Gary Ross, Gord Lowe and Pete Hawke.

Phil Solomon scored two of the Oshawa goals and Bob Dickson and Jim Booth the others.

PLANS INDOOR COURTS

MONTREAL (CP)—Henri Rochon of Montreal, former Davis Cup competitor, said Tuesday night he plans to build a three-court indoor tennis facility in suburban Laval to attract international tennis competition to Canada. He said Canada has never been able to participate actively in international tennis because the season is too short to use outdoor courts.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, who will be trying for an unprecedented second straight Masters victory, scoffs at claims he has the golfing plum all wrapped up.

"That's a lot of baloney," Nicklaus said before a final tuneup for Thursday's start of the 72-hole grind over the Augusta National course.

"A lot of golfers can win this thing," he said. "A couple of bad breaks can ruin you. Most of the time this tournament is lost, not won."

He predicted that a score of 278 would be good enough to take the title. That is seven strokes above the record set last year by Nicklaus, who fired rounds of 67-71-64-69 in one of golf's most dazzling exhibitions.

Nicklaus, who also won the 1963 Masters, conceded that the hilly, 6,980-yard course is long enough to eliminate some of the 104-man field.

He doesn't think, however, that Doug Sanders, hottest player on the 1966 tour with three triumphs, is out of the running because he isn't a long driver.

'NOT LONG HITTERS'

"Doug hits the ball as far as Gary Player and Player's record speaks for itself," said Nicklaus. "If you look in the records you'll find most of the winners of the Masters weren't long hitters."

Nicklaus signaled out Arnold Palmer and Player—the other members of the Big Three that has won every Masters crown since 1960—as his leading rivals. As an afterthought, he tossed in the names of Sanders and Bruce Devlin, the lanky Australian who collected $67,000 on the tour last year without winning a tournament.

Player, the 1961 winner, said he is "hitting the ball reasonably well."

Palmer, who won the Masters in 1958, 1960, 1962 and 1964, has been working on his approaches and putting.

My short game is as bad as it has been for quite a while," he said. Many others who won fame years ago at the Masters are back for another try, including Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Byron Nelson and Gene Sarazen.

Georges Knudson of Toronto is the only Canadian in the field.

Judge Jabs Cassius; Shell Or Cell

Cited For Contempt

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cassius Clay, who boasts of the money he makes as heavyweight boxing champion, has until 5:30 p.m. Thursday to come up with $28,250 or go to jail for 30 days.

He was found in contempt of court Tuesday after he failed to show up in court to pay at least an instalment on the alimony he owes his pretty ex-wife Sonji.

At first Clay's lawyer had told Sonji's counsel he had two cheques for part of the money Clay owes—$22,500 in fees and $2,500 for two months' alimony.

One of the cheques was written on Islam Temple 2 in Chicago, a centre of Clay's Black Muslim sect.

"We are timorous of accepting such a cheque," said Lawrence Hoffman, one of Sonji's lawyers.

"You bet we are," said Leonard McMillen, the other. "Cassius already bounced one on her for $1,250. We're not taking any cheques signed by Omar Khayyam or somebody."

So they went to court.

Said circuit Judge Harold Spector: "She (Clay) didn't show up for this hearing. That is the contemptuous part. If he had come in with only a $2,000 cheque I would not have issued the order."

Two deputy sheriffs were already on the road with an arrest warrant when Clay's lawyer worked out a compromise with the judge and Sonji's lawyers.

The compromise gives Clay until Thursday to pay $28,250—$22,500 for her lawyers, $1,000 for the expense of two hearings at which Clay did not show up, $2,500 to cover the first two months' alimony and $250 for Sonji's expenses in getting to the hearing.

Clay's lawyer said Clay would get the money.

Clay said two months ago that he makes enough money to buy six jet planes. Although this was deemed a bit of an exaggeration, the court record showed he made $430,000 in 1965.

However, the money he made in his last two title defences—against Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas and against George Chuvalo in Toronto—is tied up in litigation.

Sonji, who still wears Clay's wedding ring, was asked if she would be glad to see Clay in jail.

"Well, it's his own doing. But I might visit him there. Take him some candy or something."

Clay was unavailable.

Get Thumping From Giants

Dodger Aces' Debut Is Social Affair

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale bowed over the baseball odds-makers without throwing a pitch. All they have to do now is catch up with the National League hitters.

San Francisco Giants sabotaged the Los Angeles aces' spring debut Tuesday, roughing them up in a 7-3 exhibition victory over the Dodgers. Koufax and Drysdale were clipped for six runs and 10 hits in their first competitive appearance since they ended a 32-day salary holdout last Saturday.

The Giants salvaged the last game of a three-game spring series with the world champions while Las Vegas gamblers experts were installing the Dodgers as 2½-to-1 favorites to repeat in the National League. San Francisco had been the best bet, at the same odds, before the Dodgers finally signed their pitching mainstays for a reported total of $245,000.

In Tuesday's other exhibition play, Chicago White Sox edged Cincinnati Reds 2-1 on Gene Freese's run-scoring single in the 12th inning, New York Mets blasted Detroit Tigers 11-6, Baltimore Orioles outslugged Boston Red Sox 11-6, Atlanta Braves shipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4, Cleveland Indians trimmed Chicago Cubs 8-5 and Philadelphia Phillies blanked St. Louis Cardinals 2-0.

HIT TWO HOMERS

Jim Hart drove in four runs with two homers, leading the Giants past the Dodgers. Drysdale, who pitched the first three innings, yielded four runs on five hits, including a three-run homer by Hart. Hollandbombered off Koufax, who worked the middle three innings and gave up two runs on five hits.

Hart hit his second homer off Johnny Podres in the seventh. Willie Mays, who missed the two weekend games/between the clubs because of a sore wrist, played seven innings and had a single in four trips.

The White Sox, who lead the exhibition standings with a 13-6 mark, rallied with two outs in the 17th against Cincinnati, breaking the 1-1 tie on a walk to pitcher Bruce Howard, Tom McCraw's single and Freese's hit.

Home runs by Dick Stuart, Ken Boyer, Ron Hunt and Jerry Grote led the Mets' barrage against the Tigers. Curt Blefary hit two homers, for a total of four in two days, as the Orioles pounded the Red Sox.

Denis Menke doubled in the seventh inning and scored the deciding run for the Braves on Woody Woodward's single. Tony Martinez sparked the Indians' 13-hit attack against the Cubs with three singles. Ray Herbert and rookie Grant Jackson scattered nine hits in the Phillies' victory over St. Louis.

Badminton Title To Americans

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—The United States scored an overwhelming 11-3 victory over Canada as their annual international badminton tournament ended Tuesday night.

In the key match, Jim Poole of Pasadena, Calif., defeated Wayne Macaulay of Vancouver, Canadian singles champion, 15-9, 15-7 Tuesday night, theoretically wrapping up the U.S. victory.

The United States then won the remaining four matches to turn the meet into a rout.

In the women's singles, Tyna Barinaga of Port Angeles, Wash., defeated Jean Pelimber of Calgary, Canadian champion, 11-2, 11-4.

TORONTO (CP) — A study published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal says few Canadians who qualify for admission to medical education don't gain places in Canada's 12 medical colleges. The study by D. G. Fish and G. G. Clarke of the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges concluded that "at the present time it is erroneous to speak of a surplus of qualified applicants for the study of medicine."

Expand Hall

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Board Tuesday approved an expenditure of $400,000 by the City of Toronto for an extension to the Sports Hall of Fame at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Metro Toronto council will take over the $400,000 debt when it takes over the CNE.

Canadian Injured

SAIGON (CP-AP) — James Wilde, a Canadian who is a correspondent for Time magazine, was struck in the face by a stone Tuesday when South Vietnamese police and paratroopers clashed with anti-government demonstrators. Wilde was not believed seriously hurt. He was born in Ottawa.

Orr Stars

Generals Whip Rangers

KITCHENER (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr made one glaring defensive error Tuesday night but then spent the rest of the evening redeeming himself as Oshawa Generals dumped Kitchener Rangers 5-3 to take a 2-0 lead in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A final series.

The best-of-seven series continues in Oshawa Friday night and returns here for the fourth game Saturday night.

Orr, often heralded as the answer to the problems of the slumping parent Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, let Bob Cook slip through to score the opening goal of the game for Kitchener.

But the colorful 18-year-old came back four minutes later to tie the score 1-1 and started rushes that led to three other Oshawa goals although he was awarded only one assist.

Danny O'Shea scored twice for Oshawa and Bill White and Bill Heindl added the others. Bob Cook scored twice for Kitchener and Billy Harey got the third goal.

The Rangers, playing their 18th playoff game in 29 nights, appeared to begin a rally—similar to those that have helped them beat out Niagara Falls Flyers and Toronto Marlboros in earlier series—in the second period when Oshawa's George Babcock drew a boarding major. Oshawa was leading 2-1 at the time.

However, Orr stole the puck from the onrushing Rangers and set up O'Shea's first goal of the night, giving Oshawa a 3-1 lead going into the last period.

O'Shea scored the winner at the 40-second mark and Heindl clinched the game less than four minutes later. Harey wound up the scoring at 15:22.

Referee Bob Nadon of Toronto handed out five minor penalties to each club. Kitchener's Sheldon Kannegiesser and Oshawa's Bill White drew majors for their part in a second period fight. Gary Kurt fanned 31 shots in the Kitchener nets while Ian Young handled 34 in the Oshawa goal.

Gas House Hockey League

Marysville slipped Sunnco in a 1-0 thriller this week to deadlock the Gas House Hockey League finals at one game apiece. Sunnco won the first game 2-1.

Third game in the best-of-five series is scheduled for Sunday night at 7:45.

It was a goal-tending battle all the way with Sears gaining the shutout for Marysville. Claude Carr also played an outstanding game in the losers' nets.

John Holgate scored the lone goal on a three-way play with Carm Milligan and Harold Pascoe. It came in the second period.

Chicago Black Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks may be more leery of the law of averages than Detroit Red Wings when they open their best - of - seven Stanley Cup semi-final series in Chicago Stadium Thursday night.

The Hawks, who finished second to Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League race while Detroit finished fourth, have held a spell over the Red Wings all season.

In the regular season, the Hawks won 11 games from Detroit. The best the Wings could do was one triumph and two ties.

"We're meeting a club against which we've had good luck all season," said Hawks general manager Tommy Ivan. But we're starting all over now."

Coach Billy Reay admits he's a little nervous over the Hawk record against Detroit.

'IT SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE'

"Sure it bothers me a little bit," he said. "You've got to figure they are going to win one sooner or later. It just seems impossible that we could have a record like this against a team like Detroit."

Reay is also worried about Gordie Howe and Norm Ullman who finished fifth and sixth, respectively, in the NHL scoring race.

Ullman scored 31 goals and had 41 assists for 72 points while Howe had 29 goals and 42 assists for 71 points.

Alex Delvecchio rounds out Detroit's big punch. Delvecchio finished seventh in scoring with 69 points.

The brunt of Chicago's offence will be carried by record-busting Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita. Hull's 54 goals and 97 points were NHL records for one season. Mikita finished in a second-place tie with Montreal's Bobby Rousseau. Each had 30 goals and 48 assists for 78 points.

The second game of the series will be played in Chicago Sunday. The action switches to Detroit for games Tuesday and Thursday nights.

TORONTO (CP) — Missile Dares won the $1,500 sixth race at Greenwood Raceway Tuesday night before 3,014 fans. Owned by Jimmy Jankevich of Toronto, Missile Dares completed the mile pace in 2:08 3-5 and returned $3.80, $3.50 and $2.20.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Perry Mac, a 12-year-old trotter, was the featured claiming handicap trot for $1,300 at Batavia Downs Tuesday night. Reined by Wayde Marsh, Perry Mac completed the mile trot in 2:12 4-5 and returned $47.80, $14.40 and $10.40. Keeper's Beauty, owned by the Srigley Stables of Wheatley, Ont., finished fifth.

Port Perry, Flyers All Even

PORT PERRY — Scoring a 4-1 win over Trenton SCAF Flyers here last night, Port Perry Buildboxers owned the best-of-seven OHA Intermediate C semi - final series at 3-2. Fifth game is scheduled for Trenton Community Gardens this Sunday at 6 o'clock.

Buildboxers led 1-0 after one period; outscored Flyers 2-1 in the second and scored the only goal of the third 30 minutes.

W. Venning, J. Burnett, L. Bryant and M. McKee shared the Port Perry goals. Al McVicar was the lone marksman for Flyers.

Each team has won twice on its home ice. Date for the sixth game of the series is Wednesday, April 13 at Port Perry and if a seventh game is necessary, it will be played in Trenton on Sunday, April 17.

Rangers Win Novice "B" Hawks In "A"

Rangers Captured the B.M.H.A. Novice "B" Championship last night while the Hawks gained a berth in the "A" finals.

A 4-1 triumph over the Canadiens brought the "B" title to the Rangers. Greg Scott scored two of the winners' goals and assisted on another. Greg Sly had a goal and assist and Michael MacDonald potted the other goal. Alan Stather from Rick Belanger was the Canadiens' scoring ply.

Hawks blanked the Bruins 2-0 to win their "A" semi-final. They meet the Ballwood Bantons for the championship with that series opening at 7:00 next Tuesday, April 12.

Pat Calnan and Terry Ray triggered the Hawk marksmen and Steven Tracy collected the only assist.

In a novice exhibition, Leafs dumped the Trepees 4-2. David Cochrane, Wayne Warner, Colin Sager and Peter Molarski scored for the Leafs. Steve Murdock and David Taylor had Trepee goals.

On Monday night, Bruins and Rangers tied 2-2 to open their peewee "A" semi-finals. Chris Evans scored both Bruin goals with T. Pape and Paul Ackerman having assists. Bernard Gignac and Grant McCreary got Ranger goals with Wayne Andrews helping on one.

In the opening game of the midget tinlar series, Canadiens whitewashed the Leafs 4-0. Second game will be played Monday, at 7:30 p.m.

A. Ray sparked the Canadiens' attack with two goals while G Hopkins, K. MacCormack and D. Thompson notched the others. Thompson and MacCormack each had an assist. Leafs drew four of six minor penalties.

Montreal Canadiens

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, who finished in third place in regular National Hockey League season play, had a better than .500 average against Canadiens, but Montreal coach Toe Blake doesn't see this domination continuing into the playoffs.

Canadiens, who earned $2,250 per-man for this year's first-place finish, won five straight in a stretch drive that culminated in an 8-3 rout of second-place Chicago Black Hawks here last Saturday night. They win brought them the league title for the eighth time in 11 seasons under Blake's direction.

Blake feels the club will repeat last season's win over the Leafs in the semi-final round of the Stanley Cup playoffs which get under way here Thursday night.

Canadiens handled Toronto in six games last year, before advancing to knock off Chicago in seven and win the cup.

However, the crafty Montreal coach is taking no chances.

USES ORIGINAL LINES

At the brisk 90-minute workout Tuesday morning, Blake had his forwards formed in the original lines that started the season.

Jean Beliveau worked with Bobby Rousseau and Dick Duff, centre Henri Richard had old wingmen Claude Provost and Billy Tremblay at his side, and Ralph Backstrom skated with Claude Larose and John Ferguson.

"That's just something to fall back on in case we go wrong during the playoffs," Blake said, making it clear that it was only an experiment.

Barring injury in today's practice, he'll likely revert to his winning combination of the last two weeks.

The Leafs should face Bellveaus, Tremblay and Provost, with Duff and Rousseau acting as wingmen for Ralph Backstrom while Henri Richard pivots for Ferguson and Larose.

Larose appeared fully recovered from a shoulder ailment that kept him out of the last few games. His return means the Montrealers will face Toronto with old Master defenceman Jacques Laperriere looking on from the stands.

Toronto Maple Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Red Kelly is the latest doubtful starter for Toronto Maple Leafs who open their Stanley Cup semi - final against Montreal Canadiens Thursday night.

The veteran left winger stayed home with a touch of the flu Tuesday while his team-mates went through a brisk workout in preparation for the opener of the best-of-seven series in Montreal.

With Frank Mahovlich still awaiting medical clearance for a knee injury that has kept him out of action since last Thursday, the Leafs will be forced to improvise if neither returns to action in time.

In Tuesday's workout, Kelly's spot with Bob Pulford and Eddie Shack was filled by Wally Boyer, normally Toronto's fourth-string centre, and utility man Orland Kurimbeck was working with Dave Keon and George Armstrong in place of Mahovlich.

ONE LINE INTACT

That left the third line of Pete Stemkowski, Ron Ellis and Brit Selby as the only intact formation in the workout.

The Leafs were planning to call Dick Gamble, leading scorer of the American Hockey League, from Rochester Americans to travel to Montreal with the club today in case Mahovlich or Kelly is unable to play. The Americans have clinched first place in their division and have another week to go before the AHL playoffs.

Defencemen Allan Stanley, who missed the last 11 games of the regular schedule with a knee injury, was reported ready for action although still below par. Coach Punch Imlach said he plans to dress the veteran.

"Stanley has the best shot and the right mental attitude for the playoffs," Imlach said. "I may not have to use him Thursday but if I do, I know he won't let the team down."

Mahovlich, the Leafs' leading scorer with 32 goals during the regular season, hasn't been on status since he injured his knee in Boston Thursday, but said he plans to test it today and hopes to be able to play.

Three Regional Winners Make It to Dominion Drama Festival Final in May

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four weeks of regional drama festivals across Canada ended over the weekend with eight adjudicators' selection of three plays to go to the national finals in Victoria May 13-21.

Seven finalists are chosen from 13 regions to compete for the year's Dominion Drama Festival. The other four winners will be announced later.

Winning plays in Western Quebec, Central and Western Ontario regions were automatically assured a berth in the final competition.

Two finalists will come from the Saskatchewan, Alberta - British Columbia zones and one each from the four Atlantic provinces and the Eastern Quebec - Eastern Ontario-Quebec-zones. There was no Manitoba festival this year.

The first group to make it to the finals was named at the end of the Western Ontario regional festival in Niagara Falls March 26. Adjudicator Barry Morse gave top honors to London Little Theatre for its production of Jean Anouilh's Mother Courage and Her Children.

Both festivals in Western Quebec and Central Ontario regions concluded Saturday.

ISE CANADIAN PLAY

In Montreal, adjudicator Marcel Saboorin chose Le Mouvement Contemporain's production of Les Bonnes by Jean Genet, while Enas Ljungh, who adjudicated the Central Ontario regional festival in Toronto, picked an original Canadian play, A Quarrel Unto My Brethren by Toronto playwright John Burgess, presented by The Questors.

The first regional festival was held in Edmundston, N.B., March 10-12 Jacques Zouvi, adjudicator for all Atlantic provinces, gave the top award to the University of New Brunswick Drama Society for its presentation of Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman.

Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Eastern Quebec regional festivals were held the following week.

Mr. Zouvi, a Charlottetown, gave the best production award to the Summerside RCAF Players for Lawrence Durrell's Under the Tea Yum Yum Tree.

Peter Boretski, who adjudicated the three festivals in the western provinces, picked Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's The Magistrate, presented by Regina Little Theatre in Moose Jaw.

LA MARMITE WINS

The Eastern Quebec regional festival in Chicoutimi was adjudicated by Jeanine Beaubien who favored a Jocquiere group, La Marmite, for its production of Michel Andre's La Bonne Planque.

March 28 saw winners picked in British Columbia, Western Ontario, Nova Scotia and Eastern Ontario. In Vancouver, Mr. Boretski rewarded Vancouver Little Theatre for their presentation of August Strindberg's The Father.

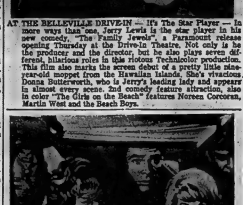
The N.S. festival was held in Antigonish where Mr. Zouvi selected Three Sheets in the Wind by Halifax playwright Doris Bailey Phillips, presented by the Halifax Theatre Company.

In Deep River, Eastern Ontario regional festival site, Mme. Beaubien gave eight awards, including best production, to Ottawa's Lakeside Theatre Productions' presentation of Tennessee Williams's The Glass Menagerie.

Besides the Western Quebec and Central Ontario selections, winning plays were named Saturday in Quebec-Northern Ontario, Alberta and Newfoundland.

P.M. MAKES AWARD

Prime Minister Pearson presented the main award of the Quebec - Northern Ontario regional festival in Espanola, Ont. to the Sault Theatre Workshop for its production of William Gibson's The Miracle Worker. Miss Jean Gascoigne adjudicated.



In Medicine Hat, Calgary's M. A. C. Theatre's The Knack by Ann Jellicoe was judged best by Mr. Boretski.

The Freelance Players of St. John's won the top festival in Halifax with their presentation of You Can't Take It With You by Moss Hart and George Kaufman.

At least one play entered in the regional festival was not disqualified. Laurentian University's Le Medecin Malgre Lui by Moliere, in the Eastern Ontario region, ran only 45 minutes, minimum playing time required by D.D.F. rules is 75 minutes, discounting intermissions.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — It's The Star Player — In more ways than one, Jerry Lewis is the star player in his new comedy, "The Family Jewels", a Paramount release opening Thursday at the Drive-In Theatre. Not only is he the producer and the director, but he also plays seven different, hilarious roles in this Hotcus Technicolor production. This film also marks the screen debut of a pretty little nine-year-old moppet from the Hawaiian Islands. She's vivacious Donna Butterworth, who is Jerry's leading lady and appears in almost every scene. And comedy feature attraction, also in color, "The Girls on the Beach" features Noreen Corcoran, Martin West and the Beach Boys.

AT THE BELLE — Friday — "That Darn Cat" is Walt Disney's latest hilarious Live-comedy, with the feline under the bed. The cute-eye view shows Hayley Mills, Dean Jones and Dorothy Provine up front supported by a contingent of entertainers in "That Darn Cat", suspense live comedy, opening on Friday, for an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre.

"The Naked Prey" Reveals an Africa As It Has Never Been Seen or Filmed Before!

"The Naked Prey," a Paramount Picture in Technicolor and Panavision, which goes Thursday at the Park Theatre, is set in Africa a century ago and tells the story of one man's ordeal to survive the ravages of man and nature in a hostile environment. This amazing film and test age of human fruit, centred about a relentless and ferocious hunt, stars Cornel Wilde, who also proved himself a versatile talent by serving, in addition to his acting, as the producer and director of this daring and unusual motion picture.

Through circumstances beyond his control, this man is stripped of all outward signs of civilization — clothing, food, weapons, and hammered down to the basics of his courage, will, capacity to act, think, endure, conquer, assert the dignity and importance of his life, choose his goals, overcome whelming obstacles and rise above himself to justify his existence.

Filmed entirely in Africa, location sites include Vendaland of the Northern Transvaal, where no feature motion picture camera has ever been before — and Salisbury, Rhodesia, Mozambique and Southern Rhodesia.

Two completely new lenses give a depth and artistic quality to the photography of "The Naked Prey" that Cornel Wilde put on the screen with new life-like magnificence. One lense creates depth never before used on screen, making such backgrounds as the Kruger National Park Baobab Tree Forest, the action one of its kind in the world, an unusual pictorial canvas for exciting action.

Determined that only the most spectacular, most scenic, most photographic, and most exciting background should provide location sites for "The Naked Prey," Cornel Wilde had one standing order: "No matter where it is, no matter how difficult it is to get there, no matter what it costs in time or money, if it offers dramatic, artistic effects and shows Africa at its most thrilling, I want to see it."

In "The Naked Prey," Wilde portrays "Man," the leading character. Through the major portion of the motion picture, the actor is seen nearly stark naked as he is hunted by the wiliest of the tracker-hunters through the African jungles.

On the same program, in color, "Apache Uprising" starring Rory Calhoun. Special matinee Friday starts at 1:30 p.m.

Dr. Kildare

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard Chamberlain is Dr. Kildare no more. You may still be seeing him Mondays and Tuesdays on the NBC scalpel opera, but his days at Blair General Hospital ended with final shooting a month ago.

"At last I think it was final," he said. "We haven't officially been told that the show was being dropped and in theory the network still has another month or two to decide, but it doesn't appear likely that we'll be back."

The season the series, highly successful as an hour, was turned into a twice-weekly show with disastrous results.

"The change was based on the assumption that the serial was on the upswing," observed Chamberlain. "It was a perfectly legitimate assumption. Unfortunately it turned out to be false."

This season started out promisingly, he said, with a drama guest - starring James Mason and Margaret Leighton. Dr. Kildare figured in the plot. But then the scripts fell back into the pattern of the long distributed Chamberlain and Raymond Massey, the redoubtable Gillespie.

PARTS SHRINK

"Our participation in the plots became more and more negligible," said Chamberlain. "Jim and I were never quite sure what our images were."

At 32, Chamberlain is aiming for more mature audiences.

He appears to have hit the mark in his first engagement after banging up his smock at M.A.S.H. He and actress Jane Marshall starred in The Philadelphia Story in Palm Beach, Fla., appearing in the role played on the screen by Cary Grant and Katherine Hepburn. The play critics reviewed Chamberlain with such phrases as "fine sense of timing," "charm and polish," "handsome and winning."

"Wow, it was great," said the actor. "I can't tell you how stimulating it was to be able to move freely on a stage after being confined to the limitations of TV for five years."

Now he plans to play Private Joe Gallo and Berkeley, Calif., this summer, provided a movie doesn't intervene.

SOAPS LAST LONG

As for Richard Burton and The Edge of Night, both afternoon soap operas, have been on television since April 2, 1956.

Belly-dancing Champion Is American Girl

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The leading Oriental dancer in Beirut, the belly-dancing capital of the Arab world, is an American from New York.

"I wanted to see the world and I am," says Jemela Omar, 26, star of a Lebanese folk dance troupe that performs for foreign tourists and Arab audiences.

"She can't even speak Arabic, but she can do things no Arab dancer can do," says the show's producer, Romeo Lebod. He need nothing curious about employing an American star.

"Local belly dancers work with their behinds and their stomachs and that is all, but this girl is much more expressive," Lebond says.

Jamela recalls;

"I was a chorus dancer in New York a few years ago and one night in a club called the Port Said I did an Oriental thing while I was somewhat under the influence. They offered me a job and I said why not? I've been at it ever since."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 7

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Study fine points. Be subtle. Don't reveal all you know. Others may be only too anxious to gossip. Rely upon experience. Recall past errors. Assets be available!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): A decision is necessary. If you put off vital affairs now . . . you treasure aura of uncertainty. Refer to accept basic responsibilities . . . then you go ahead rather than backwards.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Delve into hidden matters. Means don't be satisfied with superficial values, answers. Important to have courage of your convictions. Avoid halfway measures.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Favorable lunar aspect promotes romance, change, travel, creative hobbies. Make new starts in new directions. Stress originality. Fine evening for dining out, being with people.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Basic issues demand attention. Fix things around the house. Improve comforts of home. Don't permit minor matters to upset you. Maintain emotional balance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 23): Activity centers around journey, reunion with friends, relatives. Emphasize social affairs. Highlight segs of humor. Be receptive to new knowledge, ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Money, possessions, ability to interpret values in spotlight. Take time to study details. Be familiar with routine, regulations. Thorough approach is best.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Cycle high. Many attempt to discern your views. Be specific, state meanings with sincerity. Member of opposite sex could pay meaningful compliment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Much activity surrounds you. Important to be perceptive. Avoid needless depression, brooding. Family member could require special understanding. Keep mind, and heart open.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Good lunar aspect accents friendships, fulfillment of wishes. Aid due from surprise source. Express gratitude. Fine evening for entertaining congenial people.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20 — Feb. 19): Concentrate on career opportunities. Do things you know will aid basic aspirations. Pressure of responsibility now evident. Maintain steady pace.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Good lunar aspect stresses journeys, plans, special educational interest in significant subjects a could lead to successful career in the sciences.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Gemini: Adhere to diet, health suggestions.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you tend to be introspective, serious in purpose.

Memory Is Every Man's Magical Castle in Spain

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every man's castle in Spain is his memory.

Such a castle has certain advantages.

You can spend as much or as little time in it as you choose. It has no mortgage. But the longer you live the more rooms there are in that castle. It keeps getting bigger all the time.

Your castle of memories is pretty sizable if you can look back and remember when—

At night, as you stared up at the bedroom ceiling, the reflected light from a car passing outside revealed leering faces in the wallpaper.

A mother was afraid to leave the family cat alone in the room with a baby for fear it would suck away the infant's breath.

If something broke, you could always get the hired man to fix it—for half a dollar or less.

In the corner grocery store, the butcher wore straw cuffs, and the young clerk thought it dashing to keep a pencil stub perched on his right ear.

HAYED ELEVATORS

Some farm women hated to visit a city doctor because it made them nervous to ride up to his office in an elevator.

A favorite sport in a small town was watching the local pool shark give a smart aleck travelling salesman his comeuppance.

Only gypsy women and right society ladies had pierced ears.

Dogs ate table scraps and went through life without ever shaking paws with a veterinarian.

Charlie Chaplin's moustache was more famous than Adolf Hitler's.

The delight of childhood was to smoke a piece of broken window-glass over a lamp and look at an eclipse through it. It was firmly believed by many that bankers earned most of their money by robbing orphans and foreclosing on widows.

You know she was your true love if she let you share her straw in drinking a fivecent glass of cherry soda.

One of the predictable things about life was that a kid would have his tonsils taken out before he was old enough to wear long pants.

Those were the days! Remember?

Hydrogen Bomb Lifted From Sea

Food Prices Up Six Per Cent In Last Six Months

OTTAWA (CP)—Food prices have risen by almost six per cent in the last six months, according to official statistics.

But both the housewife trundling a grocery cart through the supermarket and official spokesmen for the government here dispute the figure.

The housewife says her purse and her pantry tell her food prices have gone up more than that. And government spokesmen say the price index doesn't reflect consumer a b i l i t y to switch to lower cost foods when prices are high.

Both arguments appear to have some solid basis.

The consumer price index for March, announced by the Bureau of Statistics Wednesday night, is 142.4 on the basis of 1949 prices equalling 100. This was up three-tenths of a point from February.

The food index for March is 143.4, compared with 142.5 in February and 136.6 a year ago.

The index of food prices climbed sharply last spring and summer, fell off in the early autumn months and started climbing again late in the year. From the low point of the slump, 135.7 in October, to the March figure six months later, the climb was 7.7 points or 5.7 per cent.

The explanation given for the housewife's contention that prices have climbed more than that is based on new products, processes, and varieties of food that reach the market from time to time.

In its survey of food prices conducted every month, DBS compares the prices of fresh tomatoes sold by the pound in bulk, for instance, with tomatoes sold the same way years ago. But a housewife will pay more for tomatoes sold in plastic containers, already packed for size and wrapped in transparent film.

The same applies, for instance, with fresh carrots, now sold prewashed and packed in peanut butter in glasses illustrating kiddies' nursery rhymes, and fish already breaded, frozen and packed in trays ready to pop in the oven.

Spokesmen for the government's political leaders have for months been saying the increase in food prices as measured by DBS really exaggerates things.

High beef prices, for instance, have been prompted by high U.S. meat prices, and the official statistics don't take account of a housewife's ability to buy some other meat cheaply when beef prices are high.

Easter Recess Called

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons pushed through a bit of legislation Wednesday then adjourned for a 13-day Easter recess. The cabinet used the last day for two major announcements.

Prime Minister Pearson laid out the government's long-term program to increase bilingualism in the civil service and a national wildlife policy was set out by Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

On their return April 19, MPs will resume debate on Finance Minister Sharp's budget speech.

MPs Wednesday gave final approval to bills:

—Amending the Bills of Exchange Act to permit chartered banks to stay open Easter Monday and to deal immediately with dishonored cheques tendered on Saturdays. As the act stands the banks must wait until the following Monday to take action.

—Amending the Aeronautics Act to empower government airports to charge owners and operators of aircraft for service; and to increase maximum membership of the Air Transport Board to five from three.

—Changing the name of the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act to the Agricultural and Rural Development Act.

LOOKS TO 1975

Mr. Pearson looked as far ahead as 1975 in his timetable for civil service bilingualism and specifically excluded scientific, military personnel, professional groups and employees of Crown corporations.

Legislation will bring higher pay for secretaries and clerks needing it in their jobs and "an element" of merit in selection of university graduates for administrative posts. It will be a requirement for senior and administrative hirings in bilingual areas by 1970 and a requirement in promotions by 1975.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Parliament has exclusive authority to make such changes and asked to have the whole matter referred to a House committee.

New Democratic Creditiste and Social Credit speakers welcomed the programs.

Key feature of Mr. Laing's policy was a promise of wide-ranging research programs to "maintain and sustain" Canada's wildlife resources.

The policy makes federal aid available to the provinces, which have responsibility for all wildlife except migratory game animals in national parks, and certain dwindling species in the Northwest Territories.

Teamsters Likely to Accept

TORONTO (CP) — Ray Taggart said Wednesday night he was "confident" 8,500 striking truckers will accept a tentative settlement negotiated by union and management representatives in a province-wide strike against 35 Ontario trucking firms.

Mr. Taggart, president of Local 879 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (ind.) and chairman of the union bargaining committee, said the agreement reached Wednesday night will be recommended for acceptance to about a dozen membership meetings in Hamilton, Windsor, London, Kingston and Toronto during the weekend.

Results of the vote should be known by Tuesday, he said.

But, Mr. Taggart added in an interview, the truckers will not return to work until 5,000 maintenance members of the union have reached a separate monetary agreement with the Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representative of the trucking firms.

The local president declined comment on the terms of the tentative contract, saying he would have to wait for the membership's vote.

"We haven't accomplished everything we would like to have but I am pleased with the over-all picture," he said.

WANTS 40-HOUR WEEK

The union has been asking for a 40-hour week during the life of a contract no longer than two years.

RED JET IN MYSTERY CRASH — A barge equipped with a crane lifts from the water the wreckage of a Soviet jet plane that crashed yesterday into West Berlin's Havel River. Mystery quickly developed around who was flying it and what happened to those aboard, since no sign of who was in it has been discovered. It appears to be an old-model MiG or Ilyushin 28. British Troops Guard Wreck Of Soviet Union Jet Fighter

BERLIN (Reuters) — British troops today stood guard over a Russian jet fighter that crashed into a West Berlin lake Wednesday.

When the MIG-19 crashed, a Russian general and a busload of armed Russian troops tried to approach the wreck, with its nose buried in the lake bottom and only its tail visible. But British military police hurried forward and kept the Russians on their bus.

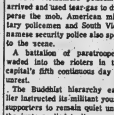
Four Soviet officers were allowed to remain as observers pending completion of attempts to get the plane out of the water.

Tass news agency said the two men on the plane sacrificed their lives to avoid crashing in a densely populated part of West Berlin.

Tass said the plane was en route between two East German airports when the pilot lost control. Ground control heard a last-minute exchange with another plane, in which the flyers decided to stay aboard and dive the plane into a river.

The flyers were apparently catapulted out of the plane when it hit. Rescue workers got the cockpit out of the water at one point before stopping work for the night, and found it empty.

Observers agreed that the pilot had aimed at the lake. The crash site was only a few hundred yards from an apartment building with 2,000 residents.



Eyewitnesses said the plane hit and exploded in a ball of fire before sinking.

The Western allies sent a stiff joint protest to the Russians at the four-power air safety centre, protesting the "example of irresponsible and careless flying over heavily-populated areas."

SAIGON (AP) — Hundreds of anti - government demonstrators poured toward downtown Saigon tonight and burned a U.S. military police jeep a few hours after Buddhist leaders demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime pledge publicly to give way to a civilian government in five or six months.

No Americans were reported injured.

"End the war immediately," said one of the banners carried by the demonstrators.

Another said Mr. Laing's policy was a promise of widening research programs to "maintain and sustain" Canada's wildlife resources.

The police makes federal aid available to the provinces, which have responsibility for all wildlife except migratory game animals in national parks, and certain dwindling species in the Northwest Territories.

How Shares Financed A Mystery

TORONTO (CP) — Who financed the $25,000 sale of stock that gave Mr. Justice Leo Landreville 7,500 free shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co.?

The Rand inquiry into the propriety of the Ontario judge's dealings with that company is heard at least four versions of the sale from participants.

A commission - retained accountant said the sale was charged to Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, president of NONG at the time of the 1957 transaction.

The commission undre Ivan C. Rand, retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, got his the bookkeeping maze Wednesday night as it examined all of the witnesses except Mr. Justice Landreville who will testify in Ottawa April 25.

CAS Matron Assaulted, Purse Lifted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A youth, believed an escapee from a Toronto correctional institution, assaulted a Children's Aid Society matron here Wednesday night and escaped with her car and purse containing about $50.

Mrs. Florence Featherston, superintendent of the CAS-operated Maycourt House here, told police the youth came to her home and ordered her into the car with him. When she refused, he struck her in the face and grabbed her purse and keys and fled with the car.

Police believe the youth escaped from the Salvation Army's Concord House in Toronto last Saturday.

Bomb Said Safe

MADRID (AP)—A hydrogen bomb, missing since the crash of a U.S. nuclear bomber Jan. 17, has been recovered from the sea off Spain's southeast coast, it was officially announced today.

The announcement wrote finish to an outstanding underwater project which began after a B-52 bomber and its refueling tanker collided at high altitude and crashed along Palomares Beach.

The recovery was made by U.S. Naval Piers 66, which under Rear-Admiral William S. Guest had been searching the sea depths more than two months.

The bomb was located in 2,200 feet of water almost exactly where Spanish fishermen Francisco Simo told the searchers he saw it fall into the sea.

A U.S. spokesmen said the bomb was pulled up by the small submarine rescue vessel Petrel. A 2,850-ton vessel, the Petrel is jammed with special equipment for underwater operations.

U.S. officials would not comment, but informants said that the second of the bombs lost in the bomb was made by CURV, a remotely-control vehicle flown to the area from Port Hueneme, Calif.

U.S. embassy officials said the bomb was intact and not damaged.

The bomb, described as a 20-megaton hydrogen bomb, was one of four lost from the B-52 in the collision and crash in which seven airmen were killed. Eight other American airmen were killed in the crash of a C-134 transport which was on a support mission for the search and recovery groups off Palomares Beach.

The other three bombs fell on shore and were quickly recovered. But two of them were damaged when left a residue of radioactivity which was cleaned up by removing nearly 5,000 steel drums of earth and vegetation.

March 15, following fisherman Simo's directions, Alvin found the bomb resting against a 70 - degree slope, partly wrapped in its parachute.

Riots Hit Calcutta, Kowloon Two Dead, Damage in Millions

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Gestures of Kowloon had a scarred wartime look today following millions of dollars worth of damage after a fiery riot in the increase amounting to one cent.

Wrecks of overturned, burned out cars and scores of buses lie abandoned as police with carbines and troops in battle gear patrolled the streets. Parking meters were bent or torn out of the ground and broken glass, bottles and stones littered the roads.

More than 400 persons were arrested and questioned, either for rioting or for breaking the curfew, only the second imposed since the Second World War. It expired at 8 a.m.

Many shops along the "tourist mile" of Nathan Road reported wholesale looting. But by dawn a government spokesman said "all is law and order."

The thousands of rioters, mostly youths and some only 10 or 12 years old, rampaged for the second night in a row in protest against a proposal to raise first-class fares across the harbor between mainland Kowloon and Hong Kong by five Hong Kong cents—about equal to one Canadian cent. The fare now is 20 cents.

The demonstrations were the ugliest since the 1956 Kowloon riots in which 59 were killed and 364 were injured. But this time only 12 were known to have been hurt and only four taken to hospital in the clashes between stone-throwing, placard-carrying demonstrators and police who answered with tear-gas grenades. Four of those hurt were policemen.

The outburst, which was limited to Kowloon started with the arrest of a young Chinese who was on a hunger strike to show his dissatisfaction over the fare increase.

Many of those who started by shouting "Down with fare increases" turned later to anti-British and anti - government chants. Reporters heard sporadic outbursts of "Go home British."

Throughout today, the Hong Kong Regiment and auxiliary air force units were out in strength.

Seal Hunters Warned to Yell "Charlie" Before They Shoot

KYUQUOT, B.C. (CP)—Up on the isolated northwest coast of Vancouver Island the seal hunters yell "Charlie" before they shoot.

That way, Miss Charlie stands a good chance of coming through another summer alive.

Miss Charlie is a celebrity to the fishermen and seal hunters in the neighborhood—she's the only prematurely born baby seal in Kyuquot Sound who learned to drink from a bottle, learned to swim in a bathtub and learned to hunt fish by chasing a string.

She became a federal case last summer when she held up an $80,000 underwater demolition job in Kyuquot harbor for a week. A government crew sat idle, waiting to touch off 15 tons of dynamite to blow up a shoal, while residents hunted Miss Charlie and penned her up safely.

Lucy Kayra says it was the summer of 1964 when two seal - hunters killed Miss Charlie's mother and delivered the pup by the wharf section. They gave the baby seal to Lucy and her husband Eric.

The new parents fixed a box in the hall for her to sleep in and put her in the bathtub to learn to swim."

They fed her milk, laced with oil, from a baby bottle.

When she was ready, Miss Charlie was tossed into the sound for early training practice.

"Our biggest mistake was feeding her nothing but salmon. So this fall we had to take anything else from us," Lucy says.

The Kayras realized they would have a feeding problem if Miss Charlie didn't take over her own menu.

"I tied a piece of fish to a thread and pulled it through the water," Lucy says.

"I don't know whether this helped, but by the time she was five months old she was feeding herself."

The residents of Kyuquot Sound have learned to cry "Charlie" loudly before firing at any seal in the area.

The natives hunt seal for food in winter and have really been good about calling "Charlie," Lucy says.

"She goes right over to their boats and this has also been part of several times from killer whales.

"Last summer we had her tied and paraded while out put up posters in the fish camps hoping no one would shoot her."

Miss Charlie is a pet of the children, who swim and play with her.

But with another fishing season approaching, bringing with it the usual influx of transients, the Kayras are afraid she might be picked off by a stranger.

So, stranger, if you're hunting seals in the Kyuquot area, yell "Charlie" in a loud voice.

Teamsters Likely to Accept

TORONTO (CP) — Ray Taggart said Wednesday night he was "confident" 8,500 striking truckers will accept a tentative settlement negotiated by union and management representatives in a province-wide strike against 35 Ontario trucking firms.

Mr. Taggart, president of Local 879 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) and chairman of the union bargaining committee, said the agreement reached Wednesday night will be recommended for acceptance to about a dozen membership meetings in Hamilton, Windsor, London, Kingston and Toronto during the week-end.

Results of the vote should be known by Tuesday, he said.

But, Mr. Taggart added in an interview, the truckers will not return to work until 1,000 maintenance members of the union have reached a separate monetary agreement with the Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representative of the trucking firms.

The local president declined comment on the terms of the tentative contract, saying he would have to wait for the membership's vote.

That way, Miss Charlie stands a good chance of coming through another summer alive.

Miss Charlie is a celebrity to the fishermen and seal hunters in the neighborhood—she's the only prematurely born baby seal in Kyuquot Sound who learned to drink from a bottle, learned to swim for a bathtub and learned to hunt fish by chasing a string.

She became a federal case last summer when she held up an $80,000 underwater demolition job in Kyuquot harbor for a week. A government crew sat idle, waiting, to touch off 15 tons of dynamite to blow up a shoal, while residents hunted Miss Charlie and pestered her on safety.

Lucy Kayra says it was the summer of 1964 when two seal - hunters killed Miss Charlie's mother and delivered the pup by Caesarean section. They gave the baby seal to Lucy and her husband John.

The new parents fixed a box in the hall for her to sleep in and put her in the bathtub to learn to swim.

They fed her milk, laced with cod liver oil, by baby bottle.

When she was ready, Miss Charlie was tossed into the sound for swimming practice.

"Our biggest mistake was feeding her nothing but salmon. To this day she won't take anything else from us," Lucy says.

The Kayras realized they would have a feeding problem if Miss Charlie didn't take over her own menu.

"I tied a piece of fish to a thread and pulled it through the water," Lucy says.

"I don't know whether this helped, but by the time she was five months old she was feeding herself."

The residents of Kyuquot Sound have learned to cry "Charlie" loudly before firing at any seal in the area.

The natives hunt seal for food in winter and have really been good about calling "Charlie," Lucy says.

"She goes right over to their boats and this has also saved her several times from killer whales.

"Last summer she had her best pal mind stalls and up posters in the fish camps hoping no one would shoot her."

Miss Charlie is a pet of the children, who swim and play with her.

But with another fishing season approaching, bringing with it the usual influx of transients, the Kayras are afraid she might be picked off by a stranger.

So, stranger, if you're hunting seals in the Kyuquot area, yell "Charlie" in a loud voice.

South Viet Nam Drafts Youths Held as Rioters

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — Hundreds of anti - government demonstrators poured toward downtown Saigon tonight and burned a U.S. military police jeep a few hours after Buddhist leaders demanded that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime pledge public government in five or six months.

No Americans were reported injured.

As the violence spread, part of the mob turned its wrath on an American civilian and a South Vietnamese girl trying to maneuver through on a motorcycle. They drove the couple off with a barrage of rocks, shattered glass windows and doors of a house where they sought refuge and set the motorcycle ablaze.

South Vietnamese policemen arrived and used tear-gas to disperse the mob. American military policemen and South Vietnamese security police also sped to the scene.

A battalion of paratroopers waded into the rioters in the city's 6th continuous day of unrest.

The Buddhist hierarchy earlier instructed its militant young supporters to remain quiet until the junta replied to its request. A Buddhist statement said the government agreed privately to a popularly elected constituent assembly within five or six months.

WILL MAKE REPORT

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul's emerged birth control commission will hold a crucial plenary session in June to draw up a report of its views—and possibly recommendations — on artificial contraceptive devices long banned for Roman Catholics. This was learned Wednesday from sources close to Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, named by Pope Paul last month to direct the newly expanded commission.

British Troops Guard Wreck Of Soviet Union Jet Fighter

BERLIN (Reuters) — British troops today stood guard over a Russian jet fighter that crashed into a West Berlin lake Wednesday.

When the MIG-19 crashed, a Russian general and a busload of armed Russian troops tried to approach the wreck, with its nose buried in the lake bottom and only its tail visible. But British military police hurried forward and kept the Russians on their bus.

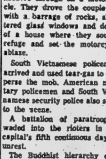
Four Soviet officers were allowed to remain as observers pending completion of attempts to get the plane out of the water.

Two Soviet agency said the two men on the plane sacrificed their lives to avoid crashing in a densely populated part of West Berlin.

It said the plane was on a flight between two East German airports when the pilot lost control. Ground control heard a last-minute exchange with another plane, in which the flyers decided to stay aboard and dive the plane into a river.

The flyers were apparently catapulted out of the plane when it hit. Rescue workers got the cockpit out of the water at one point before stopping work for the night, and found it empty.

Observers agreed that the pilot had aimed at the lake. The crash site was only a few hundred yards from an apartment building with 2,000 residents.



Eyewitnesses said the plane hit and exploded in a ball of fire before sinking.

The Western allies sent a stiff protest to the Russians at the four-power air safety centre, protesting the "example of irresponsible and careless flying over heavily-populated areas."

CAS Matron Assaulted, Purse Lifted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A youth, believed an escapee from a Toronto correctional institution, assaulted a Children's Aid Society matron here Wednesday night and escaped with her car and pocketbook containing about $120.

Mrs. Florence Featherstone, superintendent of the CAS-operated Marycourt House here, told police the youth came to her home and ordered her into the car with him. When she refused, he struck her in the face and grabbed her purse and keys and fled with the car.

Police believe the youth escaped from the Salvation Army's Concord House in Toronto last Saturday.

How Shares Financed A Mystery

TORONTO (CP) — When financed the $25,000 sale of stock that gave Mr. Justice Leo Landreville 7,500 free shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co.?

The Rand inquiry into the propriety of the Ontario judge's dealings with that company is heard at least four versions of the sale from participants.

A commission - related account said the sale was arranged by Ralph E. Farris of Vancouver, president of NONG at the time of the 1957 transaction.

The commission undre Ivan C. Rand, retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, got into the bookkeeping mass Wednesday night as it examined all of its witnesses except Mr. Justice Landreville who will testify in Ottawa April 25.

Riots Hit Calcutta, Kowloon Two Dead, Damage in Millions

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Reactions of Kowloon had a scarred wartime look today following millions of dollars worth of damage in riots over a fare-fare increase amounting to one cent.

Wrecks of overturned, burned out cars and scores of buses lay abandoned as police with carbines and troops in battle gear patrolled the streets. Parking meters were bent or torn out of the ground and broken glass, bottles and stones littered the roads.

More than 400 persons were arrested and questioned, either after rioting or for breaking the curfew, only the second imposed since the Second World War. It expired at 8 a.m.

Many shops along the "tourist mile" of Nathan Road reported wholesale looting. But by dawn a government spokesman said since the Second World War. It expired at 8 a.m.

Many shops along the "tourist mile" of Nathan Road reported wholesale looting. But by dawn a government spokesman said:

"The thousands of rioters, mostly youths and some only 10 or 12 years old, rampaged for the second night in a row in protest against a proposal to raise first-class fares across the harbor between mainland Kowloon and Hong Kong by five Hong Kong cents—about equal to one Canadian cent. The fare now is 20 cents.

The demonstrations were the ugliest since the 1956 Kowloon riots in which 59 were killed and 364 were injured. But this time only 12 were known to have been hurt and only four taken to hospital in the clashes between stone-throwing, placard-carrying demonstrators and police who answered with tear-gas grenades. Four of those hurt were policemen.

The outburst, which was limited to Kowloon started with the arrest of a young Chinese who was on a hunger strike to show his dissatisfaction over the fare increase.

Many of those who started by shouting "Down with fare increases" turned later to anti-British and anti - government chants. Reporters heard sporadic outbursts of "Go home British."

Throughout today, the Hong Kong Regiment and auxiliary air force units were out in strength.

CALCUTTA (CP) — At least two persons were killed in India's largest city when police were opened fire to ward off attacking Hindu mobs for a few hours after the end of a chaotic 36-hour general strike organized by leftist groups throughout West Bengal state.

The first attack was by a mob of 2,000 who threw rocks and bombs at a police headquarters. Two persons were killed in this clash.

Police opened fire again when another throng attacked a police truck, set it on fire in the United Left Front, which sponsored Wednesday's 24 - hour strike, said one person was killed in the second shooting.

Police spokesmen were hurled in street fighting.

The outbreak began when several thousand people gathered at a spot where a 12-year-old boy was run over and killed by a police car Wednesday.

The strike was called to protest the government's alleged repressive policies in arrests of opposition leaders, and refusal to start a judicial inquiry into shooting by police during food riots in mid-March.

Reports from other towns in West Bengal said there were only a few "minor" incidents. But in one of them a Communist member of the state legislature was beaten so badly he had to be taken to hospital.

Ministers Will Picket Peterborough Rite-Way

Four Montreal Men Remanded For One Week

Four Montreal men were remanded for one week today by Magistrate T. T. Wills on charges of armed robbery in connection with the March 30th holdup of the Bank of Montreal at Frankford.

In a special court preceding regular Hastings County Court today Magistrate Wills remanded Maurice Langis, 31, Armand Bisson, 39, Victor Tessier, 43, and Gilles Gauthiotte, 27, all of Montreal.

Bail was set at $25,000 each.

Members of the Peterborough Ministerial Association state they will picket the Rite-Way Store in that city in protest against it remaining open for business on Good Friday, but no similar action is planned by Association members at Belleville.

"We are concerned about any store remaining open for business on Good Friday but don't feel that there is much we can do about it," stated Rev. Gordon Woodcock, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association.

Mr. Woodcock noted that last year the Association published an open letter protesting the decision of the Belleville Rite-Way Store to remain open on Good Friday.

"All that happened was that the people flocked to the store in thousands," he said, appparently the store intends to stay open.

This year the local Association wrote to municipal authorities in Sidney township and also at Welland, requesting the legal aspect of stores remaining open on the holiday but no satisfaction was received.

In the face of public apathy the Association's attitude this year will be one of "what's the use."

Above Normal Snowfall for Past Winter

We're still getting traces of the fluffy white stuff but the slightly more than normal snowfall of the past winter season is now all but forgotten.

The March report from the climatological office at Twin Oaks shows that 79.15 inches of snow fell last winter of which 8.63 inches were recorded during the month. The average snowfall for March is 10.95 inches and for the season, 85.61 inches.

Total precipitation for March (with snow mel ed to water) is given as 2.12 inches.

The mean March temperature was 31.07 degrees with 28.7 degrees given as the normal mean.

Lowest reading of the month was five degrees, a comparative balmy belt temperature considering the 20 below recorded on March 4th back in 1951.

Vimy Veterans Will Observe Anniversary

On Saturday evening Belleville Branch 59 of the Royal Canadian Legion will celebrate the Forty Ninth Anniversary of the famous Battle of Vimy Ridge that started on Easter Monday morning at 5.01 a.m. on April 9th, 1917 when Canada made history for the world.

The Ladies Auxiliary for Br. 99 will do the catering and a real delicious turkey dinner with all the trimming will be the order for the day.

Many distinguished head table guests will be present and Dr. G. S. Cronk M.B. M.D. C.M. will be the guest speaker and will give a talk on his early experiences on the Battle Field in the Far East, in the First World War.

Chairman Everett Liddle and Co-Chairman Roy Madden have arranged a very fine program, which should be enjoyed by all.

Comrade F. W. Houchin of Stirling Branch of the Legion will be the pianist for the singing of the old songs that the Veterans sang in the first World War ,1914-18. Trumpeter Jack Green will sound the Reveille and Last Post during the two minutes silence in memory of our fallen Comrades.

There will be a large showing of Veterans of the First World War and tickets are now at a premium. Many actual war veterans will also be present.

AUSSIES VISIT EXPO

The Melbourne Symphony Orchestra and the Australian Ballet Company will perform at Expo 67.

JAMES EDMOND SMITH

DESERONTO — Born in Deseronto and a resident there most of his life, James Edmond Smith of Dundas St., died on Sunday in the Kingston General Hospital. He was in his 86th year.

Mr. Smith was the son of the late George D. Smith, his wife, formerly Hannah Bell, predeceased him in 1947. He was educated in Deseronto. He was a self-employed mason, following his trade in his home town until 1937 when he and his wife moved to Toronto. After her death he returned to Deseronto, which has since been his home.

He was active in sports as a young man, and never lost his interest. Everyone in Deseronto knew and liked "Ed" Smith, and regretted the accident which hospitalized him last fall. He was making a doll's bed for his granddaughter when he fell in his workshop and broke his hip. He left hospital for a short time and was with his daughter Mrs. Ralph Schell of Bath, but was taken back to hospital soon afterwards. He was an active member of St. Mark's Anglican Church.

He is survived by two daughters: Mrs. Ralph Schell (Harriet) of Bath; and Mrs. S. Bruton (Rebecca) of Port Perry; by his grandchildren Lynda and Robert Bruton and Hannah Schell; and by one sister, Miss Violet Smith of Deseronto.

The funeral service was held in the chapel of the White and Morris Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. A. F. Dowdell officiating.

The bearers were: Sidney Brown, William Cassidy, W. Herrington, William Schell, R. Sullivan and Barney Thompson.

Interment was in Deseronto Cemetery.

MRS. CHARLES HALEY

Ill for the past four weeks, Mrs. Alma Haley, 36 Graham Street, died Wednesday in Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 70th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livingston, she was born at Wellington and had lived at Hillier before coming to Belleville 48 years ago. She was a member of St. Michael's Church and belonged to the Canadian Legion and the Moose Lodge.

Predeceased by her husband, Charles Haley, she is survived by a son Douglas, and a daughter, Mrs. Herbert (Stella) Cleaver, both of Belleville.

Mrs. Haley was married twice. Her first husband was the late Percival Morris.

There are two sisters Miss Luella Livingston and Mrs. William (Mary) Hendy, both of Belleville, and 18 grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning from the O'Brien - Rolleston Funeral Home to St. Michael's Church. Interment will be in St. James' Cemetery.

MRS. CHRIS KROG
Royal Oak Michigan , Mount Pleasant Rewdon

STIRLING — Mrs. Chris Krog, the former Dorothy Sharp of Mount Pleasant Rawdon died on Thursday, March 31st at Royal Oak, Michigan, following an illness of a few months. The funeral was held on Saturday, April 2nd, in that city and it was the day after her 58th birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Krog was born at Mount Pleasant a daughter of the late Charles Sharp of Consecon and the late Mr. Sharp. She attended the Alma Jubilee School and later took a [illegible] in Royal Oak, Michigan, still her home. Her husband predeceased her in 1948.

She is survived by three sons Donald, James and Michael, her mother Mrs. Charles Sharp and four sisters, Mrs. H. J. Millar (Leola) Sandra Flak, Mrs. Aubrey Bruyea (Audrey) Sarnia, Mrs. Kenneth Johnson (Marie) Belleville, Mrs. Lorne and Carmichael (Winnie) Belleville; a brother Kenneth died several years ago at Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Krog's mother and sisters were in attendance at the funeral.

CHARLES LINDSEY

The funeral of Charles Lindsey of Belleville was held Wednesday from the chapel of the Grant Funeral Home to Elmwood Cemetery, where Rev. L. C. Mann officited at the committal rites. The bearers were Earl Keane, Stanley Hayton, Clayton Murray, Charles Bailey, Oliver Plane, and Fred Smith.

Tweed High School Cadets Visit Florida

Thirteen cadets from the Tweed-Centreville High School will be on their way to Florida this evening for a ten-day Easter holiday trip, which will take in Cape Kennedy and other points of interest.

The boys are scheduled to leave this evening by bus with their chief instructor- R. J. Calnan.

To help finance the trip South the school cadet corps conducted a dance and also raised some funds through a bottle collection drive.

The trip will include stops at Florida points, Jacksonville, Tampa, Lake City and Cape Kennedy, Miami, Knoxville, Daytona, Toledo and Windsor.

Ross Empey Heads City Softball

A disappointing turnout at the City Commercial Softball League "meeting Wednesday night failed to elect plans for the election of the 1966 executive.

Ross Empey was named president, Ken MacLeod vice - president and Jack Feeney secretary - treasurer.

Only six teams were represented. They were: Point Anne, Bayside Farmer, Black Diamond Cheese, Lightfoot Construction, City Hotel and Belvedere Hotel.

Those present expressed concern over the lack of diamonds available and also over the lights situation at the newly - renovated Alemite Field. "We don't know whether they are going to do about the lights, if anything, nor do we know how much that will cost. We'll have to find out before we sign," said one former league executive this morning.

The new playing rules, with longer bases and pitching distance, adopted by the OASA also was discussed and most of those present leaned toward accepting these rules for the Commercial League.

Another meeting has been called for Sunday, May 2. This will be the entry deadline meeting. Time and place will be announced later.

Cool Weather To Continue Couple of Days

TORONTO (CP) — Snow fell for the sixth consecutive day in Toronto early today and the weatherman predicted another two or three days of similar damp and cool conditions over most of Ontario.

Large snowflakes suggested the precipitation would turn to rain as it has for almost a week as a result of a stationary high pressure system centred over Sault Ste. Marie.

Temperatures continue to be unseasonably low. High forecast today in Toronto is 40 degrees. Last year on this day it was 58.

IN MEMORIAM

BATEMAN, Annie Elizabeth — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother who passed away April 7th, 1962.
Though years have passed since you left us dear,
Memories of you are always near.
Still we have so many memories,
Which we treasure more and more.
With your memory we'll live on,
Until the day dawns when we meet you.
We have her in our hearts.
Sadly missed by her husband Percy.

ALFORD — In loving memory of our dear mother who died April 8, 1961.
Sweet was your smile, never a frown,
Always a kind word and you were down.
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by her husband John.

ALFORD — In loving memory of our dear father and husband who passed away April 8, 1961.
His work was done for heaven,
God took him home in rest,
And left us with the memory
Of one we loved the best.
For you'll never know the heartache
Or the pain we've caused you,
Nor will you ever know the tears we've shed,
Maybe you'll look down and see us,
Dear father remembered by Ivy, Bob and Janet.

MARSHALL — In loving memory of our dear father and husband Frederick Marshall, who passed away April 8, 1964.
Dear father you would give if we could
Your very best,
Your life, your health, your home old year
To hear your voice, see your smile
Once more,
To walk and talk and chat awhile,
So you who have not gone before
Will not be sad,
For you'll never know the heartache
We have had.
Nor can we cancel sharp regret
Memories of you will not forget.
Mary and grandson Chris, son Joe and Jean.

MACKEMAN — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Daniel Mackeman who passed away April 8, 1964.
Everyday is some small way,
Memories of you we treasure,
Though absent from our sight,
You are very near,
And memories will keep you there.
—Sadly missed by daughter Verna, son-in-law Stanley and children and great grandchildren.

BARNHART — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Jacob Barnhart, who passed away April 8, 1964.
We are not forgotten dear father,
Lonely in our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly,
His forever been called away,
Sadly missed and remembered,
But many silent hours he died,
When others are asleep.
Remembered by Florence, Robert, Jacob, David, Joe and grandchildren.

Alarm Among Non-Pilot RCAF Aircrew

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department conceded Wednesday that there is "alarm and despondency" among non-pilot aircrew in the RCAF.

A department spokesman said It was only natural these aircrew would feel discriminated against after pay increases for pilots of up to $9,000 a year were announced Friday.

The hope is that resentment among navigators, radar and radio officers and flight engineers will die down. The armed forces are scheduled for a general pay increase in October.

Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, chief of the defence staff, held a meeting here Tuesday with commanders and their chief staff officers to explain the reasons for the pilot pay increases and how it will be implemented.

One of the chief attractions, besides the increase itself, is that pilots will also get higher pensions.

Informants said the pilot drain from the armed forces to commercial airlines simply had to be stopped because it was becoming critical. There is little civilian demand for other aircrew.

One source said a commercial airline set up shop in a hotel only three miles from the RCAF base at Baden-Soellingen, Germany, and held out big money.

CNR Violated Labor Contract Says Ruling

OTTAWA (CP)—An arbitrator has ruled that the CNR violated a labor contract last December when it applied a federal labor code provision to shift Christmas and New Year's holiday observances to Dec. 27 and Jan. 3.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) received formal notice Wednesday that its claims against the railway for holiday overtime pay to about 7,000 members have been upheld.

A union spokesman said it will mean an additional $20,000 for the workers involved and is the largest single arbitratiin award ever made in Canada.

The complicated case, involving differences between the labor code and the CNR contract with the railway, was heard in Montreal last week by J. A. Hanrahan, Q.C., of Ottawa, in railway contract grievances.

It will take several weeks to work out the total payment resulting from the ruling but the amount expected to be paid is between $20 and $40 for each member involved.

Both Christmas and New Year's Day fell on Saturday last winter. The CNR, citing a section of the labor standards code, said it would give employees the holidays on the following Monday.

The CBRT protested that it preferred to follow the contract under which statutory holiday observances cannot be switched.

TWENTY-THREE TONS OF CONSTRUCTION MATERIAL — Workmen on the Palmer Road construction site of Centennial Secondary School are shown guiding a massive prestressed concrete "T" slab into place with the assistance of Wilson Concrete's 100-ton mobile crane. The 77-foot-long slabs are 8 feet in width, and form the roof of what will be the shop and cafeteria areas in the school's west wing.

Construction Roundup

Centennial High School Work Is Moving Faster

With the moderation of weather conditions recently, work on the new Centennial High School on Palmer Road has been gathering momentum, and Building Superintendent C. LaRocque reports that construction is proceeding pretty much on schedule.

The entire second-story roof level has now been poured and is ready to receive structural steel placings. When this has been accomplished, work will get underway on the third floor penthouse structure which is to house the heating and air conditioning units.

A considerable amount of pouring, estimated by Mr. LaRocque at 10,000 square feet of concrete, has been completed at the ground floor level, on top of the sand fill.

To the south of the main structure ,the masonry of the future gymnasium walls was raised this week to a level of 14 feet.

What constitutes perhaps the most dramatic progress in the building during the past few weeks has been the work done on the west wing of the school. With the walls of the cafeteria and shop areas erected, Wilson Concrete of Belleville began and completed the installation of massive 23-ton prestressed concrete "T" slabs, which form the roof of this section of the structure. The slabs, each 77 feet long, 8 feet in width, and 3 feet deep, were placed in position with Wilson's 100-ton mobile crane, using a 100-foot long boom.

Wilson's had to obtain a special permit, with the assistance of transport and education authorities, for the moving of the huge crane from Ottawa to the construction site during "half-load" season on the provincial highway.

Wieger De Jong Contractors, of Stirling are at present concentrating their efforts on two area building projects. Will work now being done on the roof, it is estimated that the new addition to the Coleman Street Canadian Tire Store in Belleville will be completed by the end of this month.

De Jong will start work in about a week on its contract for the new Sidney Township Centennial Hall. In the meantime, the firm is tendering for a number of other contracting jobs.

The number of housing "starts" in Ontario centres of 5,000 population and over during February was 12.5 per cent lower than a year ago, with 1,812 dwelling units started as compared with 2,070 in February 1965.

However, the housing statistics report of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation shows that the total number of dwelling starts for the first two months of this year was 4,813, against 4,173 in January and February 1965, or an increase of 15 per cent.

In Belleville, 7 dwelling units were started this February, one more than last year, but the number of starts for the first two months of this year jumped to 26 from 12 a year ago. Eleven houses were completed in the city during February, it said, as of February 28th, 52 dwellings were under construction, a considerable drop from 124 last year.

Examining the province as a whole, 10,676 dwelling units were under construction at the end of February, a notable increase over last year's figure of 62,457. The sprawling Metropolitan Toronto area alone accounted for 34.1% of the dwelling starts in the province, this figure being up some 2,000 transactions around the same from the same period in 1965.

Faraday May Open Mine At Bancroft

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Faraday Corp. Ltd. is discussing the possibility of re-opening its uranium mine near Bancroft in the Peterborough area with two European companies, President A. W. Johnston said Wednesday.

Faraday controls the mine through its 65-per-cent - owned subsidiary, Metal Mines Ltd.

Only limited exploration drilling has been carried out on the property since June 30, 1964, when a sales contract with Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. expired and production halted.

Mr. Johnston said the Bancroft property should benefit from the anticipated increase in world demand for uranium.

Faraday's profit in 1965, including Metal Mines results, dropped by $33,347 or two cents a share from $331,686 or 30 cents a share in 1964, the company report says.

Production at Metal Mines' nickel-copper mine at Gordon Lake in northwestern Ontario was limited to an average of 365 tons a day last year because of a labor shortage, Mr. Johnston said.

Defence Fails to Get Adjournment

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Defence counsel Paul Martineau unsuccessfully to obtain an adjournment in the Yvon Dupuis influence - peddling trial Wednesday after Roch Desiardiers, the major Crown witness, made an important change in his original statement.

Mr. Dupuis, a former minister without portfolio in the Pearson government, is charged with using his influence in an attempt to obtain a racetrack permit for Mr. Desiardiers in St. Johns, Que. The permit was never granted.

Desiardiers had made a previous statement that he had passed over $10,000 to Mr. Dupuis in Ottawa May 9, 1961.

During cross-examination by Mr. Martineau Wednesday, he said Tuesday he gave Velleux for permission to make a new statement.

He said he was "morally certain, in spite of what I said at the preliminary inquiry, that a $10,000 cash payment" was made at noon, May 8. . . ." He said it was "very possible" that the firm is tending for a casino, 8 at Mr. Dupuis' office in St. John's because "Dupuis had told me it was urgent."

TAKEN BY SURPRISE

Mr. Martineau called the new statement an "odious fabrication" and said he was taken by surprise. He asked for an adjournment to give him time to prepare a new defence.

Judge Veilleux denied the request for adjournment but suspended the cross-examination of Desiardiers until today.

Mrs. Roch Desiardiers, the last witness to be called Wednesday, testified that she now was confused on whether it was May 9 or May 10, 1961, that her husband had left their home in St. Johns, Que., with $5,000 to go and get another $5,000.

In her statement made at the preliminary hearing, she said her husband left their home with $5,000 on May 9 and that he went to Montreal, Que., to borrow another $5,000.

Mr. Martineau asked Mrs. Desiardiers why he had said in the first version of his story that he had given the $10,000 to Mr. Dupuis June 29, 1961, and not May 9, 1961, as he said later.

Desiardiers said that "in good faith," he had changed his story because he had had a number of transactions around the same period.

Old Grier School

Remember, when as children go
To school, in winter cold and clear?
We walked knee-deep in drifted snow
From the Grove up to the Grier.

She stood there in her stately
grace,
And through her portals dear
We crowded in to take our place
When roll was called at Grier.

Interior rest rooms they did not make.
They were outside and in the rear.
But surely not for comfort sake
Could compare the like at Grier.

A high board fence would separate
The girls from boys at play.
And in the classrooms on the slate
Our lessons for the day.

Recess o'er, we fell in line
Summoned by Simpkins' bell.
We all filed in, one by one,
To read, to write, and spell.

Pot-bellied stoves did heat the room
When cold weather came to stay.
No central heating was the case
Like the type they have today.

It was the rule at that school
Our teachers to revere,
And if, by chance, we did offend
The penalty could be severe.

School chums I'd like to name,
Some failed their aspired career . . .
And many of them went on to fame
When they finally left Old
Grier.

Progress marches, I suppose,
And we know it cannot wall.
May I tell, before I close,
How Old Grier met her fate?

Alas! they desecrate those halls,
And alter all the rooms,
Dismantle doors and all the walls
To set up weaving looms.

All around her perimeter
Now many tradesmen toil.
Not conscious of the fact
They tread on sacred soil.

Today, as I survey the scene,
I silently shed a tear.
Thank God they cannot take away
The spirit of Old Grier.

PLAN FESTIVAL

FREDERICTON (CP)—New Brunswick has been chosen as the site of a Canada-wide music festival to be held in conjunction with the centennial celebrations next year. Provincial finals across the country will be held from May 15 to 27 and will lead up to the national event. Prizes for the national winners are $1,000 each.

A rink skipped by Gertrude House was the winner of the Alexander trophy at yesterday's ladies' finals in the Trenton Curling Club. With Mrs. House are Marg. Mason, vice skip, Huda Chivas, second and Alice Law, lead.

Atlantic Lost $10,000 in Horse Venture

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission was told Wednesday that Atlantic Acceptance Corp. included a horse-racing venture among its high-finance dealings.

The commission investigating the collapse of the multi-million-dollar corporation was told that $10,000 was lost in the horse venture in three years.

Brian McLaughlin, an accountant for the commission, testified that Valley Farm Stable bid $3,250 from 1962 to 1964 in buying and selling race horses and lost $7,440 in its racing operations.

The witness said one horse, Pillin Mapu, was bought for $3,250 in 1963 and was written off one year later. He said he took the entry "none in stock" to mean that the horse could not be found.

The racing stable was part of Valley Farm and Enterprises Ltd., a company near Cornwall, which the commission has been told was owned by C. Powell Morgan, Atlantic president, and Toronto accountants William Wallace and Harry Wagman.

Valley Farm went bankrupt last summer while it was indebted to Aurora Flowers of the Ontario Supreme Court, head of the commission, adjourned hearings to April 25.

Busy Month Ahead for Kiwanis Club

TRENTON — The Trenton Kiwanis Club's maple syrup sales have reached $3,500, but the club is still working towards its $3,900 quota. Club members have worked more than a month taking orders by phone, and distribution of the "sticky stuff" starts Monday, April 18.

This is a busy month for the Kiwanians, as the club has been asked to attend an April 21 meeting in Peterborough, where a banquet to honor Edward Keefe, International President, will be held. April 26, Trenton may join Port Hope in a bus trip to Watertown to help the Kiwanians there celebrate Canada-USA Goodwill Week.

And on April 15, members of the club and their wives are planning to attend the annual spring dance at the air station.

Noose Will Remain

During the long drawn-out debate on the capital punishment issue in this country the persons who invariably were last to be considered were the victims of those who have broken the laws of society.

It is an unfortunate trait in human nature to unconsciously feel sympathy for the perpetrator of a crime, rather than for the person or persons at the receiving end whether they are members of the public, small children, policemen or prison guards.

This tendency to condone or explain away the misdeeds of those who in cold blood wield a gun or knife or bare hands to take the life of innocent law-abiding citizens, showing neither pity nor compassion, has penetrated even the dispensers of the law, and the government of the land, not to mention the news media.

The tendency, nay the rule, in recent years has been for persons under sentence of death to have their sentences commuted to life imprisonment. Have these dispensers of this benevolent government been met with so much as a murmur of protest from the public? Not a bit of it. Yet murder still stalks the land.

Hanging is a nasty business, but it does represent a force on the side of law and order, a weapon for the protection of the vast majority of people who lead civilized and orderly lives. To hang a convicted murderer is to use the one and only means with which to punish the ultimate of his offence. It says in effect, "you cannot offend society in this way without paying for it in like fashion."

If as many say, hanging is no deterrent, then abolition is even less so. We made this point some weeks ago and we make it again. Without the noose, what real protection is there in a society which is already erring too much on the side of the very criminal elements we seek to deter?

As everyone knows by now, the House of Commons in a free ballot has voted for the retention of capital punishment. The vote — 143 for retention and 112 for abolition — indicates that Canadians desire that capital offences be regarded with the seriousness they deserve.

In voting for retention, moreover, they desire protection for everyone and a strong weapon on the side of the forces of law and order. It is time that Canada put some teeth into the enforcement of its legal processes. It is time we ceased to glorify the criminal element in our society.

This decision of the Commons, to retain capital punishment, in our opinion is a step in the right direction. Our thoughts in this matter are on the side of law-abiding citizens, and particularly with those who have been brutally done to death by merciless killers.

Treasure Trove

Buried treasure to most people belongs only in the pages of romantic fiction, in books like Treasure Island and Robinson Crusoe. One does not expect to find it become exciting reality in a modern materialist society like Canada, where financial treasure results more from the sweat of one's brow than from chance discovery.

So, when buried treasure is discovered, where it is not than in Nova Scotia, and specifically the Cape Breton area, where the Maritime historian says is "lousy" with wrecks.

It is in these waters that three skindivers have recovered $700,000 in silver and gold coins from the wreck of an 18th century French ship. Alex Storm and David McEachen, surveyors with the northern affairs department, and Harvey MacLeod, a railroad fireman and engineer-navigator of the hunt, found the treasure after a three year search.

The treasure, mainly in the form of coins, was found in the wreck of the French pay and supply ship, Le Chameau, which went down off Cape Breton en route from France to Quebec City. Also found were silver spoons and forks, swords, pieces of brass and other articles.

Proceeds of the treasure will be shared by the three men, although the province of Nova Scotia, by reason of a forgotten edict in the Treasure Trove Act, is entitled to 10 per cent.

An interesting sidelight of the search, the full story of which will likely turn up in some journal such as the National Geographic Magazine, is the revelation that underwater hazards included "curious seals."

But sharks, common in Nova Scotia waters in summer time, had the good grace to stay away..

Notable First

Captain Baboucar Sallah, skipper of the MV Pra River from Ghana, brought his wife Regina with him on the voyage to Canada.

Perhaps she was his inspiration, for the Pra River was the first foreign vessel to arrive in Toronto this year. In fact, it was the earliest ever arrival of a foreign ship in Toronto.

For Captain Sallah it was just one of a series of precedents. He is the first Negro skipper to dock in Toronto, and the Pra River is his first command.

Only 29, he and Mrs. Sallah, 27, were married recently. An African touch in the preparation of the Ghanain vessel is the use of tribal drums instead of electric bells to summon the crew to meals.

The last spike of the Great Trunk Pacific railway was driven 52 years ago today—in 1914—at the Necha-ko River, B.C., and the first train from Edmonton reached Prince Rupert the next day. The private railway company was sponsored by the government, under heavy criticism, to speed up the settlement of Western Canada. But it could not pay off its loans and was, in 1919, taken over by the Canadian government. With the Canadian Northern and a number of smaller lines, the Great Trunk system became the Canadian National Railways.

Obsolescence

Strainey Age Dispatch

Announcement by Education Minister William Davis that he is not including courses leading to advanced placement in curriculum in the legislation for the new community colleges is a disappointment.

Apparently, the Government feels the new community colleges should provide courses intended mainly to develop occupational skills. This ignores the fact our rapidly changing technology may soon make these skills obsolete.

Short Course In Elementary Civics

To Your Good Health

Patient and Public Are Both Protected

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Yesterday we described the various methods by which a mental patient can be hospitalized under the new mental health law in New York State. Today let's consider safeguards against any possible abuse of hospitalization.

Relatives or enemies can't "put a patient away" because the judgment has to be made by physicians.

Further, a new agency, The Mental Health Information Service, has been set up. This does not mean public information. Rather, the service is similar to a probation department, working under legal authority but charged with protecting both the public's rights and the patient's.

It must inform patients of their rights, must inform parents, relatives or guardians. It is mandatory that the Service be notified in writing of the admission of patients. (Written notice to a relative or relatives who is mandatory.)

A voluntary patient must, under the law, be examined at least every 120 days. In the case of a certificated patient who doesn't want to stay when doctors think he should, the director of the hospital then must notify all concerned — patient, relatives and Information Service — that authorization will be asked by a court of record for permission to keep the patient six months. Patient or relatives can ask for a court hearing if they wish. Retaining and review is available if requested. In the ultimate dispute, the patient or relatives can choose between a jury hearing or hearing before a judge.

In short, it is specified in the law that no patient can be hospitalized and then forgotten. He must be examined periodically. He and relatives must be kept aware of his rights. The Mental Health Information Service, which is a brand new idea in Mental Hela, is charged with seeing that rights are respected.

The new law has been thoughtfully drawn. Many experts hail it as a "landmark" in the public attitude toward mental illness, and I thoroughly agree.

Other states are in various stages of studying or planning to adopt similar legislation. Perhaps improvements can be devised. I wouldn't venture a guess at this soon.

But it is a tremendous step forward when we have come to the considered conclusion that mental patients are sick people, and need care, not necessarily, incarceration, and for the most part are not dangerous to anyone but themselves.

I, for one, envisage the time when all states will have this more humane and sensible attitude written into law.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for women to have a baby with sudden stopping of all periods, as it is always a matter of gradual tapering off of periods? I will soon be 49 and have missed some periods, but do not feel pregnant. — Mrs. J.E.B.

Any number of patterns occur. Abrupt and permanent cessation of periods, abrupt cessation but recurring later; sporadic missing of periods; more frequent periods and more prolonged — this only begins to list the possibilities. At your age, and since your menstrual cycles have continued until recently, pregnancy is possible although not very likely. You should, to be certain, have your doctor check to see whether you are pregnant.

Dear Dr. Molner: Italian ham (Prosciutto) is cured with salt and pepper for a long period. If this is then eaten raw, is there any danger of trichinosis? — J. G.

The risk is there — if the pork contained the trichine organism, that type of curing would not destroy it. Cooking is the only way of assuring safety.

Why Not Tax Seal Hunters?

Charlottetown Patriot

Seal hunting lies within the federal jurisdiction, it is true, but it is surely within the power of our legislature to discourage this ugly business. A heavy pelt tax on sealskin, sealskin sweaters, every airplane or helicopter pilot engaged in the business might be the answer, or perhaps a landing tax on every pelt that would take so much of the profit out of it the slaughterhouse gang would take their ugly trade elsewhere and end the issue of this island untarnished as a land of sunshine and gentle, friendly people.

Strictly Personal

Prayers, Bachelors, Reforms

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: It takes a long time in life to learn that sometimes our prayers are best unanswered when they go unanswered; if I had wanted I thought I wanted at age 20, I would have been miserable at 40.

The most effective reformers should be bachelors — for they are never placed in the embarrassing predicament of having wives and children asking why such noble reforms don't begin at home, with the reformer's own conduct.

No other industry, in my experience, is as dishonest as the entertainment industry in almost every aspect, from personal relations to the movie business.

How much we enjoy our seasonally was brought home to me vividly last month, when a TV program I despised was cancelled — and, rather than replacing, I resented the fact that I could no longer strike over to the set and forcefully turn off the program the moment it showed its face!

Nothing is more wildly irrational than the belief that we are rational! As Lessing, the great German critic, pointed out: "The superstition in which we were brought up never loses its power over us, even after we understand it."

It's easy to detect the special aptitudes of children at even a quite early age, if we really listens — for instance, I asked a group of 4-year-olds to tell me the color of the new cardigan I was wearing: all of them but one piped up, "Brown," one, a budding painter, thought a moment longer and said, "Wrinkled wheat toast." And, of course, it was.

The silliest thing big cities are doing, promoted by civic sensitivity, is putting up large and expensive buildings to house the arts, and then running around desperately for enough "culture" to stuff them with.

What is there about us that makes it less unpleasant to endure our own disappointments than to see someone else's hopes gratified?

A sound historical case could be made out for the assertion that World War I is not yet finished; the Armistice ended nothing, and the surrenders in World War II ended nothing; today's fighting is merely a resumption of nationalistic rivalries, having little to do with the ideologies of "democracy" or "communism."

America's greatest industry is not the automobile, but education, on which we spend $40 billion a year — and is the only industry from which we keep willing to get as little as possible for our money.

"Sound," in medieval oath, is always pronounced wrong today: it should not rhyme with "pound," but with "wounds," for it was a euphemism for the blasphemous phrase, "God's wounds."

C.S. Forester Characters

Montreal Gazette

C. S. Forester, who died over the weekend, was one of the most successful historical novelists of modern times. His principal character, Horatio Hornblower, seemed so real and his experiences so authentic, that it was sometimes difficult to remember that he had never actually lived.

Forester's knowledge of the British navy and of the Napoleonic wars was excellent, and his imaginative creation of Hornblower so effective that he seemed as real a hero as Nelson himself. Hornblower's life, traced from Midshipman to Admiral by Forester's pen, was adventurous and successful, but with enough human tragedy and human contrariness to escape artificiality.

From "Beat to Quarters," published in 1937 to "Hornblower and Hotspur" published in 1962, Forester provided both entertainment and education for a vast audience. Nor did he limit himself to Hornblower: such books as "The Gun, "The General" and "The Ship" were less well-known but scarcely less admired by Forester's faithful readers.

Considering the incredible criticism voiced by many lawyers about the political appointment of judges, it is interesting to read that both the Liberals and Conservatives are defending the practice in Parliament.

They are the two parties which have continued this practice, of course, which can explain their tenderness when it is criticized.

Ottawa Offbeat

Two Types of M.P.'s Local and International

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Broadly speaking, once said Commons Clerk Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, long-time but always-to-be-respected ages and arbiter of the House, there are really only two basic kinds of Parliamentarians.

There are those who worry about the state of the world first, and get around almost as a reluctant after-thought, to concern about the state of the nation.

And there are those who think almost exclusively of their constituents.

What Mr. Beauchesne said nearly 20 years ago — and they still quote him daily in the Commons as the ultimate authority on Parliament — applies more and more with every passing year.

The internationalists, the One-Worlders first about Viet Nam and Rhodesia, even if they can't really do very much about either, and get all worked up about hunger in India, about which they can do something.

They carry the torch for Foreign Aid — for there was even when the African revolution Kwame Nkrumah was personally skimming off much of its cream — and for Indonesia even while the pro-Communist Sukarno was intriguing behind it to iron Curtain against the Western World, including Canada, which was trying to feed him.

They get in a sweat about the Negro in the Deep South, and about off remindered that here at home a lot of Indians, and certainly most Eskimos are far worse off.

WHERE'S HOME?

Home? Where's home, they ask, if not all around the shrinking globe?

It is a great little gizmo if as MP can really get it going. He becomes so involved with The World and the Great Problems he really doesn't have to worry about the Constituency and its Little Troubles.

Then he becomes a Recognized International Authority, most of his constituents seem to hesitate to bother him with their They woes—might disturb his high level thinking.

The opposite, side of the Parliamentary coin, of course, is the MP whose political horizons are at the boundaries of his constituency.

He gets to be a work-horse for his constituents and the better he does, the harder they make him work.

He sees and listens to everybody who calls by phone or in person, here in his Ottawa office or back home in his constituency where, if he is on the local political ball, he also runs an office with the welcome mat out for one and all.

Like, for example, Bert Hollis, Liberal MP for Rossell. He has a desk chair in both his Parliament Hill and his constituency offices for people who sit and wait until he can get to see one by one.

Added to the troubled people, he says, with problems each one regards as the world's most serious

They are the reason, he says, there is such a trade as being an MP.

A man beeds a job — will Paul Tardif give him a recommendation, or perhaps speak for him? A mother must get her sick child into the overcrowded hospital — can he help?

VOTES ADD UP

An elderly lady isn't getting her pension — a sister in Italy is having real trouble emigrating to Canada . . .there are hundreds of problems with the Revenue Department . . . will Paul Tardif lend a hand?

He will, even if he can't promise anything.

So he makes it the prime point of his day — here and at home — to see these people, not only because he finds some deep personal satisfaction in helping, if he can, but because he feels they represent an unknown but very likely large number of voters.

It was just a few weeks before the last election when a Commons colleague — one of the internationalists — suggested that Mr. Tardif was wasting time and effort in these interviews when he might be better occupied with global affairs, and that if he stopped them he probably would lose no more than "a hundred, maybe a thousand or so votes."

The way Paul Tardif suspects it might be, each man or woman represents more, far more than just his or her own vote.

You don't see them and talk to them, he says, and they go away resembling a pot, or at least believing that you don't care.

And each one has a father or mother, sisters and brothers, aunts, uncles, cousins and friends and neighbors living down the block.

So each one man or woman can influence six, a dozen, a score of who-knows-how-many votes.

Therefore you see them all, be relaties, and you find M.P.s wanting in a great many more ways than as vote insurance.

Into which Parliamentary niche do you fit your MP?

Sports Fans Are Fickle

Hamilton Spectator

Goltey Toomey Bolt, winner of the U.S. Open title in 1958, complains that sports fans are fickle. "It doesn't take them long to forget," he said after taking the lead in a recent tournament. Some of them, evidently, had never heard his name before.

Not only is golf, Mr. Bolt, the fickle, for instance, is an even trickier profession, from a celebrity standpoint.

How many Canadians know anything about Edward James McGurrey, Donald M. Sullivan, Timothy C. Murphy, Joseph Jesu, F. G. Bradley, Rosh Pinard, R. W. Mayhew and C. J. Burchell? Not very many, we'd wager, yet all of them are members of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, meaning that at one time in their lives they held high positions in our government.

Fame is fleeting. Ask any former football player below the super-star status. Or any hockey leading light from the thirties or forties.

Local Teacher to Head Group Retracing Journey of Martyrs

A Belleville school teacher next year will head up a pilgrimage retracing the canoe journey of Jesuit missionaries who 300 years ago travelled down Goetbec City to the wilderness of the Georgian Bay area where they set up the first inland mission post in Canada, Sainte Marie. Its aim will be the purpose of the pilgrimage will be strictly spiritual and in no way political, Canada's first martyred missionaries.

There will be no race involved in the pilgrimage and noboby will there be any attempt to imitate conditions as they might have been three centuries ago.

The idea behind the re-enactment came from Father Lalonde to determine what force it was that caused men to set out into the wilderness to set up a mission.

The pilgrimage, to be undertaken by as far as six high school or university students, will be made under the auspices of the Guild of St. John de la Lund, which Mr. Wilson admits might not be very well known in this part of Ontario.

MORE

For the past several summers Mr. Wilson has been overland pilgrimages from Toronto to Martyrs' Shrine at Midland for Canada Day centennials, year he feels that some sort of a special effort honoring the Jesuit missionaries might be in order.

Research will be done in an effort to determine the exact route which the Jesuits traveled.

This is believed to have been up the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers, across Lake Nipissing and down French river to Georgian Bay and on down to near Midland, where they established their mission. The mission, only to be later cruelly murdered during Iroquois raids on the Settlements.

Nationally known Martyrs Shrine at Midland now honors these early missionaries.

The Guild of the Ontario government is currently spending several million dollars to restore Ste. Marie established by the Jesuit priests.

JUDGE SAYS SHOOT

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—"If they don't keep their pockets, tell them and ask questions later," Judge Howard L. Aaron told a Baltimore policeman who requested a 17-year-old youth had threatened to kill him. The judge also told the youth he would send down the thread so "no-one will be able to yell 'Police brutality'" if he is later shot.

Receives Call To Tabernacle United Church

At a recent meeting of the official board of Tabernacle United Church congregation the Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane was chosen minister of this church for the past six years. Mr. McFarlane has accepted a call to Bell Street United Church in Ottawa to become effective July 1, 1966.

The Rev. Robert A. Crooks, B.A., B.D., is a native of Sydney, N.S. He attended Sydney Academy and on leaving high school, studied music and was trained as Associate in Music from McGill University. He was organist at Charlottetown Baptist Church and taught music in Charlottetown School as well as privately.

After deciding to enter the ministry he enrolled at Prince of Wales College in Charlottetown. After graduating from Prince of Wales he went to Dalhousie University at Halifax and there obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree. He took theological training at Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, N.S. and graduated from Pine Hill with a Bachelor of Divinity Degree.

Mr. Crooks served the Montrose pastoral charge in Prince Edward Island before going to Cardinal five years ago.

Mrs. Crooks, the former Marjory MacLean, is also a native of Nova Scotia; the daughter of the Rev. A. Frank MacLean and Mrs. MacLean, now of Ottawa. Mr. MacLean is minister of Dominion - Chalmers United Church there.

She is also a graduate of Dalhousie University in Arts and of the Maritime School of social work. She was a social worker in Prince Edward Island and later in Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Crooks have a family of three children, Janie, Cathie and Chrissie.

Plan Shutdown Of Stations on Some Holiday

TORONTO (CP) — Elwood Smith of Sudbury has told the provincial government that many of Ontario's service stations could close down on a holiday weekend this summer if requests for a royal commission to investigate the price of gasoline are ignored.

Mr. Smith said Tuesday night the Superior Auto Service Association he heads expects to have 10,000 of the estimated 13,000 dealers in the province signed up for the shutdown.

On Monday 100 members of the ASSA picketed the legislature protesting government tax-collecting agreements with oil companies and the policy of restricting bids for major highway service centres to big oil firms.

They claim oil companies are selling gasoline wholesale to cut-rate stations for 31 or 32 cents a gallon while other dealers are paying 36 to 39 cents a gallon.

Mr. Smith said an executive meeting will be held May 8 in Barrie to plan for the shutdown.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

"It's supposed to be his daily doom, but he never does . . . more than two or three."

He Carried The Cross For Our Lord

He came from the fields, that Good Friday,
A Cyrenian, without armour or sword;
And stood with the crowds that were jeering
Our patient and meek Heavenly Lord —
Now carrying the cross rough and heavy,
Up Golgotha's long rugged road;
And saw Him, all wounded and bleeding,
When He fainted "neath Calvary's load.

Then the soldiers laid hands upon Simon,
And compelled him the cross, too, to bear,
So he shouldered it, rough and heavy,
With never a thought for a care.
They travelled on both then together —
The criminal and the Heavenly Lord.
And he oft turned to look at the Saviour,
Who had uttered ne'er a harsh bitter word.

Oh, I'm sure, he thought must have whispered,
"Oh, why do they Thee crucify?"
And Jesus would answer Him softly,
"For thy sins, my friend, I must die."
And I'm sure that Jesus would tell him
Of His Father's redeeming love,
And that all who believe, and receive Him,
Would dwell in the mansions above.

Then, somehow, the cross would grow lighter
As he talked with the Lord 'long the way;
And the hearts of that rugged dark man,
Would soften to the Saviour that Day.
And tho' humble the service he rendered,
('Tis written in God's Holy Word)
I am sure he learned of Salvation,
While he carried the cross, for our Lord.

A THOUSAND DAYS

One of the main ingredients of President Kennedy's special magnetism, during his brief days in office, was his family. The second of Weekend Magazine's four-part serialization of the best-selling book, "A Thousand Days", details the warm and informal family life that went on in the White House when the Kennedys were there.

Dissociation Cell 19

Is he mentally sick? Is he a psychiatric hermit? Is he angry with the world? Does he hate prison officials? Johnny Young, convicted as Quebec's first habitual criminal, baffles prison authorities. He refused to leave his Kingston Penitentiary isolation cell where he had been for the last two years. This week Weekend Magazine tells the story of the strange world of this lonely man.

EGG-PHOTOGRAPHER

Birdwatching is a hobby with many people, but few concentrate on watching the eggs. Dr. George Peck, Oakville veterinarian, is probably the only man in North America who makes a specialty of photographing birds' nests—and especially their eggs. The excitement, frustration, rewards and even dangers of this unique hobby are told by Robert Marjoribanks in Weekend Magazine.

A Blue Egg Is a Good Egg

Blue eggs are the latest! Food Editor Margo Oliver says that there's now a special breed of chicken that lays blue eggs. But she prefers brown ones and perhaps you like white. However, regardless of their color, Margo's recipes for this week use plenty of eggs—for delicious desserts or egg-stra special dinners.

THE GLAD HATTERS

Alkmaar, Holland, is famous for more than just its cheese market. Women's Editor Doyle Nyrs visited Alkmaar to see the cheeses auctioned and was just as fascinated by the gaily-hatted men of the various cheese guilds. You will see why in her column, "According to Doyle," this week in Weekend Magazine.

Lingerie Tells of Feminine Springtime

The soft, feminine way is lingerie and loungewear's story for spring. This softer look and feel is accomplished with delicate voiles, tricots and silks.

Daytime underslips are shorter length with bikinis or to the ankle. Long sleepskirts can be Granny styled or skinny shafts with bared backs and softly shaded and smooth to the shoulder and halter necklines.

Pants are "in" and ready for all-home hours in dotty and drapy styles. Jumpsuits, pajamas and pants with matching coats show oversized paisley and African prints and stripes. Whatever the styles, the legs swing to bell-bottomed looks.

At-home lounge dresses start off in soft floral prints and end up in wild "mod-scapes" prints. Almost everything reaches to the floor. Empire waists take another bow in more Grannies and at-home skirts enter spring in pioneer style.

The baby dress hasn't left, it is just sheerer and softer.

Students Present Variety Show

STIRLING — Principal R. T. Hayes, staff members and students of Stirling-Rawdon District High School presented their second annual Student Spotlight show in the Stirling Theatre on Thursday and Friday evenings. Financial returns will be used for the athletic program at the school.

Masters-of-ceremonies were Ted Reid and Harold Thain. Individual selections were trumpet solos by Jayna Doran, vocal solos by Nancy Tompkins and Anne Watson and a piano solo by Sharon Matthews. The school choir sang several selections under the direction of staff supervisor, Mr. P. Fairman; and director Donald Armstrong. Eighteen girls presented a fashion show under the direction of Mrs. Francis Lyons with Brenda Williams as commentator.

Mrs. S Oatman and Mrs. G. McKeown were the staff supervisors for the dances of the 1800s and Mr. P. J. McKeone supervised a short play. Mr. G. Smith was in charge of a gymnastic display of tumbling and pyramids. Larry Embury directed a playette on a TV commercial and Mrs. S. A. Oatman introduced a short play with staff members as cast.

COFFEE TO BLAME?

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto research team says there may be a link between coffee and heart disease. Writing in the current issue of The Lancet, British medical journal, Dr. J. Alick Little and his associates at the University of Toronto say coffee contains a substance which elevates serum - lipids (blood fats) in susceptible people and that such people may be liable to coronary heart disease.

EASTER SHOPPING DILEMMA REMAINS — Actress Jill Haworth tries on a white straw beret with a Navy red band as she tries to choose between the Mr. John Jr., designs that surround her in New York. Easter sales are reported sparing by department stores throughout the nation — about 11 per cent ahead of 1965, a record year. More money, new fabrics, higher prices — and Batman, are credited with causing the surge. (AP Wirephoto)

at SINGER, a dollar sews a long way

When a company builds a reputation for selling a better product than anyone else, some people naturally think their prices must be higher, too. Lately, we discovered there are women who honestly believe you can only buy high-priced sewing machines at Singer Centers.

It isn't so.

For less than $100, you can own that priceless ingredient, Singer quality, in a growing choice of models. On the subject of price, there is one other point we should make. What you save today on a "special-deal-low-price" machine, you stand to lose tomorrow in frustration and bills.

Unless, of course, you buy it at a Singer Center. No matter how little your machine costs you here, it's guaranteed to the hilt...just like our most expensive models (and we're always around the corner with people and parts if ever you should want service).

Oh yes. For just a few dollars more, during our Manager's Sale, you can have our model No. 329 (shown above) in a charming, walnut-finish cabinet. In this day and age, what else can you buy for less than $100 . . . and use lovingly right up to the day you give it to your daughter?

University Lecturer Obtains Interview With Playboy Staff

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—When Playboy magazine wanted interviews with Jean Genet and Jean - Paul Sartre, a pretty young Ottawa woman obtained them.

She's Madeleine Gobeil, 27, petite and charming. The chic green-eyed blonde now is a lecturer in Carleton University's French department. She has a BA in politics from Ottawa University and an MA in French literature from McGill University.

She is also instituting a new course in French drama, which she will teach at Carleton next year.

But to get back in Playboy: Genet and Sartre.

It all happened because Madeleine is a friend of Simone de Beauvoir, who introduced her to Nelson Algren, author of The Man With the Golden Arm, who introduced her to James Baldwin, Tennessee Williams and the staff of Playboy.

It all began when Madeleine was 15 and used to read a lot. "What else was there to do in Ottawa?" she asked. She read L'Invitée by Simone de Beauvoir and wrote to say how much she liked it.

Mme. de Beauvoir wrote back and when Madeleine was 18, and a hostess at the Brussels world fair, she went to Paris to visit her famous pen-pal.

MET RANKING WRITERS

The author of The Second Sex was "scandalized" that Madeleine had never been much farther south than Ottawa than Syracuse, N.Y., 175 miles away. She offered to write to her friend Nelson Algren and have him show the young Canadian around his home town, Chicago.

Madeleine visited him, met Baldwin and Williams among others, and attended the premiere of The Night of the Iguana with them. She began writing articles for a Montreal newspaper about modern American authors.

Then Mr. Algren suggested she do a feature on Playboy, exposing it for the glossy farce he thought it was. So he introduced her to its staff.

Madeleine knew she wanted to go to France that summer. She didn't have much money, but Playboy had lots. So she suggested she interview Brigitte Bardot for them. Fine.

But when she got to Paris, the magazine changed its mind. "They said BB's star had waned—on etoile a tombe." Now Madeleine was poor again.

Then Playboy suggested she interview Jean Genet. "He never gives interviews, but de Beauvoir phoned him up and explained what Playboy was. He said 'Will Madeleine make good money?' and she said yes, so he agreed."

READ ALL THEY WROTE

Before she did her interviews, Madeleine read all Genet's and Sartre's works, and carefully prepared about 30 questions.

She writes in French, and her articles are translated by Bernard Frechtman, who translates for Sartre in English.

Sartre, she says, "creates a great world" for whoever is with him. "He makes you feel intelligent, beautiful, extraordinary."

Mme. de Beauvoir is "really feminine, so lively — vivante. She's sensitive and yet very down-to-earth—like a young girl student, although she now is 58. Every day for her, life is a new question."

Genet is always a poet. "He is a real actor in life. His speech is always poetic," not like Mme. de Beauvoir - who uses "un peu l'argot." Genet has "such tenderness, such charm. He looks like a little old prisoner, who likes to create a world of fantasies."

Her friends in Paris are very interested in Canada. "When I return there this spring, I'm sure they'll befat I talk for four hours straight about the things I've been doing here. They'll say 'Tell us everything.'"

She plans to do more work for Playboy — "The money is good. They let you do what you want, and of course the articles must be approved by the subject."

But next fall she'll come back to Carleton.

"I love Paris. It is an exciting place and my friends are there. But my youth was spent in Canada, and Canada fascinates me as much as it bores me."

Sucessful Living

New Activities Needed When Family Grown

DEAR DORIS: How could I make a few extra pennies? I could use them in many non-selfish ways.

My husband is away all day so I am alone a lot. Sometimes I start thinking that nothing is worth while and that my life has been a failure. I know this is not true as I have been truly blessed.

I need to get out and work more. I have a good husband, and a family of four, two boys and two girls. They are all on their own now. Perhaps I am just the busy active years I miss. — LOOSE ENDS.

DEAR LOOSE ENDS: You have hit DORIS CLARK the nail squarely on the head. When the little monsters get out from underfoot the emptiness can be overwhelming! You feel completely useless, no matter how much you try to argue yourself out of it.

Since you used to be a teacher, consider tutoring. Many a slow pupil has caught up when the right person took their particular problems seriously.

Get out of the home, by all means. My ten-cent leaflet, "Part Time Work at Home or in Community," has other ideas for you, and is on its way.

DEAR DORIS: My husband is on his feet ten to 12 hours and works very hard. He comes home about 1:30 a.m.

At 6:30 a.m. the alarm clock and lady and two children get up. From that time on to 9:30 till they leave for school and work it's a vicious noise, talking loud, yelling, slamming doors and they open the blinds and raise the shades. Any chance of any bed room well.

Please, could you suggest or advise us what could be done in my mind we can't say anything as they own the house. — VERY TIRED.

DEAR TIRED: It makes me tired to read about it — and I sympathize.

Yet putting the cork on the early morning noises of a healthy family is like holding back Niagara Falls — it can't be done. As tenants you have a right to ask for a little pussy-footing; but if the owners can't be soundproofed, maybe you need your rest.

DEAR DORIS: My problem is my boy friend drinks and when I ask him to stop he does, until I get mad at him for some reason, then he starts over again. I like to get this boy mad because after our quarrels he is nice to me. — MIXED-UP TEENS.

DEAR M.U.T.: Look, you are just as self-indulgent as he is, and a little cruelier. Getting him mad to make him nicer to you is toying with human feelings. Small wonder he drinks to escape you.

It'll be a sign of civilization when you start considering him.

DEAR DORIS: My aunt suffers from an ear condition which makes it necessary for her to have the inner ear cleaned periodically. This is very painful, but her doctor advises against drugs.

I am a firm believer in hypnosis and I have heard of many cases where people undergo operations with hypnosis without medicine. I feel that my aunt should try a session with a hypnotist, but she is afraid to because she thinks it could have serious after effects. Do you think she should try? — T.D.

DEAR T.D.: There are doctors, dentists and psychiatrists using hypnosis for various purposes, a chief one being to replace anxiety with relaxation.

My psychiatric consultant says your aunt's suffering might well be mitigated by learning this relaxative necessary to undergo a hypnotic trance.

You'll notice the word "trance" is used — and the hypnotist feels that only a state of relative sleepiness is necessary to qualify as a trance. Full unconsciousness is not necessary.

* * *

Confidential to SORRY SIXTEEN: You have let a new boy move away, carrying with him hurt feelings because of your treatment. Write him by all means, saying you didn't mean to be so flippant that night and that you don't want to lose touch with him.

It takes maturity to apologize.

DEAR DORIS: I just can't get up early in the morning no matter what I do and my doctor won't help. — DOPEY.

DEAR DOPEY: (1) Go to bed early. (2) Buy an alarm clock, set it for the time you want to get up; put it in a pail across the room from your bed and beside your open window.

This worked for a friend of mine who slaved all day in an office, then played in an orchestra until late every evening — until one desperate day when he eventually woke up about eleven a.m. clutching his alarm clock in his arms.

Which shows that you need to follow both of the instructions given above. Otherwise, Nature will have her due.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Enclosed please find ten cents for your leaflet "What To Do If Arthritis Strikes." I enjoy your column. — R.H.

DEAR R.H.: You gave a name but no address. Where do I send the leaflet?

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I'm expecting a wedding in the family of a niece. What do you have to wear?

I have a nice black dress which fits me perfectly; would that be appropriate? — JUST WONDERING.

DEAR JUST: That "good black dress" is a standby for many things — but not for a wedding! Black is not even acceptable in accessories.

Be gay for a day. Look like a wedding guest by dressing in something colorful and pretty.

GOLDEN GATE SNACK BREAD

Before I made Golden Gate Snack Bread I did not understand the title. But when I took it from the oven I did, for it looked like two Golden gates. Read on and you will understand too.

This is the $25,000 prize-winning recipe from the blest Pillsbury National Bake-off and was entered by Mrs. John Petroff of Las Vegas, Nevada. Mrs. Pillsbury sent me the recipe and I recommend it highly for bakers who have "snack-ers" in their families.

SUNDAY

(Easter)

Chilled Cranberry Juice; Roast Leg of Lamb with Apricot Glaze (see Wednesday); Mint Jelly; Delmonico Potatoes; Minted Green Peas or Whole Parslayed Carrots; Sliced Tomatoes on Bibb Lettuce; Grape Sponge with Soft Custard Sauce; Coffee.

GOLDEN GATE SNACK BREAD:

2 packages granular yeast, 1 cup lukewarm water, 6 to 6½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons soft butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1 can (8 oz.) sour cream, 1 package dry onion soup mix, ½ cup soft butter.

In your large beater bowl soak the granular yeast in the lukewarm water (10 minutes). Then add the sugar, butter, salt and 2 cups of the flour and beat until blended. Now add the cheese whiz and 2 more cups of flour, mix as well as you can, then turn out on floured board until perfectly smooth and elastic — about 3 minutes or 200 "Tomahs". Return to scraped - down greased bowl, grease top of dough and let rise covered until more than doubled.

Prepare filling by mixing together the ½ cup soft butter and the onion soup mix.

Roll out risen dough on floured board into a rectangle 20" x 14". You must persist for the dough resists rolling. Spread prepared onion soup filling to within 1" of edges. Starting at 14" side roll up tightly like a jelly roll. Pinch ends to seal. Turn over so open end is under. (Now comes the strange part.) Coil entire loaf in half lengthwise with big sharp knife. Place halves, cut side up, on greased baking sheet at least 4" part. Cover and let rise until doubled — possibly 1½ to 2 hours. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 30 to 40 minutes being sure crust is deep gold and loaves are well done. A slight overbaking will do no harm, otherwise loaves might fall a little when cool. Watch they come from the oven break off an end, slather it with butterand eat it happily.

HONORED . . . AND BY MEN — Mrs. J. F. Fleming recently became the first woman and the first Canadian to win an award from the American Society of Photogrammetry. Mrs. Fleming, 40, works for the department of mines and technical surveys in Ottawa. Her paper was a solution to some of the problems of converting aerial surveys to maps. (CP Photo)

Ottawa Women First To Win U.S. Award

OTTAWA (CP)—Ever gives much thought to solar altitude nomograms?

In case you didn't know, a nomogram is an equation in the form of a graph. A solar altitude nomogram shows the height of the sun at different times of the day at different seasons of the year.

For that matter, it's a bit late to tackle the subject now. A brown - haired, hazel-eyed Ottawa woman has just sewed up the field.

Elizabeth Fleming, 40, recently became the first woman, and the first Canadian, to win an award from the American Society of Photogrammetry. She works for the department of mines and technical surveys and she won with a paper on solar altitude nomograms.

Photogrammetry involves the mathematical relation of air photography to map surveying. Mrs. J. F. Fleming became interested in the subject because her husband was a navigator and pilot for commercial survey work.

She already had a degree in mathematics and physics from the University of British Columbia in her native Vancouver, and she had done scientific research at the National Research Council before her marriage.

Her nomogram paper was just an attempt to "solve" one type of problem the photogrammetrist commonly encounters." Though she has already won an award from the Canadian Institute of Surveying, the American honor surpetsed her.

In addition to nomograms and directions for their use, the paper contains a conversion table of longitude to time and photo templates, or patterns, for wide-angle and super-wide-angle survey cameras. Copies have been requested by photogrammetrists around the world.

Men still dominate her field, says Mrs. Fleming, but she and her husband have an amicable working partnership. The couple, who have no children now both work for different branches of the same department.

Dowry System In Bangui Abolished

BANGUI (AP)—The new government of the Central African Republic has just abolished the dowry system, whereby a bridegroom was expected to pay the bride's family for the privilege of taking the daughter.

Originally a symbolic payment, the dowry in recent years grew to relatively large sums of money or a number of head of cattle. The effect was to prevent young couples from marrying in many cases where the young man could not muster the dowry demanded by the girl's parents.

A statement issued following a recent cabinet session said the custom is henceforth forbidden. A new law provides for prison terms of from three months to two years and fines ranging from 30,000 to 300,000 African francs ($60 to $600) for violators.

The statement said the decree is designed to improve the status of women in the Central African Republic and to encourage the country's progress.

Jr. Farmers Hold Banquet

Hastings County Junior Farmers held their annual banquet at the Madoc Armouries on Friday evening. Rev. Thompson said grace, after which there was the toast to the Queen.

After the meal, Beverley Clapp, president, welcomed all. Nancy Reynolds led in a sing-song after which Jane Clements introduced the head table guests. Jane Franks thanked the Hinds Rexy W.I. for providing the meal.

Miss Jane Monroe, home economist, installed the 1966 officers, who are: past president, Roscoe Morgan; president, Beverley Clapp; vice-president, Rose Carlisle; secretary, Marilyn Nobes; treasurer, Paul Heagle; press reporter, Jane Clements; directors, Elaine Bush, Janet Hamilton, Owen Ketcheson, Allan Franks; provincial director, Fred Bailey.

Fred Bailey introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Alex Connell, of Palmerston, immediate past president of the Junior Farmer Association of Ontario. Mr. Connell's topic was Education. Rose Carlisle thanked the guest speaker.

Bowling League Enjoys Banquet

The sixth annual banquet of the Tuesday Afternoon Ladies' Bowling League was held on April 5th at the Belmont banquet room.

Mrs. Clendenan presided at the plaza. Mrs. Muriel Smith gave the invocation after which everyone enjoyed a roast beef dinner.

The president, Jean Bateman gave a report of the league and called Mary Fletcher to present the Lelatty Trophy to the winning team, Carleton, OPP. Captain Peggy Bayley, Vice-president Rena Lepore presented each member of the team with a trophy and players included Evelyn Luttrell, Mary Lou Andrus, Audrey Toogood, Lillian Cunningham and Dorothy Rashotte.

The high average was presented to Jean Spencer by president Jean Bateman; the high triple to Ruth Pringle by Audrey Walker and high single to Phyllis Pope by Rhoda Gray.

The next president Jo Clendenan, then presented the president's pin to Jean Bateman and thanked her on behalf of the girls for her year's work.

The group enjoyed playing court whist with prizes won by Gwen Hay, Jean Mundeley and Nora McQuaid.

It was unanimously decided that this year's executive will continue for another year.

High-spirited Hats Headline New Fashions

Hats designed to set off clothes are now stealing their own fashion thunder, and rightfully so. Spring's millinery showing is quite a show!

Hat shapes remain simple, preferring to show off line and texture instead. High spirited rollers and sailors, in straws and pastel felts, offer spring's best off-the-face flattery. The turban silhouette remains a favorite, but with a "different" fabrics such as black and white strawcloth.

Forward-looking hats are enjoying a revival as the felt hunter's cap, the checked newsboy cap and the helmet are femininely reproduced in wear, especially with the soft, young coats and suits of the season. A two-toned jersey cap, criss-crossing under the chin, is the modern shape to wear with soft jersey dresses.

But for a really sassy, femme fatale, never-than-now look, there's the side-tilted, chitisted, Australian bush hat, in pastels, pale neutrals. Similarly, a tiny, pagoda-shaped hat and a chignon shape "point up" more fashion news.

Hats with a purpose can be both practical and feminine this spring. Berets, large-brimmed hats and simple headbands offer to hide the hair or protect it from a wispy breeze and bright sunlight.

With short hairdos the trend, headbands are a delightful and colorful way to headline everything from dresses to loungewear. Splashy in abstracts, floridas, peek-a-boo laces, they come in every fabric imaginable.

Although some scarf-hats, usually with back interest such as the fringed kerchief remain, scarfs are returning to their rightful place as neckline fillers or stoles to undercover hats.

YEARS NO TROUBLE

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Victoria Hospital has run a birth control clinic here for several years but expects no trouble with the law, says Dr. A. L. Swanson. The clinic is an infertility clinic, designed to help women unable to have children.

Make-up Tips to Remember...

"H (EYE) LIGHT ON EYES" . . . everybody's thinking up new ways to make up the eyes . . . new colors to apply . . . new shaping still favorites, the brushes and tint boxes provide yet still another look at eye level. For inspiration, they went to the spice rack, scooped out colors like Olive, Curry, Mushroom for new shades . . . then they put them together pink, Whisper Beige, add dark eye-liner like Black Olive and tip it all off with a flick of white, it's a smoldering kind of eye look, but lightened up with that pink or beige it comes out pretty. One they call A Drift of Smoke uses softsmoke shadow a Whisper Pink high-light, a liner of slate and a flick of fill White. Fashion uses the idea of the smoky and pastel balancing each other.

U.C.W. Meetings

CENTENARY U.C.W.

The April general meeting of the Centenary U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Bernard May recently with 18 members and two visitors present.

The president Mrs. B. J. Harder opened with an appropriate Easter poem.

Guest speaker Mrs. L. Finkle was introduced by Mrs. A. Christopher. Mrs. Finkle spoke on "Easter" and stressed the privilege of Christians to tell everyone about Jesus at this time of the year, to use some of the time as leaders in the church and Sunday school as well as U.C.W. meetings. She also spoke on God's help with work in the church.

Mrs. Finkle closed by reading two poems.

Mrs. Robert Nobes thanked the guest speaker.

Two poems and a solo were given by Mrs. L. Pearson who presided over the devotional. Mrs. R. McGrath assisted by reading Scripture and Mrs. H. Hancock presided at the piano.

A special thankofferring was dedicated by the president. Twenty-one calls were reported by the members.

Refreshments were served by the hostess Mrs. B. May assisted by Mrs. D. Meddings, Mrs. J. Tomalty and Mrs. L. Gerow and a social hour was enjoyed.

Space Plus Style Spark Handbags

Handbags for spring '66 have a dual focus on fashion: space, and leather.

New bags look small, but space is cunningly utilized for maximum effectiveness. As for leather, all types of leather textures are used — alone or in combination — in styles spanning every price range.

Luxury with practicality is the pleasing result.

DOUBLING UP

This season's small - scale bags and their big sisters, are fashioned of striking grained and embossed leather, velvety suede, handsome brushed and waxy leathers, and gleaming linire and patent leathers.

From these have been crafted stachels, pouches, envelopes, swagger bags, totes, box bags and shoulder-strappers.

For double style and space are two trim leather bags attached back-to-back. Accordion sides may provide even more room. Styling of the bags may be identical, or they may have different closings or added accents of color or leather.

Conventional single satchels, envelopes and pouches may gain in carrying capacity through deep gussets or accordion pleats. Trim on these compact yet roomy bags includes handle treatment — chains, rigid construction handles, single or double leather straps — and rich looking gold or brass closings and other ornamentation.

For a soft feminine effect, the leather may be quilted or shirred.

GOING INFORMAL

The leather swagger bag with full-depth outside pockets is another space-stretcher for the new season. In both small and large versions, it boasts a full measure of compartments for a lady's necessary paraphernalia.

Pastels and pale neutrals in smooth-grained and embossed leathers give a sunny springtime look to this year-round favorite.

The bigger handbag has, of course, not been forsaken — especially for sports and casual wear. Sturdy yet smart-looking are larger sized shoulder-strap bags, satchels, pouches or totes.

Decorating this informal group may be two-leather or two - color themes, in neutral slippers, brass trim and heavy stitching.

On festive occasions feminine fingertips will be holding exquisite clutches, envelopes and pouches in miniatures. The leathers used range through suedes, buttes, "reptile"-embossed leathers and smooth leather.

St. Julien Chapter IODE Holds Meet

The regular meeting of St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. H. Thompson with the Regent, Mrs. G. Hume presiding.

A letter from the Department of Health and Welfare was read by Mrs. Whittemore. The letter dealt with the work carried on in the far north by nursing stations in general and, in particular, the Pon Nursing Station at Hall Beach, N.W.T., which is helped by the St. Julien Chapter.

Materials for children's clothing and wool for sox for soldiers in Korea were distributed to the members.

Several members volunteered their help for the Blood Donors' Clinic and the Cancer Clinic to be held in April and for the reception for new Canadians who receive their papers at Citizenship Court on April 19th.

Susanna's Family Fare

A GIFT OF TIME

Dear Susanna: During a recent tragic illness of my son, one of the most wonderful kindnesses I received was a gift of time. This is what happened:

Our only son was reported missing with the armed forces overseas.

Friends and relatives overwhelmed me with their thoughtfulness and solicitous deeds, but the phone became a monster my husband went back to work I was terrified at being left to cope with all the calls.

Two close neighbors sensed my dilemma, and offered to take turns answering the phone when I was home alone. Now I wonder how I would've got some through it all without them. Their help gave me the precious time I needed to regain my strength and composure.

I mustn't end this letter, Susanna, without telling you that our son made it back to his base, and is recuperating in a hospital over there. We are living from week to week until he is sent back to us. There is a good possibility and it is our fervent hope, that he will be home with us by summer.—Mrs. McC.

Thank you for sharing your tender, momentous experience with us. — Susanna

WINDOW WASHER

Dear Sue: Since our car is no luxury model, and is not equipped with an automatic windshield sprayer, we carry our own hand-operated one!

Propped up in the litter basket near the front seat is a detergent bottle filled with liquid. It holds window cleaner fluid in the winter and water in the summer.

To clean a dry, murky windshield, it is not even necessary to get out of the car.

The driver just has to reach out and around, give the squirt bottle a few good squeezes, turn on the wipers simultaneously, and the whole situation is cleared up!

Any front seat passenger you may have is usually more than cautious to join into the act. Its quite enjoys repeating the process for you on his side. — Wilma and Walter

U.C.W. Meetings

U.C.W. MISSION NIGHT

FRANKFORD — Mission Night was held in Frankford United Church on Tuesday evening when the United Church Women had as their guests: Rev. and Mrs. Swan of Belleville, Ont.

Mrs. Charles Bennett opened the meeting. Mrs. Preston Chase conducted the worship service and Mrs. Walter Morrow was at the piano.

Mrs. Keith Thompson read the Scripture and Mrs. Richard Reid and Mrs. Frank Moran sang a duet.

Mrs. Roy Rumney called on the Explorer girls to sing the Trinidad National Anthem. The girls were accompanied on the piano by Miss Anne Beach.

Mrs. Rumney introduced Rev. and Mrs. Swan of Belleville who had been missionaries in Trinidad for 35 years, training teachers at a Teachers' College. They gave an account of their work there and showed slides of their return trip to Trinidad a year ago.

Mrs. Chase thanked Mr. and Mrs. Swan.

New Lights in Landscaping Extend Living

More time for leisure is bringing more and more families outdoors . . . to those on the terrace or enjoy the patio, and swim in their own private pool. Fitting into this trend is the expert who leisure is a whole new approach to landscape lighting . . . all easily adaptable to any home. Rooms. According to lighting experts "Lighting today decorates and acts as mood outside the home as well as inside. Wall lanterns, path lights and post lanterns add warmth and glow to a landscape, and extend the beauty of a home."

There is another import a t factor of landscape illumination . . . it protects property and gives attention to areas where lighting is essential such as fixtricate terrace steps or a narrow walk beside a swimming pool.

Lighting fixtures are better designed, easier to install, and offer more selection than at any time in history. It is easier to shop for fixtures. In addition to electric supply stores, there are stores devoted entirely to lighting fixtures . . . also, department stores are beginning to include an extensive variety of inside and outside fixtures in their lamp and lighting departments.

Homemaking Fashion Tips

Personalize your table - settings this spring. Let them reflect your taste, tempo and flair for entertaining. Selecting the right setting for an occasion is probably the most important step. To be certain that your table cover says what you want it to say, sew it yourself or add a personal touch to a ready-made cover.

To serve light refreshments with a flair, dress up a card table. Understated simplicity is the keynote for a small table. A solid cotton cloth in a bright color is a smart choice. Give matching cotton napkins a special touch by appliqueing a colorful flower motif on each one. Another novel touch might be four fluffy napkin holders permanently sewed to each place on the table cloth.

Round tables are popular now, especially "the glass- topped wrought-iron types. Equally at home on the terrace or in the dining room, a round table calls for contour place mats. You can make your own or apply a decorative applique to purchased mats. A leaf pattern is appropriate for this type of table. It's an inexpensive project, too, because you can make use of colorful odds and ends of material from other sewing projects.

For children's parties make a gay colored cloth in sturdy washable cotton.

Washington Uses Wives Of Ambassadors to U.S. To Promote Social Events

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's called the two - for - one technique. Welcome an ambassador to the United States, then use his wife to snip store ribbons, patronize charities, promote fashion shows and entertain.

It's a rat race, wildest in Washington.

Physically, it's exhausting. Intellectually, it's a marshmallow.

Columnists promote it and social society experts it. Therefore of a new ambassador is sunk in the mire before she's off the plane. Getting out quickly, if she wants to, is all but impossible.

"The only way for an ambassador's wife to have a family life of her own," says one prominent lady, "is to speak no English."

An English-speaking wife of an ambassador is expected to attend a luncheon a day, several cocktail parties and a dinner every night, plus various appointments in between.

Women who have accompanied their husbands to other foreign posts say no other capital in the world demands so much from the wife of a diplomat.

The merry - go - round drawn impetus from the beliefs—mostly mistaken—that an ambassador's wife expects before hand to take part in such social hoopla (few do, except in line with their husband's activities), that she considers it part of her duties (they don't), and that her country supplies her 40 hour working day (most don't know about it).

DUTIES NEVER END

Added to this is the exuberant American clubwoman, always ready to draft a new face into her favorite charity in aid of running the ambassador's wife will feel neglected if she isn't included in everything in Washington.

No ambassador's wife complains of her official duties, which are manifold. She expects them. But what gets many of them down is the extra protocolmatic duties imposed on them by Washington existence.

Within weeks, a new ambassador's wife finds herself in quicksand of social appointments that won't let up until she leaves.

"It's the limit," says Lilian Fay, vivacious blue - eyed wife of Irish lawyer - ambassador William P. Fay. At 47 she has 23 years and a veteran of the diplomatic world, Mrs. Fay says:

"All this charitable business doesn't go on any place else in the world. It's expected of a diplomat's wife here. Apparently they expect it to improve our country. Ireland gets along very well without it."

Mrs. Fay says she thoroughly enjoys some functions and would not hesitate to accept invitations where she is a representative of her country.

SHE'S NOT RIVAL

But like other wives, she points out that her country sent her husband here and sent her as his wife, not expecting her to rival his backbreaking schedule.

Blue - eyed, blonde Pepita Tejera-Parla, a former Mexican diplomat in Chile, is the wife of Dr. Enrique Tejera-Parla, the Venezuelan ambassador.

She has three youngsters under seven, and is expecting a fourth. She tried to curtail her social activities because of her pregnancy.

"Pepita is popular," says a friend. "The ambassadors have built her up and everyone wants her to appear everywhere."

This is the 5th diplomatic post for the Marquess de Merry Del Val, wife of the Spanish ambassador. None of the others, she says, has been so rigorous. The marquess and her husband have guests every day for lunch, and dinner, unless they go out themselves. A dinner party each week for 60 or 70 isn't unusual.

Publicity, all ambassadors and their wives put in a gay appearance. Stuffed yawns are kept in the cloak room or muffled with crackers and cheese. Privately, many are troubled by the pace.

IOOF Hold Pie Social

STIRLING — Stirling Encampment No. 80 sponsored a program and pie social in the I.O.O.F. Hall in Stirling on Wednesday evening at end of the Cemetery Plot Memorial Fund.

Chief Patriarch Clifford Heagle was master of ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. Craig Watson conducted a sing - song and Mrs. Watson was accompanist. Mrs. Percy MacMullen contributed two humorous readings.

Rabbi Jeffa Mendelsund Frank Wilson and Ross Adams of Consecon, who sang two selections.

District Deputy Wesley Farrell of Thomasburgh presented the 25 year jewel to Donald Heath.

P.S.S.P. Charles Carter introduced Past Grand Patriarch Earl Pan, who is head father of the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville. Mr. Fox gave a description of the work he and 11 assistants do at the school. Two boys from the school, Billy Gregory and Clinton Carion demonstrated some of the various work.

Varieties of pie were served at the close of the meeting.

Ann Landers

De-snoring Operation Available for Dogs

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In regard to that boxer dog that snored so loud he kept the neighbors awake, please tell the owners about a surgical correction that can eliminate the dog's snoring. The operation is performed under anesthesia and is painless.

Also, Ann, your readers might be interested to know that it is no longer necessary to put up with a barking dog all hours of the day and night. A surgical procedure can "debark" a dog very easily. The animal does not know that he has been debarked and he continues to bark, but the sound is muted and it disturbs no one. — NS., D.V.M.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR NS.: I checked with my own "D.V.M." in Chicago, (his initials are P.O.L.) and he tells me that the de-snoring operation is peachy, but he would not fool around with the debarking procedure for anything in the world.

He insists that a dog does know something has been done to his vocal chords and the frustration is very hard on his nerves. So back to the earplugs, Buster.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been running away from this problem for years and it has been making me miserable. Maybe you can help.

I am 29 now, have a lovely family and a good life. But I can't get up before a group and give my name and address without shaking for half an hour after. I know it's silly but I can't help it.

In high school and college I faked laryngitis, toothaches, anything to get out of talking before the class. The times when I could not get out of it, I'd get so nervous I'd almost pass out.

I'm not shy with friends and I can entertain large groups in my home with no feelings of insecurity whatever. Please tell me what to do. — REDDING ROSE.

DEAR RED ROSE: If there is a Toastmaster's Club in your town, join it. I also recommend a public speaking course if one is available.

The fear of going to pieces finishes you before you start. The best way to conquer the fear is to meet the situation head on and say to yourself, "I will not let this defeat me." Then do the things you are afraid of. If you simply can't make yourself do it, see a psychiatrist and work with him to remove the psychological block.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A boy in the senior class (age 17) worries me. Hal is very good-looking, smart, and well-liked, but he lives in a world of cameras.

Hal has never had a date in his whole life. His deplorable state can best be described by this incident. I said to him last week, "How come you never go out on dates?" He replied, "I can't afford dates. I just spent $300 on a camera."

I am not bragging, Ann, but I'm a popular girl and there isn't a boy in our class (except this nut) who wouldn't be proud to take me out. What can I do about him? — NEW HAVEN.

* * *

DEAR NEW: It's funny that a girl can get a date with any fellow in the class, but the one she's interested in is the nut who doesn't know she's alive.

Leave him alone and he may get the picture.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

COBEN CLUB

The organizational meeting of the Hastings 4-H Cow Club was held April 4th at Foxboro District Co - operative. Many interested members were present to discuss the plans of the year.

The election of officers was held and the following were elected: president, Calvin Sharpe; vice - president, Gene Wallbridge; secretary, Ned Wilson and press reporter Doug Jarrel.

A discussion followed on the type of seed corn to be used. The next meeting was scheduled to be held April 27 at Foxboro District Co-operative.

Mother's Helper

If your ladder has grown enough to climb up and turn the bathroom water faucets on and off, do take some safety precautions. Teach him first of all that this is off bounds. But to be on the safe side, adjust the temperature of the hot water to be sure it is not scalding. (Good suggestion from Mrs. John Meeds, Newark, N. J.)

Dorcas Assoc. Holds "Talent, Hobby Night"

An interesting evening was enjoyed by members and friends of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on April 5th, when a "Talent and Hobby Night" was sponsored by the women of the Dorcas Association.

The talent program included vocal and instrumental selections, skits, and group singing. Members of the various organizations of all ages were represented and hidden talent discovered.

Following this program, the dress rooms were opened to reveal a wonderful selection both in quality and quantity, of handicraft. Included were paintings, weaving, pottery, electronics, needlework, rugs, millinery, woodwork, and collections of rocks, spoons, coins, antique cameras, and other hobbies and skills.

Refreshments were served during the hobby display and then Mrs. Gordon Lockhart, president of the Dorcas Association thanked all who had contributed to the evening's success.

Pall of Red Dust Covers Parched Australian Range

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — A huge pall of red dust covers the northwest corner of New South Wales.

It covers the misery of the parched and devastated sheep and cattle stations (ranches) of this region.

At Tilpa and Lough, in the centre of the drought-stricken area, all vegetation is gone and sand - drifts pile high against trees and fences.

A few miles west of the town of Bourke, 400 miles northwest of Sydney, the drifts begin.

Here the more determined of the graziers and their families are sticking to their properties. Many never stop cutting mulga scrub to keep the remnants of their sheep flocks alive.

Most of them have used up re-serves of fodder accumulated in the series of good seasons and now survive on loans from banks and pastoral companies.

LOSE STOCK

Those who have kept their stock on their properties, gambling that rain would fall, have lost most of them. Only 2,000 head of flocks that used to number 7,000 remain alive.

Water resources have been reduced to the lowest level anyone can remember. Most of the inland river systems are dry ditches.

Thousands of square miles are a vast dustbowl. Water restrictions are being enforced in Sydney and throughout the state as the great drought reaches its devastating fingers even into formerly rich irrigation areas.

New South Wales is praying for drenching winter rains and run-off from heavy snow in the mountains to avert an even more complete disaster.

But falling heavy rain, thousands of graziers, horticulturists and vegetable and cotton growers face ruin.

TROPIC ISLAND LOOKS FOR MORE CANADIANS — The beautiful West Indies island of Puerto Rico wants to increase tourist traffic with Canada. New hotels along the coast are expected to relieve the crowding which has caused some unpopularity with the island. (CP Photo)

Puerto Rico Is Trying to Turn Navy Calls Into Tourist Cash

By DAL WARRINGTON

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (CP) — Thanks partly to the navy this beautiful West Indies island is getting more attention from Canadians these days. The navy's part has been its recent annual habit of sending several thousand Canadian sailors south for winter exercises near here.

The Puerto Rico tourist department hopes to translate this interest into increased tourist traffic from Canada. With some of the best scenery in the Caribbean, superb palm - lined beaches, a pleasant year-round climate and fine hotels and restaurants, this tropical island has the ingredients to make it a vacationer's paradise.

Puerto Rico has not so far been particularly popular with Canadians. One reason is the Commonwealth tie with such West Indies islands as Jamaica, Antigua, Barbados and Trinidad. Canadian planes fly to these directly; Puerto Rico requires a change of airlines, usually at New York.

Another reason is the reputation, deserved or not, of some Puerto Rican resort operators. Tourists have complained of high prices and of confirmed reservations that weren't honored.

However, Canadian travel agents say the hotel men have prompted to be good boys from now on. In addition there is much new hotel construction that should relieve the pressure on present facilities, especially moderate - priced accommodation.

The tourist department opened an office in Toronto a year ago and already reports a tenfold increase in Canadian inquiries.

Puerto Rico is the easternmost of the Greater Antilles. The others are Cuba, Hispaniola and Jamaica. It's so far east that it's in the same Atlantic time zone as the Maritime provinces.

Discovered by Columbus in 1493, it is one of the oldest settled territories in America. San Juan, the capital, was founded by the Spanish in 1521, making it 84 years older than Annapolis Royal, N.S., Canada's oldest white settlement.

Metropolitan San Juan, population 450,000, spreads far beyond its original limits. But the "old city," almost completely enclosed by fortifications and city walls, is about seven blocks square. This area, with its narrow cobble-stone streets and old Spanish colonial - style buildings, is a tourist mecca. Many of the buildings, recently restored, now house fine shops, restaurants, museums and art galleries.

Another popular place with visitors is El Yunque, the tropical rain forest in the Loquillo mountains about 30 miles east of here. There you see waterfalls, virgin forest, giant tree ferns, air plants and colorful flowers. Near El Yunque is Loquillo Beach, a lovely crescent-shaped strand bordered by a grove of coconut palms with mountains as a backdrop.

One hundred miles long and 35 wide, smaller than Cape Breton Island, Puerto Rico is one of the most densely populated places in the world. Its 2,400,000 people average about 750 to the square mile. Spanish is the official language but English is widely spoken, for Puerto Rico has been United States territory since 1898.

U.S. money is used and highway speed limits are posted in miles per hour. But, following Latin American practice, distances are given in kilometers.

Since most North Americans came by plane or cruise ship, sightseeing tours and car-rental services are well organized. Small cars rent from $4.95 a day and five-seat sedans, gasolines included. Larger cars cost more.

San Juan resembles Miami Beach in the style and size of its numerous hotels. Off-season prices, European plan, range from $12 to $34 a day double on the ocean side, in between $9 and $20 for those away from the beach. Peak season rates, Mid-December to mid-April, run higher.

The tourist office says 706,000 visitors were here last year, all but 100,000 of them by plane. About 13 per cent, Canadians landed, were foreign that is, from countries other than the U.S.

A return flight from Toronto costs $191. During the off season an eight - day trip is offered at $235 covering air fare, hotel and meals.

WORLD'S BEST RUSTPROOFING NOW FROM AMERICAN MOTORS!

All American Motors cars get a "bath." They're dipped up to their rooflines in rustproofing compound six separate times until every nook, cranny and crevice is totally covered. Then they're dipped in primer and given a separate spray coat of primer. Then we top that by baking on three coats of salt-resistant, corrosion-proof Lustre-Gard super enamel. Result: a finish that looks beautiful—stays beautiful for years. Deep-Dip Rustproofing is only one of the advanced engineering features you get from American Motors' today—features others won't offer you for years to come.

Engineering that's far ahead. Extra value that leads the field. Built-in quality from headlights to tail-lights. That's what American Motors gives you right now. Here's proof:

Single Unit Construction. Body and frame on all American Motors cars are welded together into one, single, solid unit for tremendous strength and safety. Result: a stronger, safer, longer-lasting car—a car free from rattles.

Ceramic-Armoured Exhaust System. Not just sheet metal alone, but a ceramic-armoured coating exactly like the nose cone of a space rocket. Resists heat, corrosion, wear—season after season.

Double Safety Brakes. Not just one braking system, but two. If one set ever fails, the other stops you safely. (Double Safety Brakes have been an exclusive feature, at no extra cost, on all our models since 1962. Some other manufacturers have now announced that they will adopt this feature—but not until their 1967 models.)

Most powerful standard engines in their classes. Swift, smooth, seven-main-bearing sixes. Powerful, virile V8's. Take your choice.

Widest range of seating options in the industry. Luxurious reclining seats (buckets, if you want). Armrests and adjustable headrests. And fine-furniture coil springs in all our seats in all our models. (Only one other North American car offers this—and it's in the luxury class.)

Fibreglass roofliners and double door seals. A far cry from flimsy fabric roofliners and single door seals. Noise stays out. Drafts, winds, chills can't get in.

Attention to detail. American Motors offers the durability of plastic kick panels, all-metal rear-deck shelves, even ashtrays that roll out on ball bearings. Small details, yes—but they add up to overall quality.

Beautiful luxury fittings. A big, big selection! All the power equipment and features you want. And floor consoles. Thick-cut pile carpeting. Wire wheel discs. Walnut interior paneling. Houndstooth Checkerfabric. New vinyl patterns. Exciting styling in top-of-the-line Ambassador DPL, Rambler Rogue and Rambler Rebel.

New car quality. We believe that quality is what you build in—not what you add on. We build quality into all our cars from the beginning. We take the time. We take the trouble. We always have. We always will.

Used car quality. The exclusive quality and features that we build into our full line of cars mean that an American Motors used car is a better value and a better buy.

Council Briefs

TO BUILD CENTRE AT FAIRGROUNDS

CAMPBELLFORD — Slace the fire which destroyed the public school, there has been discussion about building the Community Centre on the site of the old school. The matter was received at council meeting on Monday evening when it was decided to retain the original plan and build the Community Centre on the Seymour Township Fairgrounds.

The cost of removing fill from the school ground would be considerable and the Centre would not be eligible for a new grant, which could amount to between $9,000 and $10,000.

R. H. Wilson, secretary of the Centre committee told Council he felt a local person should be hired as clerk of works in the building of the Centre.

SCOUTS GET BUILDING

Campbellford Council granted permission to the Campbellford Boy Scout committee to erect a portable building in Kennedy park for temporary use by the Scouts. Donald Grant, a member of the committee, said the cost would be borne by the Scouts and the Scout association. Mr. Grant asked for better lighting at the park.

A lease will be drawn up under which the Scouts will pay one dollar a year for the use of the property with the provision that Council give notice to vacate if the site is needed for some other purpose.

Councillor Donn told Council it would be advisable to hire a full time recreation director in view of the fact the Community Centre will open in the fall.

HIGH-LEVEL BRIDGE REJECTED

Plans for a proposed high-level bridge over the river in the downtown section of Campbellford to replace the present inadequate low-level bridge were studied and the high-level plan was turned down.

A high-level bridge would require a fill and one half per cent grade to allow sufficient clearance for boats. Council felt this would create problems of traffic control and would interfere with some existing business places.

United Counties will be asked to consider a new, wider, low-level bridge.

TO SURVEY SEWER COSTS

Representatives of the Ontario Consultant Engineers have made a survey of sewer installation at the corner of Market and Front St. where several the sewers come together. They suggested that rather than build a larger sewer to the core well, a sewer for surface water be constructed to prevent flooding in that area. The engineers were asked to make a survey of the costs.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery were recent guests of their sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Munro of Peterborough.

Mrs. W. A. Jeffery is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jeffery of Cobourg.

Mrs. Lawrence Dafoe is convalescing at her home following surgery in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

School Board Asked to Reduce Budget

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford District High School Area Board presented Mr. budget to council on Monday night and was asked to reconsider the budget in order to reduce the levy required.

The main item of concern was a sum of $17,000 to give the board a reserve fund for operating cost. Members of the board explained other boards in the province had such a fund to be used for capital cost expenditures to reduce debenture requirements when major additions are required. Council members felt it was not a matter of doing as other boards did. It was a matter of whether or not Campbellford council could afford such an outlay. They felt it could not.

Total expenditures listed in the budget would put the town of Campbellford's share of the levy at $2,325 more than last year, in spite of increased grants.

$38,000 PLAYING FIELD

The Board informed Council it would spend about $30,000 on a new playing field at the school this year. Last year the board asked for $12,000 for a track at the school grounds which it was found impractical to build.

A major increase in the budget was an item of $30,000 for teachers' salaries. Salaries at the school now total about $1 quarter of a million dollars. There is no direct grant on this item.

The board was asked to go over the budget and present it again in order to reduce it to some degree.

Police Assoc. President Is Suspended

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the Quebec Provincial Police Association said Wednesday there will be no immediate work stoppage in protest against suspension of the association's president from active duty on the force.

Constable Arthur Vachon, who has led a dr. y to effol officers in the association and to have the latter represent them in contract negotiations with the government, was suspended Wednesday.

Earlier, Constable Vachon had been ordered transferred from Montreal to Campbell's Bay, Que., 90 miles northwest of Ottawa.

He and the association complained that the transfer was an attempt to "silence" the organization, which claims to represent 1,700 of the 2,100 - man force.

SUGGESTS REASON

Constable Vachon said his termination of duty for an indefinite period apparently resulted from statements he made about the association's intentions regarding the transfer, in which he suggested the possibility of a strike.

The executive met to look into the legal implications of the move and to "wait for other developments," another association spokesman said. He did not elaborate.

Assistant Director J. P. Desjursan, head of the police western division, said the suspension was "for reasons of internal discipline."

The association had formally protested the transfer in a telegram sent to Director J. Adrien Robert. Copies were also sent to Premier Lesage, Justice Minister Claude Wagner and Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson.

The newly formed association has asked the government for better working conditions as well as job security.

Canada (Ontario) has asked for the judge's removal. At the final sittings here—following hearings in Vancouver and Sudbury—the society told the commission it did not wish to take up an invitation to make a submission to it.

The list and outs of the stock deal — which "confused" one commission counsel William Morrow of Edmonton—were given by John McGraw, Farris' Vancouver broker.

DIRECTED ASSIGNMENT

He said the NONG president directed the assigning of companies stock to Mr. Justice Landerville — seven months after Sodbury had granted NONG a franchise during the Landreville inquiry term—but ran into sharp questioning about his connection that his company actually was a principal in the deal.

His testimony agreed up to a point with the account of his brokerage firm, Continental Investments Corp. Conveste bought 10,000 shares of NONG stock at Farris' direction for $2.50 a share and assigned 10,000 of these to the judge opened in the name of the judge. Then, 2,500 of these were sold at $10 to liquidate the $25,000 purchase price and the remaining 7,500 were sent to the judge here.

The question was: Who bought the 2,500? Convesto's books show that the stock was transferred to Farris' personal account, which was charged with $25,000.

In Vancouver, the Inquiry heard the view of a Convesto employee that the stock was transferred to the Farris account to replace sums that had been sold out of it by mistake earlier.

Farris himself suggested there that Convesto may have used his account as an accommodation, as it sometimes did for traders with no accounts of their own.

'LEFT HIS ACCOUNT'

Mr. Morrow noted Wednesday night that, while testifying at Farris' preliminary hearing here in 1962 on a perjury charge in connection with NONG stock deals, Mr. McGraw had stated the 2,500 shares were sold to that financier but "cleared out" of his account later when he objected.

Wednesday night, Mr. McGraw, after testifying further that they were sold "outside," finally said they were bought by his firm at $10 and put into the Farris account at that price to replace stock that Farris had supplied Convesto earlier.

"It wasn't a deal or sale to Farris," he insisted. He called the bookkeeping "just an internal entry."

William Kinsey, a Vancouver chartered accountant who examined Convesto's books after the British Columbia attorney-general's department set up a branch in 1962 NONG investigation, told the inquiry he could find no evidence in the books that the transaction was anything but a sale to Farris.

The accountant also said he could see no reason for Convesto—if it was the purchaser—putting the transaction through the Farris account.

"Convesto had an account for its own NONG trading," he said, "and I presume that would be the logical place to reflect a purchase from one of its customers."

Sunday School Lesson Light That Still Shines

— By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Years after Jesus had died, a faithful disciple looked back on Him. His continuing influence, and continuity announced, "The light still shineth in the darkness, and the darkness has never put it out." (John 1:5, Phillips).

Will that light be put out in our time? As they look at this rapid and drastic changes that are taking place, many people are asking what, if anything, will prevail? Is there any underlying truth in which people can believe; any unfailing hope on which they can cling? Will the church withstand the impact of secular forces? Will even faith in God survive the corrosive doubts of our time? Was the warrior poet right when he said, "Crowns and thrones may perish, kingdoms rise and wane, but the church of Jesus constant will remain"?

The distinction must first be made between the Church and churches. Churches do change. Many of them die. But Christian history shows that the light of Jesus' gospel will never be put out. The true church as the fellowship of Christian believers that transcends human differences is the bearer of that light, they believe some expression of that church will remain.

BASIS FOR CONFIDENCE

But does Christian faith inspire confidence? For one thing, the Church has withstood centuries of bitter opposition. Even in very first, opponents of the Christian movement were determined to stamp it out. But they only succeeded in scattering the sparks that started new fires. Within 300 years the power of Roman Emperors were determined to destroy every vestige of Christianity, the effort only burning martyrs only added light to the witness.

For nearly half a century, atheistic communism has been determined to destroy religion, lock, stock, and barrel, but as many recent visitors to Russia know, the Church in which persons are permitted to gather for worship are crowded to the point time a worship service is held.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 10: "The Victory of The Church" I Corinthians 15:1; Ephesians 1:3-23; Revelations 7:9-17.

Persecution may drive the church underground, but it has never yet succeeded in driving it out of existence. Persecution actually strengthens the church. Persecution one of its greatest perfections, one of its greatest prophecies of victory was persecution (Matthew 7:9-11)

Again, the church has survived its own errors and follies. Karl Marx considered religion to what he considered an intolerable grave because he did not believe in the ability to change, and correct its own abuses. Many have predicted the death of the church because they have not recognized the church's ability to experience reformation and renewal. At the moment, since Pope John XXIII is said to have opened a window to let in fresh air, the world is seeing significant changes and renewal within the Roman Catholic Church as it seeks to adapt its ministry to world changing conditions, while Protestant leaders are also seeking new ways to express the mission of the church in our time.

PREDICTS SPREAD

The chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission said Wednesday that a sweeping changes in securities legislation planned in Ontario may spread to other areas of Canada in the year or so. J. R. Kimber told the Toronto Society of Financial Analysts that provincial authorities in Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia have shown enthusiastic interest in the Ontario plan.

three years and for withdrawal of court actions taken against some locals after wildcat strikes last October. It has also sought wage increases in excess of company offers of from 50 to 65 cents over the current basic rate of $3 hourly and jurisdiction over independent, outlaw hauling for firms on a contract basis.

Joseph Contarzi, vice-president of the Hamilton local and chairman of the maintenance workers' bargaining committee, said he did not anticipate any problems in settling the monetary differences between the members and management.

"But we still must iron out the terms of their agreement before anyone goes back to work," Mr. Contarzi said, adding that he hoped one or two days of negotiations would settle matters.

He said the talks would start here Monday after a layoff of nearly six months. The maintenance men have been waiting for the truckers to settle the major body of the contract. They are asking for a $1 hourly raise over the basic skilled rate of $2.34.

Mr. Taggart said the strike, which has several times erupted into violence and has caused untold disruptions in the province's industry, has also caused considerable hardship among the striking truckers themselves.

FACE CHARGES

Mr. Taggart and eight other teamsters were arrested March 21 on charges of obstructing police when they sat down in front of a police patrol wagon during a picket-line disturbance outside a Hamilton trucking firm. They have been remanded on bail and will appear in court in that Hamilton area.

Two Hamilton truck drivers were convicted March 29 on a joint charge of common assault arising from a scuffle at a non-union trucking depot in Brantford in February. And last Friday, picketers set up a blockade outside a London, Ont., oil company plant to stop a non-union truck but were restrained by police.

A survey conducted a week ago by the Canadian Industrial Traffic League, showed that more than 95 per cent of its 900 Ontario member companies have experienced some degree of inconvenience.

However, about 75 per cent of the firms said they would return their business to the strike-bound trucking companies after the dispute was settled.

Resigns Post With Trust Co.

TORONTO (CP) — William Pike, former mortgage manager with British Mortgage and Trust Co., has resigned from Victoria and Grey Trust, the company said Wednesday.

The resignation was effective Tuesday, the day after Mr. Pike admitted accepting a $10,000 pay-off for expediting the payment of mortgages money by British Mortgage to a London, Ont., firm.

Mr. Pike made the admission before a royal commission inquiring into the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

Deputation Meets Council To Discuss Greenbelt Purchase

NAPANEE — Representatives of 12 service clubs and organizations appeared before the Napanee Town Council to ask for appraisal of the land east of the Macpherson House with a view to having it purchased to enlarge the greenbelt. John Joyce, representing the Jaycees was spokesman for the group.

Reeve Claude Knight, who is also secretary-treasurer of the Napanee Region Conservation Authority, reviewed the situation. He spoke of the $1,500 which the town had laid aside for the purchase of land, which would be matched by the government. On motion by Deputy Reeve Reginald Douglas, Council voted to have the appraisal made, and to use the fund set aside for land purchase.

RENOVATION PERMIT

Building permits have been granted to Eaton's for $4,200 for renovation of the former Beamish store, where Eaton's is establishing an order office; and to Napanee Industries to erect a building valued at $117,500, the building inspector, Alvin Wartman, had reported to clerk-treasurer Carmen Gretham.

Requests for the granting of taxi licences made by Hugh Jaynes and Marshall Gregg were referred to the police committee. At this point, Deputy-Reeve Douglas who heads the committee said that he thought a change should be made, and that such reports should be referred to council to make the final decision. After some discussion a motion was passed with Mayor Smart voting to break a tie.

The Jaycees were granted permission to hold an Easter parade April 9, with the cooperation of the police and fire departments. Permission was also granted to keep a cleared space on the Market Square for the purpose of judging the entries. They also received permission to have one end of the Market Square blocked off April 30 for the Bicycle Rodeo they are sponsoring on that day. Council also gave approval to the newly-formed Jaycettes who had asked permission to hold their monthly meetings in the town hall.

Councillor Ernest Marshall, chairman of the public works committee, told Council that hydro poles had been moved and trees cut down on Dundas St. in preparation for the installation of the Interceptor sewer.

Deseronto Briefs

DESERONTO — Borden Elliott of R. R. 1, Deseronto, visited his uncle, Malcolm Elliott of Ogdensburg, N.Y., who had a serious heart attack. He was accompanied by his guests, Mrs. Earl Anderson and Miss Ida Elliott, both of Belleville. Mr. Elliott entered the Kingston General Hospital the following day for minor surgery.

WATCH RACES

Although the population of Deseronto was swelled Sunday by the estimated 10,000 who came to watch the races at the Mohawk Dragstrip, there was no lawlessness in the town, Chief of Police L. W. Thomlinson states. The service stations and Kay's Restaurant, the only one in town, did a land office business. Mrs. Terry has no estimate of the number of meals served, but says the restaurant was completely filled from two to seven that day.

TOWN COUNCIL

Deseronto Town Council went one step further Monday night in solving the dog nuisance problem. The feasibility of renovating part of the former Hydro building and converting it into a dog pound will be seriously considered. Councillors Clayton Brooks, James Sharpe, and R. H. Huffman, making up the fire and police committee, were directed to make an investigation of the premises and bring in a report and recommendations to council.

Daylight Saving Time was adopted for the summer months.

Permission was granted to the Victorian Order of Nurses, and to the Canadian Cancer Society to canvass the town for funds later on.

HS-Board Hears Plans of School Addition

NAPANEE — H. H. Roberts of Westport presented to the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute Board the plans for the 32 room addition to the secondary school here, at the closed meeting Tuesday evening. A few minor changes are to be made, Once these changes are made, the plans go to the Department of Education for approval. Tenders will then be called for, and it is hoped that construction will begin by the middle of May.

It is essential that some of the classrooms be completed in time for the re-opening of schools in September, the architect was told. The school is now badly overcrowded, and the enrolment will be higher for the next school year. Amherst Island and Tamworth Continuation schools are closing and the pupils will come to Napanee.

CNR Seeks To End Service In Some Areas

QUEBEC (CP)—Jean Richer, CNR vice-president in charge of passengers sales and service, said here the railway's passenger service "will seek to retire from areas that are well served by other modes of transportation and where the running of passenger trains is uneconomical."

Mr. Richer did not name the areas but added:

"In areas where passenger services are uneconomical but are deemed a necessity — such as Gaspe and northern Quebec, or The Pas and Churchill (in Manitoba) — we think government should provide financial assistance."

He told the Richelieu Club the CNR had made several experiments during the last few years in an effort to reduce its deficit on passenger service.

NOT PESSIMISTIC

The CNR refused "to accept the pessimistic attitude that others adopted toward passenger services." The railway had a "firm belief that the passenger business can be operated at a profit."

The CNR's plan for increasing passenger revenues and cutting expenses "involves among other things the rearrangement of the tariff structure to assure a high occupancy rate (on trains) together with economical operations of our trains."

Mr. Richer said the CNR has proved that "railways can compete with automobiles, buses and airplanes."

A text of his speech noted was made available to the press before delivery.

Teach Civic Course Before Teens Vote

By GAIL NICHOLS (QSS)

Quite often in political circles and in discussion groups, the question of lowering the voting age to 18 arises. Then, I feel, is a subject requiring careful consideration before any definite decision can be reached. If it is true that the older teenagers, ages 16 to 20, are more mature than people that age were say 100 years ago, are they able to judge wisely in matters concerning the welfare of the country? To do this, one has had to have much experience in living — not just existing under the protective shield of parents and home. Has an 18-year-old acquired sufficient wisdom in determining what constitutes a vibrant, successful, democratic and resourceful country? I think not.

At age 18, one is full of high ideals — the world is ripe for change and how has it ever survived under the old fuddy-duddies we have for leaders? The young adult says we need action and reorganization if Canada ever hopes to prosper as does the U.S. now. How to effect this drastic shift — let 18-year-olds vote and the whole face of government switches from meandering grandfathers to aggressive young men with verve and initiative.

But again comes the fact that with age comes experience and more practical awareness of the true needs of a growing country. Canada is booming and she is a growing land, one which has known that the best things in life are achieved slowly and that they must be proved and tested before they can be incorporated into the laws of the country. Of course, some changes can be brought about quickly if it is obvious that former rules are outmoded; for example, the divorce and birth control information laws. It is the men with a large portion of hard living behind them that should make the decisions — theirs are the benefits of hindsight.

I do agree, however, that sometimes the older leaders become entrenched in the habits and codes of a dreary, unchanging generation and that younger men could bring a fresh outlook and approach to many problems confronting. But before these younger men can be voted into office, they must gain the respect of the franchised public, the people who really determine the future of a country. To allow this section of the populace to be dominated or largely comprised of youngsters who know next to nothing about the true state of affairs in the management of a country would be sheer folly. Their goals may be admirable, true, but goals without the knowhow to achieve them are useless. Voting is no small responsibility and I feel that 18-year-olds have not yet demonstrated that they have earned the right to have in this responsibility.

This ignorance of country management could easily be alleviated by a course in the teaching of civics, especially in high school. This course would be an excellent way to install good governmental practices in the teenager. Then he would grow up being "built" a sort of the complexities of politics and perhaps ready to vote at age 18. But as the situation stands now, I think it would be unwise to allow the voting age to be lowered.

Canada the Mediator Can Achieve Acclaim

By GAIL NICHOLS (QSS)

As Canada approaches her 100th birthday, her people are beginning to ask themselves exactly what does this centennial mean to them? Canada has a proud heritage, woven in the fabric of the Iroquoian, the Huguenot, the Englishman, the Indian and the countless other nationalities.

Ours is the only country in the world with sufficient diversification of races coupled with the sacrificial lamb. Viet Nam shall be his altar. Man is put to the flame by the hand of his brother, all in the pursuit of freedom. Freedom to choose a valiant death.

But Spring casts its shadow on false life elsewhere: the sweet smell of Spring manifests itself in the gutters of Santo Domingo where bodies lie twisted and mangled; Spring heightens the tragedy of a maimed child searching for scraps of food amidst the dandelions and daisies of Korea slums; and spring is time for cleaning, as the Canadians drag the dirt from their nationality closets and show their nation with a debris of scandal.

The banks of civilization are crumbling and melting into tornado of swirling mongrelness. The white, man-made mounds are slowly dripping into drops of blood, filling a reservoir that strains with the pressure of conflicting political ideologies and personal aspirations. And one spring the dam will break, leaving behind it, in its flood, an ooze of red clay as a sedimentary souvenir of man's presence.

Canada's goals must be our goals. Today's youth must organize their feelings, ascertain their loyalties, and decide how they can best serve their country. To paraphrase the immortal words of the late John F. Kennedy: "We must not ask what Canada can do for us, rather we must ask what we can do for Canada."

We are a people of mixed cultures, mixed races and mixed thoughts. We are still immature — why, we adopted a national flag only two years ago and after much strife across the country. We are trying to prepare ourselves for something we are not quite sure what. Rather a perplexing situation, don't you agree?

However, if we, the youth, are to have Canada's centennial mean anything to it could very well symbolize our coming-of-age. We must strongly identify ourselves with our homeland.

I do not believe we are all proud of Canada and of her achievements as we should be. For example, when you cross into the U.S. and then return, are you really happy that Canada is your home? Are you as proud of being Canadian as an American is of being American or as an Englishman is of being English?

We are too bland, too apathetic towards our country. To me, there is no real nationalist spirit. The youth of today must change that, starting with the sentennial, the time when Canadians will be thinking most strongly of their nation's identity.

It is our obligation to prove that Canada is great, and wonderful, that democracy can work, and that our multi-cultural

Death Spiral

By KEITH GREATRIX (MSS)

Winter is dead! Long live the corruption of Spring! In a vicious cycle of seasons, death and decay give sustenance to the instruments of further destruction. The Push fingers into the flesh as thumb and index finger on either side of the Achilles tendon. Gently apply pressure with the thumb and index finger on either side of the Achilles tendon. So, let the cannons salute once more, replacing the grey mourning mantel of Nature's sleep with the black ashes of gun powder.

As a commemoration let us have a sacrifice — the sacrifice of a living soul. An 18-year-old boy, known only to the Government of the United States by the classification "A-1" shall be the sacrificial lamb. Viet Nam shall be his altar. Man is put to the flame by the hand of his brother, all in the pursuit of freedom. Freedom to choose a valiant death.

But Spring casts its shadow on false life elsewhere: the sweet smell of Spring manifests itself in the gutters of Santo Domingo where bodies lie twisted and mangled; Spring heightens the tragedy of a maimed child searching for scraps of food amidst the dandelions and daisies of Korea slums; and spring is time for cleaning, as the Canadians drag the dirt from their nationality closets and show their nation with a debris of scandal.

The banks of civilization are crumbling and melting into tornado of swirling mongrelness. The white, man-made mounds are slowly dripping into drops of blood, filling a reservoir that strains with the pressure of conflicting political ideologies and personal aspirations. And one spring the dam will break, leaving behind it, in its flood, an ooze of red clay as a sedimentary souvenir of man's presence.

Youth Parade

Less Hemline More View

By REBA AND BONNIE CHURCHILL

Hemlines are on the rise, and legs are on view. Add to this the youthful trend to thigh - high scooter skirts and the upcoming trend of abbreviated sun togs and you've chalked up three good reasons for wanting shapely limbs. According to a panel of physical conditioners, the best way to condition legs is via massage and exercise. One masseuse offered this tone 'n' trim advice: "Push fingers into the flesh as you stroke lotion up to the calf. Your seconds on each leg keep with the black ashes of gun powder.

Next, accelerate action by combining exercise with massage. Actress Ann Morrell demonstrates, sit in a chair and lift toe-feet off the floor. Strike back legs up and down in a scissor-like motion. Let the heavy part of the thighs hang together and "spank" off unwanted lumber. Practice 20 times at a fast tempo. Should lower legs be your problem, elevate it knees toward chest; however, instead of kicking movement, try to make calves touch as you raise and lower limbs 10 times. If a well-turned ankle is your beauty goal, this exercise is designed for you. Again, seated on a chair, cross right knee over left. Place a ball on the floor; then, pointing toes down, rotate right foot around the circular outline of the ball. Move foot in a clockwise direction. Repeat this action counter-clockwise. Ann, the Howard Hawks I'll make "Redline Version" of your fine sight lines, with gradually rising hemlines.

ON LINE-UPS

By MARGARET BARNARD

Standing in line can be one of the most traumatic experiences in the world. This simple act is endowed with tremendous psychological portents and can be disastrous to the well-being of any "it" possessing the slightest tendencies towards insecurity.

To better appreciate the unparalled wisdom of the a fore statement, it is necessary to discover exactly what a line is. A line is a group of people standing one in front of the other (or one behind the other. Note the significance of this distinction depends upon the progressive or regressive tendency of the individual reader regarding the personal outlook). The average line consists of three major segments — the beginning, the middle, and the end. We will discuss the psychological effects of those divisions later; at the moment we are concerned with the line itself. The very formation of line-up is a manifestation of man's tard instinct, his desire for order and his drive towards conformity. Lines, unfortunately are formed everywhere — in school yards and halls, outside theatres, in supermarkets, on highways, in cafeterias — everywhe re and lumbstones are arranged in neat, little lines. The average man (wherever he may be) spends 75 percent of his life in lineups of one kind or another. But the effect of each lineup depends mainly upon his position in said line-up and the solitary state of his ego.

For a secure, confident soul, being first in line is a tribute to his sense of superiority, but to one less self-assured, the position wreaks untold havoc on his psychological being. He feels "centred out" and responsible for all those behind him. The longer he waits, the heavier the responsibility weighs upon him. He is sure everyone's watching him — but him! Our leader!!

Mockery is evident in every shuffle of impatient feet, distrust in the set of eyes focused on his oh-so-vulnerable back. The burden grows heavier; the tension more unbearable. He breaks and runs — another victim of the lineup blues.

Now if that poor soul had been in the middle of the line, things would have been quite different. He would have felt secure. Anyway: there he stands, protected on both sides, free from the responsibilities of the beginning and the end. He is the herd mani! But then it happens, it seems that those in the rear are pressing forward to the front and those in front just as adamant to maintain their position. The pressure mounts and mounts an immovable object — and guess who's in the middle? He emerges from the fray battered and bleeding, with an indelible scar on what was a healthy prosperous psychological state.

The safest physical position is the end of the line. There, Mr. Average is free to be one waist his place—and that's just what he does. He feels inferior, unwanted, degraded and humiliated. His position is an attack upon his ego. He develops a painful blow to his carefully tended "armour-peope". This is the end of the line, you know. Inside yields to the tremendous pressure he has built up, and breaks with a resounding crash. The quiet, gentle man, father of three lovely children, becomes a sobbing, screaming maniac with feverishly-bright eyes and a hoarse sob-ridden voice. Finally they carry him away, but his anguished screams still echo deep inside every one of us and strike a sympathetic note. Somewhere under that not-so-polished veneer of secure, civilized, healthy we wear so well, lies a poor tortured individual seeking expression in spontaneous, unconformed individuality. Will you break? How many more line-ups can you take? I wonder . . . .

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

I only wish I could be with the weather man in Florida or Batman in Shangri-la. Both of those places are nicely "super camp" all year round. Once upon a time someone told me teenagers today are lazy, and now that I look around the more I believe this to be so. Let's face it, we have it pretty soft. Mods today are concerned with dances, dates and delinquency. Yes, and you're the exception to the rule ! ! ! Not only are you lazy at school but on the social scene too. There seems to be an attitude of "so what" if I miss this gig, there is bound to be another one. Well friend if everyone thought like that this area would become as dry as prunes.

B.O.T.C.H. is striving to give you the best possible entertainment and you should support it. After all this is what you want so what is the hold up? The group is devoted to keep up with all the fads and fancies of Quinte Mod music makers so how can they go wrong? If you play the B.O.T.C.H. game you'll be the winner. Enough said. P.S.: April 30th B.O.T.C.H. and the Big Town Boys.

Well now that holidays are here again you can groove with the inner crowd. Shake it up baby . . . Just remember to look under your pillow for the free "Sleepershoppers." Grandma Quinte will be around to help the Easter Bunny this year. She's everywhere. She's everywhere.

This is the 19th week for "Dave's Hideaway" in The Intelligencer. Things have been very successful with your enthusiastic responses. I am always striving for better tomorrows for Mods of Belleville and Trenton and I hope in the very near future to be able to tell you that "Dave's Hideaway" will also become a teen night club, featuring top Canadian and local groups, prizes and lots of great timés. This will be something worth fighting and supporting . . . Watch and listen for further details on the grand opening of "Dave's Hideaway," coming to Trenton.

I am happy to say that teen customs are changing. I have noticed that not as many Mod couples parade around as going steadyville. Good for you. Listen Brian and Brenda you might think of your love but two months later you'll hate each other and new flames will light your hearts. You don't have to be "Professor Smart" to know that being tied down to one girl at this stage in the game is dangerous for your social popularity. If you play the field you'll end up a winner every time . . . I'll give you one good reason why going steady is for the "Byrds" and that is because Belleville and Trenton are small cities. This means that gossip takes a shorter time to travel. Listen girls I know what is and is the rumors and lies which end up all over town with your name attached to it. Bingo . . . you're in a sinking boat without a bucket.

If you think that's bad, your right it is ! ! ! . . . Wise up ! ! ! . . . Most teen girls are dumb and you know what that means . . . Right. So let us think thrice before saying to your Petula "Let's go steady Teddy" . . . P.S.: Your over sized school ring looks better on your finger Fella than it does hers. Besides Mom and Dad are running low on bandaids . . . Any dood you can't dance to that's got the butterfly of love when the full moon is up, about 20'sville.

TOPIC — SCIENCE AND HOBBY SHOW

Question — Where were you ? ? ?

Answer: Watching Captain Crutch commercials. Seriously you missed one ? ? ? of a good show. The science and hobby exhibits were great this year. And those who attended enjoyed muchly. Congratulations to all winners and to all others, you know every exhibit there was worthy of a prize of some sort. This is the kind of show to have for displaying our future scientists of tomorrow. I would personally like to see the schools themselves co-sponsor this type of show and encourage more of the pupils to take part in those who participate from each school. I would also like to make a suggestion to "Rotary" that on the final night, entertainment be provided for the members participating.

To those wanting to attend charge them a small admission fee. This would be a nice way to finish it off, and give those participants a chance to relax . . . Just a thought from the home of better thoughts . . . Listen there Mods, smack dab in the middle of your Easter vacation I've planned a gig for your pleasure. This is sponsored by the Belleville Jaycees and the Old Boys Parliament, together. Now the details are as follows. Two bands, "The Sparrows" and from Trenton "The King Bees." Yours Truthfully and "West" of "Sounds Incorp" and you too . . . The date is April 13th at the Belleville Armouries which is a Wednesday night . . . Admission is only one buck and you can dance to your hearts content at the Belleville Armouries. It all starts at 8 p.m. until 12 and boy are we gonna hop. Since "Sounds of Music '66" is again this time it's called "Easterbunny Hop." How original can you get . . .

The Grapevine is doing a "grape" business folks so don't worry. Albert Lentini is enjoying good times with teen appeal 100 per cent. Belleville is on the move so let's keep rolling.

This week we tip toe through Dave's Cave so as not to break any Easter eggs hidden in the grass . . . Spring showers may bring May flowers but they also bring new hits. From the Canadian studios of Rockets records comes this week's Spy in the Sky. "Dream Boy" by two dream gals the Allen sisters.

. . . What did Batman call the Queen of England? Answer . . . Elisa-bat . . . Question . . . What did the hotel clerk say to Batman when he tried to book a room? . . . Answer . . . You look pretty fly by night to me . . . Ho ho and away we go with pen in hand and a hope of better tomorrow . . . All's well that ends well. Shangri-la giug, giug.

Joseph of Arimathea Defied Tradition to Give Jesus Burial

In Jesus' direct and darkest hours, support for Him came not from His customary friends and co-workers but from a comparative stranger, including two rabbinical scholars. This Easter-season story tells of one of them, Joseph of Arimathea.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Shades of disgrace trailed him. Reproachful eyes peered from behind the hedges and tongues of slander whispered against him, as they did against the prophets of old. "Denounce him! Let us denounce him!" Joseph of Arimathea walked a treacherous path.

It had led him into conflict with his class, into challenging his own political power, into defence of a convicted capital offender and at last, into claiming the man's body from the Roman satrap who condemned him.

Joseph, the warm-hearted and eloquent country rabbi who had risen to distinction in the leading institutions of the holy city, followed a road that could bring him to ruin.

It descended into the dark desert of the cross.

But for him, there was no turning back.

"Give me this stranger," he requested of Pilate, in a bold and direct confrontation with that niggling ruler, a scene noted in Scripture and detailed in other early Christian literature. After each round of argument, Joseph repeated his insistent plea, "Give me this stranger."

Pilate, disturbed and dubious at first, warned that it seemed provocative and ill-advised in this messy case. Finally, however, after summoning the centurion in charge of the execution to verify that Jesus was dead, the governor testily consented, "Take him!"

PROVIDES BURIAL

So now the audacious rabbi from Arimathea, a tiny mountain village near the Samaritan border, hastened to provide an honorable burial for the crucified rabbi from another rural hamlet, Nazareth.

None of the slain man's comrades or relatives had dared intervene to perform that service. Mostly they had disappeared, scattered in fright.

But Joseph, a virtual outsider, described in Scripture as a prominent public figure, a "respected member" of the civil - religious council, the sanhedrin, "who had not consented" to the charges against Jesus, and who courageously clung to his position, even after it was spurned and Jesus was discredited and dead, stepped forward to attend the fallen, unwanted one, whom others had abandoned or shunned.

A savvy man, this Arimathean, this son of the upcountry.

His vigor and incisive intelligence had earned him ranking prestige in the sophisticated circles of Jerusalem, after he had moved there from his native town. He also had prospered, and owned a spacious house and grounds. He would not lightly jeopardize this estate.

FORBIDDEN ACT

Yet now he approached an inerminantly task. Under precepts of the Torah, it was defiling to touch the corpse of a condemned man especially by one crucified.

"A hanged man is accursed," Moses wrote. In Israel, such a death was the utmost infamy and shame.

No executed criminal, however he died, could be laid in a family tomb. Yet Joseph so intended, in the face of the ostracism this likely would cause him.

He hurried, for the sun declined. From the praetorium, he crossed the Kerlin bridge to the upper city, and at his house, bade his servants accompany him, taking along a flat cypress litter.

He led them out the fish gate and up the rocky hill beyond the city wall and to the foot of the sapless tree, where Jesus hung.

There, Nicodemus, another minority Pharisee on the sanhedrin who had wanted Jesus spared, joined Joseph in extracting the nails and lowering the bruised and lifeless body from the scaffold to the ground.

The body of Jesus was borne by Joseph, Nicodemus and their servants to the peaceful, landscaped "garden of Joseph," where fountains splashed, where flowers grew, where a newly - hewn tomb opened in the face of a stone embankment.

It was the ninth hour (3 p.m.), and nightdraws called in the twilight.

FRIENDS WATCHED

It was a lonely, desolate affair. From a distance, only two friends of Jesus—both women — watched silently through the trees as the two rabbis rendered the last offices for the abased and forsaken Galilean.

Joseph had prepared the new tomb for himself and his kin family, but since they were newcomers in the city, it so far had remained unused. Now it would become the resting place for the stranger.

While still outside, in the waning light, the men washed the body and anointed it with aromatic nard.

Judaism did not practise embalming, nor use coffins. An outer shroud was wrapped around the body, before it was carried into the sepulchre.

Inside it was placed on one of several recessed ledges, hewn into the side walls.

Then Joseph and the others withdrew.

The Roman guard, assigned by Pilate, rolled the huge, disc - shaped stone along its groove until it covered the mouth of the tomb, and sealed it with metal straps.

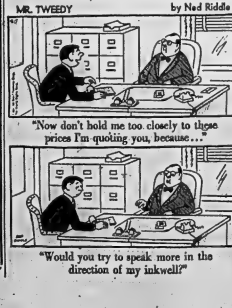
The task was done.

Joseph, out of some dauntless urging of mind and character, had befriended the friendless, even in death.

Although publicly never associated with Jesus before, this direct action and Scripture indicate he had developed some secret regard for the upsetting teacher from the north.

BELIEVED IN SOUL

Unlike the dominant, but soon - repudiated Sadducean party, Joseph believed in the immortality of the soul, in the enduring rabbinic tradition of the Pharisees. As Scripture notes, he held the messianic hope for the "Kingdom of God," confident that the Lord acts in human history.



Whatever his reasons, Joseph took his stand with a disfamed and marked man, not counting the costs, realizing that it would arouse resentment in high quarters. By his decision he himself became a marked man.

According to legend, he became a wandering Christian disciple, carrying with him the cup which Christ used at his last supper, and extending the faith to the British Isles, where, spent by his labors, he sighed, "We be weary all," thereby giving the name to Wirral Hill.

Other tales about him—about his building a house of prayer in Glastonbury, battling snakes in Ireland and other adventures — have filtered through the centuries, doubtlessly embroidered in the telling.

But the decisive and dependably recorded drama of Joseph took place back there in the maelstrom of suspicion, fear and persecution which drove Jesus to his death, when Joseph defied the officialdom which he shared, undermined his own hard-won status and brought scandal on himself by siding with the forsaken Jesus and offering the last gracious act in his behalf.

Half Century Ago at Easter
Mere Handful of Irish Rebels
Dramatized Independence Fight

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The tall, pale schoolmaster with the slight squint walked out on the steps of Dublin's main post office, watched by a sparse crowd of sightseers that sunny Easter Monday noon 50 years ago.

"Irishmen and Irishwomen!" declaimed Padraic Pearse in his high - pitched tenor, "in the name of God and of the dead generations from which she receives her old tradition of nationhood, Ireland, through us, summons her children to her flag and strikes for her freedom."

With these words, seven oddly-assorted men ranging from a poet to a labor leader and raising themselves the Provisional Government of the Irish Republic, declared Independence from Britain April 24, 1916.

Their action, climax of 700 years of Irish misrule, launched a week of bitter fighting and a chain reaction of violence that would shake the empire to its foundations in a divided Ireland.

It was a bold and apparently hopeless bid, doomed from the start for lack of arms and support — with many Irishmen were fighting in the British Army. Yet, by its very failure, it would fan Padraic Pearse's belief that Ireland needed a blood sacrifice to fire her nationalism. He proved correct, and the echoes of the Easter Rising are reverberating still.

BRITISH SURPRISED

The rebellion took the British completely by surprise, though its roots went deep into Irish history. Four previous insurrections since 1798 had failed.

As the 20th century opened, Irish nationalism was gaining ground. In 1905, Arthur Griffith formed the Sinn Fein (Ourselves Alone) movement, advocating Ireland's own parliament. It was a non-militant society that attracted large numbers of scholars and professional men.

The idea of armed rebellion, however, was kept alive by a secret revolutionary society that included Sinn Fein, called the Irish Republican Brotherhood.

The rival was lit in 1912 when Britain's Liberal government, needing the support of John Redmond's Irish party, seemed on the verge of granting home rule. Conservatives in England and Ulster reacted fiercely. Sir Edward Carson, a distinguished barrister and leader of the Belfast Orangemen, became the Ulster Volunteers to resist separation from Britain.

The Dublin rebellion by forming its own militant group. First came the Citizen Army, a small, tough force of trade unionists led by veteran labor leader James Connolly.

The Sinn Feiners, backed by the Irish Republican Brotherhood, founded the Irish Volunteers. They were headed by the respected figure of Prof. Eoin MacNeill of the National University of Ireland, who was opposed to violence unless the authorities moved first.

PLANNED FOR REVOLT

But three members of the brotherhood — Pearse, John MacDermott, and Edmund Kent — were already planning to turn the Volunteers into a weapon of revolt.

In August, 1914, as Britain went to war, Redmond pledged Ireland's loyalty and offered to recruit Irishmen for the British forces, following Carson's agreement to suspend the home rule dispute. Irish nationalists regarded this as a bitter betrayal.

Early in 1916, through their American intermediaries, they asked Berlin to send arms for an Easter rising.

The enigmatic Sir Roger Casement, distinguished British consular official turned Irish nationalist, now entered the scene. In Germany he pleaded Ireland's cause and tried vainly to raise a rebel brigade among Irish prisoners of war. When the German arms sailed aboard the Aud, a ship flying Norwegian colors, Casement was sent back to Ireland on a U-boat.

The Aud was intercepted by a British patrol boat as she waited for a shore signal that failed. Ordered to Queenstown for inspection, her commander blew the ship up. With her went 20,000 rifles and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

Casement was arrested soon after landing on Good Friday and sent to London to be tried for high treason. The double blow convinced MacNeill the rising had no chance of success and he issued a countermanding order, even placing an announcement in Dublin newspapers on April 23 that all "movements" were cancelled.

Pearse and his followers, however, were convinced the nationalist leaders would soon be arrested. They decided to go ahead, one day late. As a result, the rising went off at half-cock.

The conflicting orders and uncertainty wrecked the original grand plan to have 100,000 men rise in arms throughout the country. Only about 1,500 marched with Pearse by the four surviving rebels.

There were moments of light relief. Twice daily at St. Stephen's Green, the elegant park in the heart of Dublin, both sides quit firing to allow park-keeper James Kearney to go in and feed the ducks.

But time was running out for the rebels. On the third day a British gunboat came up the Liffey and pounded Liberty Hall, the Union headquarters where the Irish forces had assembled Easter Monday. The military closed in on Sackville Street, attacking with machine-guns.

STREET DESTROYED

On the Thursday the British launched a concentrated artillery bombardment on the post office and surrounding buildings. Flames devoured Sackville Street, destroying forever one of Europe's most graceful thoroughfares.

On Friday, April 28, a British division sailed in, bringing the new commander-in-chief, Gen. Sir John Maxwell — soon to be known as "Bloody" Maxwell after his handing of the rebel leaders.

Late that day, as incendiary shells set fire to the post office roof, Pearse told his men: "Go out and face the machine-guns as though you were on parade." The leaders withdrew to a Sackville Street house where they held a council.

At 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Pearse met Gen. Lowe in Parnell Street, handed over his sword and signed the unconditional surrender Lowe demanded.

Now the recriminations began.

Maxwell had the leaders court-martialled and 16 were executed by firing-squad in batches of two and three over a period of nine days. Pearse, MacDonagh and Clarke were the first to die in the yard of Kilmainham Jail May 3. Plunkett was allowed to marry his fiancee, Grace Gifford a few hours before his execution.

Last to be shot May 12 were MacDermott and Connolly. The 48-year-old labor leader, wounded badly in the ankle, had to be carried on a chair to the firing-squad. His execution caused outrage in Ireland.

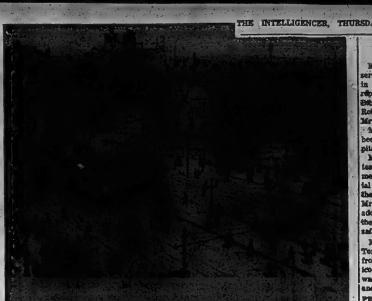
MARTYRDOM ENSURED

Author Edgar Holt in Protest in Arms, a history of the Irish independence struggle, said Maxwell's cruel, long-drawn-out handling of the executions "made certain that the men of Easter Week would achieve the martyrdom they desired."

Casement was hanged in London Aug. 3 after a trial that rocked the Asquith government and roused fierce controversy on both sides of the Atlantic.

Of the rebel commandants, only de Valera escaped, because of his American birth; 97 other death sentences were commuted to imprisonment and the prisoners released in 1917 under a general amnesty.

The complete Irish casualty list including civilians was 450 dead, 2,614 wounded. Irish forces lost 61 men in the fighting. British troops suffered 103 dead, 357 wounded.



The centre of Dublin was a smouldering ruin, with 179 buildings destroyed at a cost of £3,500,000.

Was the Easter Rising worth while in view of all the later suffering Ireland was to endure in the civil war? Veterans of that epic week in Dublin have no doubt.

"Yes," wrote deputy prime minister Frank Aiken recently. "I remain convinced that the men of 1916 did not die in vain."

"I have no doubt it was worth while, though we all knew it wouldn't be militarily successful," said former diplomat Sean Nunan, 76, in an interview.

"We swing Ireland to our way of thinking," said Liam O'Brian. "Before the rising, many of us were looked on as cranks and dreamers."

EASTER UPRISING — On Easter Monday, 1916, a group of Irish rebels claimed Irish independence and opened a week of bitter fighting that climaxed six years of home rule in a divided Ireland. Near Dublin's O'Connel Bridge (above) a United Press cameraman recorded the scene of some of the bitterest fighting. Below is a recent view of the same area. (CP Photo from AP)

Mrs. Jack McFarlane was hostess in her home, for the March meeting of Melrose W.I. A special feature of this meeting was the presence of D.F.P. officer Mr. Oliver, who with films, an address and answer period gave the ladies much information on safety with cars.

Mr. Malcolm McLaren of Toronto lately returned home from seven weeks spent in Mexico and the Southern States was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. McLaren.

PRESENTED WITH PRIZE

The Wednesday evening euchre was again well attended and the fund for the summer swimming classes is becoming appreciably higher. Prize winners were: Mrs. Leslie McLaren, Mrs. Roy McLaren, Mrs. H. Sine, Mrs. Miss Nancy Clarke (lucky draw), Ricky Phillips, Don Stafford, Glenn McGrath and Lester Sine.

On the same evening Miss Gerbreth Genaja was presented with an oil painting she had won in her essay "Why We Should Participate in Centennial Plans". For her fine effort, from the Shannonville Agricultural Society she received a centennial cup and saucer. For the second prize, from the Ontario Branch of Agricultural Societies, she received a cheque. Both prizes were presented by Mr. Sherman Lazier, 1st president of Shannonville Fair Board.

Buddhists All Unite Against Ky

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—Buddhist leaders of all factions united tonight against the military junta of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and demanded an elected civilian government for South Viet Nam "in a very short time."

The Buddhists made their demand in a proclamation issued after Ky appointed Maj.-Gen. Ton That Dinh as commander of the 1st Corps area in an apparent attempt to reassert his government's authority over the country's northernmost regions.

Dinh was one of the young officers who led the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963.

The Buddhist proclamation was read at the Buddhist Institute in Saigon before thousands of demonstrators who have taken to the streets during the last eight days in violent anti-government outbursts.

It ordered the disorders to stop and said the Buddhist headquarters would take over the burden of the anti-government cause.

The most important point in the document was the apparent unanimity of Buddhist leaders who previously had seemed split over their attitude toward Ky's military junta and the war effort against the Viet Cong.

GENERAL TAKES CHARGE

At 1st Corps commander, Dinh took charge of the northernmost area of South Viet Nam, including the cities of Da Nang and Hue where the anti - government demonstrations have centred.

He replaced Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, appointed by the junta last month to take place Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi. The junta's handling of Thi touched off the demonstrations.

Dinh flew to Da Nang and later today and was reported to have held a two-hour meeting with Buddhist leaders and Brig.-Gen. Phan Xuan Nhuan, commander of the 1st Division at Hue. At Da Nang, he met with U.S. marine commander Lt.-Gen. Lewis Walt.

Meanwhile, U.S. Navy rivercraft and marine helicopters evacuated more than 700 American civilians, military personnel and foreign nationals, including a small, unknown number of Australians and Filipinos from Da Nang.

A new incident was reported in the mountain city of Dalat today where South Vietnamese rangers buried tear gas and used the air to disperse about 500 demonstrating students. Dalat is about 160 miles northeast of Saigon.

There was no official explanation of the Da Nang evacuation order, but there were reports Ky might be preparing to move

Various Estimates Of Fortune

HALIFAX (CP) — Eighteenth century French coins found in a wreck off Sable Island were variously estimated Friday at from $10,000 to $800,000.

Alex Storm, 29, a hairdressing student who said this week he salvaged the treasure seven months ago, denied published reports attributed to him which estimated the value at $700,000.

Robert D. MacDonald, 32, who obtained an injunction against Storm's group, said he estimated the treasure at between $500,000 and $800,000.

A Sydney coin collector estimated the value at no more than $25,000.

The estimates followed a Nova Scotia Supreme Court ruling Thursday, granting MacDonald and four others an injunction prohibiting sale or disposition of the coins until a court hearing April 22.

ANNOUNCES RECOVERY

Storm, David MacEachern and Harvey MacLeod announced Monday night they had recovered the treasure of the French pay ship Le Chaffaut which went down in 1758.

Other members of MacDonald's group are Ronald Bundon, Willard Dixon, Joseph Nearing

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The cool unsettled weather that has persisted over Ontario for the past week shows signs of gradually losing its grip on the province. Not much change in the weather pattern is likely for today but some improvement is anticipated for Easter Sunday with a little more sunshine than we have had lately. Temperatures will continue on the cool side in southern Ontario, averaging in the mid and low forties during the afternoon, about 5 to 8 degrees below the seasonal average for mid-April.

Secret Session Is Held

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The Spence inquiry has held its first session —in secret and without permitting counsel for persons affected to be present and question witnesses.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said Thursday persons mentioned in documents and testimony before him Wednesday were notified after the secret session. They were given copies or prices of the documents.

The procedure was immediately attacked as "extraordinary" by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and as "most unusual, startling" by former justice minister Fulton.

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Justice Spence told him on the telephone Wednesday morning — about 11 a.m. that the inquiry into the Munsinger sex-and-security affair would begin Monday, April 18.

He said he received a letter confirming this as the opening date about 6 p.m. EST Wednesday and enclosing a number of documents.

Only after reporters informed him Thursday morning that witnesses were heard Wednesday had he received confirmation from the assistant commissioner counsel J. J. Urie that a secret hearing had already taken place Wednesday.

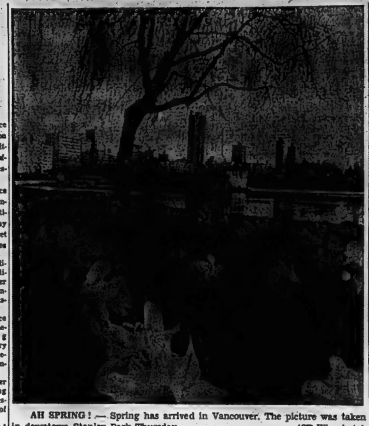
SEEKS POSTPONEMENT

Mr. Fulton said he had sent the commissioner a letter by then requesting a postponement from the April 18 date given him by Mr. Justice Spence.

"There was a formal opening of the inquiry and certain documents were tendered," Mr. Justice Spence said in an interview.

"Any evidence taken was in connection with them."

Persons mentioned in the documents were notified and supplied with copies or summaries. They were asked whether they wanted to make representations about them.



Meanwhile, Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview the commission adopted "a rather extraordinary procedure in that neither Mr. Fulton nor I were made aware of it (the secret session) . . .

Mr. Justice Spence was appointed by the Liberal cabinet as a one-man royal commission to inquire into sex-and-security charges levelled by Justice Minister Carlin last summer.

The justice minister said that two or more cabinet ministers of the former Diefenbaker government were involved with Mrs. Munsinger, a shapely, 36-year-old German blonde he described her as having been an espionage agent before coming to Canada in 1955.

Mr. Carolin said there was a security risk involved and that Mr. Diefenbaker mishandled the case by not referring it to the Religious Services, Heavy Travel Mark Good Friday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Religious services, heavy travel and at least two demonstrations marked Good Friday in Canada as Christians observed the anniversary of Christ's death on the cross.

At least 25 persons died in accidents, including eight Friday in a head-on collision near Vaseville, 50 miles east of Edmonton, and three in a plane crash near Bothwell, 20 miles northeast of Chatham, Ont.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted 40 persons will die in highway accidents during the 78-hour Easter holiday period which started at 6 p.m. local times Thursday and ends Sunday. Last year 39 died.

Weather varied from sunny and mild on the east and west coasts to snow and freezing rain in central provinces.

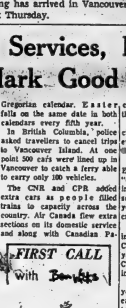
Churches in most cities and towns were filled as religious observances of both western and eastern segments of Christianity coincided.

Eastern churches mark the period by the Julian calendar while western churches use the Gregorian calendar. Easter falls on the same date in both calendars every fifth year.

In British Columbia, police asked travellers to cancel trips to Vancouver Island. At one point 500 cars were lined up in Vancouver to catch a ferry able to carry only 100 vehicles.

The CNR and CPR added extra cars as people filled trains to capacity across the country. Air Canada flew extra sections on its domestic services and along with Canadian Pacific Airlines reported heavier than usual international traffic.

Bus transportation between cities was heavy and police everywhere reported thick lines of private cars on highways.



In Ottawa Mrs. Charlotte McEwen held what she called her "own personal witness," handing out about 70 pamphlets describing Defence Minister Hellyer as "Holy Hellyer, a hypocrite."

She passed out the pamphlets in front of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church where Mr. Hellyer, a member of the United Church of Canada, was appearing as a guest soloist.

The pamphlets said Mr. Hellyer should demand that the cabinet call publicly for a stop to the lombings in Viet Nam.

In Peterborough about 300 people marched in protest against a department store that stayed open Friday. However, officials of Rite-Way Department Stores Ltd., said business was good, although they did not say how it compared with last year when the store had 12,000

Cool Crew Evacuates All Others

By JERRY BUCK

MIAMI (AP) — Although a blazing torch at sea, the luxury cruise ship Viking Princess averted disaster Friday by the cool actions of her crew, say the vessel's captain and grateful survivors.

Passengers reaching here said the disciplined evacuation of the ship smothered panic.

Latest reports said two passengers died of apparent heart attacks but the other 494 passengers and crew members aboard were rescued.

"Every last one of the passengers has been accounted for," said a spokesman for Flagship Line Agency Inc., operator of the ship.

The spokesman, Stanley Thea, said 10 or 11 of the passengers flown here on the last flight today were injured, but none seriously.

Earlier, the U.S. Navy said 484 persons were rescued and 11 were missing.

Some passengers said the 536-foot Norwegian vessel had been plagued by engine trouble through much of the seven-day Caribbean cruise. The good boards in a wage dispute between the railway and their 105,000 non - operating employees.

Informed sources say the minister has been searching the Supreme Court judges across the country for a nonpartisan, so far without success.

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of British Columbia Supreme Court, who chaired he non-op conciliation boards in 1962 and 1964, apparently is not available this time.

The Vancouver judge is a logical choice for the post and there is some speculation in labor circles that Mr. Nicholson, a native of Vancouver, may get him to change his mind.

One of the problems is that most of the courts have summer springs sessions and their members are tied up with cases. Also, at least four senior judges are already involved in federal inquiry assignments.

The 1966 conciliation problem is more complicated than in previous years when the conportation unions presented a single front in their wage demands upon the railways.

This time they are divided into three groups, each with its own proposals on wages and working conditions.

Here is how the three boards line up:

The captain, Otto Thoresen, 52, a Norwegian who has sailed 27 years at sea, praised the passengers, who were picked up after less than an hour in lifeboats by three rescue ships and taken to the U.S. navy base at Guantanamo bay, Cuba. They were later flown here.

"They were as quiet as women and children in church before a prayer," he said. "I do not know why they behaved so wonderfully."

The Viking Princess, a ship of 17,000 tons, was afloat 24 hours after the fire started, though her blackened hull listed to starboard and she was down at the stern. The U.S. minesweeper Salish stood by.

The survivors were picked up by the German freighter Cape Nortie, the Liberian freighter Transhuron and the Chinese merchant vessel Chungking Victory.

Most, if not all, of the passengers were U.S. citizens.

Thousands Of Volunteers Man Dikes In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Thousands of volunteers are spending their second Easter weekend in a row on Manitoba dikes, bracing the barriers against the rising waters of the Red River.

In the Greater Winnipeg area, dikes are being raised to 31.5 feet above average winter ice level to protect the city against an anticipated flood crest of 27.5 to 29.5 feet, expected between April 16-24.

At Emerson, 60 miles south of Winnipeg on the U.S. border, 185 soldiers and 70 volunteers are working to raise the dike to seven feet above bank level to cope with a crest April 14-15 expected to be six to 16 inches below dike tops.

The Red was about five feet above bank level at Emerson, Friday night, a rise of nine inches in 24 hours.

Evacuation of the town's 830 residents was proceeding smoothly and all but dike workers and patrols are expected to be out by late today.

Morris, 34 miles south of Winnipeg, is a virtual ghost town with only dike workers remaining.

Artificial Kidney May Provide Aid in Warfare on Cancer

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—The artificial kidney may provide a new and unexpected aid in the chemical warfare on cancer, a scientist reported today.

Dr. Pierre M. Galletti of Palermo, Italy, said experiments with dogs suggest the possibility of linking the robot kidney to a patient being given powerful, but potentially dangerous, anti-cancer drugs—and using the robot to cleanse the patients blood of drug remnants still remaining after the chemical attack on the cancer cells.

The idea would be to intercept the blood flowing back towards the heart from the cancer site, cleanse it in the machine and shunt it back towards the heart.

The drug used in the initial attack on the cancer site would have been injected in an artery taking blood away from the heart, so that phase would not present a safety problem, he indicated.

Dr. Galletti described the animal experiments to the annual meeting of the American Society for Artificial Internal Organs.

He said the technique offered promises of "an extra margin of safety" in the drug treatment of certain cancer patients but he also indicated the method might allow increased doses of drugs to be used against cancer areas—with possibly greater effectiveness than now is possible, due to safety limitations.

In another report to the meeting a tip-on, tip-off plastic covering for part of the heart was described by Dr. Robert Zajtchuk of the University of Chicago medical school.

Employed so far only in dogs, but described as offering promise for human use, it is designed as an emergency aid to help restore the heart's normal pulsing action after a heart attack, or a cardiac arrest—heart stoppage — during a surgical operation, Dr. Zajtchuk said.

The plastic cover, secured to the heart by a zipper, is linked to a compressed airpump, he said. The air, circulating inside the cover, exerts a pressure that promotes return of the heart's own pumping action.

Hong Kong Riots End

By C. P. HO

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Three nights of riot, arson and looting ended abruptly Friday night as police and troops with bayonets enforced a dusk-to-dawn curfew in the mainland Kowloon section of this British colony.

The riots started in protest against a ferry fare increase amounting to one cent, spread to include demonstrations against other rising prices and finally were suspected of being used by Chinese secret societies to settle old scores and indulge in thievery.

But with the onset of the midnight curfew the disturbances by thousands of youths were reduced to a few incidents of stone-throwing from rooftops.

The government said the curfew would be imposed in Kowloon again tonight to prevent any repetition of the rioting.

JOHN WILLIAM BAWDEN

In ill health for the past month, John William Bawden, 45 South John Street, lifelong resident of this city and one of the great softball hurlers in the Province, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Saturday morning. He was born in this city, 49 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bawden. He was educated in this city and had lived his entire life in the community, where he was very well known and highly respected. For many years, he had been employed with the CNR and was a valued employee.

In the world of sports he took an active interest in the district. Johnny Bawden was an exceptionally fine softball hurler and carried the Parchem to the intermediate championship of the Province in 1936 when they defeated Guelph in the title. He had splendid control, could spot his pitches and when necessary had blinding speed. Along with his fine hurling, Johnny could hit with the best of them and many times pulled games out of the fire with his clouting. He was a gentleman on and off the field and will be sadly missed by a wide circle of friends.

He was a member of St. Michael's Church and is survived by one daughter, Lyn Lloyd (Diane) Alderton, Niagara Falls, one brother, Harold Bawden and one sister, Mrs. Ethel Bawden, both of this city.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. The funeral arrangements appear elsewhere in this edition.

CHARLES EDMUND CHAPMAN

Following a lengthy illness, Charles Edmund Chapman, making his home with his daughter in Toronto and formerly of the Roslin district, died in the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Toronto on Thursday. Mr. Chapman was born at Roslin, 80 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Chapman. He was a well known farmer of the district but had lived retired for some years.

He was a member of the United Church and fraternally was a member of Tweed Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 8.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. William (Aletha) Brand of Windsor, Mrs. Perry (Edna) Arnold and Miss Velma Chapman both of Toronto. His wife, the former Annie Evelyn Higgins died in 1961. He was the last of his family.

Mr. Chapman rested at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from where the funeral was held this Saturday afternoon with Rev. George Southall officiating.

Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

GEORGE ALLEN INSLEY

The funeral of George Allen Insley, a former resident of this area who died suddenly on Thursday, April 7, was held this afternoon at Whitbey, Ont., with Rev. Mr. Hall officiating.

Mr. Insley, in his 82nd year was the son of Mrs. William Insley, Bellevville, and the late Mr. Insley. Born in Wellington, he was a former resident of Point Anne and Trenton before moving west.

Surviving are his wife, Louise, of Lalibaro; two brothers, Frank of Trenton and Jack of Belleville; and five sisters, Miss Lillian Insley, Mrs. R. (Ethel) Liddle and Mrs. C. (Sheila) Alexander, all of Belleville, Mrs. N. (Keith) Sylvester of North Bay and Mrs. L. (Ruth) Sweets of Port Colborne. He was predeceased by one sister, Alice.

Interment was in Whitbey, Oshawa.

KENNETH GEORGE CHANTLER

After a brief illness, Kenneth George Chantler, 29, Strachan Street, died in the Kingston General Hospital early this Saturday morning. He was in his 30th year.

He leaves his wife the former Shirley Ann Hall; a son, Brian and a daughter, Ivy, both at home, and a sister, Mrs. Ivy May Chandler, England.

Born in Brighton, England, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bruce Chantler, England. He had lived in Canada for nine years, coming to Belleville four years ago from Toronto. He was a stand operator with Bell Telephone Company.

Mr. Chantler was a member of Tabernacle United Church.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Funeral service will be held Monday, April 11 at 10:30 a.m., from the John R. Bush Funeral Home Chapel. Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. SALTERN COOLEY

Funeral services for Mrs. Salterm Cooley were held Thursday from the Grant Funeral Home. Rev. M. G. McFarlane officiated.

Bearers were Grant Cole, Douglas Tummon, Harold Pound, Harry Walker, George Sills and Charles Treverton. Interment in Victoria Cemetery.

Two Local Chess Players Enter Tourney

Robert Soetjadia and Ras Swansburg, two local chess players, will compete in the Province of Ontario Junior chess championship tournament, being held in Ottawa this weekend. The tournament is being conducted under the sponsorship of the Eastern Ontario Chess League, of which the local club is a member. They began Good Friday and continue Saturday and Sunday. Soetjadia, a Quinte Secondary School student, is champion of the local club, while Swansburg is president.

The local club has also arranged an exhibition match with Peterborough here the following Sunday, April 17.

3 Convicted Of Robbery at Mount Brydges

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three men have been convicted of the $34,573 armed robbery of the Royal Bank of Canada in nearby Mount Brydges last Sept. 15.

John Clarence Hance, 37, of no fixed address, James Lawrence Hutchison, 37, and Edward Mocon, 27, both of Oshawa, will be sentenced Monday by Judge W. E. C. Colter.

A county court jury of 11 men and a woman deliberated for more than 3½ hours before bringing in the guilty verdict. None of the money taken in the holdup has been recovered.

Hance was sentenced last month in Peterborough to a total of 15 years on charges of bank robbery, abduction of a police officer and armed robbery of the officer. Mocon was sentenced to 7½ years on the same charge.

Are your children water-safety conscious for the summer months? If they are, Belleville Family Y.M.C.A. is introducing an eight-week Tiny Tot water safety course for boys and girls between the ages of 4 to 7 years of age. The purpose is to help these children to overcome their fear of water by encouraging them to float and teach arm-swim skills and water safety rules.

All classes are one-half hour in length and are carried on for different age groups which are limited in size to different days of the week. The children should be 45 inches in height at least in order to touch the pool floor although this is not necessary. An adult must accompany the 4 and 5 year old children into the pool with their them. Mrs. Nancy Jackson and Mrs Mildred Gray are the instructresses.

Please cut out or take note of the following dates and times:

4 and 5 year olds —

Tuesday and Friday 9:30 - 10:00 a.m. Starting April 19.

Monday and Wednesday 2:30-3:00 p.m. Starting date April 18th.

6 and 7 year olds —

Fridays 4:30 - 5:00 p.m. Starting date April 22nd.

Employment News

By R. T. Voss,
Special Service Officer

The employment news for this week concerns High School students.

By now, they will have received their results of their Easter exams.

Those students who are discouraged by the Easter results, and are feeling fed up with the idea of going on with their education, may possibly be thinking of looking for a job.

Certainly at such a time, getting a job seems like a good idea. They can forget about studies, homework, have evenings and weekends free, and go out and spend the cash earned.

But, before they take this important step, they should think shaving money is now a big attraction, but will, the money come with an unfinished education, be sufficient 10 or 15 years from now, when they probably will have grown family financial responsibilities, and a family to support.

If they do not complete their education, they jeopordize their chances of a good position and future advancement.

NES knows from years of experience, that the more education one has the more likely one is to get and to hold a job.

Another factor to be considered was pointed out in recent surveys, which, showed working people with Grade 8 earn, on an average, less than $63. a week, while those with a complete High School education average over 80. a week. That is almost $1,375 more, in a year.

It is not always easy to keep in mind the purposes of education, but if one is to be practical one must look on studies as the key to future security, prospects and advancement.

If a student still has any doubts about continuing his education, drop in to the National Service Office and discuss it with a special NES officer. He will be able to show how much more the future will hold if the student says in school.

Recently, four high school students worked for one week in the NES office there. This was part of their training while still in high school. Without exception, these four young people commented on how working at the NES office for one week, had opened their eyes to the importance of education. They saw how really difficult it is to place people 000 employees with a wage demand averaging 85 cents an hour. Management representatives in Gordon Cooper of Halifax, the labor representative Harry Crowe of Ottawa.

2. Ten unions representing 35,000 shop workers with a wage demand averaging $1 an hour. Same labor and management representatives as on first board.

3. Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), going it alone on behalf of 22,000 members with a wage demand of 90 cents an hour. Mr. Cooper is the management nominee, Pat O'Neil of Vancouver the labor representative.

SETTLED IN GROUP

Two years ago the non-ops, as labelled because they do not operate trains but supply supporting services, settled as a group for a wage increase of 13.1 cents hourly. That brought their average pay to $2.21 an hour.

This time union leaders say there is an upsurge of militancy among the rank-and-file members who are demanding that their negotiators hold out for more substantial gains to catch up with other sections of the economy.

Nobody by either side expects the conciliators will settle things with their recommendations. A strike vote is considered practically a certainty.

However, the conciliation board reports probably will supply a starting point for discussions with the cabinet when the whole mess lands on the government's doorstep in about two months.

ing. At Rosenort and St. Jean Baptiste, six miles south of Morden, residents are continuing to leave.

Last year, a limited state of emergency was declared the day before Good Friday as forecasters predicted serious flooding in the Red River Valley and residents spent the weekend taking precautionary measures.

WEATHER WAS IDEAL

Extensive flooding in North Dakota and ideal water conditions reduced the danger this year and the valley escaped serious damage.

This year, the situation is more critical and towns south of Winnipeg are being evacuated while volunteers and army personnel work steadily to strengthen dikes.

Winnipeg's standby supply was getting low Friday and Premier Duff Roblin asked the RCAF to fly an estimated 275,000 sandbags in from Cobourg, Ont.

At St. Jean, water from the Red and Plum rivers threatened to breach a dike along the east half a foot in a 24-hour period ended Friday morning to within three feet of the dike level, 12 feet above bank level. Highway 75 on the town's outskirts was under water. Gilbert Plains, Morris, all traffic had been halted on the highway.

At Dominion City, 55 miles south of Winnipeg, 25 families have been evacuated after being warned that the Roseau River is likely to reach 1950 proportions. Over flood damage in Manitoba exceeded $20,000,000 that year. The Roseau flows into the Red near Letellier, between Morris and Emerson.

The Red continued to drop at Grand Forks, N.D., 75 miles south of Winnipeg, after reaching a peak of 46 feet above average winter level Monday, slightly higher than the 1950 flood. The level was 43.3 Friday morning.

The forecast calls for continuing cool weather throughout southern Manitoba during the weekend and light precipitation expected will not affect crest dates and levels.

TRADE MAN DIES

GLASGOW (CP) — Finlay Sim, Canada's trade commissioner for Scotland and Northern Ireland, died of cancer in a Glasgow hospital Thursday night. He was 59. Mr. Sim, a Glasgow - born commissioner emigrated to Canada about 30 years ago and settled in Ottawa. For many years he was comptroller of the federal trade department.

Graphic Arts Consulative Bodies Planned

The industrial training branch of the Ontario Department of Labor has commenced a detailed investigation of apprenticeship training opportunities, facilities and regulations in the graphic arts industry within the province, it has been announced by Hon. H. L. Rowntree, Minister of Labor.

Regional consultative committees in the graphic arts will be established in London, Hamilton, Windsor, Kitchener, Port Arthur, Sudbury, Ottawa, Belleville and Toronto comprising representatives from interested employers, employee organization, educationists and the Industrial Training Branch. These committees will be open to all interested persons of the industry who are willing to serve voluntarily.

The Committees will review current apprenticeship training facilities and regulations and, considering the rapid technological changes taking place within the industry and yet to come, will make recommendations for the upgrading of apprenticeship training methods and regulations which will be applicable to the graphic arts industry throughout Ontario.

Lion Slashes Car Show Model

NEW YORK (AP) — A lion posing with a pretty model at an auto show preview Friday turned on her and inflicted a gash in her left thigh. The animal held on until a keeper pried its jaws open.

The brunette model, Nell Baptiste, 21, was described in satisfactory condition today in hospital. Doctors said that she may need several plastic surgery operations to repair the damage.

The two-year-old, 225 - pound lion was supposed to bite through a red ribbon and officially open the international automobile show.

The lion appeared calm enough as the girl knelt beside him. Then television cameras and flash bulbs went off and the lion turned on the model.

Cleveland Amory, director of the Humane Society of America, was among 150 spectators present. He said the animal appeared confused and frightened.

Howard G. Williams Of City Dies in Plane Crash Near Cobourg

Returning home from a business trip to Toronto in his private plane, Howard Garfield Williams, B.S. c, Belleville proprietor of Williams Distributors in this city, was instantly killed, when the aircraft plunged to earth near Cobourg on Thursday afternoon. An investigation has been ordered to determine the cause of the crash. Mr. Williams was alone at the time of the accident.

Witnesses said the plane circled several times before hitting the ground near first year high-tension wires and 100 yards from a house occupied by Lacey Meehan and her 4 year-old daughter.

"I heard the engines sputter and then the plane hit the ground," said Miss Rosella Meehan who lives near the crash site.

Mrs. Joachim said she had heard the plane circling but then it went down. There was a loud noise but no fire, she said.

When she saw the plane had crashed she called police.

He was a member of the United Church and fraternally was a member of Belleville Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 81 and L.O.L. No. 31 of Point Anne.

Surviving are his mother, Bessie Williams, of Bristol Williams, three sons, Bradley at home, Dennis of Belleville, Brian of Toronto, four daughters, Sheryl Laurie, Nancy and Cindy at home, five brothers, Louis of Belleville, Ivan of Woodstock, Thorald of Lindsay, Lester of Oshawa and one sister, Mrs. James (Barbara) Cruickshank of Toronto.

Mr. Williams rested at the Chapel of Thos. Roblin Home and service was held in the chapel this Saturday afternoon with Rev. Omar Wagar officiating.

Interment was in Elmwood Cemetery.

Note: Margaret Simpson's petition to the government: "The Petition of Margaret Simpson of the Moira Village, Midland District, humbly sheweth That your Petitioner had resided in the Township of Thurlow at the entrance of River Moira with Bay of Quinty for the space of twenty years last past, that she has been at a considerable expence in erecting buildings at that place and that by the late survey it is ascertained that her buildings stand upon Lots Number Fifteen on the Front Street, and Fourteen in the Front of the aforesaid Lot on the Bridge Street, Petitioner most humbly prays that Your Excellency in Councils will be pleased when the whole mess lands on the government's doorstep in about two months.

UN Council Holds Session To Handle Rhodesian Issue

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN Security Council was called into session to deal with Rhodesia today after a short delay which brought angry Western charges against the country's white minority leaders.

Informed sources said the Rhodesian debate might be held up by a series of Western speeches criticizing Ambassador Leo Mates of Mali, the council president, for his alleged misuse of his power.

The Western diplomats said the 38-year-old council president had brought the world organization face to face with a new constitutional crisis, involving the ability of the council to act in a crucial situation.

Britain originally had reflected an urgent meeting for 3 p.m. EST Thursday and pressed hard for a meeting Friday, but Keita refused to call the meeting even after eight of the council's 15 members staged a sit-in in the council chamber overnight. He finally announced Friday the meeting would be held today at 10:30 a.m.

Before the council was a British resolution under which Britain sought authorization to use force, if necessary, to halt shipments to Rhodesia of oil by way of Portuguese Mozambique.

Keita said he was delaying the council meeting for further consultations, but British sources said privately the delay was linked with alleged plans of Afro-Asian countries to sabotage economic sanctions against Rhodesia and force Britain to resort to military action to end the Rhodesian rebellion.

Three Killed In Plane Crash Near Bothwell

BOTHWELL, Ont. (CP) — Three persons were killed Thursday night when a light plane crashed in a field near this community 22 miles northeast of Chatham.

Dead are Waldo Diggins, 48, of Georgetown, Ont., his wife, Pearl, 43, and co-pilot Colin Tait, 31, of Toronto.

Mr. Diggins had rented the Cessna 172 to fly from Toronto to Kingsville where he had a week-day visit with a Bothwell area farmer.

Mr. Tait had signed on as co-pilot to log flying hours toward his commercial licence.

Police said the plane had been travelling north in a heavy snowstorm when it struck the ground, ripping off the undercarriage and skidding about 200

Disputes Line Laid Down By Surveyors

NAPANEE — A dispute which began in 1955 came to the front once more at the meeting of the Napanee Town Council early this week. L. V. Shaw attended the meeting and returned his tax bill, holding that Napanee is in the wrong.

The dispute began when the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation wished to establish a line before beginning its housing development and had the land surveyed. Part of Mr. Shaw's property is in Richmond Township, and part within the corporation and the question is, how much line in each municipality. The tax is higher for the town and Mr. Shaw has always disputed the line laid down by the surveyors. The town follows this line when assessing Mr. Shaw.

The case has been a sore point with both Napanee and Mr. Shaw for 11 years. Each year he pays his tax to Richmond, but not to Napanee, as he should.

Several attempts have since been made to have the matter settled, and the Ontario Land Surveyors made the latest survey. The matter is now in the hands of the Surveyor-General.

Meanwhile, Mr. Shaw is prevented from selling building lots and his tax bill is mounting each year he refuses to pay to the town. The tax bill this year was $198.06 and the total bill was $1,813.56.

Napanee, Richmond and Mr. Shaw are all equally anxious to have the straightened out, but have to wait for the ruling from the Surveyor-General's office.

U.C.W. Meetings

AFTERNOON U.C.W.

DESERONTO — The members of the afternoon circle of the U.C.W. had a treat at their Tuesday meeting when 26 boys and girls from the choir, two and three of the public school entertained them with a program of choruses and solos to spring and Easter.

Mrs. Charles Cole of Yourell Street was hostess for this an annual event, begun in 1947. She is now teaching the second generation of children in Deseronto.

At the close of the program Mrs. Cole gave each one a treat of homemade candy.

Mrs. Rose Neal voiced the gratitude of the group to Mrs. McTavish and to the boys and girls.

Mrs. Rockwell Hawley was chairman and the hostess and Mrs. Georgina Cole was in charge of the Easter worship service. Reports of the secretary, Mrs. Tom Jackson, and of the treasurer, Mrs. George Stuart, were given.

Several projects were discussed, including a combined cooked food and rummage sale, to be held in the Dawson showroom.

All enjoyed the refreshments served during the social hour. Some were mothers, grandmothers, or even great-grandmothers of the boys and girls who had sung.

Montreal Hospital Fund Honors Dr. F. Hagerman

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley D. Hagerman of Belleville will be interested to learn that the Division of Neurosurgery at the Montreal General Hospital has established a memorial fund in honor of Dr. Fred Hagerman who was killed in the TCA plane crash near Montreal in 1963.

establishment of the memorial fund.

"To honor the memory of this outstanding young man the Division of Neurosurgery at Montreal General Hospital has established The Dr. Fred Hagerman Memorial Neurosurgical Fund.

"It is planned that the fund will be used to enhance and enrich the clinical teaching and research activities of the neurosurgery division at Montreal General."

DR. FRED HAGERMAN

Dr. Hagerman was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman and had well planned a life in the air. He was a junior member of the resident staff in Neurosurgery at the Montreal Hospital at the time of the air crash.

"Dr. Fred Hagerman showed great promise and plans were made for him to continue with training in the specialty of neurosurgery," stated Dr. Stratford, M.D., hospital division director in announcing

Red Shield Campaign to Be Held in May

NAPANEE — The Red Shield campaign beginning in May will be preceded by "Salvation Army Week," to be proclaimed by Mayor Lorne Scott and the Council of Napanee.

A meeting, Frank Phelps attended the council meeting early this week and told Council that the 34-piece Scarborough Citadel Band would be here for the weekend and asked permission to hold a march of witness. Council agreed to hold a civic reception for its members and have permission to march in the parade. Leader of the band is William Lorimer, M.D.

A banquet would be given Saturday evening, following a dinner at which band members here and council members and higher government officials will be guests. Sunday morning the band will play at the hospital.

Monday, May 2 will see the opening of the Red Shield campaign.

County Education

The trend in Ontario education of late has been centralization. Where feasible, and taking into consideration geographical and economic factors, schools are being located where they will serve the greatest number conveniently and economically.

This is not always as easy as it sounds, and the recent suggestions of Hastings public schools consultative committee are a case in point. In Central Hastings, for example, there is an elementary school enrolment of some 2,800 students, and the committee feels this is enough for one composite secondary school.

At present there are four secondary schools in the central area — at Madoc, Tweed, Marmora and Stirling — and the committee suggests that the latter three schools be closed and a composite school education offered in Madoc.

However, this is the point where the committee, chaired by Stirling Reeve Donald Rodgers, and county councillors part company. Ravelston Reeve Fred Beckett told a recent council meeting that he wanted no part of closing Stirling high school, while a similar stand was taken by Marmora Township Reeve William Shannon, and Marmora Township Reeve John Wilkes, for the Marmora high school.

Tweed Reeve Guy Hughes and Hungerford Township representatives R. C. Graham and William McCrea said they wanted nothing more than that their high school at Tweed be left alone.

Councillors spoke of there being "something wrong" with the Central Hastings High School area and Thurlow Reeve Burnside of Madoc suggested that "what is wrong with it is that only half of the area is supporting it."

Carlow township Reeve Gerald Caldwell said referring to the public school situation, he did not oppose larger school areas "where they are workable."

"But I am surprised that educated people can come up with such unworkable proposals."

Although in doubt as to "control" in the measures being adopted by the education department, Mr. Caldwell said that a few years ago they had been complimented on having a well-equipped school and now were being told the same school was much too much money.

While the debate was heated, members of the consultative committee were complimented on a "fine job." A somewhat backhanded token of esteem, perhaps, but one that was made earlier, but clearly the county is facing a dilemma compounded of administrative confusion, decisions that looked fine on paper only to prove otherwise in practice — and not a little of what might be termed "local politics."

As for the schools themselves there seems to be considerable pride and esprit de corps in the schools which the committee envisages should be closed in favour of the composite establishment. Recently we referred to such interesting events, as a cross-country race by students of Stirling high school and a Roman banquet presented by students at Madoc — out of the routine events indicating the spirit of a school which will tend to become lost in a larger composite school.

Ultimately a composite school may just come into being through pressure of events and more particularly through pressure of school population. But no decision has been made. Committee chairman Rodgers told council his group had only offered suggestions. Meanwhile the whole matter has been shelved until the June session of council, which gives councillors another couple of months to ponder the situation.

Memories of 1916

The Easter Rebellion in Dublin in 1916 may be regarded as the forerunner of latter-day insurrections aimed at throwing off colonial rule or a tyrannical administration such as existed in Ghana until recently.

The rebellion brought independence to the southern nationalists with the setting up of the Irish Free State in 1921. It also resulted in the partition of the country, the six northern counties preferring to maintain the link with Britain.

Thus Northern Ireland has its own parliament and also sends members to Westminster. And it is part of the United Kingdom, which as indicated on British passports, is the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

This division of Ireland into separate political entities has been the cause of a great deal of friction over the years, stemming mainly from the activities of the outlawed Irish Republican Army which maintains that Ireland must be reunited by force of arms if necessary.

While holding prosperity, however, in both parts of the country, the old animosities are being gradually thrust aside. While they will never really be eradicated simply by reason of the differing religious and racial affiliations of the Ulstermen in the north and the southern Gaels, they are of less account today.

Recently the prime ministers of the two Irelands held talks. Their meeting was indicative of the new spirit of tolerance and understanding which is pervading the Irish scene. It may be hoped that this will continue, and particularly throughout this crucial Easter period, which marks the 50th anniversary of the Dublin uprising and which may cause Irish tempers to flare once again.

Religion Not A Kill-Joy

Windsor Star

With so many religious concepts being challenged today it is good to see a cleric challenge one of the commonly mistaken concepts.

Most Rev. G. Emmett Carter, Bishop of London, recently challenged the picture of God as an enemy, an opponent of human happiness. Children can get this impression, he said, through religious teachings.

Too often in all churches, religion is presented as a system of prohibitions. The emphasis is placed on those things that we ought not to do, to the exclusion of those things that we ought to do.

Yet religion should be positive. There are prohibitions, it is true. But it is positive action, consistent with the believer's knowledge of the divine will, that can bring the serenity and joy which is a goal of religion.

Boy, 5, Has Hydrocele; Can Be Easily Cured

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our 5-year-old son has hydrocele. The doctor tells us he should have an operation.

The boy seemed to spend about three-quarters of his waking hours on a rocking horse. Could this have had anything to do with it?

Please explain it in lay terms. —C. E. B.

Hydrocele is an accumulation of fluid in the scrotal sac, and there may be a lot or only a little.

The cause is the failure of an opening into the abdominal cavity to close. A baby may be born with this flaw, or it can be caused later in life from injury.

Whether the rocking horse had anything to do with it is conjectural. Perhaps it irritated a situation which already existed to some degree, or maybe it had nothing to do with the matter. I suppose you'd like a more firm answer, but I can't give you one.

As to surgery, I can answer that. The hydrocele (the fluid accumulation) does not damage the testicle, so sterility is not likely.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can elderly folks have the entire thyroid removed? I am almost 72 and had the right side removed in 1960. Now a nodule has formed on the left side, and I am even more nervous than when the nodule formed on the right side. I have never heard of anyone's having the entire thyroid removed. — L. M.

I think you are more concerned than need be. Only a small portion of the thyroid gland can be removed without interfering with the ability of the remainder to supply you with thyroid hormones.

Second, radioactive iodine, taken by mouth, or the use of anti-thyroid drugs may subdue the overactivity sufficiently without surgery. Your physician can decide the best procedure, considering all the factors in your case.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is simple open angle glaucoma? — H. W.

Simple in this case doubtlessly means not complicated by something other eye condition. The more technical terms used are primary for a glaucoma for which no underlying cause can be found, and secondary is a case developing from some other fault.

The "angle" aspect is very highly technical and refers to the angle at which the iris (the colored part of the eye) and the attachment to the lens of the eye approach each other.

While the angle helps an eye specialist decide exactly what type of condition is present, I think for your purposes what you want to know is this: The narrow angle type is sometimes more difficult than the wide angle (or open angle) variety to treat. That is because, with the narrow angle, drops which dilate the pupil of the eye (to admit more light and help vision) can cause an increase in pressure in the eye.

The wide angle type, which is the more common variety in older people, responds to drops with fewer unwanted effects.

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Recent negotiations are now in progress between Canada's major railways and the non-operating unions representing 90,000 workers across the country. Approximately 800 of those employees live and work in Belleville where they spend their hard-earned wages and pay their taxes.

As usual while the railway labor talks are going on, we hear a lot of criticism to the effect that rail unions' demands are "excessive" and "exorbitant." The companies have rolled up all the monetary demands and have come up with a figure of more than $1500 millions, which they naturally claim they can't afford to pay.

This figure does indeed look impressive, and would probably strike many non-union people as unreasonable. However, it doesn't look at all imposing when divided among 95,000 workers.

The non-ops demands this time are indeed substantially higher than usual, ranging from 60 cents to more than $1.00 an hour over a two-year agreement. They are larger because the unions felt that an extra effort had to be made during this period of economic prosperity to bring the level of their members' earnings up to those of workers in other industries.

That non-op rail workers' wages are sub-standard is obvious. The average hourly wage of a railway member of our union, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, is only $4,300. This is nearly $1,000 below the average wage of the country's postal workers who went on strike last year because they were underpaid.

The general public seems to have the mistaken idea that railway workers are among the best-paid employees in Canada. This may be true so far as the operating workers (engineers and firemen) are concerned, but certainly not for the many thousands of non-ops. Their wages have consistently lagged behind those paid in outside industry.

Can anyone seriously argue that $4,300 a year is a fair or adequate wage for a skilled or even semi-skilled, worker? (and many railway workers receive less), or that a man he expected to raise and care for a family properly on such meagre wage, especially the way living costs are skyrocketing? It is no wonder so many railway employees have to take second jobs and "moonlight" in order to make ends meet! Is it any wonder so many of their wives have to go to work to augment the family budget?

The railway workers of Canada, contrary to company propaganda, are not asking for the moon in their current contract talks. All they want is a decent living wage. They feel, quite rightly, that they have been treated as second-class citizens too long.

H. W. Pointey,
Local Chairman,
Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

Using Their Own Initiative

Kingston Whig-Standard

A Canadian secondary school teacher named Peter Carver has just completed a series of articles for the Ottawa Journal on public education in Britain. The tone of these articles is calculated to set on edge the teeth of all but the most convinced believers in the superiority over all other systems of Ontario education, elementary and secondary.

Mr. Carver begins his remarks by describing a very up-to-date London state comprehensive secondary school. It had everything, that school, and he had to admit that it was as good as any school in Canada. But, oh dear, the pupils! "The first jarring notes" in fact were provided by "the children's lively Cockney wit and defiance. No group of children has ever had less respect for authority—less automatic respect, that is—and has been quicker to show just what it does feel."

The poor man; Canadian teachers will be able to sympathize with him. Those little barbarians! After dealing with them, decided, demanding and pleasantly conforming — Canadian children. No wonder Mr. Carver found the situation "quite different."

Yes indeed; Canadian teachers, by and large, are "young, vital, full of new ideas and projects . . ." and no longer in awe of fun and confusion, an ancient relirod from life . . ."

And don't ever forget, says Mr. Carver, that in Ontario the teacher gets "fair financial recognition of his importance to society; whether idealists like it or not . . ." good money will attract good people. Mr. Carver is all for the unionization of professionals and approves completely of the principle of forcing everybody to join a professional organization as a condition of employment. And he has a right to his opinion. There are certain advantages, of course. But there is also the question of the respect to be paid to those who are too individualistic to accept these premises. Mr. Carver makes it clear that he has nothing but contempt for them.

In fact independence and freedom of action seem not to be among Mr. Carver's enthusiasms. He speaks of the "dictatorship" of British teachers, by which he means their lack of so tight a union system as is popular in this country. He believes that this is "one of the most serious barriers to their becoming a meaningful voice in this country." But one of his criticisms of the system over there is the lack of direction and control by administrative authority. "No curriculum directives, however flexible, are issued by any of the authorities. In fact many a new teacher is not even made aware of his own syllabus by his department head; he is merely handed certain texts and left to his own devices."

Horrors! Imagine being expected to use your own initiative, take a book and go ahead and teach!

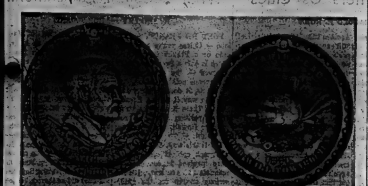
* * *

Well, perhaps the British teacher has not yet developed the automatic obedience, dignity and worth of his profession to the full as yet. But, surely he comes closer to it than does a true force in education if he has yet along nicely without constant direction from the nearest administrative cadre.

What we found particularly repulsive about Mr. Carver's remarks was his smug belief that Ontario has the best system of public education imaginable; that everything in this particular garden is lovely. It's has been away too long, perhaps, and has lost touch.

We Are All Consumers

Oshawa Times



The economic interest of all Canadians share whatever their other pursuits is a common role as consumers. For this reason the present membership campaign undertaken by the Consumer's Association of Canada should attract wide attention.

Originally founded in 1947 to help Canadians buy wisely in the post-war period of inflation, the Consumer's Association work was soon extended to rental field. Hygienic production and distribution of foodstuffs, honest advertising and the abolition of resale price maintenance became its concern. As the needs of the consumers changed, so did the association change. Within a loose federation of local branches, strong provincial and national organizations were developed. The consumer's case was put effectively to government and to industry.

Membership had initially been confined to women. When the constitution was changed, more and more men—chemists, engineers, civil servants, teachers—joined the association, until almost every walk of life is represented today.

This, of course, is not a movement confined to Canada. While here it is struggling to reach a 20,000 membership figure, it can be compared with the six million dollars a year which Consumers Union in the United States has at its disposal. Nevertheless, the Canadian association has done/excellent work in obtaining legislation to protect the consumer, in seeking to put the consumer's view in industry and to help Canadians get better value for their dollar. 1965 was a year of consolidation for the organization. It looks to 1966 as a year of progress.

The 1871 Indian Peace Medal shows a picture of President Grant but does not give his name. Peace Medals were given to Indian chiefs since before the Revolutionary War.

Name Missing on Peace Medal of President Grant

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

The Indians have had problems with the government of the United States ever since the days of the colonies. The silver medal was the accepted peace token for an Indian chief and the President. The chief wore the large medal.

When he felt he could no longer remain a friend of the President, he removed the medal. If the chief died while he was still friendly, the medal was often buried with him.

The early medals were large ovals of silver engraved with the date, the President's name, and other pertinent sayings. Later medals were struck like the medal issued during the administration of President Lincoln.

U.S. Grant in 1871 did not show the President's name, although it did bear his likeness. This medal was made in only one size. Most Peace medals were issued in several sizes.

Q. "H. Aiken" and the words "London, 1820" appear on the border of my print. Was Aiken a famous artist?

A. Henry Thomas Aikens made paintings, drawings, watercolors and etchings. Many of his pictures were made into prints and sold in quantity. The sporting prints by Aiken are considered among the finest ever made. He lived from 1785 to 1851 and worked in England. Like many of the great artists, in spite of his popularity, he died in poverty.

Q. How old are alphabet plates?

A. Most of the A B C plates were made from 1780 to 1860. They were made as teaching aids for the young child who was learning to read. The outlines of each had the letters of the alphabet. An approprate picture of a hero, a famous landmark, Aesop's fables, or storybook characters often decorated the centre of the plate.

The plates were made of glass tin, pottery, pewter, or silver plate. Most of the A B C plates were made in England. Unusual examples include the alphabet in Braille or sign language for the deaf.

Successful Living

Lipreading Course Can Be Followed at Home

DEAR DORIS: Is it possible for me to learn lipreading at home, and how would I go about getting information? I have nerve deafness in one ear.

Even though my doctor says I don't require a hearing aid yet, I'm sure I would not have to make so much effort to understand people and programs. — HOPEFUL

DEA HOPEFUL: There's no correspondence course in lipreading, but if you have a single friend who'll give the lesson material, you can get going.

Such a person must sit so that the light is on his face. He should speak clearly without exaggerating and use natural gestures. Later you can carry on yourself, practising with wide variety.

DORIS CLARK

Even by talking to your own mirror you can become conscious of muscles and movements of the face that a hearing person uses. Certain consonants are never visible, like "k" and "g", so you learn to pick these up in the context of what is being said.

Some older people, whose hearing is failing, have too little confidence in themselves and give up easily when they could have made the grade in time, and added greatly to their own interest in living.

The Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf, at 1537 — 35th St. N.W., in Washington, D.C. is world headquarters for information, aids and pamphlets about lipreading and other helps for the deaf. Write to them.

DEAR DORIS: I had polio when I was little and walk with a noticeable limp. But I am quite healthy and I want a job. My trouble is, no one will hire me. They say I might not be strong enough. I'm as strong as ot. — LIMPY.

DEAR LIMPY: I don't doubt it. And employers are wrong when they write off handicapped people without a trial. People like you writ try twice as hard to make good; and this is borne out by surveys of one-legged, one-armed or one-handed people in employment.

British law requires every employer to hire handicapped workers up to five percent of their staff. Here it is taking a little longe for us to learn what's good for us!

Food Outlook For April

OTTAWA (CP)—Food outlook for April issued by the economics branch of the federal agriculture department:

Apples: Ontario and Quebec prices are lagging while western prices are considerably higher than last year's. The usual seasonal increase in prices may be expected.

Potatoes: Stocks are lower than last year. Prices are expected to continue their seasonal upward movement.

Onions: Supplies are heavy and prices low.

Pork: Seasonally lower prices are in prospect but at levels above those of 1965.

Beef: Following a period of relatively stable prices some short - term price fluctuations may develop in response to increased supplies.

Eggs: Prices will remain firm, easing slightly in May.

Broilers: Supplies generally are adequate and prices will remain [a]irly steady through May.

Turkeys: Ample supplies and strong demand will maintain prices at current levels.

Cheddar cheese: Prices in Ontario are likely to be in the 41- to 43-cent-a-pound range. Supplies are greater than a year ago.

U.C.W. Meetings

CARMEL U.C.W.

The Easter meeting of the Carmel U.C.W. was held April 6th at the home of Mrs. C. Horton. The president, Mrs. J. Gowthorpe, led in words of praise.

The meditation, "The Man Upstairs," pointed to the strength gained from following God's guidance."

A request was made for good used clothing for missions. The ladies agreed to supply food for a turkey supper in Canadian Church, April 30th. The young people are sponsoring this event to obtain money to buy new furniture for the parsonage.

In charge of the Easter programs were Mrs. Urch and Mrs. Reid. The meditation was on the lack of distinction God makes between sodom and worth. An act of responsive praise was led by Mrs. Urch.

Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Urch read portions of the new study book.

NOTE FROM EMEM:

"Cornishman" and I stirred up quite a borneh's neat since his version of "Cornish Pasty" appeared here on March 19th: Clene S. writes: "Doesn't eel tak ony notice of that there forreigner who calls himself "Cornishman." What ee' was telling ee' about was teddy oggy like they makes um in the Royal Navy. You ask Prince Philip, ee' knows. . . . the seam should be at the base of the pastry, so it soaks up the gravy and doesn't get too dry and hard like it would on top. After the cooking period the pasties would be allowed to stand at the back of the stove, to soak, covered with a clean cloth to keep the heat in. Then when the children came in from school the pasty was wrapped and a child dispatched at all speed to take it to the man at work."

A woman, Mrs. Elsie T. writes: ". . . I was born in Cornwall and came to Canada 47 years ago. Cornish Pasties are always the main dish. You should omit the tomato, carrots and hot water in "Cornishman's Pasties" in your paper as the meat makes the gravy. Use the same kind of pastry but use two eggs, parsley, cut fine and bacon . . . just put milk over the top and prick with fork."

Tenor Is Guest Soloist At Messiah Presentation

MR. GARNET BROOKS

A very musicbody young tenor, with a rich warm voice and personality, who shows great promise of becoming one of Canada's outstanding ambassadors of music will be one of the guest soloists at the Messiah presentation by Bridge Street United Church choir to be held at the church on Monday, April 25th.

He is Mr. Garnet Brooks a well known personality in his local community of London, Ontario before going to Toronto to continue his studies at the Royal Conservatory of Music.

Two seasons ago, Mr. Brooks appeared with the Canadian Opera Company as Pinkerton, in Madame Butterfly. Following this he appeared with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra as guest artist, and with the Festival Singers, of Toronto before leaving for an extensive western tour with the Canadian Opera Company's vocal quartet.

Following various concert and oratorio performances through Canada, Mr. Brooks was award ed a Canada Council—Travel grant which enabled him to audition in opera houses in England, Germany and Switzerland.

Tickets for the event may be obtained at Leslie's Shoe Store or from any member of the choir.

QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

The advantages derived from the effective use of audio-visual equipment in the classroom were discussed and demonstrated by Bernard Wright at Queen Victoria Home and School meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Wright, principal of Queen Mary School, is an expert in the audio - visual field and has conducted Department of Education summer schools in this field.

Mr. Wright stressed the need for preparation on the part of the teacher in using the machines available, "Schools have to keep up to date with the competitive age in which we live," he said. To be a successful teacher it is necessary to have both the interest and attention of the students.

"Learners," he said, reain 50 per cent of what they see and hear as against ten per cent of what they read. They retain 90 per cent of what they say as they do a thing."

Random Fashion Notes

All-weather coats consisting of the classic and basic rainwear types, fashion rain wear in fat fabrics, and the new all-purpose coats in the puffed and alligator wet look, will be a very potent part of this coming spring picture. Another part of the all-weather story that looks strong, the new novelty fabrics with a great assortment of tweeds and plaids, classic to fashion styles.

Suits will dominate more of the fashion story for this season. Very big, the long coat continues the longer-line suit, and 3- and 3-piece regular - length suits.

Ann Landers

This Dad Sounds Like An Insensitive Clod

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 13-year-old girl with a father problem. He always been overweight. The school nurse says I should lose 20 pounds. I've tried, but I can't do it. My father has nagged me and made my life miserable over this subject for as long as I can remember.

ANN LANDERS and prove it.

Last night my uncle and aunt were here. I was drying the dishes when dad called me into the living room. He had the bathroom scale in the middle of the floor. He said to my uncle. "Guess how much she weighs." My uncle wouldn't guess so my dad said, "She weighs 118 pounds." Then he told me to step on the scale

My mother came in just then and told me to go back to the kitchen. I heard her tell my father he should not embarrass me like that. He has done this before and he knows it hurts my feelings but he won't stop. I need your help. — ASHAMED.

* * *

DEAR ASHAMED: It's too bad your dad doesn't realize that his nagging will not persuade you to lose an ounce. It will only make you eat more.

Ask your mother to take you to a doctor. He will prescribe a sensible diet. You can knock off those extra pounds and I hope you will. Your teen years will be a whole lot happier and healthier.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You can't believe how much trouble a monthly cheque for $58 can cause in a family. This is what my husband gets every month from the government for a war injury. He says the cheque belongs to him "to operate on" and that I can't have a dime of it.

We have never been clear of debt from the day we married. My husband gives me his whole pay cheque every week so I can't fatht him there. But with four little kids to feed and clothe, and doctor bills and dental bills and car payments, we have never been able to get even, much less ahead.

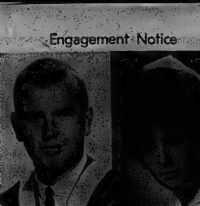
The thing that bugs me is I can't figure out what he does with the $58. He charged my Mother's Day gift but May and I ended up paying for it after the store called me about the bill.

If he would give me that $58 I could get us out of debt in three months. Help please. — THE GOOSE.

* * *

DEAR GOOSE: Help you he what? Give the $58 away from the poor stiff so he can walk around penniless? You said he hands over his entire pay cheque. Now really, Lady — be reasonable.

Forget about the $58. Pretend he doesn't get it. This means, of course, you'll have to find something else to gripe about. From the sound of your letter you'll think of something, Lady.



* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother wants me to go steady and I am against it. I know of three girls who went the limit with steady boy friends because they were together so much one thing led to another and they couldn't help it.

My mother says the reason I'm so insensitive is so high because a girl can't settle down with one man after she runs around with every Tom, Dick and Harry. Mom wants me to pick out the fellow I like best and go steady with him. Help ! I I BUGGED.

DEAR BUGGED: Your Mother is right about the divorce rate, but one of the reasons there is so much divorce is because of the teen-agers who start to steady at 14, get engaged at 16, and get married at 17. By the time they are 19 they are fed up with marriage and are eager to tell it to the judge.

A Gift for Living

Heaven's Nature Indefinable But Jesus Offers Us Clues

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

For several years our family lived on the shores of one of the loveliest lakes in Manitoba, Lake Charlevoix. Our home was only a few miles across the bay from the city of Gimli, where I was pastor of a church. A variety of routes led to our home, and visitors came and went away often came to see us by a road that missed the little city; thus their memories retained no total strangers to Charlevoix.

At night these guests would look from our living room window across the black silence of the bay to the town we loved, and remark how far away and friendly the lights across the water made Charlevoix seem to them. It always interested me to hear them try to describe the town by the few clues they could point to from the vantage point of our house.

From its position on the lake shore they thought it must be a beautiful town to live in. Some surmised it might have a fishing industry, and others suppposed (and rightly so) that it was a resort town.

From our dwelling upon the opposite shore our visitors could not see the small details of Charlevoix, such as the architecture of houses, and people walking on the streets, but only seeing the lights across the bay they beheld enough to convince them that the city was a place of homes and people and fellowship.

DOOMED TO FAILURE

Any attempt made by the children of earth to describe in detail the nature of Heaven is doomed to failure. We have not been there. Even those who have lived closest to God have not been able to describe Heaven in great detail. Nevertheless, the question of what the Hereafter is like has interested the minds of men. Are there any "lights across the bay" that will give us valid clues to what we may expect?

When Jesus spoke to His disciples concerning His leaving the grave, He gave them no details. But He did offer clues. We discover one of these in Saint Matthew's story of the first Easter morning. Matthew describes how Mary Magdalene and the "other Mary" came to Jesus' tomb, heartbroken, and then heard a heavenly messenger announce, "He is not here; He is risen."

As the women joyfully run from the tomb they meet Jesus who greets them, "All Hail!" The original Greek is clear here, chalerte, is difficult to render into English. The Basic New Testament renders it "Be glad."

Another translation is "Rejoice!" Still another translation interprets it "greetings to be Well in well!" The original Greek expression was a common Jewish greeting given when friend met friend, but in the context of the events of Good Friday and Easter Sunday has rare significance.

Nothing worse could have happened to Jesus' body than what occurred on Calvary. He was shamefully executed as a common criminal and died a slow, agonizing death. The worst event that the disciples could conceive of had happened to them; they had lost Him, so it seemed — lost their Friend, Teacher, Leader, Saviour, and thus they had lost hope.

"ALL IS WELL!"

But now, three days after that hope-smashing event, Christ appears to them again, unmistakably, so that they are positive that death and the tomb have no power over Him. And it is then that He says, "Rejoice! All is well!" Coming from one who a few days before had died and been through, those words are more than a greeting. They are not "good" but a detailed description of what death means to God's own. It is a simple statement of the nature of death to Him. After the most horrible death conceivable, still Jesus can say "Rejoice! All is well!"

For those who have lost dear ones lately that is good news indeed. Christ's simple report concerning the death of God's children may not tell us all we would like, but it tells us all we need to know. "All is well" with them.

For those who love God, but fear death, Christ's Easter report is exciting, good news. The one who died confidently told His disciples, "In my Father's house are many mansions" and "I go to prepare a place for you." He had Himself died, and, after experiencing the ugliest of earthly deaths, He reported, "All is well!" "Rejoice!"

If Easter is also, a "light across the bay," then death for God's children is a homegoing to the Father's house. Death is life's glad journey to a place of Christ's liking, especially fitted to meet the soul's needs.

Early African converts to Christianity grasped this glad Easter message and ever afterward they would correct Christian missionaries who spoke of their dear one as "departed."

"No!" the Africans would say, "He has arrived." That is it exactly. Death is arrival; God's is fulfillment. All other events are but way-stations on our journey Home.

Lines on Life

Of End and Means

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

It is easy enough to tell the difference between a religious person and an irreligious man. It is a question of means and ends.

A religious person is a man of ends. An irreligious man is a man of means.

The man who is touched or energized that he acts out of the impulse of the moment, without the influence of larger goals, is a man who cannot be trusted for more than a moment. Each of his acts is measured only by the scales of immediacy. What he does today has little bearing on what he will do tomorrow.

But a man of ends is quite different. Each of his acts is related to a much greater purpose than the act itself. He is concerned with the pattern of his life rather than with the way in which what he has done is related to what he will yet do. He is a whole-some man because he tries to be a whole man.

But there are occasions when even the religious person is confronted with ends, and not only with means, are faced with ethical problems. These problems do arises not when evil confronts goodness; that is an obvious conflict and one which we usually ready and clear. But what shall we do when faced with a conflict between two rights, two things that are good, two significant ends?

It is then that two kinds of religious men appear: the unimaginative folk who can only quote the religious rule; the creative men who are capable of falling back on their own inner moral resources.

When we face a conflict between two things that are good it is not enough to quote chapter and verse, but enough to ask what the rule is. Indeed, there are no fixed rules in a contest between two things that are good. In the hands of an uncreative person such a view does not help much. He would say that a principle is a principle! Either you believe in principles or you don't — there is no other way.

NO ABSTRACTION

But life right in principle but wrong morally. Morality is not an abstract set of rules or a series of laws in a code book. Morality involves the whole person. Morality requires that we learn to exercise our will and our ethical judgement by learning how to differentiate one end from a lower in value from the other which is higher.

Which is to suggest that a religious man without a conscience is not worth much. And religious people who do little to cultivate conscience may produce principled men — but men who can't find their way, on their own, when two principles meet head-on.

This Exile to Martinique Is What Beautiful Punishment!

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique — Unless you're a French-man or a French Canadian (which is only a Frenchman once removed — the name Martinique means nothing to you.

That is, it doesn't stir your soul the way it does a Frenchman's. There it occupies a unique mystic position Americans reserve for Hawaii, and Hawaiians for Tahiti.

But it this way. Say you were a French cabinet officer and were involved in one of those scandals . . . you know. It's not serious enough for the guillotine, Devil's Island is closed, and President de Gaulle, wishing only to fade quietly into a warm, considers your long service to the Republic. The sentence: exile.

Where do you choose? St. Helena or Elba. Don't be cute. Tahiti? Too many Frenchmen and tourists.

Martinique? Ah . . . that comes to mind every love song and Parisian patter record you've ever heard about creole lasses with a thin line mocha ice cream and eyes that simultaneously announce Caribbean rhythms and a dance called the beguine that makes the Conga like a sissy. Add trade winds and palms and languid beaches and no shoes and run . . . the whole bit. This is exile?

Martinique is not exactly undiscovered by Americans. It lies between Dominica and St. Lucia in the middle of the Lesser Antilles. Pan American has been flying us in here since the birds first started south. When it's too late in the season for North Africa and too early for The Beautiful People at the Riviera, the French Alps are getting a mite too.

Still, it is one of the least tourist-oriented islands in the Indies. Being liberal, you could call four hotels deluxe, but you'd have trouble convincing many of more than 100 rooms among them. And it has a marvelous restaurant that went out elsewhere with Escarlet O'Hara. Its prolific banana and sugar plantations are owned by a hereditary inbred aristocracy that has been running things from the port down here on the hills since colonial times.

It was one of this aristocracy's children who undoubtedly gave rise to the Frenchman's romantic image of Martinique (to never fard to arouse romance in a Frenchman anyway). Her name was Marie Rose Josephine Tascher de la Pagerie, later the bartered bride of one Alexandre de Beauharnais, and ultimately best known as Mrs. Napoleon Bonaparte. If a rich but beautiful Martinique can find romance in the Palace of Luxembourg and the Palace of Elba of an emperor, who knows what a poor Frenchman may find in Martinique?

Thanks to the Empress Josephine, six European souvenir shops have sprung up around their ancestral home. No other Caribbean island can make that claim.

Mementoes of Josephine's life, including letters in Napoleon's own hand, are preserved in a small museum near the ruins of her birthplace at Trois Ilets, near Anse La Plaisance. It is interesting to note, still is privately owned and in operation.

Another museum is the museum of St. Pierre, commemorates Martinique's other, and more famous, child: close to home. Here lie relics — melted glass, stopped watches, faded photographs — of the most horrendous natural disaster in modern history.

On the morning of May 1902, St. Pierre was a city 30,000, the richest in this part of the Caribbean and, except for the island. At 8 a.m. — the time of Mt. Pelee, 4,500 ft. above the town, erupted with violence never matched a it where before or since. By every building was in ashes, every living soul, with the exception of a single prisoner in a dungeon (he became a Barnum and Bailey circus attraction until his death from burns three years later). No wartime bombing ever did as thorough a job this rampage of nature.

St. Pierre, rebuilt slowly and tentatively, has a population of almost 30,000 today. But most empty shells still stand. Even rebuilt houses have blackened walls. Life in Martinique today centres about provincial colonies looking Fort de Fwdlca, long impregnable harbor bastion that was responsible for keeping Martinique in French hands almost rll the time since it settlement in 1635.

On a point of land across the harbor, facing serenely out the bay and city, stands the land's newest resort hotel. The Bakoua — named after the characteristic stinky-crowned cap hat of Martinique — is managed by Albert Veille, a restaurateur from Lyon.

When he handed us the diner menu our first night, it handed it back to him with the advice that we were too hungry to read the French book of fare and just have a steak. Then we were on the American Plan so please give us table d'hote. Some of the day, he smiled and handed it back to us: American Plan or no, it was all over the choosing — from breakfast au poivre, crepes suzette and the Veritable Sausage Lyon.

We asked M. Veille, who turned out to be the scion of a Lyon restaurant family, if such extravagance would not likely to result in his going to Paris, or at least to a steamier where he could exercise his madness. But being a true Frenchman, he already has that not many clients are likely to visit at all the menu more than once.

By April 15 the Bakoua's room-board rate will be as low as $12 a day per person. The less than a single gastronomic binge in Paris, where it is probably cold and rainy now, and where the gray-haired waiter with dirty aprons are less decorative than the Bakoua's mahogany chocolate waitresses.

For Caribbean Islands of as much scenic contrast as Martinique. The southern third of the island is largely, despite its farm land: dry, brushy, scraggy. But the ridge known as Mount Pelee is lushly, typically, from a steeply mountainous bed of luxuriant tropical growth, rain forest of giant ferns, and endless rows of tall cane and banana trees.

To the west, flowered River Lezarde, a sluggish stream of pumice blotts that plunges straight down to black volcanic sand, the head of a mighty Napoleon. Why, it's as the President of the United States were to run off with daughter of a Hawaiian pineapple planter . . .

Lawyer Speaks at Meet Of Assoc. for Retarded

The importance of making a will was explained in a talk had been given by Mr. G. R. Cameron at the monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children Tuesday night.

Mr. Cameron, a well known Belleville lawyer and a member of the Retarded Children's Education Authority, emphasized the need for having a will, regardless of the size of the estate. An informative question period followed the talk.

During the business meeting, it was announced that a directors' meeting will be held Wednesday at the Sheltered Workshop now being organized.

The Flowers of Hope campaign will be conducted again this May. Children at the school will be now preparing packets of flower seeds for distribution. Contributions from recipients of the seeds will be used for the valuable training the children receive each local school.

Plans are being formulated by the Ladies' Auxiliary for a fashion show and coffee party later in the season.

The Bold, Brave Handbags!

This spring it's the brave, bold look in handbags. . . and the big bag walks away with the honors. For no matter how much the small bag is talked about this season, it's the big bag that ends up getting top billing.

This spring welcomes a refreshing collection of gargantuan carry - alls for a 9 spring, dripping and short jaunts to resorts.

For shoppers . . . roomy bags in soft crocheted straw in over-the-shoulder duffles and hatbox vanities — all quilt lined. They are especially attractive in a coffee-brown shade trimmed in black calf.

The treasure-chest traveller is a handy shape for holding all those music for travel, at the same time keeping it easy for them to be found.

A seasoned world travel e r from Italy is the leather satchel with a paler suede insert.

The champion of a l l carriers is the bellows pocket tote. It expands to hold a fantastic number of items.

For the young miss on the go, it's the sip-top front p o c k e t "suitcase" made of soft, lined straw and leather.

Other spring handbags play the headerie game with pearl, white wood or black and white beads caging in or completely covering leather shapes of all little box styles.

Lighting the Way

By Father S. Cross

FINALLY, THEY MARRIED

Rachel Sanders dressed for her wedding in Mount Dora, Florida, in the morning, travelled by jet to Los Angeles to meet her fiance at noon, and became his bride at 2 p.m. that same day.

The ceremony culminated a romance between first cousins which began more than 30 years before. Mrs. Sanders and Kingsley Coleman fell in love at 18, but the family insisted that first cousins must not marry.

These young people accepted family dictates and travelled separate roads for the next 30 years. Following the death of their spouses, they met again in 1964, and the romance was rekindled.

Franklin once said, "Be thrifty; have patience can have what he will." The Holy Scriptures teach us that if we exercise patience with God, we can obtain every needed blessing. Such patience though, is a by-product of a faith which believes there is Divine purpose and meaning to life.

TEXT FOR TODAY: "Let patience have her perfect work, that you may become perfect and entire, lacking in nothing." (St. James 1:4)

Promising Sulphur Prospect In N. S. Ignites Speculators

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Speculators in Canada's mining industry, barely recovered from a buying binge in the Timmins area of northern Ontario and Pine Point district of the Northwest Territories, took a whack at another area this week — the Maritimes.

A promising sulphur prospect in Nova Scotia ignited the gambling instincts of speculators and pushed prices of two companies sharply higher.

The Toronto stock market had been relatively quiet until Tuesday when the Nova Scotia government announced the find near Truro then gamblers rushed in and pushed the price of New Seastar - Rouyn up 29 to 58 cents on 6,185,960 shares. Peter - Elder, which jointly owns property with New Seastar, climbed 6¾ to 25¾ on 800,414 shares.

Trading in Peel - Elder was delayed for most of Wednesday morning morning on the Toronto and American exchanges when the SA asked the company for a statement about its recent activity.

A reply was made indicating no orebody had been determined on the sulphur prospect.

MARKETS CLOSED FRIDAY

Markets were closed Friday because of the Easter holiday. Volume at Toronto was 27,162,911 shares compared with 27,864,218 last week.

Industrials continued their recent weekly advance with gains outnumbering declines on the list.

Dominion Textile paced the group, climbing 2¼ to 37¼. Aluminium, Massey - Ferguson and Burns were each up 2 to 42, 33¼ and 34 respectively. Chatfield 2¼ to 8¾ and Shell 1 to 21¼.

Banks were down as a result of profit taking and the bank index lost 2.23 to 163.32.

Base metals showed strength as demand for copper remained high.

Falconbridge added 3 at 102. Denison 2¼ at 45¼, Hudson Bay Mining 2¼ at 84¾ and Noranda ¾ to 35¼. Cominco slipped ¼ to 43¾ and Pine Point ¼ to 62. Banff up ¾.

Among western oils, Banff increased 1¾ to 19, Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil ¾ to 12½, Central Del Rio and Dome Petroleum ¾ to 11¾ and 16¼. Canadian Superior was off ¼ to 40¾.

On index, industrials were up 1.54 to 170.80, base metals 2.26 to 88.66, western oils 1.32 to 108.19 and the TSE 1.09 to 161.35. Golds dipped .17 to 179.81.

At Montreal, industrials were up 1.90 to 168.10, utilities .91 to 148.11 and papers .39 to 122.80. Banks were down 1.97 to 122.80. Volume was 4,019,342 shares compared with 6,332,264 last week.

Two Railway Workers Die In Collision

MONTREAL (CP)—Two railway workers are dead following a collision between two CNR freight trains in northeast Montreal today.

John F. McGuckin, 40, of Sherbrooke, Que., a yard foreman, who is believed to have been sleeping in the caboose of a parked train of 20 empty tankers, was found dead in the wreckage by police. His chest was crushed and he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Jagged wood.

The second man, Michael Donaldson, 32, of suburban Verdun, died later in hospital.

Four other men are in hospital, but a spokesman for the hospital said none was seriously injured.

The Great-Hearted Few

Only Close Friends of Christ Who Stood Firm Were Women

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In a man's world, the women stood firm. It was odd. Strong, forthright men flinched and fled, but the supposed weaker, retiring sex stayed and held fast. In the male-dominated society which struck down Jesus, most of His close friends could not except for the women.

They never gave up, even though the massive corps of apostles collapsed in panic and despair.

Quietly, steadily, throughout the apparent calamity which befell the cause of Christ, the women hung on, refusing to retreat, in seeming disaster, they clung to hope.

Their role forms a muted but consistent pattern, at nearly every juncture of the events, although some of it often goes unnoted because of the scantiness of references to it.

Nevertheless, sprinkled through the gospel accounts are the jarring illuminos—the swift, vivid cameos—disclosing the undaunted devotion of women in the face of Christ's midnight ordeal.

They — not His apostles—grieved with Him on the Via Dolorosa — the Way of the Cross.

They — and only one apostle—were present when He died.

They—but no apostles—followed Him to His grave.

And they—not the apostles—carried the first glad tidings of His triumph over death.

The women, in their unshaken trust and superiority of vision, discovered crowning triumph, while the pragmatic men skulked in despondency and doubt.

It is a curious contrast.

Not only was it the women among His followers who stuck by Him during His shame and death, but there also were other women without any particular connection with Him who emerged in the midst of the fury to sympathize and plead for gentleness and mercy.

One sparingly injected note reveals that even the wife of the Roman governor who condemned Jesus begged her husband for leniency.

Another brief but poignant sidelight, noted only by Luke, records the woe of distraught, commiserating women who surged around Jesus on His way to crucifixion.

"Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for Me, but for yourselves and for your children," He said. His concern even then concentrated on others.

Tradition enumerates several intimate women believers who were in the sobbing throng, including Jesus' heartbroken mother, Mary.

Another named is Veronica, who was said to have pushed forward to wipe His blood-streaked face with her veil.

From then on to the end, and beyond, the women were close at hand. But the stalwart men?. They were missing, mum, rooted.

To varying degrees, the human race has alloted women a generally subordinate part.

This was especially the case in the environment which Jesus prodded, ruffled and shook. His apostles once chided Him when He engaged in conversation with a strange woman at a well. A man wasn't supposed to condescend to talk with a woman in public—even to his own wife.
